Albino White Performer A Leading Exponent of the Blues

By MICHAEL BENNETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Can the white man sing the blues?

Johnny Winter, an albino stomp-'n'-shout guitarist, can — but he says it's not the same as Lazy Lester or Lonesome Sundown did it.

And it probably never will be again.

"When the lifestyle changes, the music's got to be the same, because it was an emotional music that was kinda spawned in poverty, depression and ignorance," said Winter, a wispy, drawling Texan with silk-fine, flowing hair.

"And once the people get out of that, it got to be like an intellectual thing: 'Well, okay, the blues is part of our heritage, so we're going' to keep doin' it,' but they won't feel the same way about it.

"It changed a whole lot from the time people were doin' it in Mississippi. They moved to Chicago and the post-war Chicago blues was a completely different music, a completely different blues than the milder, softer delta-type blues.

"It might not die, it might live on, but it won't be the same way it was."

Winter was weaned on blues and rock 'n' roll records in Beaumont, a Texas oil boom-town just northeast of Houston, getting drunk and listening to people like Little Junior Parker and Bobby Blue Bland at a black club called the Raven.

"I learned a lot from a black disc jockey at a black station in Beaumont called KJET radio," he said.

"This guy was a creole, cajun spade and he had a show, called the Bon Ton show, Bon Ton Roulle, the Good Times Roll. He called himself Parent—Clarence Carlseu was his real name—or Bon -Ton and he used to play all his own records.

"I used to call him up and ask him for song tidbys for me. I met him in a music store one day—I was teachin' guitar and I was about 16, pickin' up a little extra bread.

"He came in and I recognized the sound of his voice, never had met him, and I started playin' one of his tunes. It flipped him out.

"In those days, the white people just didn't dig that kinda stuff.

"But if black people really knew you were diggin' it or interested in it, it turned them on.

"He was really extra nice, man. I'd go out on gigs and he'd make sure nobody killed me or anything and let me play with the band. He really helped me a lot."

Winter also served his apprenticeship with Johnny and the Jammers, Gene Terry and Dombrels and I and Them, playing small beer-and-brawl bars throughout the South.

"Man, you wouldn't believe some of the clubs. Louisiana was where it was really heavy. And it was just exactly like Easy Rider, exactly, man.

"People would come up: 'Hey, man, play Midnight Hour.'

"'Midnight Hour? Man, we're already played that three times.'

"Well, goddamnit, you'd better play it again."

"Or they'd come up and ask for something you didn't know and you'd say: 'Sorry, man, I don't know that.'

"You better goddam learn it before you git off the bandstand or you ain't gettin' outa here."

"You couldn't explain you didn't know the song. Nothin' made any difference.

Rylstone

RYLSTONE — Several members of the Rylstone WI attended the Cum-and-Go's tea at Zion United Church at Pethrick's Corners on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Sweet and family have been redecorating his father's former home on the 11th line and intend taking up residence there in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spencer and his parents, Lt.r. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer attended the official opening and banquet at the Belmont Memorial township building near Havelock on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Percy Reid is a patient in Campbellford Memorial Hospital where she underwent surgery on Monday.

B. B. King remembers the night this frail-looking white kid walked into the Raven and stole the show, seven years ago.

"It was about 10:30 and four or five white cats came in," said King.

"I was havin' trouble with the internal revenue boys then and I figured: 'Oh, oh, here it comes!'

"Somebody said: 'This is Johnny Winter, let him play some.'

"Now I don't let nobody do that because this is my livin'. Then I thought: 'If I was in an all-white club and they didn't let me play, I'd think it was another racial thing'.

"So I asked him if he was sure he could play. I went to my drummer and said: 'One number, that's all, I don't want to blow the gig.'

"Man, he played so good he set the people on fire. I told him if he kept goin', he'd do all right."

We have a carefree aluminum siding home centrally located with all the pluses one needs for family living. Four bedrooms: downstairs a 2 piece bathroom, heated sunroom, broadloom in separate dining room and in large living room. Larger modern kitchen with many cupboards and arborite walls for easy care. Double attached garage and a private water lot. Make an appointment to see this house.

- CENTRAL EAST HILL

A dear little white stone house all new inside and out. Family room with fireplace on main floor. Lovely large bright utility room, modern kitchen with built in stove, oven and refrige. One nice piece and one two piece bathrooms. Beautiful fully landscaped lot, stone upstairs and a private garden for summer living. Don't miss this little gem.

- RETIRED COUPLES!

Why not invest in an almost new six plex with next to no maintenance. Live rent free in a very good location and cultivate a new hobby as the new landlord while the building pays the grocery bills.

- WOULD YOU BELIEVE

An enchanting little bungalow on a large lot just out of town for less than $17,000. This little gem is 12 years old, lovely and bright with hardwood floors, modern kitchen, three bedrooms, fireplace in the family room and in attached garage.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Civilization Is Recent Word

A reader in Georgia refused to believe that, as I recently wrote, the word "scientist" has been in use only 100 years or so; the early 19th Century knew nothing of the word, which was coined by Whewell in 1840. (See the "Oxford Dictionary of English Etymology.")

It would also surprise most people to learn that the mighty word, "civilization" was not known until the 18th Century. Nobody spoke of "ancient Greek or Roman civilizations," or any other kind, for the word did not exist prior to the period of the Enlightenment.

It is hard for us to realize how some concepts that seem as old to us are really new and "modern," taking the long historical view. Until 200 years ago, "civil" and "civilized" meant pertaining to the city, and distinguished the urbane life from more primitive rural societies of the time.

Hardly anyone conceived of "civilization" as a unit, as a body of laws and religion and art and public works and general ideas about mankind. There was no thing called "civilization" that kept "progressing" from savagery to refinement; no sense of an unfolding of history, where man improved his conditions, heightened his standards, and grew further away from the barbarousness of the past.

Indeed, what characterizes the "modern" mind as much as anything is our turn toward the future; whereas, until the 18th Century, most men still turned toward the past. The "Golden Age" for them was always back in the dim childhood of the race, when everything was better.

Man is basically a nostalgic creature; "the good old days" still remains as a standard for many living people, even when those days seem better in retrospect than they were in truth. Man yearns to return to the Garden of Eden, where all is innocence, simplicity, peace and order.

The posture of looking forward instead of backward is a relatively recent one for our species. I suggest that both angles of vision are equally delusive — that the childish naïveté of the people who look backward to the "Golden Age" is equalled by the bland optimism of the people who see "civilization" moving always forward, perhaps slowly, but perceptively.

If we move at all, in a true sense, it is only in cycles, not exactly repeating themselves in identical details, but rising and falling in somewhat regular rhythms; so that "civilization" and "barbarism" alternate within a given span of years. After all, the "progression" from Goethe to Hitler was only a century; from the abolition of slavery to the dropping of the atom - bomb, less than that. There are no "gardens" behind or ahead; only oases in the desert of history.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

Any day now the phrase, "You see doctor, I have this 400 hp. red convertible . . ." may replace the cliche "when I was a kid . . ." which presumably launches many psychiatric consultations.

Actually one wouldn't be too far off the mark if one predicts the day when people with emotional problems will send their Cadillacs, Fords and VWs to the psychiatrist, instead of going themselves.

The above ramblings were inspired by an article written by an American psychologist who claims your car, its size and shape reveal your personality. In other words, your Maginot line of subconscious defences can be ripped apart to reveal your true personality once a good shrink identifies your car.

You don't even have to study psychiatry or psychology to analyze yourself or fellow motorists. The doctor, Jean Rosenbaum of the New Mexico Psychoanalytic Association, provided bona fide, instant hits on analysis in a recent newspaper feature.

He claims most small cars are driven either by "little men" or by self-assured drivers who take a rational view of life. Timid men drive small cars because they want vehicles which will not dominate them, while some self-assured drivers buy small cars because they don't need an ego booster.

The analysis of the big car owner comes packaged in a lot of psychiatric jargon. The big car owner needs the ego trip; he needs a dramatic symbol of worth to insure his place in society. The good doctor later qualifies the last comment by saying big car owners who can afford the giants, are ultraconservative and sure of their position. easy-go" attitude.

We will return to our friend the shrink, but first this word from other helpful psychologists, who pointed out last year that the color of your car is also indicative of your personality. Thus, the driver of a yellow car is considered intelligent; the blue car driver is usually conservative, red cars are driven by aggressive people, while temperamental drivers are seen in purple cars.

Remember the three-tone vehicles of a few years back?

Now, just to confuse the psychosophistic experts (?), let's combine both findings. And what do we get? A fine concoction of conservative gamblers in big blue cars, aggressive self-assured men driving small red cars, adventurous individualists in small cars plus temperamental ultra conservatives in big purple monsters. Imagine yourself with that wild bunch on Highway 401.

Both psychology and psychiatry are legitimate branches of medicine — although we know some people who would doubt that. Psychology and psychiatry enter the realm of astrology, palmistry and tea cup reading when they are oversimplified and "popularized" to become palatable to mass taste.

Many an "Introduction to psychology" text at college begins with the warning to readers to refrain from "analyzing" classmates on the basis of the rudimentary information provided by book. If "popular journalism" stories like Dr. Rosenbaum's are given credence, we will have millions of irrepressible amateur psychoanalysts on our highways.

Let's assume a car really reveals your personality. What about the man who sells his big red car and buys a small black one? Does he suddenly change from a happy-go-lucky aggressive extrovert into a timid introvert? Or does he become a split personality and drive away from the lot in a schizophrenic Jekyll and Hyde frenzy?

And how about the increased popularity of small cars? Does this mean North Americans are becoming "little men" or "adventurous individualists"?

The doctor ignores the fact that most people buy a car best suited to their purpose, budget and convenience. And there are many other areas which the good doctor doesn't cover in his story. Like, what kind of car he drives.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For June 16

Your birthday today: Life picks up momentum, tending to spill over pressed positions. You find yourself coping with broad changes and enjoying it, perhaps because of leaders in creating the transition. Today's natives are light on their feet, agile, graceful. They are very attentive to the progress of competitors.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Any disagreement can bring about an unwanted break. Tact works where you must be on the spot. Absence works much better if it's excusable or planned.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): The move you make, perhaps on a journey, may be because, abrupt, but it resolves a question. Avoid personalities.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Almost anything goes well if the timing is right. Keep nobody waiting, or if you must, keep him informed on why he's waiting.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You have enough inner conflicts to resolve without involving yourself in other people's confrontation of each other.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): It turns out your errors were not so appalling. Life brightens and something in the way of a new departure is ready to be organized with gusto!

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Don't volunteer any special benefit or favor if it's going to cause you an inconvenience or a sacrifice. Wait until you're asked, then help in the manner accepted and needed.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Life and work now spread before you in broad vista so you can plan your path well. Distant goals depend more on today's details than most people realize.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Financial dealings are urgent or unavoidable. Special care and full information should be sought before you plunge into any speculation. Group action, in any field, is favored more than individual effort.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You hear much that serves you well later. Keep notes, records, names for future reference. See that your own noise and doings don't get in the way of your learning and saving.

CAPRICRON (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Review your program for gaps, free time and small things you haven't scheduled. Eventual brings new opinions, reports on earlier ventures.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): The farther up the ladder people are, the more blunt are their present remarks. Where you can't dodge, stall for time.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You're likely trying to buy something you want, and either you can't find it or it's not for sale at the moment. Wait; the rules soon change.

Constitutional Charter Drawn

Davis Likely To OK Accord

"We're well aware of your problems without the dramatics, Mr. Bourassa!"

VICTORIA (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis said today he probably will recommend to his cabinet that the province accept the constitutional charter proposed Wednesday night at the end of the federal-provincial conference.

"There is very little, if anything, in it, that is tough for Ontario to accept," Mr. Davis said in an interview.

The 10 provincial governments have until June 28 to accept or reject the charter. After that, the proposals must come before the provincial legislatures. No time limit has been set for this stage.

Mr. Davis returns to Toronto today for a meeting with his cabinet tonight, but he did not indicate whether the charter would be discussed then.

He said only that "I expect I'll be recommending it to my colleagues."

Recommendation to the Ontario legislature "depends on whether or not other provinces, or the federal government, include their acceptance." A veto by any government or legislature would void the charter.

He described the charter as a significant accomplishment and said there was "a very high degree of consensus" among the first ministers although "we haven't solved everything."

"Personally, I am pleased with the direction things have taken."

Mr. Davis noted the proposed provision to permit provinces to operate their own family allow-

Rasminsky Defends Policies

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada should stick with present methods of managing the economy while trying to make them more efficient, says Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada.

In a prepared presentation for a Senate inquiry today, the country's top manager of money and credit conditions says for refinement of existing techniques rather than a shift to new policies.

He says his prescription, allowing unsatisfactory economic performances with high unemployment, "will probably be regarded as unimaginative at best, but I would claim for it that it is realistic."

He acknowledges that recent experience of high unemployment, inflation alone growth are evidence of unsatisfactory performance.

He denies that federal authorities—either in the government or the Bank of Canada—intended to generate unemployment rates of six per cent or more when imposing restraints to fight inflation in 1969 and 1970.

June 28 Date For Decision

VICTORIA (CP) — Canada's federal and provincial government leaders produced a complex package of constitutional reform Wednesday which, if accepted, could soften the strains of inter-government bickering while bringing a new constitution to Canada.

After a 13-hour final session, which stretched into the night, Prime Minister Trudeau termed the "constitutional charter 1971" as "something of a compromise . . . to the benefit of the Canadian people."

The central items of the conference—the so-called "package deal" under which Quebec sought increased social security jurisdiction in return for its acceptance of a constitutional amending formula—was not settled.

Instead, these questions were wrapped into a new and bigger package which all 11 governments—the federal and 10 provincial governments—will either accept or reject in its entirety.

They must decide by June 28 whether to accept the charter, and place it before their parliaments and legislatures for approval, or else it dies.

If any government rejects it, said Mr. Trudeau during a midnight press conference, then work on the rest of constitutional discussions "for a while."

If it is accepted by all governments and then approved in their respective houses, the British North American Act will be replaced by a new modified Canadian constitution which can be amended entirely within Canada. Amendments to the BNA Act—now this country's constitution—can only be made with the final approval of the British Parliament.

The new constitution would add language rights and civil liberties, and give provinces a say in appointments to the Supreme Court of Canada.

There would be constitutional recognition of regional disparities, Ottawa would lose its power to disallow provincial law, and there would be compulsory consultation between Ottawa and the provinces in areas involving family, youth and occupational training allowances.

The formula under which constitutional amendments could be made entirely in Canada would provide for changes with the approval of Quebec, Ontario, any two of the four Atlantic provinces and any two western provinces representing 50 per cent of the region's population.

The formula had been settled on "as feasible approach" at the February conference in Ottawa. It caused no controversy at the Victoria talks, except for the fact that Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa coupled its acceptance with demands that his province take over control of such social security areas as old-age pensions, family allowances, manpower training and related fields.

The effects of the proposed new charter would be to establish joint jurisdiction and compulsory consultation in social security.

There was no immediate indication of the charter's initial popularity by the tired and guarded premiers. Premier William Davis of Ontario said he was pleased with the charter provisions reached, and Premier

Bourassa Will Not Indicate If He Will Accept Charter

VICTORIA (CP) — Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa would not say early today whether he will recommend that his cabinet accept or reject the constitutional charter proposed by the federal-provincial conference which ended Wednesday night.

"My first ordinary will be reserved for my cabinet colleagues," Mr. Bourassa told a news conference shortly before he left this British Columbia capital city.

Mr. Bourassa said it is obvious that the proposals concerning social policy are "not what Quebec sought in its original proposal."

He said the social-policy section of the charter is the federal government's counter-proposal to the Quebec government.

The charter contains a proposal that the constitution be amended to add family, youth and occupational training allowances to the programs in which provincial legislation overrules conflicting federal laws.

The amendment would also require the federal government to consult with the provincial governments on any proposed legislation dealing with these programs.

Quebec originally sought an amendment giving the provinces legislative primacy over the greater number of income security programs, with the transfer of federal tax revenues to finance programs taken over by the provinces.

Prime Minister Trudeau said financial arrangements are not covered by the social-policy section of the proposed charter.

Mr. Bourassa said financial arrangements were not mentioned in the section because of "certain doubts" expressed by Ottawa and "some provinces."

Mr. Trudeau, with the support of several provinces, has maintained that revenue transfers as sought by Quebec would erode the federal government's power to re-distribute wealth throughout the country.

The Quebec premier said that among subjects to be discussed by his cabinet is "the whole problem of financial compensation."

He also wanted to examine "the economic impact of other federal measures, such as the budget."

Jobless Number Declines Sharply

OTTAWA (CP) — A dramatic improvement in employment — the biggest in more than a year — cut sharply into unemployment figures last month, trimming 116,000 off the jobless rolls.

Unemployment dropped to 543,000 from 659,000 in April but was still running ahead of 513,000 in May last year.

The April figure announced a month ago showed a startling jump for that time of year. Government authorities explained it as an aberration, caused by the laziness of the spring.

If so, spring John flooded the land last month. The 347,000 more workers employed in May was the biggest one-month gain in employment in more than a year, and compared with an increase of 208,000 last May and 283,000 last July.

Canada's employment picture is always subject to wide fluctuations caused by the season. Last September, when student workers went back to school and summer resorts started hanging up their shutters, there was a drop of 280,000 in employment.

| | May April May 1971 1971 1970 |
| Labor force | 8,627 8,306 8,465 |
| Employment | 8,084 7,727 7952 |
| Unemployment | 543 659 513 |

Tax Cut Hinted

Ottawa Certain Prosperity Ahead

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal authorities say they are convinced more jobs and prosperity are in store this year for Canadians, on the basis of analysis to the end of March.

Developments up to that time point to "a significant growth in new employment opportunities and a likely downward trend in unemployment through the remainder of the year," says a government assessment of the economy and an accounting of federal financial operations.

The 237-page document—most of its charts, tables and graphs tracing developments in the fiscal year to March 31—was presented to the Commons Wednesday by Finance Minister E. J. Benson as background for his budget Friday.

Consumers, it says, are in a position to expand purchases considerably. The increased availability of credit should generate substantial outlays for new homes, furniture, appliances and cars.

Freer spending should encourage private industry to put more money into industrial machinery, equipment and buildings, helping the job picture, the analysis says.

Such investment spending by federal, provincial and municipal governments is expected to be buoyant throughout the year regardless of consumer attitudes.

"The rate at which prices are rising may well continue to be moderate, although many uncertainties exist. . . ."

But solving the unemployment problem is the primary goal of economic policy, says the document. That would indicate continued heavy spending on government programs and possibly some tax cuts in Friday's budget to encourage economic activity.

Sharp Backs Awami League

OTTAWA (CP) — The waning candidates in Pakistan's most recent election should be governing the country rather than the military, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons Wednesday.

Considering Mr. Sharp's usual diplomatic caution it was an extraordinary dissipated apparently to put pressure on the Pakistani government to ease the way for the return of an estimated six million East Pakistan refugees now in India.

A diplomat at the British High Commission here said it was the strongest statement yet made by any country's representative on the Pakistan question.

The Awami League, running on a platform of autonomy for East Pakistan, won 167 of the 169 seats in that part of the country and a majority in the country as a whole.

Date Set

Even Mr. Trudeau was not committing himself to the charter which he said was produced by "blood, sweat and tears." It would be studied back in Ottawa.

But if it is accepted, he said, it will mean that "we will have broken the back" of the search for an amending formula—a search which has been going on since 1927.

He noted that the federal government gains no power—in fact it loses some—under the proposed charter. For instance, the Supreme Court of Canada, now established by federal law, would come under the constitution instead. The repeal of the disallowance law would also take away federal power.

He was "rather happy" with the apparent agreement on language rights. "It was good to see how many provinces bound themselves to official bilingualism."

The question of language rights would enter the field of education, which is entirely a provincial responsibility.

The new charter, if transformed into the basis of a new constitution, would not end the review process. Meetings are still to be held on federal-provincial fiscal agreements and the division of legislative powers.

It was obvious at the end of the longest single constitutional sitting that the delegates wanted no more pussyfooting with these touchy issues.

Mr. Trudeau said the June 28 date for governmental decision was "a target." And he said half-way acceptance won't do; governments must accept or reject the entire proposed charter.

"There are no more deals—if there were ever any."

The development of the charter on the last day of the conference apparently rescued the discussions from an impasse over the social security-amending formula confrontation. Sources said all delegates made a desperate effort to produce progress.

Last Arrest Ends Case

Three juveniles were picked up Monday and the remaining juvenile and one 16-year-old youth turned themselves in yesterday after calling police headquarters.

Most of the goods, including several rifles stolen from the sales barn, were recovered. Entry was gained through a forced window.

Long Service and Good Conduct

Eight officers with the Ontario Provincial Police were presented yesterday with medals honoring 20 years service and good conduct by Assistant Commissioner D. A. Nicol, of the special services division in Toronto. Congratulations were offered by left, Superintendent D. E. Wellsley of Number Nine, Belleville District, and Assistant Commissioner Nicol to Cpl. W. E. Martin, Napanee, and Identifications Sgt. Harold V. Howting, Belleville. Sgt. Howting joined the OPP Jan. 22, 1951 in London, later transferring to Belleville. Cpl. Martin joined June 5, 1951, served in Brantford, Dundas, Sharbot Lake, Hawkesbury and Napanee. Other officers who received 20-year good conduct medals were Traffic Sgt. W. J. Campbell and Sgt. A. J. Mackey, Long Sault; Cpl. J. M. Dodd, Cpl. T. P. McGillion, and Cpl. R. W. Tremills, Peterborough and Identification Sgt. G. Uranick of the Perth detachment. Also present for the presentations and luncheon were Supt. A. Campbell, Supt. J. Hanson and Insp. H. J. W. Coody.

Panel Agrees Drug Use Growing

Four doctors and a nurse sat down yesterday afternoon with a room full of laymen to talk about their role in the treatment of drug users.

"For once medical people and the lay public are under one roof," said Isidore Coopersman, director of United Community Services, "and I trust the communication that has started here today will go forward."

UCS has co-operated with the medical staff association of Belleville General Hospital in calling the seminar at Education Hall.

The meeting was called, said a doctor in the audience "because of the suggestion that doctors are not sympathetic to drug users".

He said that 20 years ago the acute alcoholic was a disruptive factor in hospital emergency departments, requiring several people to restrain him and causing damage to equipment. But it is the drug user, he said, Emergency departments cannot function efficiently and care for severely ill patients when drug users are disturbing the department.

George A. Pearce and Dr. Lionel G. Dockrill and two psychiatrists, Dr. Robert F. Briggs of Queen's University and Dr. E. B. Conn sat on panel to present the physician's point of view. Mrs. Margaret Cousins, unit co-ordinator, intensive care unit, emergency, at BGH and Roland Belanger, youth services representative of the Kinsmen Club were the other panel members.

Dr. Briggs suggested that "hospitals have their own rooms to grips with designing their emergencies to handle disturbed or disturbing patients".

Mrs. Cousins agreed that emergency departments are neither equipped nor ready for treating drug users yet, although "every emergency department does expect disruptive experiences one day, and we have to look after them".

She said that in the last three months the hospital has cared for 11 cases labelled as drug abuse, indicating that most drug users do not turn to the hospital for help.

Dr. Briggs said hospitals should incorporate "holding units" for treatment of drug users into their emergency departments. There, people suffering from the effects of drugs can remain for 24 hours or less, until they recover, and have a friend or non-medical volunteer stay with them.

Dr. Pearce told his listeners that discussions are being held at BGH on opening a holding unit and if the need increases one may be put into operation.

But Mr. Belanger said most drug users will not go to a hospital for treatment.

"Some method must be contrived to help them on the street level," he said. "We need the medical sector of the community to help get this program under way. Your influence in requesting it, especially at city hall, could be instrumental in getting it going."

Dr. Briggs told the audience that society is now in the midst of a chemical revolution.

"Drugs are here to stay," he declared. "I hope we can learn to use them constructively, not destructively."

He said there are two types of community thinking on drug use. One is the "soft line" that makes a distinction between drug use and drug abuse, believes it is related to alienation and is not a crime. Those holding the "hard line" believe drug use is immoral, dangerous and illegal and drug users are "copping out from society and evading responsibility".

Davis

once schemes with the federal government paying the costs did not involve fiscal transfers.

"I don't think it is of any real significance to Ontario as I see it at the moment."

Control over family allowances was part of the pre-conditions Quebec placed on the conference agenda for agreement on a formula to amend the constitution after it is patriated from Britain.

Mr. Davis, in a position paper Tuesday, canvassed Quebec's proposals for reforms in social policy by arguing that income security was an integral part of taxation policy and should not be entrenched in a constitution.

Ontario seeks a redistribution of powers to give the provinces a greater share of federal revenue, particularly in the income tax field.

Mr. Davis said he hopes a meeting of first ministers to deal with federal-provincial fiscal arrangements will be held "sometime in the fall."

Asked if the charter was only an excuse to put off issues to yet another conference, Mr. Davis replied: "That is not correct."

"We agreed on not only a number of items but the procedures which the various provinces will take."

Hearing Adjourned

The application by six East Hill residents for an injunction to restrain the city from issuing a building permit for a 75-unit apartment structure at 217 East Bridge Street has been adjourned for one week.

The city was represented by City Solicitor John Miller, while Malcolm Robb, former Belleville lawyer now practising in Toronto appeared for the six East Hill residents.

Next week's hearing on the injunction application is slated for 11 a.m. June 23 at Osgoode Hall.

"We get bogged down in conflicts of attitudes and never get down to the problem," remarked Dr. Briggs.

Mr. Belanger observed that in his opinion, use of hashish and marijuana is increasing among the adult population.

He gave the results of a survey of 1,000 students in four city high schools (excluding Nicholson). Forty-one percent had tried drugs at one time or another and 26 per cent of those who have tried drugs are still using them.

Breaking the drug users into age groups, the survey showed that 34 per cent of those 18 and over had tried drugs.

Those in lower age groups who have tried drugs were 28 per cent of the 17-year-olds, 27 per cent of the 16-year-olds and 44 per cent of the 15-year-olds.

Mr. Belanger listed the types of drugs used. Twenty-seven per cent of the students surveyed had used speed and almost all of these said they intended to continue using it. Twenty-five percent had tried hashish, 24 per cent had tried marijuana, nine per cent had tried LSD and 10 per cent had tried other drugs.

Dr. Briggs commented that alcohol used to be the drug of modifying drug available, but "now we have many mood modifiers".

"If they are being taken by adults, they are being used; if they are being taken by the young they're being misused," he said.

But both Dr. Briggs and Mr. Belanger said they were developing a harder line on drug use the longer they work with young people. After watching regular users over a period of three or four years they have come to the conclusion that drug use interferes with young people's ability to "put into action what they want to do".

Drugs should not be freely available, said Dr. Briggs, because people under their influence are a menace to others when driving cars and in similar situations.

"The drug situation won't change until the perception of drugs by the general population declines," said Dr. Conn.

Exams Aren't Like They Used To Be

With the advent of the first true summer weather comes its accompaniment — exams.

Secondary school students are writing them this week — except for the fortunate lucky enough to have been exempted from exams.

A 60 per cent. average in term work and tests throughout the year is necessary for exemption, but this can vary upward or downward according to individual subjects and circumstances.

Secondary schools will be empty of students by the end of this week, but teachers will remain until June 30 for marking and promotion meetings. Elementary school pupils and teachers will stay in school until the latter end — June 30.

But it could be worse. At least the elementary school pupils are spared year-end examinations. And no one writes departmental examinations at any level.

Last opportunities to go by the board were the grade 13 exams. And almost no one now remembers the days when grade 8 students had to write the dreaded "entrance exams" set by the department of education and administered on a province wide basis.

Back in 1955, the unfortunate grade 8 pupil was expected to write and pass nine examinations before he could go on to high school.

The list is impressive — geography, composition, spelling, grammar, literature, history, arithmetic, physiology and temperance, writing and drawing.

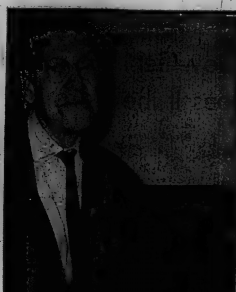
Drawing left no room for creativity or individual expression. Most of the questions required the student to copy, without error or omission of passes, designs printed on the examination sheet.

A basic fact of drawing came in handy in geography — two maps were required. One was of the counties of Ontario which stench Lake Ontario, including the Bay of Quinte. The other was a map of that part of Ontario lying west of a line drawn from Toronto directly north to James Bay. All lakes and rivers in the area had to be correctly labelled, as well as the most important cities and the routes of the CPR and the GTR.

The history exam contained such questions as what dispute led to the Ashburton Treaty?" and "Whats meant by responsible government?"

Fractions, decimals and principle and interest problems dominated the arithmetic exam.

No one could fault the schools of 1898 for lack of attention to practical work. The preliminary to one arithmetic question reads: A lot, 99 feet wide and 120 feet long, is to be enclosed on the two sides and the back by a tight board fence 6 feet high. The posts are to be placed 8 feet apart and to cost 15 cents each. There are to be two string pieces of scantling, 2 inches thick and 4 inches wide, from post to post, on which to nail the boards. Lumber is $15 per $1,000 feet.



The writing exam, worth only 50 marks, consisted of copying 12 short lines. But the composition exam required at least 20 lines on one of five topics: the discovery of Australia, blackberrying, the life of a boy, the Queen's Jubilee, or the landing of the pilgrims. In addition, a letter of the same length, describing either how the pupils intended to spend his vacation or how the apple or flower-garden was required.

Grammar demanded the ability to carve the parts of the small pieces and put it together again. The pupils had to analyze fully and parse the passages of prose, write complicated sentences full of modifying clauses and give in full the third person plural of any four different tenses in the indicative mood of each of the verbs in the following sentence.

On the physiology and temperance exam, seven questions referred to the parts of the body and their organs and five concerned use of tobacco and alcohol. The pupil was expected to outline the law regulating sale of tobacco to minors and describe the "four stages which mark the effects of alcohol on the nervous system". The grade eight pupils averaging about 11 or 12 years of age at that time were expected to describe briefly "the social and moral effects of excessive use of alcohol".

"Exercise should be taken in the open air," declared the examiners, and demanded that the writers explain why. But they didn't ask for an explanation of the harmful consequences of exercising indoors.

In the literature exam, the pupils got back to more parsing and analyzing but centre-piece of the long exam was a line-jotting quiz on about death in battle. The writers were asked to explain, among other things, why being killed in action "twas sublime" — and World War I was not yet even on the horizon. Finally, 18 of the 100 literature marks were alloted to memory work, the quoting of four stanzas of Ring Out, Wild Bells, or To a Skylark.

Family Drug Business Honored

One hundred years as owners of the same drug store received recognition for the Geen family of Belleville.

The Ontario College of Pharmacy at its centennial year convention held last week in Windsor, presented Geen Drugs, Ltd., 176 Front Street, with two plaques — one in recognition of the store being in operation since 1835, and the other honoring the Geen family for its 100 years of ownership.

Two other Quinte district drug stores — Bill Jones of Picton, established in 1829, and Wayne Simmons of Trenton, also received plaques for more than 100 years of operation.

The Belleville store operated by Geen's was established by Dr. Rufus Holden back in 1835 and was carried on by the Geen family became associated with the store in 1909 when Albert Loft Geen, father of current firm president, Percival W. Geen, went to work for the firm.

Two years later — in 1971 Mr. Geen purchased the business, which since then has been in the family.

"I went to work for my father when I was only eight years old," recalled Percival Geen, who recently celebrated his 85th birthday.

His first jobs at the store were to make up medicine capsules and turn the coffee mill to grind the ingredients for livestock conditioning powder which then was sold to district farmers.

Mr. Geen says he never ceases to be amazed at the changing values of money.

"When I was married in 1914 I was making only $15 a week," he recalls.

And Mr. Geen has also seen many changes in the drug store business.

At one time the store manufactured its own pills and put up its own tinctures, essences, and sedlitz powders.

(For those who don't know what sedlitz powders were, they were once popular as a laxative.)

In the old days, a druggist had a much closer personal contact with customers than do present druggists.

And, according to Mr. Geen they also had to have a thorough knowledge of the drugs that went into the prescriptions they made up.

Patent medicines had made their appearance with Dodd's Kidney Pills and Williams Pink Pills already being on the market but they still were not displayed in the front shop.

Mr. Geen recalls that the "back shop" of his store once had 333 drawers filled with different drugs — and all labelled in Latin.

His son Alwyn has been in the business for 36 years but Drugs may not extend be-

And the early druggists had to be really up on their Latin, yond the third generation.

Four of Alwyn's children — 21-year-old David and three teenaged daughters — all work in the drug store part time, but the son currently has his sights on another profession.

David is a science student at Waterloo University, and, according to his grandfather, doesn't appear to have an interest in going on to study pharmacy.

"But he's young and may change his mind," says the patriarch of the Geen family, apparently still hopeful that family ownership and the Geen family name continues into the fourth generation of drug store ownership in Belleville.

School's Program To Be Expanded

The community school program at Queen Victoria School on Pine St. will continue stronger than ever next year.

The programs were recognized this week at a meeting at the school involving staff, parents, people from the neighborhood and the city recreation department. Activities to be offered are based on the results of a survey of the school neighborhood undertaken in May.

The leadership for the program has shifted from school staff to community people, with about a dozen taking over responsibility for specific activities.

During the summer months a program will be conducted for teenagers two evenings a week, and the regular playground activities will continue both inside the school and on the grounds.

Next fall upholstery, women's and men's keep fit classes, indoor sports for 8 to 12 year olds after school, chess, ceramics and seasonal crafts, beginning with floral arranging, will be offered.

The school is investigating ways of installing its own kiln for ceramics.

The program has also been extended to Queen Victoria is carried on with the active support of the board of governors and the city's recreation department.

Rezoning Decision Reserved By OMB

AMELIASBURG (Staff) — Decision was reserved by the Ontario Municipal Board's D. S. Colbourne hearing the testimony for and against the application by the township to rezone part of Lot 93 from R-1, residential to B-1 commercial.

At the end of the four-hour session in the municipal building Tuesday, Mr. Colbourne assured the parties concerned he would report his ruling "as soon as possible" after a study of all the evidence.

The approval of the application will permit Harold and Donald Bonter to sell items not produced on their farms from a fruit and vegetable market they operate in conjunction with agricultural endeavors on the Rossmore to Carrying Place (Redmersville) Road at Albury. Retail sales at the roadside outlet would comprise 90 per cent produce grown on the family properties with the balance of 10 per cent acquired from other sources for retail. Soft drinks, bread, milk, potato chips and bubble gum would be included.

In this case, rezoning affects a piece of land 218 by 167 feet, part of the 453 acres of orchard and general farm property the Bonters own in the area. The Bonter legal representative, Tom Lally, pointed out to the court it was apparent his client intended no stupendous business move by virtue of the size of the parcel involved. He emphasized the court had reason to approve the application since the community of Albury, designated officially as a townsite, qualified for commercial zoning along with the six other centres in the township.

The volume of testimony submitted by the applicant outweighed the objections but those opposed hit back hard with points pertaining to maintaining the rural living atmosphere.

Student lawyer Steve Wease, appearing for Rednersville Road property owner John O'Brien, questioned approval of the application for spot zoning was the first step toward many other rezoning applications. A "Give it to me you'll have to give it to others" trend will commence, he suggested. The proposed commercial development along the narrow road, with 30-mile-an-hour speed limit, would increase traffic already heavy at times to threaten the safety of children was his argument. He said roadside stands at the limits of both Trenton and Belleville had expanded into major shopping outlets, causing above normal traffic problems in recent years.

In favor of rezoning were several who agreed the operation should be limited to guard against excess expansion.

Albury resident Tom Finlay termed rezoning in this instance "the thin edge of the wedge." He voiced the opinion the population increase in the community in no way warranted upsetting the official plan and zoning bylaw.

Rednersville Road farmer Howard Wease testified that although he couldn't support the proposed commercial set-up completely, he criticized the necessity of the hearing to air the matter in public. "It should have been settled at the council level, he suggested, pointing out he had known Harold Bonter all his life and was not aware of anything he had done detrimental to the community.

Resource Shortage

". . . from a resource viewpoint the United States is a have-not nation. Some 33 separate basic materials are on a 'critical' list. Among those the U.S. must now import and continue to do so at an accelerated rate, are crude oil, iron ore, bauxite for aluminum, copper, lead, zinc, potash, uranium, pulpwood, timber, manganese, rubber and gold."

The above extract is from an article we reprinted recently by John Samson in The Examiner, a United States publication, and it told how the U.S. was giving Canada greedily because it has an abundance of most of the above materials.

The statement concerning resource shortages was made by Henry Gablinger, an advisor to President Nixon, and while Canada does export such materials the article claims it is at a very slow rate.

Now we see no reason to buckle down and speed things up all of a sudden just for the benefit of the Americans or because Mr. Gablinger's threats are disturbing. But from a purely practical standpoint, why are we not selling more of these materials to the U.S., including water. While our own needs, now and in the future, are of the first order we could be a little less possessive in this sphere. Besides, a nation of the size of the United States, finding itself starved to a dangerous degree of such resources could very rapidly overlook old alliances and friendships. The legend of the longest undefended border in the world, moreover, could suddenly become just another old chestnut. When people are hungry they do not stand on ceremony.

But we are speaking of our friend — for the moment at least — and neighbor. Let us try and keep things that way. Let us sell more of these necessities to the Americans; after all, it is a good trading deal from our point of view, while making sure we keep enough for our own needs. If the U.S. then needs still more of everything, as they surely will, let them go elsewhere. The Soviet Union is also rich in these minerals, as well as in pulpwood and timber. What is to stop the U.S. from shopping there too? It could help to improve international relations all round.

Dull Going

Billed as the constitutional conference to end all such confabs, the affair at Victoria has been pretty dry stuff. Once again it was Quebec versus the rest and readers can sort it all out for themselves from the copious reports that have been emanating from the conference.

It is difficult to see how in the space of a few days the premiers and their advisors could reach any binding decisions on repatriation of the constitution, not to mention limiting Quebec has its own way with regard to responsibility for social security-old-age pensions, family allowances, manpower and health services.

However, we await results, post-mortems and all, still with the conviction that for all its national importance, it has all been rather a bore. Elections at least have a bit of color, hoopla and ballyhoo; but not this Victoria parley.

Prescription Insurance

The possibility of a prescription drug insurance program in Ontario, with premiums of about $1 or $1.50 a week, is one that would prove beneficial to virtually everyone.

Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence says he favors the idea; he points to a combined hospital and medical insurance plan, with a single premium, coming into being next year and suggests we could hitch a drug premium on to that quite easily.

In the next breath however, Mr. Lawrence talked about this being only one item in a list of priorities and emphasized there had been no decision as yet. There would have to be an indication of public acceptance and the government would have to find the money.

Well, we suggest such a plan is overdue. Any total program that cares for us should include drug coverage. Britain has it, so does New Zealand. There are few people who go through a lifetime without the need for prescription drugs, and many are obliged to pay out large sums for them in the interests of maintaining good health.

Lightning Fatality

The death of a 16-year-old Toronto youth from a lightning strike is a reminder that sheltering under a tree during an electric storm is the classic route to fatality. Virtually the only safe place is indoors, even inside a car, but if you are outdoors stay away from trees. The youth's father was injured but recovered.

News Flashes from London

Cadieux Tipped as Gov.-Gen., Canada House Hippies, And Don Jamieson Does It the Hard Way by Hovercraft

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Political pot shots from "over 'ome" . . .

As any Canadian who has spent so much as a day in London knows full well, news from Canada — and what's more, is any — comes in one-sentence paragraphs.

Of course, there are Canadian news explosions which burst occasionally under the big black type on Page One, when the Prime Minister — still a glamorous playboy to Fleet Street — weds, or the Quebec terrorists kidnap a British diplomat and murder a Cabinet Minister.

But infrequency is the word for such a Canadian news splash in London.

But despite the vacuum of news — most of the time an utter that Canada might be a planet spinning silently in outer space — there is a kind of Canadian news intelligence network busily humming if you want to listen and are in the right places to hear.

Hottest flash, by way of Ontario House through Canada House, courtesy of some visiting political firemen returning from a federal junket to France is that Canadian Ambassador to Paris, former Defence Minister and ex-newspaperman Leo Cadieux will move into Rideau Hall when Roland Michener vacates.

Both are former politicians, Governor General Michener who in his House of Commons days as an MP and short-term Speaker was familiarly known as "Rolly," being a defeated three-term, nine-year Conservative.

And Ambassador Cadieux, who in his House of Commons days was known, with more than familiarity, in fact with something bordering on affection, as "Leo" was a four-term eight-year, never-defeated Liberal.

But there the comparison, buth men being former politicians, ends.

The man who was known by one and all as plain "Rolly" long since has become His Excellency, Roland Michener Governor General of Canada, while the man they called "Leo" is still — and in all likelihood will continue to be, when he enters Rideau Hall — the same Leo.

Roland Michener has made Rideau Hall more royal, you hear his former parliamentary colleagues murmur in palsied upstaged surprise and, perhaps resentment, than Buckingham Palace.

But Leo Cadieux has made the Canadian Embassy a place to visit, sofey, feel comfortable at home and be received with warm cordiality as an old friend and House of Commons Associate.

Globe - trotting parliamentarians say the Ambassador, who did such a first class job as Defence Minister in defending the Armed Forces in retreat after unification, has the same touch with diplomacy.

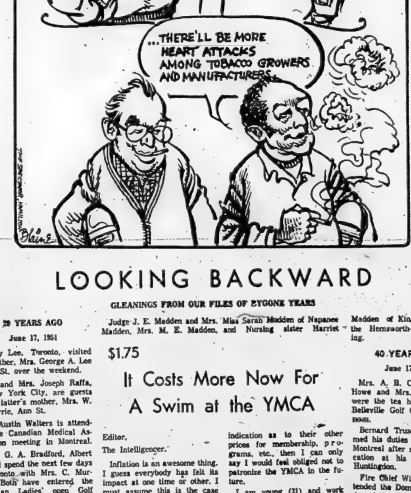
New style, of course. More of the House of Commons jokey feel about his way of doing his diplomatic thing than the more formal, distant, stand-offish if not insultingly superior air that so permeates those who refer to "it" as they like to distinguish themselves by phrasing it, Ex-ternal.

So if the MPs prove political prophets of accuracy, then Rideau Hall will return to the vice-regal life style of the former Governors General Earl, Alexander, conqueror of Marshall Rommel of Desert Fox fame, and Vincent Massey, knowing, if with the human touch, patron of the arts.

Alexander padded around Rideau Hall's great rooms in carpet slippers, slacks and a cardigan sweater. And when he opened the doors of Government House to members of the press and other similar newly formed groups of the National Capital's social-and- working community, they found the doors flung open, the table set for coffee and cookies and with no servants around.

He even took a turn at the piano to lead the circle of songsters in such memorable melodies as "Roll Me Over In the Clover" and "Bless 'em All."

Vincent Massey's special gift was that of making every woman who responded to his many, many party invitations feel as if she and she alone were the centre of the Governor General's attention.



. . . Of the "Houses" in London, British Columbia is by far the best. The stately home before a huge photographic backdrop of the spectacular Vancouver waterfront is constantly attentive. The office with its upper mezzanine floor is spacious, clean and uncrowded. Newspapers are in order, and better still, up to date.

. . . Ontario House is nearly, but not quite, on a par of excellence, except that its newspapers are days and days old or dog - eared even weeks old — and in wild disorder.

. . . Canada House is a mess, even meanier now that its other days' accumulation of litter is the point of seeming to resent the "nuisance" of visitors, and is also pretty well covered from front to back and jammed with hippies, their pack-sacks littering the place, giving it something of the aspect of the circle in Piccadilly Circus after a bad post - capital riot.

Sitting there over a cup of tea in the lounge of the Grosvenor House on Park Lane, Transport Minister Don Jamieson fatigued after a 10-hour journey from Paris, Took the hovercraft across the Channel, he reported, and allowed that if all Canadians made the trip that rough and tumble way, he would never hear another complaint about the hardships of travel here at home.

The Jamieson party, over for the Paris Air Show, left the hotel at 8 a.m., and after 11 projects of hurry and wait, it was to cab, to train, to cab, to trolley, to cab, to hotel, to cab, to boat and finally to rooms by 4 p.m., arrived all pooped out.

It Costs More Now For A Swim at the YMCA

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

Inflation is an awesome thing. I guess everybody has felt its impact at one time or other. I must assume this is the case with the YMCA. I say this because I had the unfortunate experience of seeing inflation at its best.

Not more than a few months ago the cost of an adult swim of one and one-half hours duration was a nominal 75 cents. Last Thursday night (June 3) the cost of this same adult swim had gone from 75 cents to $1.75.

Since this was the first time in several months I have gone to the YMCA, the price quoted me sort of had a staggering effect, I didn't go swimming.

Many people will echo my sentiments when I say that the Y's prices are a bit much for more than a few people.

If this price of a swim is any indication as to their other prices for membership, programs, etc., then I can only say I would feel obliged not to patronize the YMCA in the future.

I am young (31) and work only part time. I can imagine what it would be like if a fellow had a wife and three children and wanted to join the YMCA. It would be quite costly, to say the least.

Other than the fact that the YMCA's prices in some cases are a bit high, I do feel it is a much-needed part of the community and a worthwhile organization.

JOHN McLAUCHLAN Jr.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Belleville Family YMCA, in receipt of an annual grant from the city, has been criticized in the past for not paying its own way. In the circumstances, increased costs for a swim and other facilities, passed on to the public, are understandable.

Beaverton Pensioner Organizing Petition Seeking Exemptions

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I wish to bring to your attention the fact that all people in the 60-69 age category who are on fixed incomes are taking an awful beating on the income tax which is levied on us.

This situation has caused me grave concern as I am in the same category. I receive a company pension of $296 per month and our greedy Government skims off $16.20 before I even see my cheque so I have to support my family on less than $280 per month. How this is impossible with the creeping inflation that is eroding our buying power.

I am trying to do something about this intolerable situation. I am getting a petition ready to present to Mr. Edgar Benson, our smiling minister of finance, in which we are requesting him to give us an exemption of $3,000 for a married couple and $2,000 exemption for a single person.

If you are on a fixed income under $2,500 per year would you write to give me some support in our effort to get the exemption we are requesting. I have many signatures on the petition we are preparing.

We can move the tax people by public pressure as that is the only way they know how the people feel. I am hoping to get at least 1,000 signatures so if you are with us spend six cents for a stamp and let's get on with this job of getting a fair deal from Mr. Benson.

Charge for Pavilions But Admittance Now Free To Man and His World Site

Montreal Gazette

Man And His World opens its 1971 season today with a number of innovations for admission. For the first time, admission to the fairgrounds is free. There will be a charge for most individual exhibition pavilions but no one is obliged to visit these unless some special feature catches his fancy.

This means that, for the price of the basic buttons, residents of this city have access to acres of picturesque, tastefully-landscaped parkland. At a time when most major cities on this continent are desperate for shade of these stretches of grass and trees - a reminder to their swelling populations that nature still exists - Montreal has every reason to rejoice.

Ever since the opening of Expo there have been complaints that the city authorities were more interested in Montreal's image of grandeur than in the everyday needs of the majority of its citizens. As was pointed out, with some justification, that though two islands had been created for the site in the St. Lawrence river, they were designed more to serve the tourist who could afford to pay admission than the average family here. Now that city fathers have shown that such complaints were not necessarily fall on eternally deaf ears, it is to be hoped our citizens will take full advantage of what amounts to an important extension to Montreal's existing parkland.

In this connection, a word of praise is due the city's park department, which is about to Montreal are unanimous in their appreciation of the neat and clean appearance of our parks and of the imagination shown in their floral presentation. What Montrealer can forget, how, at the close of one of the most miserable winters in memory, he felt a surge of real al as the Dominion Square Beautification Project with their promise of spring?

The parkland extending the Mount Royal Intervention split - ille Notre-Dame was not a long ago a wilderness of mu and rock. Montrealers today can not only enjoy the beauties offered by its transformation, they can also point it with pride as perhaps the most lasting achievement of Man and His World.

Shriners, Airmen Hosts to Children

TRENTON (Staff) — There was a small-scale Air Force Day at CFB Trenton yesterday for crippled children from the Belleville-Kingston area.

Fifty young people escorted by their sponsors from Belleville and Kingston Shrine Clubs, arrived at the base in mid-morning by bus for an official greeting by Lt.-Col. J. G. Wynn, Commander of 437 Squadron, before beginning a full day of activities.

For the parajump display, the visitors gathered on the balcony of the CFB Trenton Yacht Club as the in-water landings took place before them.

This year's special Shriners' crippled childrens flight followed, leaving the passenger terminal shortly before 3 p.m. and returned within an hour following a sightseeing tour of Eastern Ontario.

The trip gave the children a new perspective of the region in which they live. From the air, they saw Trenton, Belleville, Deseronto, Napanee, Kingston and Old Fort Henry. The Thousand Islands, the points of Prince Edward and the county's many beaches as before returning to Trenton.

Shriners' Crippled Children's Day at the local military installation has become an annual event now — one which the children look forward to with as much anticipation as any other holiday.

A Helping Hand

Five-year-old William Johnson of Belleville gets a helping hand from Shriners and CFB Trenton personnel at the end of yesterday's special crippled children's flight. On boarding and leaving the 707 "Willie" and several other children received rides on a hydraulic platform that served as an elevator to carry them between the ground and the plane's large cargo-loading door.

Hospital Auxiliary Plans Dinner Dance

A public relations project in the form of a dinner dance in September has been planned by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. It will take place in the Four Seasons Hotel on Saturday, September 18 and will be convened by Mrs. S. Bochnek, President. Mrs. J. E. Nelles suggested it would be an evening get-together for the members and general public, with accommodation as provided by the hotel ballroom. Members are urged to contact Mrs. Bochnek during the summer months for reservations if at all possible. There will be a further announcement concerning this event.

Mrs. B. E. Burley, immediate past president expressed her pleasure on the occasion of presenting a certificate of life membership to Mrs. F. Beaby, who recently returned from residing in Cuba for several months. Mrs. Beaby in conveying her thanks to the members, remarked that the hospital auxiliary is fortunate to have many devoted workers and this honor could be shared by others.

The membership convener, Mrs. S. Bochnek reported 180 paid up members, of which 53 are new members. She stated that memberships are still available.

The Opportunity Shop will be closing June 26 for the summer holiday season, opening after Labor Day. Mrs. F. Bowler thanked all the volunteer workers for their steady devotion to the shop and was pleased to present the president with a cheque for $1102.

In her monthly rep rt Mrs. J. B. Durrell, convener of volunteer hospital services stated that 89 volunteers had given 455 hours of service to 120 patients. She reported 893 magazines had been distributed, along with 620 books.

Mrs. B. E. Burley enlightened members with an interesting report on the details of a coffee shop and gift shop to be opened at a future date. She outlined some of the color schemes, furnishings location and reported it could be called a shop within a shop, as an area is partitioned for serving coffee and a section for displaying many interesting items. She expressed her thanks to Mrs. Stokmans, Mrs. Barrett and Mrs. Black for book supplies.

Mrs. J. E. Nelles reported she had attended the laying of the cornerstone for the Bloomfield Cavell School of Nursing. She also stated the hospital convention will be held October 24 to 27 in Toronto.

A dessert party was enjoyed by members, with arrangements made by Mrs. M. Trettin. An attractive array of flowers with al centre-pieces of tinted red carnations and platters of colorfully arranged fresh fruit were admired by the members. Individual flowering begonias adorned the tea tables, adding to the decor of Education Hall. The president, Mrs. Nelles extended thanks to Mrs. Trettin for convening this event.

DR. MARIO CORREIA AND MRS. CORREIA

Correia — Gray

Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan officiated at the recent double-ring wedding ceremony in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, when Carolyn Irene Grey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Grey, Ajax, formerly of Belleville was united in marriage to Dr. Mario Correia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Correia, Saskatoon, Saskatchewan.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of duchess satin in princess line, floor-length style. Her veil was of french lace forming a bonnet. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis and white roses with ivy interlaced.

The maid of honor, Miss Cheryl Stalker of Belleville, wore a full-length dress of spring green crepe styled with an empiren line and trimmed with silk organza. She wore yellow roses in her hair and carried a bouquet of yellow roses and ivy.

Mrs. Joan Hanna, sister of the bride, of Brampton, and Mrs. Sanden Finkle of Belleville attended the bride wearing similar attire.

Carolyn Burt, Trenton, was flower girl. She wore a full-length dress of silk organza over taffeta in spring green with an empress waist and carried a basket of yellow baby roses.

Dr. Steve Andrews of Toronto attended the bridegroom as the best man and ushers on the occasion were Frank Correia, brother of the bridegroom, and Dr. Greg Anne Owen.

The mother of the bride wore a yellow cashmere dress with a matching green jacket and yellow gardenias. The bridegroom's mother chose an acqua-marine ensemble with yellow roses and white accessories.

The couple will take up residence at their home in Kemptville, Ontario.

Dianne Theakston

Paul Lefort

Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Theakston, Truro, Nova Scotia, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Dianne Lynne, to Paul Irvine Lefort, son of Mrs. Margaret Lefort, Crofton, and Leo Lefort, Timmins. Miss Theakston is a graduate of Acadia University, Wolfville, Nova Scotia, and Mr. Lefort is stationed at CFB Shearwater, Nova Scotia. The wedding will take place July 10 at 3 p.m. in St. Andrew's Church, Truro.

Students Enjoy Camping

MARMORA — A two day camping trip at Algonquin Park last week as an outdoor education project was undertaken by 44 students of Grades 7 and 8 in Sacred Heart School, Marmora. Supervising the group were 11 adults, including teachers, parents, a registered nurse and a lifeguard.

Weeks of preparation were necessary. Meetings were held and committees set up to look after food and collection of counties. Items of equipment for the two day period of rugged camping and supervised program at Whitefish Lake, Madawaska River system.

Among the planned activities was a trip to the museum where pupils recorded descriptions of species of birds and animals and inspected a large owl shown by a ranger after a film on outdoor life.

On a three mile hike through Lookout Trail, students measured soil temperatures at various spots on the journey and observed categories of bark, trees and wild plants as well as animal tracks.

The student groups were visited by a ranger from the Department of Lands and Forests who explained the efforts made by the Department for the conservation of the wildlife of this famous game reserve and answered various questions.

Meals were easily prepared by supervisors around a half dozen camp stoves and clean-up was surprisingly simple as each student did his own dishes. Roll call, was made frequently and groups took turns in leading in prayer.

Although temperatures the first night dropped to 35 degrees the weather was excellent and the threat of rain on the last day only barried the dismantling of the 11 tents.

Baby sitting job? Be sure to find out from parents where they can be reached in case an emergency should arise.

Open House At School

TWEED — A large number of parents and interested friends of the students at Northbrook Public School spent a most enjoyable evening recently when they attended an "Open House" at the school.

During the evening everyone had an opportunity to tour the classrooms and observe the various displays of children's projects.

Tape recordings of children's stories and songs were heard which were made under the direction of Miss McQueen.

Slides were shown by Mrs. Scott which she had made during the past eight years that she has been teaching at the school.

At the end of the evening, a delicious lunch was served by three women from the community.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mrs. W. Wright, 42 Bridge St. W., spent the weekend in Ottawa and attended the wedding of her cousin Heather MacDonald.

MRS. C. W. McMULLIN

graduated from Kingston Psychiatric Hospital School of Nursing on Friday, June 11. She is the former Heather Huffman, daughter of Mrs. E. Huffman of RR 5, Trenton and the late Mr. Edward Huffman. She received her secondary education at Quinte Secondary School, Belleville.

UNIONDALE WI

The June meeting of the Uniondale WI was held at Scott's Uniondale Hall, 6th concession of Sidney with Mrs. E. McCaw as hostess. It was announced that if members do not answer roll calls or wear membership pins in future a fine would be in store for them.

It was reported that the bus trip to O'Keefe Centre, Toronto to see Hello Dolly was enjoyed by all. An invitation to the Maple View WI was read. A report of the district annual was given by Mrs. E. McCaw. A skit that had been done at the district annual was performed by Mrs. J. Patrick, Mrs. R. Burkitt, Mrs. M. Grills and Mrs. P. Tracey.

Mrs. Cameron Sine showed slides taken when she and her husband were holidaying in Spain. Reports were given by the convener. Lunch was served by the committee. The hostess for the July meeting will be Mrs. Edison Sine.

SUZANNE LYN ALEXANDER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Ronald Alexander, 27 Lisdon Park Road, received her bachelor of arts degree in psychology and sociology at the convocation of Queen's University. Suzanne is a graduate of Moira Secondary School and plans to attend Peterborough Teachers' College in September.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

BY MARY BRYSON

Don't strip the house of accessories when your little one starts crawling and toddling about. Put the Dresden vase or the cherished sculpture on the mantel. Cover the electrical outlets and move items that are potentially dangerous. Then let baby know the magazines and the books on the shelf are not toys, but adult possessions. You'll be surprised at how quickly he learns and accepts the fact that some items are "no-nos."

Ann Landers

Mom Not Happy With Daughter's Choice

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My beautiful daughter is a magnificent 5'11" in stocking feet. When I tell you Eunice is extrovert I am not exaggerating. People turn their heads when she walks into a room or passes on the street. I am not saying this because I am her mother. All my friends agree Eunice is breathtaking.

So what's the problem? Well, she brought home a man she says she wants to marry. He is 5'6, dried up little runt, at least six inches shorter than she is. He wears glasses and his hair is thin on top. He is only 28 and already he has lots of dental work in his mouth. That shrimp should be dating midgets.

I realize looks are not everything, Ann, but I got plenty for my daughter's unborn children. A person has to think about those things in advance. And after all, Eunice's children will be my grandchildren. Do I have a point? Please tell me. — UPSET IN LITTLE ROCK.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR UP: Yeah, you've got a point — but if you part your hair on the side, maybe nobody will notice it. My advice to you is keep your ideas to yourself. This dried up little runt could be the most wonderful husband in the world and a beautiful father for your grandchildren.

* *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several of my friends got busted last week. They were sitting around reging in a gas station, smoking a little pot. The cops rushed in, took everybody down to headquarters and booked them. Getting caught with pot is a criminal offense in Texas. A guy can get fifteen years to prison for it. Isn't this wild?

Some of those kids who were busted are just great, Ann. They aren't bums. Isn't it lousy that these neat kids will have criminal records for the rest of their lives just because they were blowing a little grass? Please say something in your column to help them. Thanks. — HOUSTON HANK.

DEAR HANK: I agree it is lousy that kids who get caught smoking pot will have criminal records for the rest of their lives. I have stated this position repeatedly in the column as well as from the speaker's platform but I will say it again. The laws on marihuana are much too severe in most states and they should be modified. The possession of pot should, in my opinion, be a misdemeanor and not a crime.

I am not, repeat not, in favor of the legalization of marihuana, however. Too little is known about this weed and its effects over a long period of time. But I do agree that what happened to your friends in unfortunate. Nevertheless, there's a lesson to be learned from it. The law is the law — even if it's lousy, and it should be respected.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am going with a man who divorced his wife two years ago because she had a problem with the word "No." She couldn't say it. He caught her with the handyman, the delivery boy, the insurance salesman and the TV repair guy.

In spite of her weakness for men, the gal was a great housekeeper and a wonderful cook. Bill and I plan to be married in August. He asked me what I thought about hiring his ex-wife to work for us. He says he hasn't had a decent meal since they separated. Is he crazy? I'd like your frank opinion. What should I say? — LIZ.

DEAR LIZ: Yes, he's crazy. Say no. Remember that's the word his first wife had trouble with. Don't you have trouble with it, too, Dearie.

Smokers Seen Inconsiderate to Others

By DORIS CLARK

Bob Ludwig (Non-Smokers' Association of Canada) suggests there has been anti-smoking education for more than a decade and we must assume that all receptive smokers have been reached and have signed off on the smokers.

The remainder, he says, will have to be written off as highly resistant or uninformable people. And for this year's Annual Non-smoker's Day (which was May 31st), the theme was switched to a sharp scrutiny of smokers' manners. Smokers are seen as inconsiderate polluters and defilers of environments. I hated the cleaner people!

He suggests that on such a Non-smoker's Day — and I suggest that on all other days as well — smokers restrain their filter and pollution impulses, and be nice to at least one non-smoker.

* * *

Dear Doris: I'm having a wonderful time with the doh-ray-me's. I get so much pleasure doing so. Sickness may have you tucked away not in use. I'd be glad to buy it!

I'll be so annoyed when I receive a letter like Anonymous wrote about your column. I was red. You are doing a wonderful job and I'm sure have helped so many folks to solve their problems. — Janet W.

Dear Janet W: Maybe somebody has a Scottish song book, doh-ray-me style, just waiting for you. I'd love to hear you play your piano. Have always dreamed of being able to play by ear, myself.

* * *

Glad you don't agree with Anonymous!

* * *

Dear Doris: My problem is my parents' drinking. They say they may not be perfect parents but I'm sure not a perfect-child. I've tried to accept them but I become rebellious and sometimes talk back. Which I live to regret!

When my parents drink they become very loud. Maybe I won't even say anything but they can see the disgust in my expression. I am then told to stop acting like a spoiled child. Our vacation trips are often spoiled (or at least from my point of view they are), by their drinking. Nothing can be done before just a little "wee one".

Is it just a one-way deal? Couldn't they accept the fact that I dislike their drinking? — In Rebellion.

Dear In Rebellion: What you say is falling on deaf ears. An alcoholic haze mesmerizes the listeners.

I'm sorry. Perhaps the best thing I can do is direct you to an Alateen group, for comfort and understanding. The members of Alateen can help you handle a life with drinking parents.

To locate a branch near you contact your local Al-Anon Group in Belleville or the Addiction Research Foundation, 33 Russell Street, Toronto 70, Ontario.

Has Doris helped you with a problem? Write and tell her so!

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Chicken Dish by Home Economics Class

By MARY MOORE

Members of the Home Economics Club of Westdale Secondary School developed a chicken casserole to serve 36. The occasion was a luncheon to celebrate the opening of the school in 1930 and Hamilton's 125th Anniversary. Local retired teachers and Mayor Victor Copps were the honored guests.

The Home Economics teachers have shared their original recipe with me and I am giving it today for the benefit of those frantic inexperienced conveners who write asking for quantity serving help.

WESTDALE CHICKEN CASSEROLE (serves 36)

1-3 cup shortening
Two 19-oz. pkgs. ¼" noodles
10 qts. boiling water
2 tbsps. salt
4 lbs. fresh frozen chopped broccoli, partially thawed
2 lbs. scrubbed and sliced mushrooms
6 cups soft bread crumbs
¾ cup butter, melted
1½ cups (¾ lb.) shredded Cheddar cheese
Paprika

SAUCE:

¾ lb. butter or margarine
2 cups flour
1½ tbsps. salt
2 qts. plus 1 cup milk
½ cup water (to rinse drippings from chicken pan)
2 to 4 tbsps. chicken bouillon cordial
1 lb. slivered almonds
¾ cup sliced ripe olives

Lightly brown skinless chicken in fat. Remove bones and cut into 1" to 1½" pieces.

To prepare Sauce: Melt butter, blend in flour and salt; gradually stir in milk until thickened. Add chicken bouillon cordial, olives and almonds.

Arrange in institution - size baking pan in layers as follows: 1) noodles; 2) chopped broccoli; 3) sliced mushrooms; 4) chicken (or turkey).

Rinse chicken pan with water and stir into sauce. Pour sauce over all and with a blunt knife ease it through ingredients. Cover with bread crumb mixture. Sprinkle top liberally with paprika.

Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1¼ to 1½ hrs. or until chicken is tender.

Conveners please clip this quantity recipe.

Home Baking Array Highlights CWL Tea

A Popular Sales Table

A home bake table heavily laden with a tempting array of cakes, pies and other goodies was the main attraction at the tea held on Wednesday afternoon by the St. Michael's CWL in St. Michael's rectory. Convened by Mrs. Hazel Boyd, Mrs. Norah Morey, Mrs. Irene Trudeau, Mrs. Bérubaitte Daigah and Mrs. Mary Lynch, the delicacies disappeared as fast as the saleswoman could pack them into bags for the customers. In another room there was a display of holiday fashions from Marianne's and Georgia Anne. This included pant, suits, jumpsuits and lounge outfits and travel accessories artistically arranged against a background of posters depicting holiday scenes in many lands. Miss Pat Rowlan was on hand to answer viewers' questions about the clothes.

Tea and a variety of dainty refreshments were served in the pleasant living room where the rust colored carpet and matching lampshades set off a number of floral arrangements. Particularly eyecatching was a bouquet of pink and red carnations, with fern in a sea green glass bowl with a slender, graceful spout resembling a stylized tea pot. The tea room hostesses were Mrs. Norah Kearney, Mrs. Elizabeth Austin and Mrs. Robert Fretwell.

The closing table was appointed with an immaculate white cloth which contrasted pleasantly with the centre piece consisting of a bowl of roses in assorted colors—orinson, peach, pale pink and yellow mingled with dark green leaves flanked by peach colored candles that matched the serviettes. Pat Yeo poured by Mrs. Peter Pike, Mrs. L. Butterland, Mrs. Fred Fretwell, Mrs. Leslie Dunn, Mrs. A. Blanchy, Mrs. R. B. Wright, Mrs. A. Ewe and Mrs. H. M. Davis.

The conveners of the event were Mrs. J. Brennan and Mrs. W. Spinski while the hostesses were Mrs. Dora Vogt and Mrs. Joseph Farrell, president. Mrs. J. R. Rastotte was in charge of door tickets. A large number of women helped to serve and to prepare the refreshments in the kitchen. Prizes were won by Mrs. Monica Heinz (centrepiece), Miss Cathy Collins (travel bag) and Miss Lillian Courneya (cake).

babyScott re-invents the diaper

Read these eight reasons why it had to be done:

1. The two-part system eliminates fastening devices. Our system makes more sense than diapers ever did. There are two parts. The panty and the diaper. The panty has a front "T" tab to hold the diaper. No pins. No tapes. No fastenings. When the diaper is in place, the panty snaps snugly on the baby.

2. This pinless diaper is softer. With the panty doing the fastening, we can make babyScott as soft as a diaper really should be. Most diapers can't be all that soft because they have to hold pins. And anything tough enough to pin is tough enough to chafe. babyScott's too soft to pin, and that's the way we want it.

3. Our exclusive fluffy filler is more absorbent. We said our pinless diaper has been made softer. That's because it has many layers of fluffy filler material that is super absorbent. So much so, in fact, that the moisture is drawn down into the fluffiness and away from your baby's tender skin. This helps prevent diaper rash. The filler is held in a strong yet gentle cover which stays far drier than other diapers.

4. It's safer and gives you complete peace of mind. You may not consider pins dangerous. After all, mothers have been sticking thumbs (and occasionally babies) for centuries. That's painful but not exactly deadly. We worry more about pins that get swallowed. Eventually every baby figures out how a safety pin works. And that is frightening. One thing for sure. The safest pin of all is no pin at all.

5. Life is a little easier for you. For several reasons. First of all, babyScott is completely disposable (even flushable when necessary). There's no struggling with the baby. You can have the diaper in place, in the panty before you begin the diaper change. And there are times when that's a blessing. Like when Dad's doing the changing. At three in the morning. Double-diapering's a cinch. And then there's the snap-on fastening. After all, a snap has proven itself on all the baby's other clothes, why not on diapers too? Snap off. Snap on. It couldn't be simpler. You could actually change baby without putting on the lights. Some nights that'll seem important.

6. You know it's hygienically clean. With a disposable; you know that each diaper is being used for the first and only time. It's purer than cloth could possibly be. There's no soap residue. No question of how completely it was washed. Small point, maybe, but an infant's sensitive skin irritates easily. Why take a chance?

7. The panties wear better and last longer. The babyScott panty outperforms the traditional plastic one. It's made of vinyl. It washes easily. Odors and stains are easier to remove. Less sticking and cracking. And with our system, they're the only panties you need.

8. Your baby will look better. The snap-on bikini ends diaper droop. The diaper is completely functional and you don't have all that extra cloth hanging down the legs and bunching at the sides. It fits snugly under the baby's tummy and around the hips. The more active your baby gets, the more sense this snug little panty makes. And anyhow, there's something about a neat, clean-looking baby that keeps you feeling better, too.

All in all, everything is improved with babyScott. Odd that no one thought of it before.

Day Camp Organized

The city recreation and arena committee and Belleville YMCA will co-operate in offering a community day camp program this summer at the Vanderwater Park north of Belleville.

The program is scheduled to commence July 5 for a two-week trial period and if registrations are sufficient, will continue for an additional two-week period.

Registration would be limited to 80 campers. The program would be supervised by Miss Susan Kerr as day camp director and six counsellors.

Registrations for the day camp will be taken at the recreation arena centre on Pinnacle Street or at the YMCA.

Approved At Last

TRENTON (Staff) — After months of delay, council here Monday gave final approval to the new official plan for the Town of Trenton.

However, giving the plan final ratification became a very time consuming process even during the meeting, with councillor Paul Tripp calling for a delay to allow the Lower Trent Conservation Authority a chance to review it and councillors at variance over acceptance of amendments to the plan.

Councillor Tripp explained the conservation authority was concerned that a flood plan be provided for south of Parkview Heights and that it may be easier to deal with the LTRCA request now than later.

Council decided to approve the plan now with the understanding that if the authority wanted revisions it could file to have them considered by the Ontario Municipal Board by launching an appeal with the department of energy and resources management.

In approving the plan, council made three amendments to it, one providing for revised plot ration to control housing density in line with a request by the Quinte Homebuilders' Association, another to designate the area south and east of Parkside Drive for park space and a third providing for greenbelt 100 feet each side of Mahoe's Creek off Front Street in northwest Trenton.

Roy Higgins Is Named Director

Roy Higgins, a former director of the Belleville Theatre Guild and director of Move It! the youth talent program that opened this year's Quinte Arts Festival has been appointed director of the summer youth program at La Poudriere, the Montreal International Theatre. The annual program for adults and teenagers will offer classes in acting, stage movement, voice and technical stage training. The director of the Montreal International Theatre is Mme. Beaubien, adjudicator at the Eastern Ontario Drama Festival held earlier this year in Belleville.

Mr. Higgins was formerly artistic director of two other youth theatre ventures — the Great Pine Ridge Festival and the Orono Youth Theatre. A youth program is being organized locally by the Belleville Theatre Guild in conjunction with the recreation arena committee of the city of Belleville and the youth and recreation branch of the department of education.

Owner Gene Autry Hiring Deputy to Stop Angels' Feuding

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gene Autry, publicity stockholder and chairman of the board of California Angels, said Wednesday he's planning to hire an expert on morale to help alleviate clubhouse feuding.

The comments were reported in today's Los Angeles Times by columnist John Hall, who interviewed Autry the day after Hall reported that some Angel players had guns in their lockers and that dissension on the club was rampant.

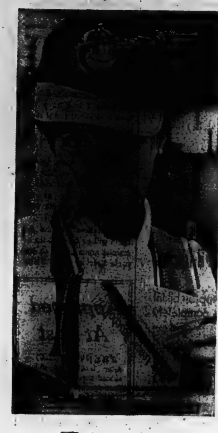
Autry said he didn't believe in votes of confidence for managers but said he gave his complete backing to manager Lefty Phillips. He added that he planned two moves to help prevent violence from flaring:

—The hiring of a special player counselor—"somebody like former Detroit manager Mayo Smith" — to work closely with the players and the management. Be would, concern himself with the little problems that arise between the players and front office. He would be a neutral adviser to both sides.

—Selection of a team captain who would add leadership on and off the field. He would either be elected by the teams or appointed by the manager.

Autry said he hadn't jumped forward earlier because he does not like to interfere with a manager or general manager, Dick Walsh.

Alex Johnson, the explosive 1970 American League batting champ, may have been at the hub of some of the clubhouse dissension, Autry said. He said Walsh was "making promises by Alex that Alex didn't keep."



"If Alex everybody look bad," said Autry. "This kid like the other players. I'd rather have a .300 hitter who hustles than a .350 hitter who doesn't want to play the game."

ANAHEIM, Calif. AP) — Several California Angels' players have been seen carrying guns, one of several indications the club may be headed toward a violent explosion, the Los Angeles Times reports.

"Asked about Hall's account, both manager Lefty Phillips and general manager Dick Walsh said "no comment."

Hall says some of the players deliberately tried to hit foul balls in Walsh's direction a few nights ago when he was standing on the sidelines.

The situation is so distressing to Phillips, Hall says, that he is considering resigning.

Stoneman Fans 14 In Firing One-hitter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The difference between the no-hitter Montreal's Bill Stoneman pitched against Philadelphia Phillies in 1969 and the one-hitter he threw at San Diego Padres Wednesday night is "six walks and 2½ years' experience," says manager Gene Mauch.

Stoneman, a 27-year-old right-hander, ran his Expos' record to 9-4 by blanking the Padres 3-0, tying his own club record of 14 strikeouts and allowing only three baserunners —Leron Lee, who reached on an error in the second inning; Enzo Hernandez, who walked in the fourth, and Clarence Gaston, who singled cleanly with one out in the seventh.

Elsewhere in the National League, Philadelphia downed San Francisco Giants 6-3, New York Mets whipped Los Angeles Dodgers 7-3, Pittsburgh Pirates beat Houston Astros 6-4, Cincinnati Reds nipped St. Louis Cardinals 1-0 and Atlanta Braves edged Chicago Cubs 6-5.

Stoneman finally is consistently displaying the form the Expos have been waiting for after seasons of 11-18 and 4-12. In his no-hitter, which came in the ninth game ever played by the expansion Expos, he walked five and struck out eight. Wednesday night he walked only one and his 14 strikeouts gave him the National League lead with 122.

"He's got a hellacious arm," said Mauch.

"All three pitches were working well," reported Stoneman, who throws a fast ball, curve and slider. "Sure," he admitted, "I knew I had a no-hitter going, but I wasn't worried about it.

BILL STONEMAN

"If I had kept the ball low the ninth inning I would have bore down more. It was my best game of the year. It went the way I planned it.

"Gaston hit a high slider. It was a bad pitch. . . ."

In snapping their five-game losing streak, the Expos nicked Dave Roberts for both their runs in the fifth inning on a walk, a sacrifice, Clyde Mashore's double and a single by Stoneman.

The Giants lost another game —11 of 15 this month—but for a change they didn't lose any ground to the Dodgers. Tim McCarver hit a two-run homer as the Phillies scored four times in the second inning and doubled to key a two-run seventh in beating the Giants.

The Dodgers saw their five-game winning string ended by the Mets as Mike Jorgensen hit two solo home runs and Rod Harrelson delivered a two-run single in the sixth, breaking open a close game. The Giants maintained their five-game lead.

Roberto Clemente's tie-breaking two-run homer in the seventh inning lifted the Pirates past the Astros and kept them 1½ games in front of the Mets in the National League East.

Dock Ellis' 10th victory tied him with three others as the National League's winningest pitcher.

Hank Aaron's two-run double highlighted a five-run Atlanta blitz in the fifth inning following an error by Chicago pitcher Ken Holtzman.

Epstein Socks Fourth Straight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mike Epstein, Oakland Athletics' first baseman, tied a major league record Wednesday night when he crashed two home runs his first two appearances at the plate in a 5-1 win over his old team-mates, Washington Senators.

Combined with the consecutive home runs he hit his final two times at bat in Oakland's previous game, the four-homer spree tied him with several other major leaguers.

Epstein, acquired from Washington in a recent trade, ripped two in his last two appearances against his former team-mates Tuesday night before his attack on Denny McLain Wednesday.

MIKE EPSTEIN

In the other American League games, Minnesota Twins nudged Cleveland Indians 3-2, Baltimore Orioles ripped Milwaukee Brewers 8-3, New York Yankees chased back Kansas City Royals 3-2, Detroit Tigers shaded Chicago White Sox 4-3 and Boston Red Sox topped California Angels 4-1.

Epstein said his attitude has changed since coming to Oakland's winners from Washington's losers.

"Being with a pennant contender has helped me," said Epstein. "I'm glad to be a part of it . . . I hope I make the trade look good."

Joe Rudi also hit two solo homers and Dave Duncan contributed another in the five-homer assault on Washington pitching.

Boyer Becomes Minor Leaguer

HONOLULU (AP) — Third baseman Clete Boyer, released from Atlanta Braves after an explosive dispute with club vice-president Paul Richards, signed a contract Wednesday to play with Hawaii Islanders of the Pacific Coast League.

Boyer, 34, and a 15-season veteran of the major leagues, is expected to be in the Islander lineup against Portland tonight.

"Coming to Hawaii is like a new lease on life," Boyer said. "I would like to return to another major league team or team of my liking or sign with a team in Japan.

Baseball's trading deadline slipped quietly into the night with only a few minor transactions reported by the American and National league clubs.

The Cardinals sent Mike Torrez to the Expos in exchange for another 34-year-old right-hander, Bob Reynolds. Torrez, with a 1-3 record and a 6.00 earned-run average for St. Louis, was assigned by the Expos to their International League farm club at Winnipeg where Reynolds had won four and lost two.

MONTREAL (CP) — Shortstop Bobby Wine of Montreal Expos has been placed on the 21-day disabled list as a result of a wrist injury sustained Monday night in a game against San Diego Padres, it was announced Wednesday.

Wine, 32, the club's regular shortstop, was batting .163.

Adams Keeps Slate Clean

The Belleville Kinsmen Juniors kept new manager Garnie Adams undefeated as they exploded for five runs in the seventh inning to pave way to a 7-1 win over Kingston Juniors last night.

Adams, who took over the bench duties from 'Moe' Hunter in Sunday's 4-3 win over Keeds has now piloted the team to two consecutive wins after the Kinsmen had lost their opening three games.

Stan Brooks provided a strong pitching effort for the home team, limiting the Lakeshore Intermediate League squadron to only four hits in the 7 1/3 innings that he worked. Hard-throwing Ted Shaw helped the rookie hurler maintain the win by fanning five of the six batters he faced in a two-inning relief stint.

Singles by Brian Cousins and Paul Hall started the ball rolling in the seventh after the Kinsmen had tied the score at 1-1 the previous inning on a triple by Glenn Carleton and a passed ball. Carleton again came through blasting a ground-rule triple to right which scored Cousins and chased Hall to third.

A single by Terry Meagher and Rick Meagher's triple to centre, coupled with a Kingston throwing error accounted for the final four runs in the inning.

Brooks and Shaw combined for 12 strikeouts and two walks on the Kinsmen mound, while their teammates pounded out 12 hits off Kingston starter Ron Pratt and reliever Phil Treacy.

Terry Meagher lined three singles to lead the Belleville batters with Carleton adding a double and triple. Rick Meagher, Steve Moore, Cousins, Hall and Steve Boland had the other Belleville safeties.

No Roads To Goals

All roads to the goal were blocked in last night's 0-0 battle between Trenton's Quinte Transport and Parsons Soccer Club.

Parson goalie Gary Donovan pulled off some spectacular saves in the Belleville team's net as Quinte pressed for a score in the first half and then again early in the second period.

In the other game played last night, Bata Braves collected their first win of the season by edging Whitley Insurance 4-3.

Six-shooters Succeed

Six-shooters were the top guns in Womens Softball League action last night with Weese's Flowers taking a 6-5 win over Dairy Queen and Cozy Grill stopping the Yardmen by a 4-1 count.

Nora Barberstock burled a four-hitter to gain the win for Weese's, while Marianne Sills and Judy Pultz yielded seven safeties for the losers.

Donna Brant paced the winners with three singles while Nora Barberstock added a double and single. For Dairy Queen, it was Cathy Brown with a homer and single and Judy Pultz with the team's remaining two hits.

Suzanne Foster slammed a triple and single and Pat Robson a double and single to help back the eight-strikeout hurling of Sandra Claus as Cozy slipped past the Yardmen Benefit Fund.

Falcons Don't Repeat

The Falcon bantams didn't make the same mistake twice in recording a 2-0 win over Canucks in Belleville Minor Soccer action last night.

Despite outplaying their opponents the Falcons were unable to cash in a number of good first half scoring opportunities. However, they managed to rectify their mistakes in the second half when Steve Martin and Bob Burridge scored to give them the victory.

Tony Donovan paced the winners with three goals with the others going to Nick Barrett, Philip McSherry, Ralph Collers and David Thibideau. The lone Trenton tally went to Steve Arnesburg.

Doug Jones Jewellers barely gave Ziebart Rustproofing the time of day as they hammered out a 16-1 Belleville Minor Softball Association squirt win last night.

Rosewall Upset

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) — Georges Goven of France upset defending champion Ken Rosewall of Australia in the third round of the South of England tennis championship Wednesday 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. In the second round Edson Mandarino of Brazil ousted Roy Barth of San Diego, Calif., 7-5, 6-2.

Andy Rosaiti fanned 12 batters and added a home run for the winners, while getting outstanding defensive play from shortstop Steven Pearce.

Stephen Licence defiated Canadian Tire 16-7 behind the 12 strikeout pitching of Doug Campbell. Campbell belted a homer and two singles for Stephen Licence with David Warren collecting one of each.

In the other squirt game played, David Harris tallied the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning as Wray's Furniture slipped past O'Neil Stationery 10-9.

Driving Club Backed Up

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Ontario Supreme Court Justice S. A. Addy has refused continuation of an injunction granted by Mr. Justice H. L. Houlden May 19 restraining the Peterborough Exhibition Board from interfering with the rights, uses and privileges of the Peterborough Driving Club.

As a result there will be racing at Morrow Park Saturday night, Mr. Justice Addy made his decision last Monday.

The Canadian Press reported erroneously Tuesday night that Mr. Justice Houlden had made the decision Tuesday and that there would be no racing at Morrow Park.

The injunction filed by Elwood McDonald, driving club treasurer, followed an argument between the two organizations regarding location of harness racing in Peterborough. The driving club is building a new track at Fraserville which club officials hope will be ready in about two months.

The driving club had an agreement with the exhibition board dated April 17, 1967, pertaining to racing at Morrow Park.

Farrell's Too Hot

Farrell Motors turned on the heat to melt Trenton Dairy Queen 12-2 in a Belleville Minor Baseball Association peewee contest last night.

Clyde Routley and Howie Coons combined for a two-hitter, walking eight and fanning 16 to get the win for Routleys. Routley also led the winners 12-hit with a double and two singles, while Coons added a trio of singles.

Uniroyal tykes rolled to an 18-8 decision over CNR as Bruce Bell, Larry Hanlon and Dave Bennett combined for a 14-strikeout pitching performance.

Bennett clubbed a triple and two singles to pace Uniroyal. Clarence Bokenna added a double and single to the winners cause. For CNR it was Marty Henderson with a homer and single and Curtis Labelle with a pair of singles.

Some fine pitching highlighted a 6-4 tadpole bout between Plane's Concrete and Crawford Metals. Brian Croskright and Tony Parks combined for a three-hit, 17-strikeout game on the pitching rubber, while Stew Emerson, Jay Bochnek and Howie Dell yielded four hits and whiffed 21 batters for Crawfords.

Manning's Three Pace Sears' Win

The taste of Kent seemed rather sour to Bud Gill Appliances last night as Simpson Sears forward Kent Manning counted three goals to lead his team to a 4-2 Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association win.

Mark Foster counted the other goal for the winners with Tom Donovan and Rob Richardson scoring for Bud Gill.

Brent Walmsley wasn't exactly prime fare on the Quen's Motor Hotel menu either, scoring three goals in a 5-2 bantam win by Bobs Sports. Teammates Gary Thompson and Terry Gilbert rounded out the five-goal total, while Tim Gauthier and Sandy Waterson replied for Queens.

In the third bantam encounter of the night, Towers Food City grounded the 707 Jets by a 5-1 count. John Murphy (2), John Lowe, John Merrill and Gord Male scored for Towers with Dexter Donnelly getting the only tally for the Jets.

Cash in Fives

UIC Browned Off

The Browns were a swinging family in Industrial Softball League action last night as Union Carbide stopped Unemployment Insurance Commission 12-6.

Wayne "Weiner" Brown Sr. blasted two home runs for the winners, while Wayne Brown Jr. rounded out the father - and - son slugging act with a grand slam homer.

The round trip clouts were enough to give Ken Osborne the win, despite yielding 12 hits to UIC. Bernie Coughlan allowed 10 safeties in taking the loss.

The elder Brownen added a double and single to his pair of round trippers to pace the Bakelite batters, while Bob Zalkowitz chipped in a pair of doubles.

For UIC it was Coughlan and Clint Halliday with a triple and single each.

Some big blasting by Terry Hiddleston helped the Intelligencer move into sole possession of second place taking a 23-13 slugfest from VL Card. Hiddleston belted a grand slam homer, a triple, two doubles and a single to head the 24-hit attack by the winners.

Loucks was the lone VL Card batsman with a homer and single.

'Remember Clay' Plate Trainer Warns

TORONTO (CP) — "Remember Cassius Clay," is the warning trainer Frank Merrill gives anyone who suggests Kennedy Road is a cinch to win Saturday's 112th running of the Queen's Plate at Woodbine Racetrack.

"People were calling Cassius Clay a cinch to beat Joe Frazier, remember?" said Merrill referring to the bout last March in which the man who prefers to be called Muhammad Ali tried to regain the world heavyweight boxing championship.

"There are several horses in this year's field who could win —the Plate isn't over until they cross the finish line and anything can happen in a horse race."

Merrill is the trainer of Cool Moon, a horse for which Preston Gilbride of Toronto paid $82,500. He finished second behind George Gardiner's Chatty Cavalier in the first division of the Plate Trial Sunday.

In the Trial, the horses carried 126 pounds over 1 1-16 miles of dirt track. They carry the same weight over 1¼ miles in the Plate, Canada's premier event for horse-foaled three-year-olds.

The $50,000-added feature has post time scheduled for about 4:45 p.m. EDT Saturday with the CBC providing television coverage on its national network from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Probably no one on the Woodbine backstretch would agree more with Merrill on his statement that anything can happen in a horse race than trainer Jim Bentley who saddles Kennedy Road for owner Mrs. Art Stollery of Toronto.

Bentley is also nervous about anything that could happen to the high-strung colt before the race and has taken the precaution of posting a 24-hour guard on the colt's stall.

Kennedy Road, a son of Victoria Park which set the Plate record of 2:02 in 1960, won the second division of the Trial Sunday by 7 lengths over Coen Smythe's Lord Vancouver.

Chatty Cavalier, trained by Lou Cavalaris, had a two-length edge over a closing Cool Moon.

Speedy Zephyr, which is expected to set the pace Saturday, didn't run in the Plate Trials but one of his last two victories was a seven-length decision in the 1 1-16 mile Toronto Cup Stakes two weeks ago. His time of 1:42 3-5 equalled a 18-year-old record for the event set by Calais II. . .

Vollmer Focusing Granny Glasses on Open Title

TORONTO (CP) — Wayne Vollmer, one of Canada's promising young professional golfers, fidgeted with his granny glasses and looked into the hazy sky.

He shaded his eyes from the sun and scanned the par-71 Weston Golf and Country Club course.

"I need this," said the 6-foot-2, 180-pound Vancouver golfer.

"I need the Ontario Open to keep me sharp. And besides, I need all the experience I can get."

Vollmer, 26, has been sharp lately and is one of the favorites to win the 54-hole Ontario Open golf championships which opened today on the 6,634-yard rolling course in north Toronto.

Last week, Vollmer won $4,300 in a satellite tournament to the Kemper Open in South Carolina.

"I feel pretty good. I finished with a 68 and 67 and I want to keep it going."

Teeing off for the Open were 138 professional and amateur playings for $3,000 first-place prize money and the Peter Jackson Cup.

Vollmer said he had a great deal of respect for those in the field.

They included touring professionals George Knudson of Toronto, Cesar Sanudo of Mexico and several young Americans.

"But those names don't really mean that much. It's myself I worry about. Not them. I can only think about myself."

"It was down in the Stateswood when I came to Toronto I phoned the officials and they didn't think I had to qualify but they asked me to call back in 10 minutes."

"I did and they told me I had to qualify. I rushed to the course and made the last foursome."

Vollmer shot a 73 and was one of those who had 76 or better to make the starting field.

"It doesn't look like a hard course but it is," said the 22-year-old Normandy, Que., native.

"There won't be any fluke winner on this course. You've got to be good on all the shots."

Some Trophy!

One of the most unusual Canadian sports awards ever designed — the Peter Jackson Trophy — will be presented to the winner of the 1971 Canadian Open Golf Championship. To be conducted by the Royal Canadian Golf Association, the Canadian Open will be played at Montreal's Richelieu Valley Golf and Country Club, July 1-4. Displayed here by Peter Jackson Golf Consultant, Al Balding, the trophy is constructed entirely of native Canadian materials. The tournament winner will retain the Eskimo carving on its base, which will then be replaced by a new carving to form the 1972 trophy.

Eckman on Move Again

HAMILTON (CP) — John Eckman is on the move again.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats traded the young quarterback Wednesday to Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Football Conference in return for the Riders first round draft choice in 1972.

Eckman was sent to the WFC British Columbia Lions near the end of the 1970 season. In return, the Ticats, of the Eastern Conference, were to receive future considerations.

However, when the teams were unable to negotiate a suitable deal, Eckman's ownership reverted back to Hamilton this year.

Mont Tremblant Can-Am Up in Air

MONTREAL (CP) — Le Circuit Mont Tremblant plans to take legal action to fight cancellation of the Can-Am International auto race scheduled for a week Sunday, it was learned Wednesday.

"We are seeking a court injunction to prevent the Canadian Automobile Sports Club from stopping our race," said track spokesman Philippe Alary Wednesday. "And we have taken the case to the world governing body, the Federation Internationale d'Automobile in Paris. We shall continue to sell tickets."

The CASC, which governs all car racing in Canada, withdrew its sanction of the event Wednesday because the track management failed to provide a financial guarantee demanded by the national body.

If the withdrawal is upheld it would mean cancellation of the race as international rules forbid drivers from competing in an event not sanctioned by the national body of the host country.

Youth Plans Under Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition spokesmen tried to tear apart the government's opportunities-for-youth program in the Commons Wednesday.

A fiasco, they called it. Inadequate. Discouraged. Misleading.

Hugh Faulkner, parliamentary secretary to Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier, said the opposition seized every rumor and unsubstantiated fear to cast doubt on the program.

Robert Stanbury, minister responsible for Information Canada, said the program is providing 31,000 summer jobs.

The debate was on a motion by David MacDonald (PC—Egmont), deploring "the misuse and mismanagement of the opportunities-for-youth program which has crushed the hopes and failed the needs of (Canadian youth."

Under House rules, the motion did not come to a vote. But after the debate the Commons approved $6,096,052,179 in government spending for the 1971-72 fiscal year.

The New Democratic Party objected to and obtained votes on $1,976,000 for the prices and incomes commission and $3,565,500 for the Senate.

The incomes commission vote was approved 138 to 63 with the Conservatives, New Democrats and Social Crediters voting against the government.

The Senate appropriation carried 154 to 17 with Liberals Walter Deakon (Toronto High Park) and Eugene Whalen (Essex) voting with the New Democrats and Social Crediters and against Liberals and Conservatives.

In the youth debate, Mr. MacDonald criticized the government for waiting to the last minute to implement the program:

"Because this has been a crash program, the kind of incompetence connected with it almost defies the imagination.

"Chaos would be too mild a description for the . . . program. Requests have not been answered. Telephones have not been answered. Letters have not been answered and people have not been able to get in touch with offices.

Mr. MacDonald said the mismanagement is due to the secretary of state's office, not the hard-working administrative staff of the program.

He criticized what he said was the apparent lack of specific criteria by which projects were approved. Often, he said, the verdict depended upon the whim of an individual project co-ordinator.

Mr. Stanbury said applicants were advised of the guide for projects. To be accepted, proposals had to contain clear evidence of the involvement of youth and the creation of new benefits to the community.

Other criteria included the number of jobs to be created and their costs. The objective was to pay no more than $1,000 for every three-month job created for a post-secondary student and $800 for secondary school students.

Not less than 80 per cent of the total cost of the $25 million program should be salaries paid to students. No capital costs would be covered.

Provincial officials were consulted before applications were approved.

Mayors Defend Young

SASKATOON (CP) — A number of mayors disturbed by a Wednesday at a national conference of municipalities over the risk of today's youth in bringing damage to society.

Mayor Rod Sykes of Calgary, chairman of a study session on youth at the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities' annual meeting, said "no other group in Canada has contributed more than youth" to public environment as future kick at pollution.

The credit for awareness should go to those who have made the young aware—hucksters for instance, said Mayor F. D. Stuart of Penticton, B.C.

Several delegates said young people pollute as much as any other age group.

Earlier, delegates rejected a motion asking that residential real estate tax and mortgage interest be deductible for income tax purposes.

Jack Willis, chairman of the resolutions committee, said such legislation would be discriminatory because it would benefit homeowners and leave out tenants.

Delegates approved a resolution asking the federal government to accelerate capital programs for new community development construction to relieve unemployment.

The also approved a resolution calling for a cost-sharing program with the federal government to improve housing conditions and urban environment as they relate to the poor. Provincial governments also will be petitioned to provide complementary housing and urban renewal funds.

Allan Guy, Saskatchewan minister of municipal affairs, told delegates at a banquet there is no reasonable alternative to Canada's system of local government.

The four-day convention, which has attracted 600 delegates, ends today.

Supermart Firm Bars Inspectors

TORONTO (CP) — The director of Sunnybrook Food Markets said Wednesday that the Ontario Broiler Chicken Producers' Marketing Board will be refused entry to any of his company's eight markets in the province without a court order.

The board seized about 2,000 pounds of Quebec-produced chickens from Sunnybrook's two stores in Metropolitan Toronto last weekend. But, Sam Weisberg said, board staff and two provincial police officers were refused entry at the door of a Peterborough market Monday.

"We told them to go for a hike and they left," he said. He said the board is using threatening tactics and "if they want the chickens they'll have to walk over us."

Mr. Weisberg said if the board gets a court order he will fight the action in court.

No Spinach For Newborn

TORONTO (CP) — The first case in North America of an infant suffering from a condition in which the blood becomes incapable of carrying oxygen as a result of eating a commercial baby food occurred during the last two months, Dr. W. E. J. Phillips said Wednesday.

He said foods containing a high level of nitrates—spinach and beets—should not be given to infants younger than three months.

Stephen Lewis Flays Secret Conference Sessions

VICTORIA (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic party, vowed Wednesday never to return to a federal-provincial constitutional conference unless opposition leaders are allowed to attend the private sessions.

"I have never seen a more demeaning process than I've witnessed at this conference," Mr. Lewis said in an interview. "It is demeaning for me, demeaning for other opposition politicians, demeaning for the press beyond description and, therefore, demeaning for the public of Canada—and that's what offends me most."

Mr. Lewis and his father David, national NDP leader, are among opposition party leaders attending the conference as observers. Reporters and observers are allowed to attend only open sessions.

"People are running around begging scraps of information from what ever leaky contact they can find in any delegation," Mr. Lewis said.

"There's this horde of press people surrounding ministers every time they come out, desperately seeking some titbit of information.

"Stories are all conflicting, and interpretations make no sense." Mr. Lewis said press briefings should have been arranged after each session to prevent the crush in the corridors for interviews, but instead "you have this circus, this ritual dance."

"I would have thought the press would have been insulted by all this. This isn't a child's game these conference people are playing. This is important stuff."

He said he has had no contact with Ontario government delegates and has had to obtain his information by acting as a reporter.

"But I just don't see it as the role of the leader of a party to climb aerofoil and sort of listen in on this and that conversation to know what's going on.

"What's comfortable or harmful could be done by having some opposition politician sitting quietly, without voice, but listening to the nature of discussion that takes place in those private sessions?"

Constitutional Conference Concluding Communique

VICTORIA (CP) — Text of the statement of conclusions issued Wednesday night at the conclusion of the seventh constitutional conference of federal-provincial first ministers:

1. The seventh meeting of the constitutional conference was held in Victoria on June 14-16, 1971, on the occasion of the 100th anniversary of the entry of British Columbia into Confederation.

2. The conference discussions dealt with constitutional provisions as set forth in a charter which is based on the consensus arrived at in the working session of the constitutional conference in February 1971. While that consensus was the starting point, the negotiations at the Victoria conference have been extensive and far-reaching.

The first ministers have agreed that the texts as drafted are of such importance that they should be reported to all governments for consideration. If the charter, which is to be treated as a whole, is accepted, and this acceptance is communicated to the secretary of the constitutional conference by Monday, June 28th, 1971, governments will recommend the charter to their legislative assemblies and, in the case of the federal government, to both Houses of Parliament.

3. The acceptance of the charter by both Houses of Parliament and by the legislative assemblies would enable the necessary action to be taken to patriate the Canadian constitution, so that the power to amend and to enact constitutional provisions will rest exclusively with the Canadian people.

4. The proposed charter also contains the terms of a formula for amending the constitution entirely within Canada, and a number of other provisions to be incorporated into the constitution at the time of the patriation. These provisions are concerned with certain basic political and language rights, regional disparities, the Supreme Court of Canada, federal - provincial consultation, and the repeal of reservation and disallowance.

In addition, a number of steps would be taken to bring the language of the constitution up to date, including the renaming of certain enactments, and the deletion of spent and irrelevant provisions.

5. The constitutional conference also discussed the subject of social policy. It agreed to include in the proposed charter an amendment to section 94A of the BNA Act by adding to its provisions family, youth and occupational training allowances. In addition, a new sub-section is to be added requiring consultation by the government of Canada with provinces on any proposed legislation in relation to a matter covered by the revised section.

6. An early meeting of first ministers will be held to discuss all aspects of federal-provincial fiscal arrangements, including tax reform, shared-cost programs, equalization and tax sharing.

Firestone STORES

Why belts?

Why are more and more motorists paying the extra money for belted tires?
Because belted tires give longer mileage. There are two special belts designed to hold the tread firmly and prevent side-to-side "squirm". By preventing this scrubbing action, those belts prolong the life of the tread. And they also give you more protection from potholes and other road hazards.
Just one more thing about belted tires. It's the construction that makes the belted difference... not the cord material that goes into the belts.

Why Firestone?

Our belted tires have something special: Triple-Strength Construction. So we can give you a really exceptional GUARANTEE FOR THE LIFE OF THE TREAD. No gimmicks. No mileage limit. No time limit.
Allowances are based on the percentage of tread left on the tire. 100% of tread life occurs when the tread is worn down to the "wear bars". (The Federal Government says all tires must have wear bars to show when the tread is no longer safe.)
Your tire will be replaced FREE within the first 20% of tread life if a defect in workmanship or materials means that the tire must be taken off your car.
At 25% of wear, you pay one quarter of the replacement price. And so on.
And remember this, 60,000 Firestone Stores and Dealers all over North America stand behind your guarantee. No matter where you buy your Firestone tires.
This outstanding guarantee is a good reason to choose Firestone.
The fact that you'll probably never need it is an even better reason.

Why now?

Because right now you'll really start piling on the miles.
On hot highways. Busy highways. Deserted sidetracks.
If a tire fails it can be mighty inconvenient. Or you may not be that lucky. So bring your car in today to Firestone for a free tire safety inspection.
Here's another reason why right now is the right time to put your car on safe new tires. The deals are really SunSational at Firestone. Especially on our Double Belted Strato-Streak. But we've got all kinds of deals on all kinds of tires for all kinds of cars. Right now.

New York Times Will Fight Against Return Of Secret Vietnam Documents to Government

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"Why don't you get a job here and learn to embezzle?"

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Representatives of the New York Times will appear in U.S. district court here, today, to show cause why the newspaper should not return explosive secret Vietnam war documents to the government.

The show cause order was issued late Wednesday by Judge Murray I. Gurfein after the justice department asked him to instruct the newspaper to turn over the secret Pentagon study from which its Vietnam series has been drawn.

The Times reported today that the order was issued after a lawyer representing the newspaper met government lawyers in New York and told them that The Times would not voluntarily surrender the document, which traces the involvements of four administrations in Vietnam.

The justice department Tuesday won a temporary court order forbidding the newspaper to publish any more of the Pentagon papers until 1 p.m. Saturday after Judge Gurfein rules Friday on a justice department demand for a permanent injunction.

Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, president and publisher of The Times, broke off a business trip to Britain and flew back to New York Wednesday. He told an airport news conference that the Pentagon documents were "a part of history that should have been made available long ago."

The documents, as published in The Times, said Johnson planned to commit U.S. ground troops in Indochina months before his Gulf of Tonkin incident, in which two American warships were reported by the government to have been attacked by Communist vessels in August, 1964, at the start of the presidential election campaign.

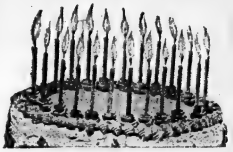
Gurfein denied a government plea for recovery of the documents Tuesday when he ordered The Times to suspend the series for four days pending Friday's hearing on the injunction.

The Times at the initial hearing expressed concern that through scientific tests the government might be able to trace the source that gave it the documents.

The Times argued that the First Amendment shields newspapers from disclosing confidential sources and noted that other copies of the 7,000-page study are available to the government.

The Times published three instalments in its series, beginning Sunday, before the government obtained its restraining order.

In Washington, the justice department said Wednesday it had not ruled out filing criminal charges, but did not elaborate to any great extent.



Meanwhile, controversy over the case continued to grow, Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew said in Los Angeles that he questioned the judgment and reliability of The Times in publishing the articles.

The Associated Press Managing Editors Association protested the government's move for an injunction in a letter Wednesday to Attorney-General Mitchell and Defence Secretary Laird.

The APME said the government was "treading upon the most dangerous of grounds" in its action and said the move "reflects upon the integrity of the Times, which it . . .

"Once information has been made available to editors, through whatever means, and they have had opportunity to judge it as not being crucial to security, it becomes their responsibility to resist by every means any attempt to interfere with their constitutional responsibility to publish that information for their readers," the letter said.

Prisons' Failure Rate Is High

OTTAWA (CP) — The most startling figure at the criminology and corrections conference this week is the 56-per-cent relapse rate for men who go to federal prisons.

Rne Bertrand of Winnipeg's Community Welfare Planning Council put the relapse rate, which is 73 per cent when provincial jails are included, in this perspective.

"If any other publicly-financed institution, such as the public schools, for example, had a consistent failure rate approaching 73 per cent, there would be a public outcry and investigation.

"One may ask, how does the corrections system escape notice?"

Mr. Bertrand said $233 million has been spent on the federal prison system in the last 12 years, rising from $15 million in 1958 to $40 million in 1970.

During the same period $850 million was spent on the RCMP, $77 million on federal courts, $12 million on parole services and $3 million on probation.

Maurice Gauthier, director of correctional services in Quebec, said prison employees are doing a magnificent job under difficult and unpleasant conditions.

Mr. Gauthier and other speakers emphasized the need for a strong classification process in which the entire system is geared to reintegrating the offender into society.

Mr. Gauthier said prison administrators shy away from innovation and institutional treatment programs because of "the blustering publicity given by the mass-media to negative aspects, such as escapes and riots."

Courts Defended By Judge

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian judicial system is the fairest and most competent not only in North America but in the world, Mr. Justice Roger Ouimet said Wednesday.

The 56-year-old Montreal judge, who presided at some of the trials arising out of last October's disturbance, aimed his remarks at detractors of the judicial system.

Speaking at the Canadian Congress on Criminology and Corrections, he remarked upon "a mounting wave of unjust and unjustified criticism" of the bench.

Did detractors feel the judicial system should be destroyed and replaced by a totalitarian system?

They should consider this eventuality seriously.

Mr. Justice Ouimet said the federal government has moved rapidly to implement "the most progressive" recommendations in his landmark report on corrections.

The report, delivered two years ago, covered the system from arrest to release—making 118 recommendations.

School Trespass Leads to Charges

City police gave chase at 2:40 a.m. today when three men were observed at the rear of Prince Charles School. Also caught and charged with petty trespass was Ronald James Craig, 21, of Vine Crescent.

Police report that all schools are posted with signs acknowledging that unauthorized persons will be dealt with severely. These notices were posted because of the increasing number of school break-ins over the past few months.

Lightning Kills Seven Cows

A Stirling area farmer, Raymond Cooney, lost seven milch cows last weekend as result of a severe electrical storm which swept through the district.

Five of the cows were instantly killed by a lightning bolt while two others had to be destroyed. Other cows and mails in the herd are expected to recover.

MAURICE H. ROLLINS CONSTRUCTION LIMITED

BRAND NEW OLDER EAST HILL 4 BEDROOMS

Now you can own a new 4-bedroom home without moving into the outlying new sub-divisions. Close to downtown, this home has 1½ baths and full basement. Sound good? Well listen to this! The downpayment is under $2,000.00. Possession almost immediately.

THEY SAID IT COULDN'T BE DONE

but we did it anyway: built a 3-bedroom home with carport on a fully-serviced lot with school front yard, close to schools, for under $20,000.00. No, it hasn't got colored bath fixtures, nor has it a family room, but it is darned good 3-bedroom accommodation for the family that doesn't want the kids smothered in an apartment. Call us today! You will be pleasantly surprised.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Smoking Protests Soundly Based

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

People come to me with their complaints and gripes. I welcome them. Otherwise, many resort to the counter-practice of suffering the quiet desperation of inner resentment. They have few alternatives but they can talk to in search of some kind of reaction.

The other day a middle-aged, successful businessman said, "Dr. Steincrohn, I was in a doctor's office yesterday. As you know, I'm a chain smoker. I lit a cigarette and before I could take a second puff I was practically blasted down by the other patients in the waiting room.

A woman sitting next to me pointed to a sign on the magazine table. It read: Smoking can be a serious hazard. Please do not smoke in the reception room — it may affect other patients.

I put out my cigarette. What I can't understand is why so much fuss is being made about cigarettes. Level with me. Give me a short lesson in physiology: I used to take it in school. Forgetting about the lungs, just why do you doctors think smoking is such a serious hazard for the heart?

I told him I would make my answer brief as requested, but he had to realize that all he would be getting in his "physiology lesson" were only a few essential facts about the hazardous effects from smoking.

To summarize, this is what I said: Consider the effects of nicotine, for example. It releases sphesphrine and norepisphrine from nerve endings and the suprarenal glands. What happens as a result? The heart beats abnormally fast, the blood pressure rises, the heart works harder pumping more blood and there is a clumping of blood platelets which predisposes to blood clotting.

You can understand how these changes in the blood circulation would have a bad effect on the coronary arteries and upon the heart itself. And how about the carbon monoxide in the cigarette smoke that interferes with the proper exchange of oxygen in the tissues?

Carbon monoxide in the blood often reduces the oxygen - carrying blood capacity by as much as 10 per cent. In heavy smokers investigators have observed that there has been an abnormal thickening of the walls of the pulmonary and bronchial arteries with degenerative changes. I could go on and on, Mr. X, but you asked for a short lesson.

He said, "Thanks, I appreciate it." Then he pulled a cigarette out of a battered pack, lit it, leaned back and said, "Interesting. Very interesting."

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband drinks a few large cans of beer before noon, at least six cans every night and more each weekend. Would he be considered an alcoholic? — Mrs. X.

COMMENT: At least a "problem alcoholic". It is a familiar pattern. I'm in favor of an occasional beer at dinner, for those who know their limitations. But your husband's large intake may later merge into chronic alcoholism.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For June 18

Your birthday today: Tardy development could characterize your life in the near future. Added power and responsibility bring increased reward and stronger expression of spirit and character. Today's natives usually develop refined tastes spontaneously — frequently dramatic talent, are sometimes inclined to see the dismal side of life.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Every story you hear now differs from the last. Your opinion is as good as any, but keep seeking the truth.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): How you have to know if it's your head or your heart you follow. Stubbornness clouds issues, hinders your progress. Later hour moods are warmer, less exacting.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): There's no let up in how much you must do, but somehow it's a lot more enjoyable, with fewer delays. Pursue romantic interests.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Stick by your promises and resolutions a little while longer. Consistent endeavor should prove you were correct in a recent controversy.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Having fun is the normal expression of your life today. But it is up to you to set reasonable limits.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Questions of relationship come all too readily to crisis now. Decisions are not long to be deferred — may be no subtle they seem to make themselves.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 23): Short-term plans don't necessarily point to your real welfare and improvement. Find some way of imparting motivation and understanding to associates.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Intuition speaks simply and clearly now to all who will listen. Personal contacts should register at once and be definitely managed, not left to drift.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your ideas along with others' know-how should produce well, particularly if you apply yourself freely and consistently. A festive mood arises over little incidents.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Differences of opinion lead wherever you turn them, could be extraordinarily constructive in developing further creative ventures. See issues in longer perspective; do something about them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Friends or family near-at-hand get the feeling of being too long taken for granted. It's your turn to express yourself — candor is unavoidable.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Relatives and children get in the act and are likely to upset all schedules. Think what you're doing, what you're setting as a precedent, what direction you want your life to go.

MPP Protests Community College's Alluring Ad for Students

TORONTO (CP) — Suggestions that the provincial government has given too much autonomy to boards of governors of regional colleges were made to the Ontario legislature's public accounts committee Wednesday.

James Bullbrook (L—Sarnia) said an advertisement inserted in Toronto papers by Lambton College attempting to lure students by saying the college was "near miles of sandy beaches, within 30 miles of Detroit and there were no final exams."

"I did get my back up," he said. "Here we have given autonomy to a board of governors to establish a community college on these bedposts."

L. N. Johnston, assistant deputy minister of education, said the advertisements, which cost $3,500, disappeared after two days and agreed with Mr. Bullbrook's suggestion that the department "had something to do with it."

Mr. Bullbrook questioned the college's board of governors for deciding that proximity to Detroit, beaches and no exams were criteria in beginning of a community college."

He was also critical of community college programs that produce trained personnel for which there are no jobs.

Mr. Johnston said this "is one of the most difficult areas which we and local boards face."

Mr. Bullbrook said that another example of government wastage in this regard is the $2 million St. Clair Regional School of Nursing which, although not associated with Lambton College, is on its Sarnia campus.

He said that the school is training 90 nurses a year but of this year's graduating class, only two have found jobs so far in Ontario.

The committee also questioned spending by a number of community colleges when they were first started up.

Mr. Johnston said that there were some areas for improvement but on the whole, the spending picture now has been pulled into line after three years of operation.

Mini Courses in Morals Suggested

TORONTO (CP) — A book to be published by the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education this summer suggests "mini courses" on moral questions for kindergarten to Grade 13 in Ontario schools.

The author, Dr. Clive Beck, chairman of the department of philosophy and education at OISE, outlined the book to the legislature's committee on human resources Wednesday.

Ontario Facing Butter Scarcity

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario may be forced into a position where it will have to import butter because of a lack of industrial milk, George McLaughlin, chairman of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, said Wednesday.

He also told the Ontario legislature's natural and physical resources committee that small processing plants in the province are in danger because of the shortage and also because they are unable to adapt to changing priorities in the industry.

Mr. McLaughlin explained to the committee that the reason for the drop in the supply of industrial milk is a drop in the quotas which dairy farmers supply to processors.

Today, the dairy farmers have reduced the supply of industrial milk which is used for milk powder, cheese and butter, to 47 per cent of what it was previously.

"We will have enough milk for butter until possibly this fall," Mr. McLaughlin said in an interview. "But after that it will be tough on the processors because the producers will be right down to their margins.

He said cheese production will not be affected because it has a higher profit margin than butter.

Mr. McLaughlin said that as a result of the marketing board's new market sharing quota system imposed upon processors, many are unhappy but "there have been no serious complaints from producers."

The overall result was a reduction in milk production in Ontario of 4.5 per cent last year. After the first three months of this year, the drop he'd increased to seven per cent.

The committee was told that because of larger and more adaptable, automated plants in Quebec and the United States, smaller plants in Ontario, which have been operating virtually without change for up to 30 years, will be in a squeeze.

Mr. McLaughlin said they should be encouraged to make specialized products with industrial milk.

He he added: "I'm worried about the industry in Ontario if we continue to worry about the small cheese factory."

Board member Allan Ketcheson said Ontario has about 25 to 30 small cheese factories which are not competitive with the large processors.

Mr. McLaughlin said the trend in Ontario should be toward several multi-purpose plants because "as long as we stay with the smaller plants we won't be able to take advantage of the future expansion in our industry."

He said large plants would be more adaptable to discoveries of more uses for milk products such as protein additives in other food products.

He also suggested people could end up wearing clothes made from milk products.

Trenton PUC Made To Increase Rates

Hydro Is Insistent On 14 Pct. Boost

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Reeling from a 17-mill tax increase, Trenton was hit yesterday by a new scale of electrical rates that will boost the cost of power to the average household user by 14.4 per cent, while commercial and industrial customers will pay 11.8 per cent more.

Developed by Ontario Hydro, the new price package that becomes effective September 1, was presented to the Public Utilities Commission by Axel Pedersen, Hydro's Eastern Ontario Region manager and Hugh Beech, the region's consumer service supervisor.

The area executives predicted Ontario Hydro would not approve a new operating budget for the Trenton PUC and the commission's finances would deteriorate into a serious deficit position, if the new rates were not accepted immediately.

"We think you are walking right into a trap," Mr. Beech told PUC commissioners. He cautioned them that "come January, February, March, you would be nailed."

On the basis of present rates Ontario Hydro analysts have determined the town's Utilities Commission would sink into the red by $5,800 on January 1, 1971.

Commissioner Charles Hilton led a lengthy attack on the new rates, charging they discriminated against the little man but favored large customers. He inquired about punishments for refusing to comply with Hydro orders, were the PUC ordered to increase the rates by the recommended scale. He was told commissioners could be fined up to $100 a day.

By the new domestic rate scale price for the first 50 kilowatt hours climbs from the present 3 cents to 3.5, the next 300 kilowatt hours from 1.4 to 1.7, the next 500 hours from .8 to .9 cents and remaining kilowatt hours from 1.05 to 1.1 cents.

The minimum charge for household electrical service will be boosted from $2.80 to $2.50 per month. Electrical bills are paid here every two months.

The town's industries and business premises face a 29 cent increase to $2.09 per kilowatt as a charge for their demand on the electrical system above a basic 50 kilowatts for

J. Rose, Lortie Kept Alone

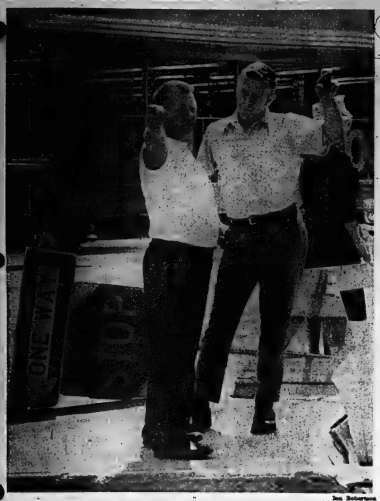
MONTREAL (CP) — A spokesman for the International Federation of League for the Rights of Man said Thursday that Jacques Rose and Bernard Lortie are being detained in "scandalous and inhuman conditions" while awaiting trial on charges connected with the kidnap-murder of Pierre Laporte last fall.

Anne-Marie Blanchet-Parodi said in an interview she will denounce the manner of their detention to the international group.



Both Mrs. Blanchet-Parodi and lawyer Robert Lemieux, who has defended several persons charged with Front de Liberation du Quebec terrorist activities, said Rose and Lortie have been kept in isolation for five months in cells at the provincial police headquarters intended at most for 48-hour stays.

They said the two are confined for 23½ of every 24 hours to cells containing only a bed. They have no access to radio, television or newspapers and are permitted to go outside only 30 minutes a week.

Mrs. Blanchet-Parodi said the prisoners right to a just defence has been completely denied.

She added that the accused can speak to no one, not even a lawyer, without police present.

Mrs. Blanchet-Parodi said in all her years of defending Algerian Liberation Front cases, she had never seen such conditions and denial of defence rights.

Which Way Is Down?

This stop sign at the Market Square here yesterday morning, compounded confusion already reigning as the result of street paving. Which way is down? Well, take the second turn after you pass city hall and . . . Actually, this upside down sign was the result of a cold shoulder received from a passing trailer. City workmen set everybody in the right direction.

Constitution-making Keeps Capitals Busy

VICTORIA (CP) — Constitution-making continues in all 11 of Canada's capitals in the next 11 days.

The federal and provincial governments have given themselves a deadline of June 28 for acceptance or rejection of a package of proposed constitutional changes which, however, do not include the key issue of division of legislative and fiscal powers.

If all governments approve the package, described by Prime Minister Trudeau as the Constitutional Charter 1971, ratification will be sought in Parliament and all 10 legislatures.

All premiers except Robert Bourassa of Quebec indicated they would recommend acceptance of the package to their cabinets and legislatures.

Mr. Bourassa did not say whether he would recommend for or against the proposed changes.

The package includes entrenchment of French and English language rights in the constitution, civil liberties, such as freedom of speech and assembly, and a formula for amending the constitution which will make it possible to bring the 1867 British North America Act from Britain to Canada.

Ottawa's seldom-used power to disallow provincial legislation would be repealed. Also in the package is an amendment to section 94a of the BNA Act which would offer the provinces joint jurisdiction in the fields of family, youth and occupational training allowances.

Quebec had sought paramount jurisdiction in these fields of social security as well as in unemployment insurance and health services. But no such primacy in this field was granted in the charter.

Showdown, Crunch, Nitty-gritty Benson Faces 'Em All Today

OTTAWA (CP) — A Commons speech of two hours or so, starting shortly after 5 p.m. EDT, will set up a federal taxation and spending program designed to raise Canada out of the unemployment and slow-production doldrums.

In the same speech, Finance Minister E. J. Benson will outline the government's legislative distillation of years of public argument about a new system of taxing incomes of individuals and companies.

The annual budget part of the speech has been the subject of guessing by taxpayers for weeks, as unemployment rose, then eased, and price inflation flattened then slarted to climb this spring.

Mr. Benson and government colleagues have been arguing that economic activity, stimulated by increased federal spending and some business-tax concessions last year, already is starting to move up and out of the stagnation incurred in the anti-inflation austerity of 1969 and early 1970.

If that view persisted through the writing of the budget speech —the final draft landed on Mr. Benson's desk precisely at 4 p.m. Thursday—the result will be little change in taxes or spending programs.

But if there was any convincing clout behind the political pressure for tax cuts recently by business, labor unions and special interests such as the depressed pulp and paper industry, there would be some tax concessions.

On the even of his big day—his fifth and most important budget speech in three years as finance minister—Mr. Benson was relaxed, chipper and offering no clues.

Theft, Fraud Charged

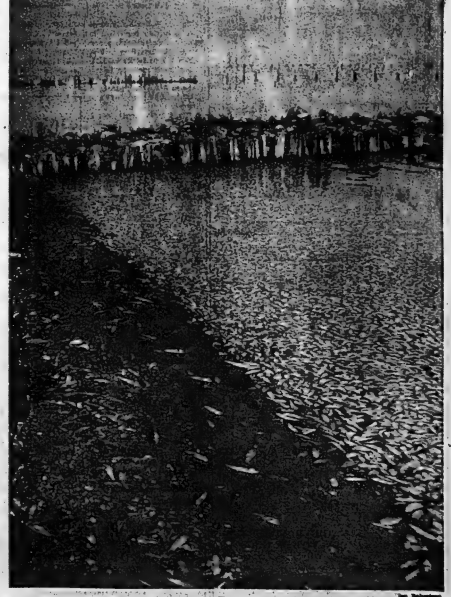
Stafford Smythe Arrested, Harold Ballard Is Sought



TORONTO (CP) — Stafford Smythe, 51-year-old president of Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd., was released on $50,000 bail today after appearing in court on Deft and fraud charges involving $395,000 in cash and securities.

Smythe, arrested in his Gardens exective offices earlier in the day by three Metropolitan Toronto police detectives, appeared before Provincial Court Judge P. J. Bolsby and was remanded to June 25 without plea.

Theft and fraud charges have also been laid against Harold Ballard. Gardens executive vice-president. Police said they were seeking Ballard to exercise a warrant for his arrest. Ballard was reported en route to New York.

Smythe, who appeared pale and shaken when taken to police headquarters for fingerprinting and photographing," is charged with theft of $146,000 in cash and securities during a seven-year period from 1963 to late 1969.

Police said Ballard faces the same theft charge. In addition, Smythe is charged with fraud involving another $249,000 and Ballard is wanted for fraud involving $83,000.

Trenton PUC Rates Up

Commercial rates for power consumption will be increased to 3.8 cents for the first 50 kwh from 3 cents for the next 300 hours to 1.8 cents from 1.5 for the next 9750 hours to 1.55 cents from 1.4 and the balance to 1.35 cents from .5 cents.

Commission chairman, D. James MacDonald, told the Hydro representatives "we were going to do our utmost to maintain the present rate structure," adding there is even more reason for it in view of the large increase in municipal taxes announced Tuesday.

He mentioned that Ontario Hydro had increased its price for power to the PUC by seven per cent January 1, 1971 and the commission had made up this $17,000 in added expenses from its own funds without passing the burden on to consumers.

Doug Mackiw, the PUC manager reported that expenses for the town utility are now being matched by income. He had predicted a slight surplus for revenues at the year's operation — not an ominous deficit.

"You will not be able to get a rate increase in early enough next year to stay afloat," Mr. Beech said. Two months notice must be given to customers before increasing rates and he cautioned against waiting until the commission goes into the red before boosting the rates.

"I think you are taking it a bit too close to the line," he emphasized.

Mr. MacDonald asked if there was any way they could take a second look at the finances of the PUC and consider shelving the increase, saying "it is my feeling we are getting by . . . I would rather wait until the first of next year."

Mr. Beech reiterated that Ontario Hydro did not feel the PUC has made enough provision for raising money" and, in view of this, Mr. Pedersen insisted on the motion of the commission would be frozen, if Hydro refused to approve its budget.

Both men explained that to have a budget approved it must show there is sufficient revenue and that existing rates would not reap this.

Communications from Ontario Hydro in recent weeks had told the PUC "forecasts indicate that existing rates will not maintain a sound financial position even with all durable capital in 1972 and 1973 fully debenchured."

The increases in the retail rate are needed, Hydro says, "to improve as quickly as possible your deteriorating financial position."

A. M. Pedersen, manager of Hydro's Eastern Ontario Region, has told the PUC in correspondence it will still have to consider debentures for most of its "durable capital expenditures in 1972 and 1973" and will face a probable further rate increase in 1972.

Commissioner Charles Hilton, armed with sheets of statistics concerning past rate trends, said that in the past three years charges to large small customers have gone up by as much as 30 per cent, while some larger ones have dropped by 40 per cent. He added that, in this period, domestic customers have been subject to a 20-40 per cent increase.

He charged that the new rates as presented by Ontario Hydro would discriminate further against small users at a time when — in view of the tax increase — they could ill afford it.

"Apparently Ontario Hydro is without sin . . . as far as I know there was only one man who walked the world without sin," he said.

He suggested charging large customers more, small ones less. He said "one of the crimes we could be punished for is selling lower rates but Ontario Hydro does not in its own medicine to heart with preferred customers like Domtar."

Ontario Hydro has entered into a private agreement to supply Domtar with power at a price less than that at which it sells to the PUC.

Mr. Hilton said he understood that the Powers Commission Act specified that the PUC must take orders from Ontario Hydro.

Mr. Beech stated that a commissioner could be disqualified from holding office for five years and fined $100 a day until he complied with orders of Ontario Hydro.

Before agreeing to approve the new rates, Mr. Hilton said "I know now we can all be punished . . . I wonder why people run for elected offices when they have to take orders from a regime of appointed boards and civil servants."

In a final futile attempt to avoid the increase, PUC manager Mackiw had been asked if the commission budget could be cut but he reported "the only thing we have left to cut is capital works and there is not much we can cut there if we are going to keep pace with the growth of the town."

GARY MAY, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan May, RR 1, Foxboro, received his bachelor of education degree at the recent convocation exercises held at Queen's University. The previous year he received a bachelor of arts and a bachelor of physical and health education from Queen's. Mr. May, who is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School, Belleville will be teaching physical education at the Vanier Secondary School in Cornwall, next year.

PUC Objects To Research Job

TRENTON (Staff) — The Ontario Water Resources Commission has asked the Public Utilities Commission here to file 14 reports on capital works projects, some dating back to the 1930s, and PUC commissioners do not like it.

"We do not get anything from them for nothing," said Mayor Duncan McDonald, who serves as an ex officio PUC commissioner.

Mr. MacDonald asked if

Bottleneck Unplugged

The two-day traffic bottle-neck at the intersection of Front and Dundas Street caused by paving of the east approaches to the new Dundas Street bridge is all over.

Motorists forced to use the former Bridge Street route through downtown Belleville, as well as local businessmen on lower Front Street, are relieved.

Finish coat paving to the end of the bridge approach was completed late yesterday afternoon and today it is clear sailing over the bridge.

But finish coat paving on the reconstructed section of Dundas Street between the bridge and Holden Street is still to be done and the traffic light at the intersection of Bay Bridge Road is still to go into operation.

The paving contract on the rebuilt West Dundas Street is expected to be completed by the end of the month.

$82,000 Awarded

Mr. Justice A. H. Lieff of the Ontario Supreme Court, sitting in Belleville, yesterday awarded $82,000 to the estate and family of the late George James Broe, killed in an automobile accident Aug. 11, 1969.

Claimants in the civil suit were Howard Pushay, brother-in-law of the deceased, administrator of the estate and Mrs. Marjorie Beverley Broe, wife, and children Georgia Howard, Philip Malcolm, Beverley Irene and Andrew Marlin Broe.

On Sept. 23, 1969, provincial court Judge Douglas G. Ross found Indrevold guilty of dangerous driving, fined him $150 and $56 court costs, and suspended his license for three months. At the time, Judge Ross noted: "he's faced with serious civil consequences as a result of this".

At 1 p.m. Aug. 11, 1969, on Highway 118, the Port Carling Road out of Milford Bay in the Township of Monck, Gary Indrevold, a bakery delivery employee with Wolfe Bakery of Brazebridge, was driving a more than a mile on the wrong side of the double white-lined highway, which he described as his attempt to pass heavy traffic.

The resulting accident with the Broe vehicle left Mr. Broe dead, his wife unconscious for days, also suffering a collapsed lung and lacerations to the knee, Philip Malcolm, now 5, suffered a brain damage now slowly correcting; George Howard, now suffered a concussion, a broken leg and lacerations; Beverly Irene suffered multiple cuts and bruises. The fourth child, Andrew, now 2½ was not involved in the accident.

George James Broe, 29 at the time of his death was employed by the Hastings County Board of Education at Trenton High School as a stationary engineer. His rate of pay at that time was $4,265 annually.

The awarding of the $82,000 took into consideration the loss of income of the father, personal injuries to the family, medical expenses and forthcoming legal fees from the Belleville firm of Rose and Brady.

Awards for the children who reside with their mother at 151 Stanley Street, Trenton will be held by the Ontario Supreme Court, gathering a small interest, but they are to reach the age of $1.

PROCLAMATION

"PAKISTAN REFUGEE DAY"

WHEREAS THE Plight of the East Pakistani refugees in India has been described as "the greatest tragedy of the century". People have been left homeless. They are faced with starvation. Many of them are living in open field exposed to the rains of th monsoon. They are people without hope unless they can depend on the generosity of people around the world.

Canadian have always responded with generosity in emergency situations. I urge you to respond now to help these unfortunate people.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Russell Scott, Mayor of the City of Belleville, in co-operation with the civic and social leaders throughout Canada, declare that Friday, June 18th, will be known as "PAKISTAN REFUGEE DAY". All the financial support you can give on behalf of the refugees will be deeply appreciated, both by this government and by the people of East Pakistan who so sorely need you. help.

RUSSELL SCOTT, M.D., C.M., MAYOR.

Nigerian Educator Observing at OSD

A Nigerian teacher is spending this week in Belleville learning about Ontario methods of special education for the deaf.

John A. Kuforiji, assistant inspector of education in Ibadan, western Nigeria, has been observing classes at the Ontario School for the Deaf here. He will return to Nigeria at the end of the summer to help train teachers who will specialize in the education of handicapped children.

Most of the handicapped in his country, said Mr. Kuforiji, have not yet been reached by the schools, because of the lack of teachers and money.

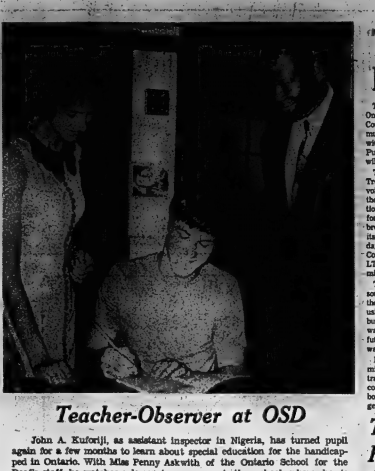
"We have 86 blind children in school from a population of 12.5 million," he said. "The handicapped don't come forward; we have to look for them and are lucky to find them by the time they are eight or 10 years old."

Special education is in its infancy in Nigeria. Mr. Kuforiji entered the field seven years ago after a long career as a teacher and principal. An English society wanted to institute education for the blind and Mr. Kuforiji volunteered to take training in England and later in Denmark.

At present 49 teachers are being trained in special education and when he returns, the goal will be to train 70 special education teachers a year at the University of Ife.

His aim, said Mr. Kuforiji, is to train a group of teachers in all aspects of special education so that they can go into regular classrooms and help teachers recognize and deal with children with learning handicaps.

As yet, Nigerian schools have none of the complicated equipment, such as hearing aids, that are in use at OSD.



Teaching the deaf in Nigeria is made more difficult because each child must learn two languages — his mother tongue and English, universal language of Nigeria. If the child is taught English only, he cannot communicate with his parents. But Mr. Kuforiji regards a knowledge of English as important that he says only English should be taught to the deaf.

Nigeria must have residential schools for the deaf, because "the deaf won't profit much in regular schools", said Mr. Kuforiji. He hopes the hard of hearing and the blind can be integrated into regular schools but one residential school for the blind will also be necessary to take children from remote districts.

In addition to visiting schools for the blind and deaf operated by the Ontario department of education, Mr. Kuforiji will attend the five - week summer course in elementary special education offered by the department.

His visit is sponsored by the Ontario Provincial Federation International Assistance committee.

The committee assists teachers to come to Canada for specialized training and provides books and learning materials to schools.

Teacher-Observer at OSD

John A. Kuforiji, as assistant inspector in Nigeria, has turned pupil again for a few months to learn about special education for the handicapped in Ontario. With Miss Penny Askwith of the Ontario School for the Deaf's staff, he watches a lesson in progress at the school where he is spending a week. As well as visiting schools for the blind and deaf in the province, Mr. Kuforiji will attend a summer course in special education offered by the department of education.

Front Street Mall To Be Investigated

The possibility of a mall atmosphere being provided for this year's downtown sidewalk sale is to be investigated by a special committee.

Members of the city traffic committee agreed Monday for the city engineer, the police chief and committee chairman Ald. Arthur Keegan to meet with merchants' representatives to discuss the matter.

Litter Lift Tomorrow

Saturday, June 18, is "litter lift" day in the Moira River watershed and elementary school children take the large urban centres in the river system will do the lifting.

Tomorrow morning the youngsters will fan out from their respective schools picking up the winter's accumulation of litter, placing it in plastic bags provided by Union Carbide and returning it to the schoolyards for later disposal.

The "litter lift" is a project of the Information and Education Advisory Committee of the Moira River Conservation Authority under the direction of its chairman Alderman Robin Jeffrey of Belleville.

For their litter lifting efforts, all children taking part in the day's activity will receive a weekend pass to any of the authority's conservation areas.

Roger Porter, chairman of the Belleville Downtown Associated, approached the traffic committee yesterday regarding the mall possibility.

He admitted that closing off Front Street to vehicular traffic could cause traffic problems and invited alternative proposals.

"We just want to try something new," he said.

It was noted that closing off Front Street would cause problems for city buses, while Alderman Jack Ireland said that traffic in the downtown area was already patchy.

He doubted if there was any way that part of Front Street could be closed off but said the committee should at least listen to the merchants and try to co-operate.

Alderman E. A. Orr said that basically the mall was a good idea but didn't feel the he wasn't against progress city was yet ready for it.

Alderman Paul Russell said but suggested closing off Front Street to vehicular traffic would result in a lot of complaints.

He didn't think the mall was feasible until the city got its north and south arterial traffic problems sorted out.

Volunteers Requested

Adults and young people are urgently needed to help with a special project to help mentally retarded people to establish their independence in the community. Conducted at the mental retardation unit of the Kingston Psychiatric hospital, it is an attempt to help the mildly or moderately retarded individual to lead a normal life.

Under this plan an adult citizen acts as an "advocate" for the retarded person, helping in any crisis situation and being available as a counsellor or friend any time he is needed. The crisis faced by a retarded person may seem overwhelming to him and may force him to return to the confinement of an institution. The advice of an advocate can prevent a minor incident from developing into critical proportions. The advice could be on any subject ranging from budget management to how to fill out a census form.

In addition to adult citizens, youth organizations could act as group advocates for two or three adolescents who have behavioral family or emotional problems.

The time spent on helping with these problems is up to each advocate. The work can range from an occasional telephone call to frequent visits.

A second phase of the summer work of the mental retardation unit involves the finding of foster homes for retarded children to prevent them from becoming institutionalized and confined to a lower level of development than their potential might indicate.

This project has already been implemented successfully in the U.S.

Pigs Fire Victims

Nineteen five - month - old pigs, a farm wagon and other machinery were lost in a blaze which early this week destroyed the frame barn of J. H. McDonnell of Foxboro.

No cause was determined for the blaze which occurred about 5 p.m.

The Thurlow township volunteer fire department answered the call for assistance and used three truck units in saving the McDonnell house and garage.

"The wind was blowing directly toward the house and firemen had to keep the roof watered down," Mr. McDonnell told The Intelligencer.

Also lost in the blaze were about 500 bales of hay and a quantity of straw.

Bags Bagged

BAYSIDE (Staff) — Sleep for Mrs. Al Chapman and family of 106 Mobile Village here may be difficult for the next few days.

Actually, Mrs. Chapman hung her three sleeping bags valued at $30, up to dry behind the trailer. The sleepgear snatcher struck sometime between 9 p.m. and 12:30 a.m. this morning.

Trout Fishery Proposed For Trenton Reservoir

TRENTON (Staff) — If the Ontario Water Resources Commission will allow Trenton Lake to be stocked with game fish, the Trenton Public Utilities Commission will have no objection.

The proposal to open up Trenton's municipal reservoir for fishing was made by the Lower Trent Conservation Authority and the case for opening fishing was brought to the commission at its regular meeting yesterday by Jack Mound of RR 2, Codrington, a member of the LTRCA fish and wildlife committee.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission had told the PUC earlier that people using the lake would "contribute to contamination of the water . . . and many require future treatment of the town's water supply."

Mr. Mound told the commission the reservoir has attracted suckers and other coarse fish that feed on the bottom and require less oxygen than such piper fish varieties as speckled and lake trout.

He said lack of oxygen in the water may be caused by nitrates and fertilizers being leached into the water and suggested the conservation authority prepare a report on the wells and streams feeding the reservoir.

"We think we can help you", he said.

The authority advisor recommended that Tremur Lake be stocked with both rainbow and speckled trout and opened only for fly fishing, adding this would bring in fish and wildlife people to assist the PUC.

Commissioner Charles Hilton said Trenton citizens would have a right to object "if they drove by the lake and saw people swimming and fishing in the water."

Doug Manlow, the commission manager, said the PUC would not want people getting near recharge pumps and substations near the reservoir, and Mr. Hilton told Jack Mound the conservation authority would have to fence this area.

"First, you should go knocking on the doors of the OWRC," Mr. Hilton stated.

Town Asks Rate Boost

TRENTON (Staff) — At its regular meeting this afternoon, the Public Utilities Commission will open discussions with Ontario Hydro officials on the possibility of increasing electricity rates to Trenton consumers.

PUC chairman D. James MacDonald explained this morning that the price of electrical power that the commission buys from Ontario Hydro has gone up in the last few months but this added cost has not been passed on to the consumer.

The increased expense to the public utilities has been covered out of the commission's operating funds.

"Hydro must approve or disapprove our rates and we will be talking about their structure today," said Mr. MacDonald.

He said it is too early to state that hydro rates will be increased in Trenton.

However, he added that the commission must act in accordance with the Public Utilities Act and not operate at a deficit — a real prospect, if rates are not increased.

Laboratory Closing

The phasing out of the Canada department of agriculture entomological research institute is a blow to the local economy as well as to an institution which had all the hallmarks of permanence and a reputation in the entomological sphere which was international.

Yet to speak of permanence, especially where government establishments are concerned, is to ignore natural evolution, in science as in other matters, and which had led to this decision.

There has been a note of dissent as an interview with a former research institute scientist indicates. Dr. Donald Chant of Pollution Probe suggested that there should be a greater tie-up with the Belleville facilities, rather than a break-up of the existing lab and the transfer of component parts across the country.

However, the decision has been made and while most personnel reportedly will remain here until next summer, so existing projects can be completed, the ultimate picture envisages their transfer to other projects across Canada. The main reason is said to be the commencement of an "integrated control" program on cereal crops in the West which will see 16 Belleville scientists transferred to Winnipeg.

While lamenting the closing of this valuable local facility, it is rumored that it may be replaced by another government enterprise. Mayor J. Russell Scott has indicated as much, noting that a task force has been in the city on behalf of a federal government agency and assuring the community that he will make immediate representations to Ottawa.

An $800,000 to a $1,000,000 payroll at the research laboratory would be no small loss to the community in terms of spending power. This is all the more reason why every effort should be made to bring a facility of comparable size and importance to the city.

Economic Troubles

Just as the announcement of the research laboratory closing was made in Belleville there came word also of shutdowns and layoffs involving eight Ontario companies.

Shutdowns between now and August will include an American Motors engine assembly plant in Brampton, Frontenac Floor and Wall Tile Co. of Kingston, a West German subsidiary, and Wellwood of Canada, a U.S. subsidiary in Woodstock. Layoffs in the same period will be made by Dupont of Canada in Kingston (because of a slack period and competition from imported textiles), Uniroyal of Kitchener, Smith-Corona, and Canadian Westinghouse Ltd. of Brantford.

The further mention of textile competition from overseas hurts. So too in this same general context does a recent statement in Vancouver of the chairman of Mitsubishi Corporation, Japan's largest trading company, that Canadian businessmen have not been aggressive enough in trying to sell in Japan. Prince Edward-Hastings MP George Hees brought up this latter point in the Commons recently.

Figures released to the Ontario legislature in connection with the above firms show that at least 445 employees will be dismissed permanently this summer and at least 745 will be out of work for 13 weeks or more.

So much for the threats that employment should pick up in the summer months. Add a dozen or so other companies, incidentally, are reported to have informed the government since January 1 of planned layoffs or shutdowns. Winter, clearly, is not the only season of discontent.

Squares and Swingers

Ever wonder why the kids wear their hair long. The Globe and Mail's Martin Dorreil, on the road across Canada with the hitchhiking fraternity, quotes one youth as saying: "Chicks love it. And it feels good just blowing all over the place and hanging there. Man, it just feels good." Well, we already learn.

Incidentally, Dorrell met a 20-year-old who had been growing grass (marijuana) on his farm near Toronto. He said he grossed about $1,000 a week dealing in Rochdale College for a number of months. Now, having returned to farm he and another fellow were going to try and set up another operation near Vancouver.

So, what a world . . . what a society . . . long hairs and drug freaks. But they are not the only aberrations of our day. In California, and doubtless elsewhere, the in thing among many otherwise, respectable middle-class people is said to be wife-swapping. Swingers, they call them. Somewhere out there, however, there are still some squares; you know, they wear collar and tie, hair short and tidy, bowl and play golf, are faithful to their wives, and stay home at night.

Things Were More Efficient Under Mussolini

Italians Sick of Leftist-Inspired Work Stoppages

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The shade of Benito Mussolini appears to be spreading over the southern book of Italy, but that doesn't mean there is likely to be a sudden Neo-Fascist march on Rome in the style of the wartime dictator.

In fact the current swing to the right in regional elections, especially in Sicily and other southern regions, may give aggressive Communists reason to pause and think again whether their strategy is paying off in terms of future political power.

There appears to be little doubt that the mood of the average Italian voter is one of frustration and exasperation. Strikes, stoppages and violence have combined with mounting prices to try the patience of those who want nothing more than the right to be left alone and to be able to live reasonably with reliable public services.

Much of the continuous upheaval is blamed on working unrest with the big Communist-led unions rattling off strike orders like machine-gun fire. The Neo-Fascist Italian Socialist Movement has kicked in with its own share, especially in the political turmoil of Reggio di Calabria, though the ranks of the Communists far outnumber the right-wing opponents.

Caught in the centre is Premier Emilio Colombo's Christian Democrats and their associates whose tax impositions and failure to end the turmoil have aroused bitterness.

The Neo-Fascists have been active. The memory of Mussolini has been sustained through speeches, photographs, books and a variety of souvenirs. Though himself was finally ambushed by his own Fascist council in 1943 and killed by partisans in 1945, the recollection that seems to linger among some Italians is: "He made the trains run on time."

Through dictatorship, Mussolini brought order to the disorderly country. He later became a target for hatred but now, as city dwellers wonder if they can get to day whether the buses will run or the mail delivered, or the garbage collected, the hunger for order is riding high.

National elections are still some years away. The regional elections may reflect rising discontent and a switch to the right rather than the left but the Christian Democrats, backed by the church, have the chance of reviving declining appeal by convincing voters there is still security in democracy.

Some commentators suggest the Christian Democrats are not really in trouble because there is no real national alternative. The shock of the regional election results is likely to change some attitudes and toughen the government's response to further turmoil.

LET'S HELP

Agatha Christie's Enduring Fame

BBC Llandon Letter

The longest-running play at a single theatre, no-one will be surprised to hear, is Agatha Christie's "The Mousetrap" which has been running at London's Ambassador Theatre since 1952. With 7,511 consecutive performances totted up by last Christmas Eve, British and tourists alike still flock to it, and it is a "must" of the London scene. The octogenarian writer is busy approaching other records, too. Her thriller novels have sold 300,000,000 copies (about the same number as Georges Simenon) and have been translated into 100 languages. On the eve of her 80th birthday last year she published her 80th detective story, "Passenger to Frankfurt" — and this has already become a best-seller.

Though she herself shuns publicity, when the last Honours list showed she had become a Dame Commander of the British Empire the BBC World Service felt the occasion proper to broadcast an appreciation of the woman who created the now-legendary little Belgian detective, Hercule Poirot. That was in her first book "The Mysterious Affair at Styles", written in World War I. Incredible as it may seem now, it was rejected by publisher after publisher, until the far - sighted John Lane bought it. She herself prefers her other legendary character, Miss Marple. This amiable aunt - like figure is more realistic, she thinks, now that private detectives are as rare as gas lamps.

But it is her plots which have won the day; she dares the reader to solve the problem who was the murderer and what was the motive? Her clues are placed with mathematical precision, and while some may be false and others irrelevant, they are never unfair. On the last page complexity is reduced to simplicity and the identity of the criminal is revealed.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 13, 1771 . . .

The Battle of Waterloo was fought 156 years ago today—in 1815—and Napoleon's attempt to regain power was decisively defeated. After an escape from Elba, Napoleon marched north through Belgium for 100 days, gathering men and arms. The Duke of Wellington, with a united allied army, met him on Brussels Road, knowing Prussian troops were approaching. The fighting lasted all day, until the whole allied line advanced a desk and the French forces disintegrated. French casualties were 40,000 of 72,000 men.

1953—One hundred and twenty-nine United States servicemen were killed in the crash of a C-124 Globemaster, 35 miles west of Tokyo.

1812—The United States declared war on Britain.

Advances in Education Locally

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

In reply to your Education Department Priorities Set — some information:

First — upgrading teachers. Hastings County has two or more courses scheduled.

Second — evaluation in light of costs. Hastings evaluated French. A new, yet economical method, is in the making (it saves transportation and time).

Third — better communication. Several ways have been tried with partial success. (Thanks to Leroy Williamson.) How about suggestions from the public?

Fourth — curriculum changes. Hastings are implementing gradually, rather than creating an upheaval (compare with past history of education).

Fifth — more emphasis on education related to living, rather than facts. Hastings Out-School education is constantly improving. Just ask Mr. Biwiski.

Principals asked for improved communications with those above them. Why don't they come on local a representative to first Monday of month: Home and School Council; second and fourth Mondays: school board meetings where time is given for enquiries. Because of full agenda it is common courtesy to write in or phone for a spot on the agenda.

What some principals appreciate do not know is that many of the changes in policy decisions have filtered from below (community use of schools, introduction of French, improved art, better understanding of Indian affairs — example Miss Johnson's program at Trenton High School... better methods of teaching history, etc.)

Community Effort Boosted Special Olympics Entrants

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

On behalf of everyone concerned with the William R. Kirk School, I wish to express appreciation for the splendid community effort put forth to send our boys and girls to participate in the Canadian Special Olympics held last week in Toronto.

Four medals and seven ribbons were brought home by the 13 semi. The pride we felt in their uniforms and the success they had in their swimming and track and field events has made them feel that they really are "a part of the world they live in".

Much of the credit for the success of this endeavor goes to Mrs. Tom Stowell who acted as treasurer and accepted the monetary contributions. So much more money was contributed though that I feel the whole town deserves equal credit for any future activities involving our pupils and their community.

Volunteer student help from both Moira Secondary and BCIVS was provided throughout the whole year for training in swimming and physical education. As a former secondary school teacher, I should like to feel that I am able to assess the younger generation in a more prejudicial manner than some adults. The bad acts of the minority group of teenagers make the news at a ratio of about 10 to one of the good deeds of the majority. This is an unjustifiable action gap that we as principals and teachers, along with all news media, must seek to close. Your speech to the Principal's Conference which I unfortunately had to miss, stressed mature involvement and challenge. This is most commendable; however, I do feel that there is much of this very thing you prescribe being done now and going unrecognized.

Our promised new school will greatly reduce the chances that our pupils will be able to do even better in the future for their lack of facilities for practising was a great handicap. Mr. Bill Reddick, a former BCI athlete, has for many years assisted us and reached this handicap by being with the children and improvised facilities could be found.

The radio and newspaper have each contributed to the fine effort made by Belleville and district citizens and for this, we convey our thanks through this letter. Clubs, sororities, pupils of elementary and secondary schools, teacher groups, business men, individuals from five to 91 years of age all supported us by the bulk. Thank you all and God bless you.

KATHERINE PRYOR,
Principal

City Gets Into Movie Business

German Features

FRANKFURT, — City-fathers here have voted to set up a government municipal movie house to offer high quality films and counter the often shabby productions made here across the city's numerous movie screens.

Tuesday will be the only west German city to have such municipal cinema. Over 221,000 have already been allotted in the 1971 budget for the project.

A special advisory council will be set up to choose a variety of films drawn from the best in movie history and from top productions at international film festivals and works of well known directors and actors.

Mayors Ask Three Things of Senior Governments

Money Action Freedom

SASKATOON (CP) — More money, action and independence from the senior governments was the major aim of delegates to the 54th annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities which ended Thursday.

Marcel d'Amour, mayor of Hull, Que., and the federation's new president, told delegates that senior government officials need to talk less and act more.

"I am a little fed up . . . that when we invite ministers to our conference they always say how important we are. But outside the conferences, they don't seem to give a damn."

"We are trying to case the pain . . . without getting to the disease. ."

He said towns and cities must fight for a new Canadian constitution that would put them on an equal basis with the provincial and federal governments.

Delegates overruled a committee recommendation that the convention drop a resolution asking the federal government to place a priority on urban renewal, housing, pollution and increased employment opportunities.

The resolution was approved.

Another resolution, passed Wednesday, asked the senior governments to extend capital and operating support for urban public transportation.

The resolution said public opinion is shifting from freeways to rapid transit systems that would avoid environmental and planning problems created by the increased number of automobiles within cities.

Development of an optimal urban transportation program by the senior governments was also endorsed. The program would outline funding arrangements to develop transportation corridors between major urban centres. Arbitrary discontinuances of railway services should be eliminated.

Delegates voted in favor of asking the federal government to build youth hostels across Canada in consultation with local governments. The resolution added that young people using the accommodations should pay for the service.

They also approved a resolution suggesting councillors be able to speak during council meetings without fear of libel suits. A privilege now accorded only to parliamentarians.

It was agreed the federation would be the future host to be called the Federation of Canadian Municipalities.

Next year's convention will be at Quebec City.

New York Times Lists Secret Papers Used in Vietnam War History Series

NEW YORK (CP) — The New York Times has given the justice department a list of the secret Pentagon documents upon which it based its suspended Vietnam war history series as both sides prepared for a court hearing today on the government's motion for a permanent injunction against further publication of the papers.

The Times acted voluntarily Thursday at the urging of Judge Murray I. Gurfein of the U.S. district court, who withheld any immediate action on the government's demand to inspect the documents.

Gurfein ruled out a government request to see all classified material in the newspaper's files, saying: "I'm not interesting any fishing expedition into the files of any newspaper."

The documents sought by Assistant U.S. Attorney Michael D. Hess were a 47-volume secret Pentagon study entitled History of U.S. Decision Making Process on Vietnam Policy and a summary of The Command and Control Study of the Tonkin Gulf Incident.

The Times suspended publication of the controversial series after Gurfein issued a temporary restraining order Tuesday and scheduled today's full dress injunction hearing.

In a brief filed late Thursday for today's hearing, the government said it would argue that while the First Amendment of the constitution guarantees the freedom of speech and press, "it is equally clear that these freedoms are not absolute."

The brief then cited the dictum of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the U.S. Supreme Court who wrote in a 1918 decision:

"The most stringent protection of free speech would not protect a man in falsely shouting fire in a theatre and causing a panic. . ."

There were also these developments in the case:

—The chairman of the House of Representatives government information subcommittee, Representative William S. Moorhead (Dem. Pa.), said the case has spurred plans for a major reappraisal of the government's secrecy policy and possible overclassification or misclassification of some documents.

—Senator Edward M. Kennedy (Dem. Mass.) called for full disclosure of secret government data on Vietnam policies during the administration of President John F. Kennedy, saying: "The public ought to be the final judge of the whole period of the 1950s, and before, in Vietnam."

—Former state secretary Dean Rusk said in Decatur, Ga., that he had "never heard" of the secret study before reading of it in The Times and "did not know why" the Pentagon would prepare such an analysis without consulting him.

—Former president Lyndon B. Johnson said in a statement that the manuscript of a forthcoming book on his White House years is complete and would not be changed as a result of the publication of the secret papers.

The three instalments of the series which The Times printed before the restraining order was issued dealt with events leading up to the Tonkin Gulf incident, the Johnson administration's decision to bomb North Vietnam and its decision to use American ground troops in combat.

In its original move against The Times, the government contended that newspaper unlawfully obtained the data and through its publication "prejudiced the defence interests of the United States."

Further publication would "result in irreparable injury to the United States," the complaint added. The court was asked to direct The Times to hand over all its documents.

Judge Gurfein specifically declined to ask The Times for the documents, and as a result the government argued in a new motion that examination of the documents—known legally as discovery—"is important to be proper presentation of the government's case." Thursday's hearing was held on the latter motion.

The Times opposed the motion, expressing concern that the government might be able to identify the source from which it obtained the documents, either through the handwriting in notations on the papers or through scientific analysis that could identify the copying machine used to duplicate the study.

As support for The Times continued to mount across the United States, attempts to trace Daniel Ellsberg, a former government employee who is said to have given the papers to The Times, proved futile.

The FBI, which is involved in a high-pressure investigation into the affair, refused to comment on reports that Ellsberg had been identified as the source.

But he was believed to have become a primary subject of the investigation as early as Monday when the second article on the Pentagon papers was published.

Ellsberg now teaches at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, but attempts to reach him have been unsuccessful. His mail box at home was not emptied.

The Times reported today that Ellsberg, 40, was last seen at his office Wednesday. He acknowledged to a reporter who spoke to him on the telephone that he had worked on the Pentagon study, but refused to discuss the matter further.

"I'm glad this stuff is out." The Times said he told the reporter. "I think it's a good thing for the country. Congress is entitled to get it and apparently judge is going to get it."

Ellsberg was named as the source at a radio talk show Wednesday night by Sidney Zion, a former Times reporter.

Support for The Times came evenly from members of the House of Representatives who challenged the Nixon administration's claim that publication of the secret documents harmed national interests.

The Times said for their release in letters to Defence Secretary Melvin Laird and Attorney-General John Mitchell, urging administration moves to stop further publication is a violation of press freedom.

Twenty members of the House said they would try to intervene in the case on the grounds that the information in the study is important to them.

Bertrand Says Farewell Tonight

QUEBEC (CP) — Jean-Jacques Bertrand makes his farewell speech as leader of some 7,000 Union Nationale members expected to assemble here tonight, then yields the platform to the five men who want to succeed him.

Three of the five are former ministers in the Quebec cabinet Mr. Bertrand led until the party's electoral defeat last year. They are Gabriel Loubier, Marcel Masse and Mario Beaulieu, all Quebec nationalists who want a revised Canadian constitution with increased powers for Quebec.

Communist Victory at Polls Feared

U.S. Tried to Stop Call for Vietnam Elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Post says the Eisenhower administration tried to keep the 1954 Geneva conference from calling elections throughout Vietnam—North and South.

The Post story, appearing in today's editions and said to be based on a Pentagon study of the origins of the Vietnam war, said the Eisenhower White House feared nationwide elections in Vietnam would result in victory for Ho Chi Minh.

However, The Post said, the documents indicate South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem was the one who headed off the elections. He refused to discuss elections with the Communist government in Hanoi.

There was no indication in The Post story, written by staff writer Chalmers M. Roberts, if the Pentagon study was the same used as the basis of New York Times articles on the war. The Times is under a temporary court order prohibiting further publication of the series.

The Post said President Dwight D. Eisenhower's secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, was the prime mover in administration opposition to national Vietnamese elections.

The Post quoted from a July, 1954, telegram reported to have been sent by Dulles to various American diplomats, as illustration of his attitude:

". . . Thus since undoubtedly true that elections might eventually mean unification Vietnam under Ho Chi Minh this makes it all more important they should be only held as long after ceasefire agreement as possible and in conditions free from intimidation to give democratic elections best chance.

"We believe important that no date should be set now and especially that no conditions should be accepted by French which would have direct or indirect effect of preventing effective international supervision of agreement ensuring political as well as military peace."

Nevertheless, the Geneva conference called for elections to be held in July, 1956.

"U.S. state department records indicate that Diem's refusal to be bound by the Geneva Accords and his opposition to pre-election consultations were at his own initiative."

Electronic Experts Ask Federal Help

ESTEREL, Que. (CP) — Experts in Canada's electronics industry today called for federal government co - operation in making the industry competitive on world markets.

The 100 - member Electronic Industries Association of Canada, at the windup of its three day convention, heard several speakers criticize government policies which, one said, "knowingly discriminate against domestic industry."

D. V. Carroll, president of TMC Canada Ltd., Ottawa, and chairman of the association's electronics division, blamed federal government purchases of sophisticated electronics equipment outside Canada for the plight of the domestic industry.

"Unless immediate steps are taken for aids or support of the electronics industry by the Canadian governments at all levels," he said, "it is doubtful if the electronics industry will survive."

He said firms have been closed down and hundreds of highly skilled engineering, technical and management personnel across the country have been laid off.

Leon Balcer, association president, said 13.5 per cent of the industry's work force was laid off in 1970.

He said a perfect example of the crippling effects of the government's trade policies is our trade with Japan.

"We sell to Japan a total of $600 million and we import $600 million. But . . . Japan buys only 2.8 per cent of industrial goods and Japan's sales to Canada consist of 39 per cent industrial goods."

John Pollock, vice-president of Electrohome Ltd., in Kitchener, Ont., agreed that without federal government co-operation "the future of this industry in Canada is very much in doubt."

Mr. Pollock, also chairman of the association's consumer products division, said that the industry could enjoy a successful and exciting future if the federal government acted to help domestic electronics manufacturers.

The industry could expect continued growth for color television set manufacturing, introduction of video-tape recording and play - back equipment and many other special applications of audio-video communications equipment to consumer products, but only with changes in federal legislation so that domestic products can cope with imports.

What is needed, he said, are changes in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade to give Canadian electronic products an opportunity to compete on recognized world-wide trade principles.

Mr. Pollock said a government decision in 1969 to drop the import duty on electronics consumer products by three per cent all at once instead of reducing the duty gradually had hurt Canadian electronic manufacturers.

MR. AND MRS. CHRISTOPHER STOCK

Stock – Watson

Janet Elizabeth Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Watson was married to John Christopher Stock son of Dr. and Mrs. John Stock at St. Thomas' Anglican Church on Saturday, June 5. Rev. Peter Tett and Rev. L. Sutherland were the officiating clergymen while music was provided by D. Davenport, organist and Rosalyn Robertson, soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a gown of ivory corded silk enhanced at the shoulders, sleeves and waistline with embossed Alencon lace. A cathedral train flowed from the back of the gown while a short bouffant veil was caught by a band of lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley with trailing ivy.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Brian Donney, the bride's sister. Her floor-length gown of pale green polyester crepe featured a scoop neckline, and daisy panels in front. The peasant style sleeves were enhanced by a daisy trim, and loose ties floated at the back. She carried a nosegay of green tinted daisy 'mums and lily-of-the-valley.

The four senior bridesmaids Miss Lu Ann Stock, the bridegroom's sister, Miss Bettina Theriault, the bride's cousin, Miss Nancy Plumridge and Miss Sherry Stevens were dressed in floor-length gowns of yellow polyester crepe similar to that of the matron of honor. All carried nosegays of yellow tinted daisy 'mums and lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Cindy Stock, the bridegroom's sister, Miss Jane Theriault and Miss Jodi Theriault, cousins of the bride were junior bridesmaids. All wore floor length gowns of pink polyester crepe similar to that of the matron of honor and carried nosegays of pink tinted daisy 'mums and lily-of-the-valley.

The flower girl Miss Kathy Anne Gilmour the bride's cousin wore a pale green polyester crepe gown similar to that of the matron of honor. She carried a nosegay of green tinted 'mums and lily of the valley. All the bridal attendants were garlands of tinted 'mums and baby's breath in their hair.

The best man was Peter Stock the bridegroom's brother. The ushers were John Watson the bride's brother, Alexander and David Kidd, cousins of the bridegroom, Dennis Jenkinson, Brian Donney, Grant Sprague and Ron Dickens, the bridegroom's cousin.

The reception was held at the Fiesta Room of the Hotel Quinte. The bride's mother wore an empire style dress and coat ensemble in blue silk worsted with a corsage of white feathered carnations and blue tinted 'mums. The bridegroom's mother's pale green organdy dress was embossed with white daisies and topped by a matching sleeveless coat. She wore a corsage of white feathered carnations and green tinted 'mums.

For the wedding trip to points north, the bride changed to a white crimplene pantsuit edged with braided trim. A corsage of pink sweetheart roses and lily- of the valley completed the going-away outfit. Upon return the couple will live at 11 Albion Street, Belleville.

MR. AND MRS. RICKEY G. SCHWAGER

Schwager – Cronkwright

Grace United Church, Trenton, was the setting for the marriage ceremony on Saturday, June 5, when Patricia A. Cronkwright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold A. Cronkwright of Trenton was united in marriage to Rickey George Schwager, son of Mrs. Betty Schwager of Trenton and Mr. Carman Schwager of Stockden, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Golden of Belleville. The wedding will take place on July 17 at 11 a.m. at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown in A-line styling of imported crystal crepe, with the bodice featuring a rounded neckline, banded bishop sleeves and empire waist with an overlay of Belgian lace on the bodice and trimming the bands on sleeves and the skirt of the gown. A, matching chapel train with matching lace trim extended from the shoulders. Her headdress was an organza bow with Belgian lace motifs and was held in place with a four-tier silk illusion scalloped veil. She carried a bouquet of bridal pink roses centred with a pink orchid mingled with baby's breath.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Sandra Johnstone, sister of the bride who wore a pink Swiss ribbon lace gown enhanced with soft puffed sleeves, round neckline and a flounce around the skirt. Bows of matching lace outlined the empire waistline. She carried a spray bouquet of pink daisies with white baby's breath. Bridesmaids Mrs. Susan Schwager, sister-in-law of the bridegroom and Miss Penny Schwager, sister - in - law of the bridegroom and Miss Judy St. Hilaire were dressed identically to the matron of honor but in green, yellow, blue and pink respectively and carried spray bouquets of white daisies sprayed to match their dresses.

A reception was held in Grace United Church hall, where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a two-piece ensemble consisting of pale pink crimplene coat and dress in lace design with matching pink petal organza hat, white accessories.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and points south through the United States, the bride chose a white lace pant dress with tiny pink roses around the neckline and belt with white accessories and a pink orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Schwager will reside in Trenton.

Ann Landers

Mother Not Allowed To Attend Wedding

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was married young and had two daughters within 14 months. Soon after the second girl was born, my husband became involved with other women. I stayed with him for five years — blaming myself, thinking if I were a good wife he would not be running around. One day I returned early from an out-of-town trip and caught him in our (my) own bedroom with another woman.

I decided he was rotten to the core and I filed for divorce the following week. Our daughters were then six and seven.

I went to work and raised the girls with my financial help. It wasn't easy but we managed. My daughters never knew why I divorced their father. I always spoke well of him and let him take them for vacations whenever he asked.

Now the shocker: The oldest girl is being married in a few months. Her father is giving her a beautiful church wedding. I am not allowed to be present! Those are his orders. I am no hurt I cannot describe the agony. Of course I could never give her the kind of wedding her father can give her, but I want more than anything in the world to be there. I promise to stay away from the church but her father will withdraw his offer. What do you think of a man like that? — GRIEVING MOM.

DEAR MOM: Never mind about him. What's with your daughter that she would agree to such outrageous terms? Any girl who attaches more importance to a fancy wedding than to having her mother present is a mighty weird study.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My secretary has a nickname which her colleagues use behind her back. It fits her to a "T." She is called "Motor Mouth." This wonder chews gum at the rate of 3,000 R.P.M.

The crackling and popping is bad enough but when she talks and chews, it drives me wild. Occasionally she laughs between her mouth wads and I can see that huge wad of gum — it's got to be three sticks, a most unappetizing sight.

Is there a way to let "Motor Mouth" know that her gum chewing bothers me — without telling her? I don't want to get that personal. Thank you. — ROPE'S END.

DEAR ROPE: Hand "Motor Mouth" this column. Tell her that on occasion you see yourself in the letters (everyone does) and ask if she saw herself today.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an 11-year-old girl. Please don't throw this letter away just because it's a kid problem. I like them both but they don't like each other. When I am with Polly (made up name), she talks about Molly (also made up name.) It makes me feel two-faced when I listen. Both Polly and Molly have asked me to be their best friend. (Polly wants me to put it in writing, like a pledge.) When I refused to do it she got mad.

I've tried to get them to like each other but it's no use. Yesterday Polly told me if I am friendly with Molly she is through with me. What should I do? — BETWEEN THE DEVIL AND THE DEEP BLUE SEA.

DEAR B: Polly sounds as if she is the "Devil" so my advice is take the deep blue sea. No friend has the right to impose such a choice. Such a demand, should, in my opinion, eliminate the person who makes it.

Young Couple Design Many Children's Games

EXMOUTON (CP) — Educational games are valuable because children learn through play, in the view of a young Edmonton couple who have started designing children's games.

"But the prime requirement of a game is that it's fun," said Howard Clifford, who with his wife, Jean, has invented a set of games for young children which is also designed to teach.

"Learning is a byproduct of the child enjoying the game."

The Clifford pre-school set of games — named Jeanie's Game after Mrs. Clifford — was designed because the couple wanted to provide something inexpensive, educational and enjoyable. They suggest that many of the so-called educational games on the market now are too expensive.

"And many of them teach only one idea and the child gets bored with it quickly," said Mr. Clifford, director of the Glengarry Day Care Centre.

"We wanted something that could be made very cheaply."

The Cliffords designed their game, which uses a set of building-block-sized dice painted with colored symbols. The dice go with five boards, which provide basic learning steps for different age levels from about five to six years.

"Most children when they enter Grade 1 should be able to recognize colors and basic shapes," Mr. Clifford said.

Starting with the colors, which can be introduced to the child at about 2½ years, the game progress to basic shapes, such as circles or squares, then to more difficult shapes, such as semicircles and triangles, and to combinations of shapes and colors.

"We experimented with our own son, then tried them out with the children at the day-care centre so we could try different age groups and children from different backgrounds," Mr. Clifford said.

The original idea was to design a new board each month so that a new game could be added, Mrs. Clifford said.

They make the games in their home, using silk-screen techniques. So far they've made about 200 sets and sold them through craft groups as the Edmonton Twin and Trifoot Club and by advertising them in the neighborhood.

They sell the set for $1, which is relatively low compared with other such games, Mr. Clifford said.

They have had a lot of positive reaction to the games, he said, including favorable comments from a pre-school teacher who wants to use them in her school.

They are having difficulty keeping up with demand and trying to design new boards. They've decided to apply for a patent, but now must decide how to proceed with the making and marketing.

"We'd like to have someone take over the production," Mr. Clifford said. "But we want to keep the games inexpensive.

"It's no good if the games can't be available to families who need them because of the cost."

Women's Institutes

MARMORA WI

The June meeting of the Marmora Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Caverly with 14 members present. Mrs. B. Tindell gave an interesting paper on health.

As this was the last regular meeting until fall only routine business was discussed. The lunch committee consisted of Mrs. C. Neal, Mrs. R. Neal and Mrs. C. Airhart.

Broken Home Leaves Daughter Tense, Nervous

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I married a man when everyone, even his best friends, tried to tell me I was too good for him. But before marriage he was so good to me I couldn't see him any other way.

Sixteen years and six children later I had to take the children and leave a very poor and very alcoholic father.

I am concerned about my 15-year-old, who thinks everyone is against her, is tense and nervous. She gets mad and cries when we try to talk to her.

A social worker once told me I was too possessive of my children. Alone But Not Alone.

Dear Alone: Doubtless you are struggling to make it up to them for whatever who was more of a liability than anything else. In doing this you have tried to be two protective parents.

It was bad enough for your oldest daughter to accept the broken home. Probably, too, you are holding the reins too tightly. If you could see your girl as nearly grown-up, and put some important responsibility in her hands, you might work a miracle.

Surround your home and family with some happy times. Make some room in your heart and your life for Daughter. Play games with your young people and let this daughter take the lead in dreaming up some fun. — It's a great antidote for tears.

Dear Doris: Last summer I dated a black exchange student and it seemed that people took it for granted that I was a stranger or that we were trying to prove something.

Why is it so difficult for people to believe that two people of different colors may have the same desires: to be accepted for themselves, to contribute, to help others; to love and to be loved? — One Of Them.

Dear One: Because many of us have been so indoctrinated to observe, first of all, a person's color, that we become more or less blind about any other attribute, be it ever so attractive.

Very small boys and girls of differing shades play together with no consciousness whatever of any difference — until a prejudiced adult steps in and issues a segregation order.

* * *

Dear Doris: I received a bad blow to my right breast. I have heard that such a thing as this could cause cancer, is this possible? I am only 18. — Miss J. T.

Dear Miss J.T.: My medical consultant says he has never seen a cancer of the breast in a girl of 18.

He suggests that what usually happens, with older women, is that their attention is attracted to a lump already there, and if this proves to be a cancer they associate it with a blow. He does not think that a bump ever actually causes cancer.

Just the same, he urges that if you do feel a lump or persistent soreness you should see a doctor, for there may be bruise or a hematoma might form.

Horticultural Society at Tweed Plans to Rejuvenate Picnic Park

TWEED — The recent meeting of the Tweed Horticultural Society, was held at the S. H. Connor School, in the library, with the largest attendance to date since the society was formed.

More new members were added at this time, to the fold, of the youngest and most active gardening society in Ontario.

A new challenge has been issued to the group in the form of changing the "parking lot," between the Tweed Fuel Mill, and Bridge Street, back into the lovely park it once was. Complete with picnic tables, benches, flower baskets, shrubs and flowers it will be one of the more pleasant spots of Tweed Village.

The coming flower show will be held on Saturday, June 19 from 1 to 8 p.m. at the Hungerford Township Hall. Tweed, and it will be the highlight of the year. A large array of flowers and plants will be displayed and will be offered for sale.

Membership cards will be available at the door, at this flower show, for those wishing to show plants, but are at present non - members. The membership fee for one year is $1.00.

The bake sale being held in conjunction with the flower show, will feature a variety of foodstuffs, from homemade jams to bread.

Mrs. Mary Wilson and Mrs. Grace Parks are the convenors of this project, with Mrs. Claude Barnett aiding in her extensive knowledge of bake sales, bazaars etc.

The group were shown more than 100 slides from the Guelph University, by Mr. Larry Wilson. These slides showed the more rare wild flowers of Ontario and it became as a pleasant surprise to discover that plants considered to be tropical or at least of the milder climates have their native counterparts here in the province of Ontario, such as the orchid family, with its Lady Slipper, also the Trillium and Iobelia. One of the most interesting plants shown was the "Crane's Bill" which is named germen from which come our modern-day hybrids. Many of the members reached the conclusion that a goodly number of our native wild flowers could readily compete with those of the more familiar type found in the home garden.

Mention was made once again of the wonderful care being given the planters on Bridge St. (Victoria) and if the warm weather holds out, along with the water, should be blooming profusely in a short time.

The meeting adjourned at 10.30 with the Horticultural Society extending everyone a friendly invitation to the flower show. There will be no charge for admission.

Next week only, due to other commitments at the Armories, the session regularly scheduled for Tuesday, June 22 will be held on Wednesday June 30. Coming up in three weeks time, July 9 - 11 is the second annual Quinte sectional tournament. This year it is being held in the south side recreation hall at CFB Trenton. All local bridge buffs should take advantage of this opportunity to compete in this popular event, and at the same time welcome many visitors who will be coming to the area. There are games for all classes of players.

RYLSTONE WI

The June meeting of the Rylstone WI was held in the WI hall on Wednesday afternoon with an attendance of 12 members and two small children.

Mrs. Jack Watson, president and Mrs. Paul McKeown, secretary - treasurer were at the executive table and Mrs. Percy Reid presided at the piano. The minutes of the May meeting and correspondence were read by Mrs. McKeown.

Mrs. Carl Reed, Mrs. Eldon Anderson and Mrs. Earl Stewart were chosen as a committee to arrange for a refreshment booth at Campbellford agricultural Fair on Saturday July 31. The fair lasts for three days July 30th, 31st and August 1st.

Most of the conveners of standing committees had suggestions prepared for programs for next year's meetings, so the discussion went over quite promptly. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Jack Watson assisted by Mrs. Maurice Owens.

Plans had been made to renovate and replant the flower beds at the hall grounds but owing to rain these had to be abandoned.

The July meeting will be held in the WI hall on Wednesday afternoon July 7 under the direction of the 4-H club girls who will supply the program.

Hostesses for the program meeting will be Mrs. Gerald Barnugs, Mrs. Eldon Anderson and Mrs. Ellis Jones.

POINTS FOR PARENTS
BY MARY BRYSON

When Junior insists you don't understand him, don't argue. Maybe you don't. Listen while he talks. You can try to communicate, but sometimes that's all you can do—just try. There's nothing new about the generation gap. If you have helped your youngster all these years to learn trust, self-control and independence, then sit tight for a few more months or perhaps a few more years. Your child, as other children before him, eventually will become a mature person.

No-fail White Cake With Caramel Icing

Kitchen Tested Recipes

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: . . . My family especially likes the fairly recent recipes for All Purpose Hermits, Snow White Cake and Iris' Cheese Cake. I am enclosing a sure-fire no - fail white cake recipe given to me by a friend some years ago. I've served it numerous times and the results never vary. Hope you like it. — Barbara.

ANSWER: Thanks Barbara. It is great.

SURE - FIRE - NO - FAIL WHITE CAKE WITH CARAMEL FROSTING

(Courtesy Barbara S.)

Batter:

2 cups less 1 tbsp. sifted all-purpose flour

3 tsps. baking powder

¾ tsp. salt

½ cup butter

1 cup granulated sugar

2 eggs

½ cup milk

1 tsp. vanilla

Frosting:

¼ cup butter or margarine

⅓ cup light brown sugar (packed)

2 tbsps. milk

1 cup sifted icing sugar

1 tsp. vanilla

¾ cup chopped nuts.

Sift together three times the sifted flour, baking powder and salt. In heater bowl cream together butter and sugar until light then beat in eggs. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk and vanilla, a little at a time, using beaters on "low" speed and scraping down sides once. Turn into 8 x 8" pan lined on bottom with buttered wax paper. Butter sides of pan, too. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 50 min. or until it tests done when touched lightly. Cool cake on rack if desired (see below).

To make Caramel Frosting melt butter in saucepan then add brown sugar and stir over low heat 1 min. Add milk and stir constantly until it comes to boil. Remove from heat. Add icing sugar and vanilla and bet just until of spreading consistency. Spread on cake in pan and sprinkle top with nuts or turn cake out of pan onto serving plate and frost top and sides when, of course, top coating of icing will be thinner. Good both ways.

Dinner Menus

Junked Cars Council Topic

Abandoned automobiles would disappear from the county scene if a resolution from the Lapd O'Lakes Tourist Region is approved by local municipalities.

A bylaw proposed by the tourist region would make it an offence for any land-to be used for the storage of inoperative or partly dismantled motor vehicles or parts of vehicles for more than 48 hours unless they are stored in a closed building or unless a junk dealer's or second hand dealer's licence has been issued.

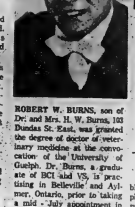
The above resolution will be one of several to be considered at the one - day June session of Hastings county council scheduled for next Wednesday.



Another resolution from the city of St. Catharines calls for the province of Ontario to be petitioned to withhold the implementation of regional government in other areas until regional structures that exist in Niagara and other parts of Ontario have undergone a critical and detailed examination to provide essential information to assist in the planning of future local government reform.

EVAN GRANT RODGERS, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Rodgers of Stirling, graduated recently from the University of Toronto with the degree of bachelor of arts in mathematics and economics. Evan attended Stirling-Rawdon District High School and graduated from Albert College. In the fall he will continue his studies at the University of Toronto.

DOUGLAS R. GRANT, son of Mr. and Mrs. Doug. Grant, 11 Wellington Crescent, who had previously received his bachelor of arts degree majoring in political science from York University, recently graduated in journalism from the University of Western Ontario. A former student of BCI and VS Mr. Grant has commenced his career as a reporter with the Oakville Journal Record.

ROBERT W. BURNS, son of Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Burns, 103 Dundas St. East, was granted the degree of doctor of veterinary medicine at the convocation of the University of Guelph. Dr. Burns, a graduate of BCI and VS, is practising in Belleville and Aylmer, Ontario, prior to taking a mid - July appointment in the practise of W. Brian Singleton, London, England.

BLAST OFF

DALLAS (AP) — Jet engine blasts from giant 747 jumbo planes have been blowing away tall grass, marker lights, and taxiway directional signs at Love Field.

United Had Hats

In another scheduled game, Belleville Falcons had a shutout spoiled on what they thought was an offside play but recorded a 3-1 win over Wadsworth Penitentiary inmates.

Bob Kitcher opened the scoring with a 15-yarder and the Falcons' 1-0 lead stood at halftime. Ernie Brown made it 2-0 with a close-in shot, and Bill Leitch upped the margin to 3-0 on a long bounce.

Zoltan scored the Wadsworth goal when the Falcons played the offside.

Machinery Well-oiled

Foley's Machine bastams held up the Police Association for 17 runs to record a 17-9 minor softball home league win Thursday.

Grant Hewgen's grand slam homer was the big blow for the winners, while Eric Prowell cracked a homer, triple, and two singles in a losing cause.

Foreign fields were' not greener for the SACO Squint all-stars, who dropped a 4-3 extra-inning loss in Springbrook.

Danny Vance and Tim Soule combined to toss an eight hitter for the OASA squirts, striking out 14 and walking four in a valiant effort. Vance and Barry Trice each had two hits for Belleville.

No Place Like Home

There was no place like home for Grace Clapp and Irene Trudeau as the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club twosome won the first local women's tournament of the season.

The host club duet won the score of 44 plus 4. The next three-game winners were Cobourg's Helen Cane and Marg Wilcox, who scored 36 plus one.

The two-game winners were Grace Smith and Edith Wicks, also from Cobourg, while top one-game honors went to the host club's Marie Bell and Elsie Humphreys.

Outboard, TVs Stolen

For the second time in as many weeks, Yolles Furniture Co. Ltd. at 208 Front Street was broken into. Two television sets, estimated value between $400 and $500 were stolen following an overnight break-in.

A forced rear door was discovered at 1:35 a.m. by patrolling city police.

Frankford Seeks Garbage Dump

FRANKFORD — Frankford's garbage dump will soon be closed and the village is now looking for another site, Reeve William Rose said at the regular council meeting.

The village could use the new privately - owned dump in Sidney township off Aiken's Road, but another proposal may suit the village better and provide some employment for local residents.

Mead Ride Free

CNR Yardmen rode Ron Conlon's nifty two - hitter to an 8-0 Industrial Softball League win over Morch Marivers, but Mead Johnson's 8-0 win over the Post Office was a free ride.

Meanwhile Ron Conlon was working his way through the Morch lineup, recording 16 strikeouts and issuing only two walks in the seven-inning Prince Citaries game.

Wealthy Kelowna Family Could Wind Up as Canuck Owners

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hockey fans were still whirling in their seats today after they learned that the Capozzi family of Kelowna put up $1.86 million Thursday and snatched control of the Vancouver Canucks away from a Minneapolis-based conglomerate.

Herb Capozzi, a 45-year-old provincial legislator given to loud ties and all-night discotheques, made the surprise announcement just six days after the 60.1 per cent majority interest in the National Hockey League club was ordered seized by the B.C. Securities Commission.

The shares in Northwest Sports Enterprises Ltd., parent company of the Canucks, were held by Medicor. They were ordered into escrow last Friday when it was disclosed that some $3.5 million had been transferred from Northwest's Canadian bank accounts to Medicor in Minneapolis.

Capozzi has now entered the picture as Medicor's creditor, having loaned the company some $3.65 million—at 15 per cent interest—to replace the capital outflow. As a result, Capozzi was named to Northwest's board of directors Thursday night and holds first refusal on any future stock sales.

Medicor must repay the loan within 14 months, including monthly interest payments or the 60.1-per-cent interest in Northwest will automatically revert to Capozzi.

If Medicor is successful in repaying the loan, the Social Credit MLA will still retain a preferred position in any future stock sales, according to an agreement worked out over the last several days between Capozzi Enterprises Ltd. and Medicor.

He said Medicor also agreed that during the 14-month period, essential control of Northwest Sports will remain in British Columbia.

Eastern hockey entrepreneurs and U.S. interests had made offers to buy the controlling interest for far higher than he was prepared to pay, Capozzi said, thus the loan arrangement.

The loan also came about because Medicor considered the Canucks one of its best investments and didn't want to sell, said Medicor lawyer Allan McEachern.

No actual bids from other groups for Medicor's shares were received Capozzi said, perhaps because the three conditions—the money had to be ready, the NHL had to approve and the buyers had to be Canadian—were hard to fill on such short notice.

There were an awful lot of loans that had to be touched," he said.

Capozzi Enterprises Ltd. filled the last two and were able to arrange a short-term loan with the Bank of Montreal for the $2.65 million. Capozzi's brother Tom, president of the family's Okalona Wines Ltd., announced Thursday that the sale of the winery for $9.6 million was approved by shareholders.

Standard Brands (B.C.) Ltd., a subsidiary of Standard Brands of Montreal and New York, is the buyer. The Capozzis are the major shareholders in the winery and will receive most of the proceeds from the sale, and thus were in the right spot at the right time to pay several million dollars for control of the Canucks.

However, the agreement still leaves one shadow over Medicor. The B.C. Securities Commission said it would look into past dealings by Medicor, including the move last April by Northwest's president Tom Scallen and vice-president Lyman Walters which diverted the $3.5 million into the U.S.

Plate Toronto Affair

TORONTO (CP) — The list of notable horsemen not contesting Saturday's running of the Queen's Plate is almost as long as those who are.

Only nine owners put down the final $1,000 entry fee Thursday for the contest of Canadian-bred three-year-old thoroughbreds over 1¼ miles of dirt track at Woodbine racetrack, setting up the smallest Plate field since 1964.

Missing from the list were such names as the Windfields Farm of E. P. Taylor, Warren Beasley, J. Louis Levesque of Montreal, and the Seagram Stable whose colors have passed down through generations of the Seagram family of Montreal.

Also missing were any entries from Western Canada which might have had the oldest continuously-run stakes race in North America some national flavor.

With the exception of one entry from Montrealer Viscount Hardinge and one from Sarnia, Ont., the 113th running of the Plate is a Toronto affair.

Even-money favorite in the early odds issued by the Jockey Club Thursday was Mrs. Art Stollery's Kennedy Road, a son of Taylor's Victoria Park which set the Plate record of 2:02 in 1960.

Victoria Park was one of nine winners for Taylor in the last 22 years, but this is the second year in a row he has not had a contender. His last winner was northern Dancer, in 1964, in a seven-horse field.

Bailey has had two winners in recent years—Jumping Joseph in 1969 and Canadian Champ in 1966.

And beginning with Victorious in 1891, the Seagram name was connected with eight consecutive winners and a total of 39 throughout.

The last western horse to win the big race was Merger in 1958 from the Golden West Farm of Frank McMahon and Max Bell of Calgary.

YVAN COURNOYER

Playing Cournoyer Costly

VANCOUVER (CP) — A New York man who assumed the identity of Montreal hockey star Yvan Cournoyer during a spending spree in Vancouver last week, pleaded guilty Thursday to three charges of false pretences and one of fraud.

He was remanded to today for sentence.

Vincent Randachio, 43, pleaded guilty to obtaining $50 cash by false pretences, obtaining a $55 dress by false pretences, attempting to obtain car by false pretences and fraudulently obtaining food and lodging from a city hotel.

Cournoyer reported to police in Montreal recently that his house had been broken into and credit cards and credentials stolen.

Knudson Great on Greens

TORONTO (CP) — George Knudson is starting to say good things about his putting and that could be bad news for golfers on the North American professional circuit.

Knudson, 32, of Toronto, has always been known as one of the best from tee to green but once he took the putter out of the bag it was a different story.

Thursday, he shot a 66, five under par at the Weston Golf and Country Club and took the first-round lead in the Ontario open golf championship. The round on the 6,634-yard course gave him a one-shot lead in the field of 138, including 11 others who broke par.

Jack Kay, 40, also of Toronto, was one stroke back at 67. Grouped at 68 were Gerry Proulx, the 16-year-old veteran from St. Eustache, Que., who had a 31 on the front nine that pars at 36; John Jacobs, 26, a Californian from La Costa, and Wayne Vincent, a 25-year-old from Vancouver.

The difference in his game, says Knudson, is a funny-looking club he calls a putter.

GEORGE KUNDSON

In fact, when he brought it out before a gallery of about 50 at the ninth hole, many turned up their noses at the thing.

Knudson promptly sank an 18-foot birdie putt and waved the putter at the crowd. There was great clapping of hands.

Knudson chipped to within six feet of the pin on the par-four 18th and out came that thing again.

Clink! Down went the putt for another birdie.

Knudson said he has felt good physically in the last six weeks —no back trouble. Ironically, it was about six weeks ago that he first saw the new putter.

The 138 golfers competing in the $64-hole event, 53 amateurs and 85 professionals, were greeted with light winds and temperatures in the high 70s Thursday.

A total of $16,000 in prize money is available, $3,000 for the winner. After today's round, the field will be cut to the top 60 and ties.

Two western golfers were among three grouped at 69. Finn Sorensen of Edmonton carded a 34-35 while Stan Hombuckle of Dauphin, Man., was 35-34.

With them was Al Balding of Toronto, now a golfing consultant, who finished the tough back nine at 33, including a birdie on the 225-yard, par-three 11th.

The group of four at one under include the leading amateurs, Gary Cowan of Kitchener, and Stu Hamilton of Brampton, Ont., as well as Ken Girard of Oak Ridges, Ont., and Mike Fraser of Burlington, Ont.

Among the disappointments was the play of defending champion Bill Wright Jr. of Edmonton who blew to a 79, 13 shots off the pace.

Nick Weslock of Burlington, seven-time winner of the Open, had a 76 and Moe Norman of Gifford, Ont., shot a 71.

Harris Glad to Gamble

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — The odds against the opening-round leader winning the U.S. open golf championship are staggering, but Labron Harris is happy he is in a position to take the gamble.

The 23-year-old Harris, who has never won a professional golf tournament, shot a three-under-par 35-32—67 Thursday to lead the field by one stroke in the U.S. Open.

In the previous 70 years of the Open only 12 first-round leaders, or 18 per cent, have been on top at the finish, including last year's winner, Tony Jacklin of England.

"Last year in the Dow Jones I was ahead with three holes to go and played them in one under par and got beat," Harris said.

"At Philadelphia a couple of years ago, Bob Murphy shot 32 on the last nine to tie me and I lost in a playoff.

"I felt like I was playing pretty good at the Canadian Open last year and was leading after the third round only to shoot 76. It's been hard on me —people have beaten me and I've beaten myself. Go out and play, that's all I can do."

Breathing down Harris' neck after the first 18 holes around the 6,546-yard Merion course were Lanny Wadkins, the 1970 U.S. Amateur champion, Doug Sanders and Bob Goalby, each with two-under-par 68s. Bracketed another stroke back at 69 were Jim Colbert, Jack Nicklaus and Bobby Nichols.

Harris had eight one-putt greens—five in succession—and took only 29 shots on the slick fast greens. He missed four times from six feet or less.

Harris was an early starter, posted his lead and then sat back and watched the field try to catch him.

Not in Swim of Things

After two years out of the competitive pool, Elaine Tanner doesn't recall what records she still holds and doesn't care. Skiing and marriage pulls dominate the recently-appointed member of Canada's Sports Hall of Fame. Top photo shows Elaine during the Canadian National Swimming Championships in Winnipeg where she won the 200-meter-back-stroke in 1968. Now a secretary, Elaine sits at her desk in the concession and exhibits department of the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede Board.

Villanova May Forfeit Finish

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Villanova University said Thursday it will forfeit its 1970-71 basketball record and its second-place finish in the National Collegiate Athletic Association championships if it is true that its star player, Howard Porter, signed a professional contract last December.

The Rev. Robert J. Welsh, Villanova president, wrote NCAA executive director Walter Byers that Porter should have a hearing to explain his position.

Records in U.S. district court in New York disclosed Wednesday that the 6-foot-8 Porter had signed a contract with the American Basketball Association last Dec. 16.

"In the absence of any additional information, Villanova University will and should forfeit its records in the season and tournament and any receipts in which it would otherwise be entitled," Welsh's letter said.

Southern Juniors Play 64 Games

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Southern Ontario Junior A hockey League will open a 64-game schedule beginning Sept. 30 that will include eight games

The four-team Southern section champ will play home-and-away series against the Southern Ontario Junior A champion in the first interlocking game Oct. 11 while St. Thomas makes the first Southern swing into the north Oct. 8 against the Sauls.

Chatham opens at St. Thomas Oct. 1 and make their home debut Oct. 3 against the defending champion Red Wings. A doubleheader has been scheduled for Detroit Oct. 30. The Wings meet St. Thomas while Chatham engages Brantford.

Woman Driver One of This Week's Harness Meet Novelties

In Saturday's third card of the 1971 season, for example, redhairs will get a chance to see a woman driver in action. Kingston's Irene Stasiuk will rein Vesper from the pole position in the fourth heat of the ten-race program.

Fairgrounds race regulars will also get their first look at Stardale Flashy, a good-looking pacer claimed by local owner Jack Jeffrey at Ottawa's Rideau - Carleton Raceway last week. Al Vance will drive the two-year-old in Saturday's fifth race.

The eighth race could be one for the record books. Pat Herrington last Saturday reined Flying John to a lifetime best 2.09:4 for the year's Belleville track record. Flying John has the sixth position in a field that includes Bob Corey's Regal Elden. The Kingston pacer ran a 2.07 in Ottawa last week.

Saturday night was see the last program of classified Belleville racing.

Conditional sheets will be posted next week for the June 26th card in which horses by money and age earnings rather than their times.

Bob Bursts A Bubble

Bob Ethier did a bit of bubble - bursting for Howard and Robert Printing in Thursday's Commercial Softball League action.

The torrid - tossing southpaw dented the standing - climbing aspirations of the Ellis Juniors, firing a two-hitter at them in a 4-1 win. The win moved the Printers into a third - place tie with the Juniors.

First - baseman Bill Barberstock led the winners at the plate with a triple, double and single, accounting for three of Howard and Robert's seven safeties off losing pitcher Ron Rodgers. Barberstock knocked in two of the winners' four runs.

Meanwhile, Rollins Construction took a step up, and Quinte Hotel a step down as the Builders trimmed the Hotelmen 7-4 in the other half of the Alemite double-header. The winners moved into fourth out on top of the five-team pack, while burying the losers deeper in the cellar.

BOB ETHIER

Winning pitcher Scott Reid survived a shaky start which saw Quinte take a 2-0 first-inning lead on Hugh Brennan's double after reaching by Lyle Thompson and Dale Duval.

But Reid only allowed four hits the rest of the seven-inning route, striking out seven, and only walking one batter.

Ralph Place's triple was the key hoe for the winners. The second-inning shot into the trees knocked in three runs and Place came home with a fourth on a throwing error.

Place had a triple, double, and single in four trips to the plate, while Jerry Hill contributed a double and two singles to the Rollins' cause.

In all, Rollins smacked 14 hits off Quinte starter Bob Swan, who left in the fifth inning with Rollins leading 5-1. Swan was knocked for 11 hits, farmed two, and didn't issue a walk. Reliever Pat Scollard was touched for the other two Rollins runs on three hits, no walks.

The losers made the game's only three errors.

Mott Heads Up Quinte Cup Team

The Bay of Quinte Country Club has chosen its nine-man team to compete in this Sunday's annual revival of the historic Quinte Cup competition.

This year's edition of the Quinte Cup match-play competition will be staged at Trenton Country Club.

Napanee golfers will be defending their championship in the events, a 50-year-old rivalry between Bay of Quinte, Trenton, Picton, and Napanee teams.

Juniors Not All Wrong

COBOURG (Special) — There wasn't much more that could have gone wrong Thursday for Belleville's junior lacrosse club, but the one thing that went right counted the most.

The Belleville juniors brayed everything from long journeys to short hops as they beat Cobourg 9-7 to grab undisputed possession of first place in the Quinte Lacrosse League for the first time in their four-year history.

Going into Thursday night's game, the Belleville juniors were tied for top spot in the five-team league with Cobourg. Only ten players — five of the defencemen — made the trip for the all-important game, and even coach Gerry Curtis had other commitments.

Then there was a shortage of drivers, and when the team did get under way, car trouble had them arriving in Cobourg at 8.40 for a scheduled 8.30 game.

Belleville trailed 4-3 after the opening period after jumping off to a 2-0 lead. They went ahead 6-5 after 40 minutes.

But then disaster struck again in the form of a game ralaconfact penalty to goalie Paul Muldoon, who had been brilliant in the Belleville nets.

PAUL MULDOON

Defencemen Neil Goyer moved between the pipes and held the hosts to one goal in the game's final seven minutes to preserve the important win.

The scoring was a two-man show, with Jim Lennox netting five Belleville goals and Greg Scarlett four.

"It was just a fantastic team effort," enthused Belleville Minor Lacrosse president Roy Payne, who filled in as coach. "Guys like Ken Post, Tom Helm and Harold Reed on defence . . . bad I'd like to pick them all as stars."

The next test for the Belleville juniors' 4-1 record comes Monday night at 8.30 when Tweed visits Memorial Arena.

Barriage Pitchers Toasted

Pitchers Mike McLelland and Pat McKinney were the toast of the town in minor baseball play Thursday, combining for a two-hitter as Mel Barriage Bantams edged Trenton No. 2 by a 7-3 margin. McKinney and Peter McBride each hit homers for the winners, who out-hit Trenton 12-2. Eight walks by the winning pitchers helped pad the loser's run total.

In another Bantam contest, Tyendinaga's Robin Hill was the only player in the game to hit safely twice as his team downed the Branch 99 Legionnaires 7-5. Ken Burnhart and John Brant shared the winners' pitching chores, striking out 11 and issuing five walks.

Deseronto Legion peewees stretched their seven hits a long way to whip Flinchbaugh Construction 13-0. Kevin Baker, Danny Punchard, and John Sargeant held the losers to three hits and five walks while totalling eight strikeouts.

A pair of home runs by Jonathan Dent and one by James Forster powered Richard Ellis tadpoles to an 8-4 verdict over Wannamaker's Esso. Dent and Forster also shared limiting the losers to two hits while piling up 17 strikeouts. James Gibbs and Lyle Kelleher struck out 13 on the Wannamaker's mound, while Jamie McMullen's homer was also in a losing effort.

Double-trouble

Belleville's Prince Edward-North Shore Softball League entry was doubled over by Bayview Orchards in a Thursday night game.

Bayview's 12-5 win came via Irv Martin's seven-hit pitching services, with some plate help from Randy Dempsey and Jim Sophia, who contributed seven hits between them.

Dafoe's Bat Big Help

Stan Dafoe and friends beat Glenn Miller 9-5 in a Trylow-Sidney Softball League game Thursday night.

Consecutive home runs by Dafoe accounted for five of the nine runs chalked up by the Dickens' Voyageurs. Garney Goodwin's seventh-inning blast sealed the win away for Voyageurs, who were actually out-hit 9-8 by Glen Miller.

BRIGHTON — Fortunately for John McCourt, the sun doesn't set on Barcovan Golf Club very early.
The Brighton golfer didn't get away from the clubhouse until after 5 p.m. Tuesday, and scored a hole-in-one on the 200-yard, par-three 16th hole.
McCourt, who used a three-wood for his ace, was playing with Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper of Trenton.

Spot Losers Two Leads

Twins Beat White Sox the Hard Way

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota Twins won a baseball game, but it wasn't easy. They spotted Chicago White Sox two leads and George Mitterwald doubled their pleasure with two saving hits.

"I've just been swinging good," said Mitterwald after an early game-tying home run and a late winning single as the Twins toppled the White Sox 7-6 in 11 wild innings Thursday night.

Mitterwald's run-scoring hit in the 11th, his fourth safety of the game, rapped a four-run burst that rubbed out Chicago's three-run rally in its half of the frame.

In Thursday night's other American League games, Detroit Tigers beat Cleveland Indians 4-3; Baltimore Orioles trimmed New York Yankees 3-1 and Kansas City Royals thumped the California Angels 5-0.

Only two games were played in the National League. Chicago Cubs bounced St. Louis Cardinals 7-6 in 10 innings and Cincinnati Reds stopped the Atlanta Braves 5-1.

Tony Oliva's two-run single with the bases loaded scored Minnesota's first two runs and Rich Reese chased home another with a sacrifice fly to tie the contest. Mitterwald, who homered in the sixth to create a 3-3 tie, ripped "the longest single of my career" to send in Oliva.

Pinch-hitter Mike Andrews had delivered a two-out, go-breaking double in the top of the 11th to spark the three-run uprising and give the White Sox a short-lived 6-3 lead.

Bill Freehan hit two doubles and winning pitcher Les Cain drove in a run for Detroit as the Tigers snapped a six-game winning streak for Cleveland ace Sam McDowell.

Cain's fifth-inning single gave the Tigers their first of two runs in that inning and a triple by Norm Cash and Freehan's double knocked in the fourth and decisive run in the eighth. McDowell, who lost his sixth in 13 decisions, was tagged for nine hits in six innings.

Ellie Hendricks hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning to pull Baltimore's East Division leaders over New York. The blow cleared the centre field fence after he bouncing off losing Bobby Murcer's glove. Pat Dobson pitched a five-hitter for the Orioles.

Kansas City Royals scored three runs in the first inning on four hits to back Dick Drago's six-hitter. Drago, who shut out Boston in his last assignment, became the first Royal ever to pitch consecutive shutouts.

Don Kessinger, who doubled in the eighth inning and scored the tying run, opened the 10th with his sixth hit and came in with the winning run on Ron Santo's single for the Cubs.

Jim McGlothlin scattered seven hits to complete his first game of the season and Lee May knocked in three runs for Cincinnati. McGlothlin, after giving up a run in the first, retired 15 Braves in a row before Ralph Garr's two-out single in the sixth.

Irate Angels' Pilot Puts Finger on Johnson

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Manager Lefty Phillips denied vigorously Thursday night that weapons are being carried by California Angels and pointed the finger squarely at left fielder Alex Johnson as the cause of reported internal strife on the American League baseball club.

"Everything hinges around that left fielder. There's no way he wants to play baseball. He doesn't give you his best effort."

Phillips also denied flatly that there is a moral problem generally among the Angels.

"As far as this club is concerned, 24 guys on the ball club are and have been giving their best efforts. They've been aggressive."

"It's that left fielder. I can't overlook the way he talks to his fellow players."

Phillips said he has no intention of resigning because things are in such a state.

The Los Angeles Times said Wednesday that three California players have been carrying guns and knives. Columnist John Hall described the state of the club as "serious, ugly, approaching tragedy."

Phillips smiled slightly when asked about Hall's story.

"I think the man got the story from an exaggerated source—several sources. There are no knives and no guns in the clubhouse."

Asked whether he wanted to be traded, Johnson replied:

"That's not up to me."

Hall also said in his column that the Angels regard outfielder Tony Conigliaro as a malingerer.

"Tony hits out 100 per cent when he's on the field," Phillips said.

"He's been hurt since before the season started with a spur on a nerve in his neck that affects both shoulders."

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — National Football League club owners and the NFL Players' Association jointly announced Thursday final agreement has been reached on a five-year, collective-bargaining contract. The agreement was announced after representatives from both sides met all night and most of Thursday to iron out a wordage disagreement on a contract agreed upon Feb. 28.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds slugging Thursday they have signed 15-year-old Manual Rosario, a pitcher from the Dominican Republic. General manager Robert Howsam made the announcement at a luncheon attended by former Reds' pitcher, Joe Nuxhall, the youngest player to compete in a major league game.

MONTREAL (CP) — Albatross, the king of North America's three-year-old pacers, has been established a solid 1-2 favorite to win Sunday's $75,000 Prix d'Ete. J. Louis Frenette, track handicapper at Blue Bonnets Raceway, established his morning line Thursday for Canada's richest harness race and picked Albatross as the most likely winner.

LONDON (AP) — Tom Gorman of the United States scored a major upset in the London Oman Courts Tennis Championship Thursday by defeating Rod Laver of Australia, the No. 1 seed at Wimbledon next week. Gorman, unseeded at Wimbledon, defeated Laver 6-4, 4-6, 6-1 to gain the semi-finals.

CFL Players Get 10 Per Cent

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Football League Players' Association has sent a list of proposed salary improvements for players to league commissioner Jake Gaudaur, association president Greg Findlay said Thursday.

Findlay, senior man in a group of 80 players trying out for this season's British Columbia Lions, said a letter to Gaudaur outlined "proposals we would like the CFL management to make."

Main proposals were on post-season and pre-season salaries.

"The CFL upped each player's share recently for the Grey Cup finalists, but we feel it's still not enough," said Findlay.

"In that spectacle, for example, the league takes in about $750,000 and the players get less than 10 per cent of it."

On pre-season salaries, he said players have to take a month and a half off work to train for the season.

"This is the way it has to be. . . . But I do think that those who survive camps deserve a break and we are working on this one."

Zany Bearded Giant Sweden's Best Olympic Bet

MALMO, Sweden (Reuter) — Sweden's top hope for a gold medal at the Olympic Games in Munich next year is a bearded giant who has sought the aid of Indian-style meditation, rock music and astrology in his quest for world supremacy.

Known variously as Sweden's Muhammad Ali, the Scandinavian clown and the problem child of Swedish athletics, discus thrower Ricky Bruch has established himself as one of the most colorful characters on the international sports scene.

In the process he has infuriated athletic officials, drove his equally flamboyant trainer to the brink of despair, eaten enormous amounts of food—and almost become a national institution.

Swedes love or hate Bruch, but they cannot ignore him.

Only the royal family, top politicians and a handful of show business stars have attracted as much press coverage over the last two years as the 24-year-old Malmo athlete.

When he is not chasing the elusive world record of 229 feet, five inches held by Jay Silvester of the United States, eating his way through an incredible 55 pounds of food a day, dancing at a discotheque or checking his horoscope, he happily volunteers opinions on any subject under the sun.

Many people here believe he will break the world discus record during the current season. He already holds the European record at 223 feet, 3½ inches.

The day after beginning serious competition in April, he topped Silvester's record mark with a massive throw of 230 feet, 1½ inches—only to find the discus was a few grains lighter than the regulation weight.

Bruch was not surprised by his performance—it was written in the stars, he says. His training program is drawn up with the aid of personal horoscopes supplied regularly by West German astrologer Hans Gemut.

Bruch said he spent the winter building up his psyche by transcendental meditation and listening to rock records, preferably albums by the British group Moody Blues.

Bruch is six feet, 2½ inches tall, weighs about 286 pounds and often has to walk sideways through doors.

He is easily distinguishable at athletic meetings—if not by his enormous frame, by a bowler hat and garish kimono he likes to wear on entering the stadium arena, or by the gorilla roar he unleashes to let spectators know he has arrived.

BRAND NEW OLDER EAST HILL
4 BEDROOMS ...

Now you can own a new 4-bedroom home without moving into the outlying new sub-divisions. Close to downtown, this home has 1½ baths and full basement. Sound good? Well listen to this? The downpayment is under $3,000.00. Possession almost immediately.

THEY SAID IT COULDN'T BE DONE

but we did it anyway; built a 3-bedroom home with carport on a fully-serviced lot with added front yard, close to schools for under $20,000.00. No, it hasn't got colored bath fixtures, nor has it a family room, but it is darned good 3-bedroom accommodation for the family that doesn't want the kids smothered in an apartment. Call us today. You will be pleasantly surprised.

APARTMENTS FOR RENT

Some with immediate possession. East and West hill locations. All services paid. Most apartments fully carpeted.

WE'RE STARTING SOME NEW ONES

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Skin First Line Of Body's Defence

The other day a man said, "Why all this fuss about taking good care of your skin? Nobody ever died of skin trouble!"

Well, if we forget about severe burns, I suppose that's true — but only to a certain extent. How about skin cancer, I said. How about a blood puncture wound or laceration of the skin? How about the threat to life when an allergic person receives the sting of a wasp or reptile?

Better not forget it, I said. Your skin is an outer line of defense against damage to your inner organs. Therefore, it deserves respect and care.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What shall I do for warts? — Mrs. R.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Do you have any suggestions for an awful itch? — Mr. Y.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have acne that makes my life miserable. — Miss Y.

So go the requests seeking help for skin problems; I tell you these things because many might have been prevented — or at least helped — by proper skin care.

Skin may be a tough organ but it has its weaknesses, especially during the summer when it acts as an air-conditioning system, displaying a body beat. It deserves reasonable cleanliness. Not too many baths, if the skin does not tolerate soap and water more than once a day.

Many develop a severe itch due to excessive dryness. This is especially true for those whose skin lubrication from oil glands is deficient. Some get skin irritation from using deodorant soaps that may be irritating to them. Another way to avoid irritation is not to shave too close or too often.

Few persons have faultless skin, whether the trouble is acne, psoriasis, moles, warts or scores of other temporary or permanent disfigurements.

Whatever your problem, you will be more likely to overcome it if you remind yourself that your skin is a hard-working organ which will respond to kindness, care and understanding. If you over- or under-treat it you will find it will rebel.

Even if you are bothered only with a persistent itch, you'll realize that any skin problem deserves increased attention just as indigestion, headache or any other discomfort does.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: A few months back my father-in-law was treated for cancer of the food-pipe. He was living with us for about two or three months. Unfortunately, one day while he was here, my little girl (about 18 years old) went to his room and put his glass in her mouth. I think the glass was empty at the time.

Now my question is this: Is there any chance my baby might "catch" his cancer? Perhaps this is a foolish question, but it has us worried. Is cancer contagious? — Mrs. M.

COMMENT: Not foolish fancies, Mrs. M. Yours is a common question. But happily the answer is no.

For Mrs. R.: One of the important symptoms of hardening of the arteries of the leg is trouble in walking. The patient has to stop and rest until the pain and cramps disappear.

I think it's high time for you to have X-rays of your legs and other examinations.

If medical treatment isn't helpful, the new artery-grafts which surgeons use often bring adequate circulation to the leg involved — and there is less leg pain after exertion.

Yes, better see your doctor.

Health Ministers Propose New Cost-sharing System

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial health ministers and their representatives meeting here Thursday came out in favor of a cost-sharing program with the federal government for health services that would give the provinces more freedom in how the money was spent.

Ontario's health minister A. B. R. Lawrence, acting as spokesman for the group, said it was politically important that the responsibility for health be shared between the two levels of government. He also said if costs were to be cut or held, the federal government was a necessary ally.

But Mr. Lawrence told a news conference the provinces wanted the health-care system regarded as a whole rather than have federal funds provided for individual programs.

He said there had been no suggestion that federal funds be paid on a "no strings attached" basis. The conference wanted support and control to be a joint responsibility with the federal government. This would put the country in a position to hold back escalating costs.

Only two other health ministers attended Thursday's meeting. They were Dr. Lockyer, acting as spokesman for the group, said it was politically important that the responsibility for health be shared between the two levels of government. He also said if costs were to be cut or held, the federal government was a necessary ally.

Mr. Lawrence said the conference had also discussed provincial co-operation in other fields such as the reconciliation of computer programs so that "facts and figures mean the same thing in each province."

He said that the conference also agreed to look for uniform definitions of the various medical disciplines.

Concern was expressed over the "portability" of health insurance. Mr. Lawrence said a great problem existed in dealing with the large number of transients, particularly young hitch-hikers in summer.

Mr. Lawrence said that while it was not discussed, there were examples of doctors receiving "an income surprising to the rest of us," and he said the provinces realized they needed a deeper understanding of income "aberrations."

'Honorary' Posts No Honor

A group called "The U.S. National Council on Drug Abuse" this spring invited me to join its "Advisory Board on Drug Abuse," because my "distinguished contributions and efforts on the behalf of the community" have proven me to be "a most concerned, citizen."

A further paragraph informed me that, if my intensive schedule leaves little room for additional activities," we ask that you consider joining our Advisory Board in a purely honorary capacity. The force of your name will aid us immeasurably in our war on our nation's efforts in combating the mushrooming drug epidemic."

I turned down the nomination, not because I have any doubts about the legitimacy or good will of the group, but for the simple reason that I don't know enough about drug use or abuse to serve on anybody's "advisory board", My name would merely be used as window-dressing for the Council's activities, and I might find myself advocating programs or procedures totally beyond my competence to evaluate.

This is why I have always refused to join organizations of this sort, and why I think that less cautious citizens (perhaps more susceptible to this sort of flattery than I am) sometimes find themselves swirling down the rapids without an oar, or even a canoe.

There is no "honor" in being an honorary member, even just for a dog show, if you are too ignorant to know a hock from a withers. People who join boards and committees and councils for the pleasure of seeing their names on engraved letterhead deserve exactly what they get if it turns out—they are being used or duped or dangled as bait for contributions and support.

I may be a "valuable and not where drugs are concerned. My supreme duty in life is better than the man in the street's, and possibly worse. I have a few preconceptions and prejudices, but might disqualify me, for advising on drug abuse.

There is entirely too much vanity and pomposity and where usually one or two genuinely knowledgeable persons run the show and the rest are just along for the ride and the attendant publicity. It may not be exactly a fraud, but it is a form of social and intellectual inflation that only serves to debase the currency of good words.

I wish the Council the best of luck, and hope that its efforts are more fruitful than we have seen heretofore from other organizations. I will write about them if they are. But I will not advise, or pretend to. I'm not even sure what the word "drugs" ought to mean.

Singer Suspects Organized Crime Is Reason Government Will Curb Newsagent Takeovers

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Vernon Singer said Thursday he is suspicious that organized crime might be the reason behind the government's legislation affecting companies distributing magazines and paperbacks in Ontario.

In the legislature, he asked Arthur Wishart, minister of financial and commercial affairs, to provide background papers that were not included in the recommendations of the Ontario royal commission on book publishing.

Legislation introduced Monday, based on the commission's recommendations, would stop future takeovers of Canadian distributing companies by requiring that they have 75-per-cent domestic ownership.

The commission said there already have been some takeovers and others were pending. It said there is a danger the industry could wind up as a United States monopoly which would be a "grave" threat to public interest.

Mr. Singer (L—Toronto Downsview) said in an interview there "is more than meets the eye" in the government's legislation, especially since the legislation followed so quickly on the heels of the commission's interim report.

The government has given us no information. There are many, many unanswered questions."

In the house, Mr. Wishart said there were some background papers submitted but he has not read them all. And he didn't want to comment "on half the information available."

Mr. Wishart said he would ask Premier William Davis if the papers could be released.

In other business:

—Municipal Affairs Minister Dalton Bales refused to discuss conflict-of-interest charges levelled this week by Toronto Alderman John Sewell against fellow Ald. Ben Gryn.

—James Auld, minister of public works, said he has turned down a request from Grasshoots, a Toronto citizen's group, to use the vacant site of Mercer reformatory as a tent city for travelling youths this summer;

—Mr. Auld also said he will give a statement to the legislature early next week on a company that received the cleaning contract for Ontario Place;

—Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic party, said he is dissatisfied with a lack of government intervention in a bid by Union Gas Co. to increase its rates;

—Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) said "robbery" who know nothing about relics are ruining potential historic sites and destroying Ontario's links with its past;

—Education Minister Robert Welch said a study of 1,200 text books by his department has indicated "areas of bias by today's standards;"

—Fern Cobedon, minister of tourism and information, criticized some films which he said go too far in their exploitation of sex, nudity and violence.

Federal Minimum Wage Raised to $1.75 an Hour

OTTAWA (CP) — The second major piece of labor legislation to go through the Commons this week was given final approval by the House Thursday.

A brisk endorsement of the package of amendments to the Canada Labor (Standards) Code was checked only once as all parties were in rare general agreement on the principles of the bill.

In the one brief uprising, most Conservatives and all but one Liberal in the House combined to defeat an NDP motion to raise the federal minimum wage rate to $2 an hour from $1.65, rather than the level of $1.75 proposed by the government.

One Liberal, Terrence Murphy (Sault Ste. Marie), nine Conservatives and five Social Crediters joined 11 NDP MPs in support of the motion.

The labor code amendments still require Senate approval, as does the massive unemployment insurance bill approved by the House Monday.

Royal assent is likely to be given however, in time for the minimum-wage raise to come into effect July 1.

The 10-cent raise will benefit at first only a few thousand workers in the federal labor jurisdiction. But it is expected to have a delayed impact on provincial labor standards.

Today, interest in the Commons will be focused on the budget address and tax-reform proposals to be delivered after 5 p.m. EDT by Finance Minister E. J. Benson.

While the Commons waits for the main stock exchanges to get through their business before the budget, it is scheduled to consider a bill on pilotage and Prairie farm advance payments legislation.

No matter what response Mr. Benson will win for his budget performance, any review of the week's work in the Commons will have to acknowledge the role of Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey.

He now has completed nearly two-thirds of a major overhaul of federal labor legislation and the remaining third—amendments to the Industrial Relations Disputes Investigation Act —may possibly be introduced for first reading before the end of the month.

A feature of the two bills given approval is the attempt to integrate the provision in the unemployment insurance bill for 15 weeks' benefits for women on maternity leave with the labor code requirement for 17 weeks' maternity leave.

The labor code legislation would also impose strengthened guarantees of equal pay for equal work for women workers.

Among other provisions are:

—A requirement for up to three months' advance notice of mass layoffs;

—New severance-pay requirements:

—A prohibition on dismissal because the wages of an employee may be garnished by a creditor;

—Recognition of Remembrance Day as an official federal work holiday.

It remains to be seen what effect the new code will have on provincial legislators. At hearings earlier this month by the Commons labor committee, several witnesses noted that the provinces have frequently ignored past federal initiatives.

FREDERICTON (CP) — Rt.-Rev. C. K. S. Moffatt, Grand Master of the Orange Lodge of Canada, said here Thursday the monarchy represents the greatest hope for a united Canada.

Dr. Moffatt, speaking during closing sessions of the lodge's national annual meeting, said there was a need, however, for more thorough education and a better explanation of the role of the monarchy "in the history of our dominion and our present-day lives."

Dr. Moffatt was re-elected Grand Master.

Local Control of Welfare Sought

KINGSTON (CP) — A former Queen's University business professor Thursday sponsored a city council committee motion urging the government to give municipalities more control over welfare payments.

"This whole thing is out of control, not just here but all across Ontario," Ald. McDougall told the social services committee.

The committee unanimously passed a resolution calling for legislation that would give municipalities the right to "apply a more selective and restrictive policy regarding employable persons."

The resolution will be sent to municipalities across the province and to Thomas Wells, minister of social and family services.

Ald. McDougall noted general welfare assistance payments in Kingston increased by 25.73 per cent a year between 1965 and 1970 from $365,000 to $1.3 million.

Benson Feels Slump Ended

By Irving C. Whynot
Canadian Press Business Editor

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Benson says he is even more optimistic now about the state of the Canadian economy than he was in his budget last December..

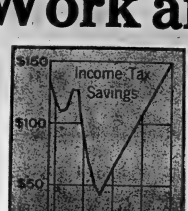
He sees it gathering strength and embarked on expansion although there may be moments of uncertainly along the way and the jobless rate is "clearly still too high."

"I am confident that as we move on through the second half of 1971 and into 1972, the performance of the economy will be strong and gaining momentum," he said in his budget speech Friday in the Commons.

There were factors that inspired and reinforced his confidence, but also some cause for concern.

He predicted the second-half 1971 gross national product—the sum total of all goods and services—would be nine per cent or more above the corresponding period of 1970.

"Unemployment is now well below its peak of last fall and its trend will continue downward. Our government's economic policies will be reinforced as necessary to ensure that result."



May jobless totalled 543,000 or 6.3 per cent of the labor force. This was down sharply from April.

Figures for the first three months of the year showed a strong domestic demand, a high level of housing starts and strong consumer spending for durable goods, Mr. Benson said.

Business spending on buildings and machinery continued to be weak, but this was no surprise because business profits had been hard hit by cost increases and uncertainty about the future, including proposed tax changes.

Now profits had turned upward, tax uncertainty was dispelled by the proposals tabled in the Commons Friday, and demand was advancing strongly.

"So the stage is being set by reviving profits, growing demand, greater certainty for improved business confidence and increased capital investment this year and next."

Here's Saving

Graph shows amounts of money married taxpayer with two children, earning between $4,000 and $25,000, would save if Finance Minister Benson's federal budget proposals go into effect Jan. 1, 1972. A $4,000 man now pays $210 in tax. Under new bill, he would pay $73, a saving of $137. A $13,000 man would save $43 — he now pays $2,677, under new bill would pay $2,634. (CP Newsmap)

Benson Plans Wide Tax Cuts

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is scattering spots of generosity throughout its tax regime in a campaign to convince Canadians to spend more, work more and produce more.

At the same time, the Trudeau administration has redrawn its long-debated revision of the basic income-tax structure in a program that will weigh more lightly than expected on corporations, investors and many individual taxpayers.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson, a bright red flower in the lapel of his green suit, outlined the rare program of federal largesse in a two-hour speech that disclosed both his taxing program for the current financial year and plans for a new taxation structure the government hopes to make law by Jan. 1.

The budget for the current year wipes out the three per cent special 1968 surcharge on income tax; provides an easier tax ride for the old and the poor; knocks off federal taxes on margarine, oil sets and anti-pollution equipment, and drops import tariffs in a manner that will benefit the chemical industry and forest-products companies.

"It's not an election budget," Mr. Benson insisted in answer to questions later. "But I wouldn't mind fighting an election on it."

The changes in the basic tax system—almost a decade in the making through royal commission, 1969 white paper and debate to legislation—have been revamped to be, less onerous than originally planned.

Personal and corporate tax rates will decline; the new tax on capital gains will be half as heavy as originally designed and the tax levy will be lighter than expected on small businesses, mining and petroleum companies.

Puffing on a red-bowled pipe at a subsequent news conference, he conceded he would have liked to retain key features of the tax-structure proposals—such as taxing personal and corporate taxes—"but it wasn't acceptable to the people."

First reactions were mixed, but generally smacked of relief that the budget included tax cuts and the projected tax-structure changes were lighter than originally proposed in November, 1969.

Even John Bulloch of Toronto, leader of a strident public campaign against the 1969 tax-change proposals, conceded that parts of the revised version were very favorable.

Mr. Benson's speech to a crowded Commons reflected shifts of government policy on both the budget and tax-reform fronts.

The decision to reduce some taxes at once responded to demands by business, organized labor and politicians to do something to lift business activity and employment out of the doldrums of the last year.

Mr. Benson reiterated that economic activity already was on an upward trend, but explained his tax cuts as providing "any extra insurance that may be needed against the emergence of a pause in the expansion that got under way last fall."

With somewhat less fear and therefore more ready cash in corporate treasuries and employee pay packets, the hope is there will be more investment and spending, thereby generating demand for goods and services and stimulating employment and production.

Mr. Benson expressed confidence the current unemployment rate—8.2 out of every 1,000 potential workers—would decline steadily. On the other hand, he professed not to be worried that any burst of spending would regenerate price inflation.

If either of his forecasts turned sour, he told reporters, he would make further compensating adjustments.

Tax Reforms Painted So Bright Wary Folk Worry About Fine Print

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The question of whether really big will match appearances was raised amid generally favorable reaction to the over-all picture of tax reform painted in the federal budget Friday night.

Politicians, businessmen and labor leaders all welcomed the new tax proposals as a vast improvement over the white paper on tax reform presented by Finance Minister Edgar Benson in November, 1969.

But while breathing a collective sigh of relief over the removal or modification of some of the more controversial sections of the white paper, many spokesmen said that what really will count is the fine print of the new legislation.

Almost everyone welcomed proposals which would ease the tax burden on the individual, but it was noted that only details study will determine whether some exemptions will be watered down by other factors.

Businessmen were happy that the proposed capital gains tax would not take as big a bite as some had feared and that the general corporation tax rate would be reduced.

But some politicians and labor leaders accused the government of backing down under the pressure of big business in not taking a bigger bite which could be distributed among lower-income groups.

For Other Budget Stories See Pages 10 and 12

There also was harsh criticism from some provincial, political leaders of the bill's failure to increase the provinces' shares of federal tax revenue, or to make some move toward a guaranteed annual income.

Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, said the proposed 17-per-cent rate of personal income tax "falls very far short of what we and others have advocated, namely, a reduction in the income tax rate for those in the lower income brackets."

Ed Schreyer, the New Democratic premier of Manitoba, said the proposals "fail to shift the basic burden of taxation from those in lower incomes more proportionately to those at higher incomes."

But John Bulloch, president of the Canadian Council for Fair Taxation and an outspoken critic of the white paper, said the new proposals "will not provide as many tax breaks to the high income earner . . . no one group in Canada can say that it has been singled out for rough treatment."

R. K. Carty, chairman of the executive council of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said the proposal that half of capital gains be taxed "seems reasonable at this stage."

Donald G. Grant, a member of the Carter royal commission on taxation, said the tax "should be accepted as being fair and equitable" although it falls short of the Carter recommendation that all capital gains be taxed.

Firemen Awarded 22 Per Cent Hike

Belleville firefighters have won a 22 per cent salary increase for 1970. Sixty members of the department are affected.

An arbitration board has awarded a first class firefighter $8,500 a year and service pay of $5 a month for each completed five years of service. Formerly, they were earning $6,928. The annual salary is $400 to $500 less than that paid firefighters in other municipalities the same size as Belleville, a firefighters' spokesman said.

This is the first increase granted city firefighters since early in 1969. The 1971 contract is still to be negotiated.

First, second and third year firefighters earn from 85 to 90 per cent of the wage paid a first-class firefighter. Captains, mechanics and fire prevention officers get 10 per cent more.

The arbitrating board that sat in Belleville May 14 to hear representation in the case was made up of Judge H. J. Reynolds of North Bay, appointed by the Attorney-General's department, and two solicitors, one representing the firefighters and the other representing the city.

Ottawa Hopes Provinces Will Agree To Different Tax-sharing Formula

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government hopes to persuade the provinces to accept a different tax-sharing formula under is proposed revisions to the income tax system.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson dealt with that point in his budget delivery Friday. No new programs were offered to the provinces, not surprising in view of the continuing debate featured earlier this week at Victoria at the constitutional conference.

At present, the federal government collects all the personal income taxes on behalf of itself and all provinces but Quebec, which levies a separate income tax.

Twenty-eight per cent of the total gathered in each of the nine provinces is abated to the respective provincial treasuries. The provinces can ask Ottawa to take an additional amount on their behalf.

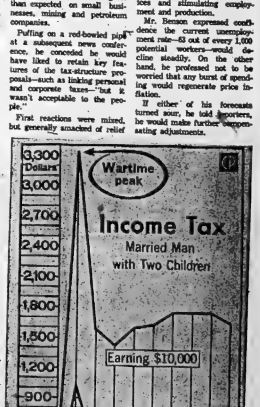
Newfoundland gathers an extra five per cent, New Brunswick 1 per cent, Manitoba 11 per cent, Saskatchewan six per cent, Alberta five per cent and Prince Edward Island—starting July 1—2½ per cent.

Under the revised federal plan, the abatement system would end at the beginning of next year and the base on which both federal and provincial taxes here been calculated would be slightly reduced.

Thus, to get the same amount of revenue, the provinces would have to use a higher percentage figure, Federal officials calculate that 30 per cent of the new federal tax would amount to about the same as the present 28-per-cent standard, but some provinces could do better.

The new tax-collection system will be negotiated at a conference of federal and provincial finance ministers in Ottawa July 12.

Mr. Benson said he hopes most provinces will agree to maintain the system whereby Ottawa collects for most provinces on the same taxation base. Otherwise, separate tax systems might develop into a jungle of conflicting rates and calculations for taxpayers.



Mr. Benson said that Ottawa will guarantee that the provinces will not be short-changed while the new system is being introduced. The federal government would make up any shortfall with special payments up to 1974.

He said that federal equalization grants, designed to raise the revenue of poorer provinces, will total just over $1 billion—up from $37 million five years ago when present tax sharing arrangements came into force.

Altogether this year, more than $4 billion of federal budgetary revenue—almost one-third of the total—will help finance provincial and municipal programs.

He made no mention of a year-old proposal of Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa for establishment of a so-called stabilization fund to assist provinces hit by unemployment rates higher than the national average.

In his budget last December, Mr. Benson mentioned it as a good idea that was being considered.

and the people who felt there should be no such tax at all."

David Lewis, leader of the national New Democratic Party, said the government "continues to treat the corporations of Canada as special babies that need special attention."

"The resource industries have lobbied the finance minister into submission," said Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party. "Mining and oil industries should be taxed the same way as every other industry."

F. E. Burnett, executive vice-president of Comineo Ltd. of Montreal, said the proposed abolition of the three-year tax exempt period for new mines "will work to the detriment of companies' exploration programs."

"The proposal to replace the present system with an earned depletion allowance will be an inadequate incentive to promote exploration," said a statement from the Mining Association of Canada.

"This will affect Canada's competitive position in world mineral markets and have repercussions on vital sectors of the economy."

Premier Schreyer said the most astonishing proposal in the new legislation was to eliminate federal involvement in gift and estate taxation.

"This will allow wealthy people to pass on from generation to generation the great accumulation of inherited wealth—untouched and intact," the Manitoba premier said.

Tax sharing

Robert Nixon, leader of the Ontario Liberal party, said he is concerned about the effect that the proposed tax-sharing provisions will have on the tax revenue balance because Ontario's "biggest source of income is a share of the federal take."

Premier Schreyer said the failure to allocate more money to the provinces "may force the use of regressive provincial taxation to obtain the necessary revenues to service provincial and municipal needs."

Alberta Premier Harry Strom said the provincial legislature likely will be called into a fall session to deal with "enabling" legislation on tax-sharing proposals."

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said the government had backed away from its white paper, "apparently in face of the 'crazier proposals,'" but he wanted to assess the long-run effects before commenting further.

Max Saltsman, finance critic for the national NDP, said, "I think people are going to be turned off by it just as soon as they start adding up their taxes and discover they haven't gained anything by it."

He said proposed taxes on medical care insurance premiums paid by employers, unemployment insurance benefits and manpower retraining payments will cancel out the effect of lower tax brackets for wage earners.

Jean Maurice Simard, New Brunswick's finance minister, called the reform bill a great improvement but—would have liked to see personal income tax exemptions raised to $2,000 rather than $1,500. Present exemption for a single person is $1,000.

Douglas Sherbaniuk, executive director of the Canadian Tax Foundation, said the "concept of equity" contained in the Carter report and other tax studies has been observed through increased personal exemptions, institution of a capital gains tax and "tightening of expense account living."

British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett summed up the general mood in saying there is a "sigh of relief" across the country because of the "tremendous improvement over the proposals with which the Carter son scared the public throughout Canada and the business world in his "infamous white paper."

Stanley Little of Ottawa, president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said: "It's a political budget all the way."

Real Caouette, Creditiste Social Credit leader, said he does not foresee an election until 1972. He said the Liberal tax reform is "a real gift" to the rich.

J. C. Whitelaw of Toronto, executive vice-president of the CMA, said the manufacturers' group was pleased that the government had adopted many proposals persistently made by the organization.

"It is particularly gratifying that the government has responded in such positive fashion to industry's representation that, in the words of the minister, 'we live in the private enterprise system in which effort and initiative must be rewarded if our society is to work effectively and efficiently.'"

A. R. Marchment, vice-president, finance, T. Eaton Co. Ltd., may have summarized the reaction of many businessmen: "The budget is certainly better than we expected."

However, Robert Stewart of Ottawa, president of the Canadian Construction Association, said the residential construction industry was one sector that was disappointed. There had been speculation that the 11-per-cent sales tax on building materials would be reduced or eliminated and Mr. Stewart was disappointed that such was not the case.

Keith Dixon, general manager of the Canadian Paint Manufacturing Association, said they were pleased with the series of tariff changes which meant reductions in most cases.

"We still regard him (Finance Minister Edgar Benson) as a free trader."

Eric Kierans, the former communications minister who resigned from the cabinet because of disagreements over economic policy, described the budget as expansionary and said "it should be good for the economy."

John Van Luven, president of the Vancouver Stock Exchange, said the budget was expansionary and while he said that was good, he also said the budget was inflationary.

"It's an admission that inflation will be with us and it's an attempt to control the inflation," Mr. Van Luven said.

Research Lab Not In Plans

The department of the environment will not be moving into the Department of Research Institute here after the department of agriculture moves out in September 1972.

John Mullally, executive assistant to the minister of the environment, said in a letter from Ottawa this morning that he had heard of no plans for his department to take over the property and building on Tuesday St. East.

By turning the property over to Crown Assets Disposal Corporation, he said, the department of agriculture was indicating that the federal government has no further use for the site and building.

Public bodies, such as provincial governments, municipalities, hospitals and school boards have first choice when a federal government property is offered for sale, Mr. Mullally said. If no public bodies are interested, the property may be sold to private interests.

Airborne for Leadership

Flights Sgts. Keith Pearce and Michael Twigg of 808 Air Cadet Squadron leave June 20 for Maryland to participate in the Boys' Stade leadership training program. Last night the two cadets were given their airline tickets by the squadron's sponsors, the Duke of Edinburgh Unit, Army, Navy, and Air Force Veterans. On hand for the event was Meredith Foley, 4, daughter of Capt. Lorne Foley, squadron commanding officer and Mrs. Foley.

Recycling of Garbage Said To Be Unrealistic

Recycling of waste is an impractical way of handling garbage, a committee of council was told Friday by a provincial government official.

John Heaman, director of waste management, department of energy and resources, said "conservationists are starry-eyed enthusiasts on recycling," but it is not going to work at the present time.

Mr. Heaman met with a committee of city council looking into garbage disposal to discuss other methods than sanitary land fill for municipal wastes.

Sanitary land fill is still the best method, he told the committee headed by Ald. Jean Smith.

"The major problem today is finding acceptable sites and permission to use them," said Mr. Heaman.

He said glass, metal and paper sorted out from refuse can't be channelled into the existing economy.

These products are difficult to reprocess, he said.

"In the wet willing to separate out her garbage? Is the municipality prepared to cope with the collecting?" he asked.

"If we could salvage a great deal of paper, think of the impact on established ways of life. Whole northern communities live on the pulp industry," he said.

But Ald. Smith differed with the waste management official.

Canada is not big enough to continue to allot land to the relatively unproductive purpose of sanitary landfill, she commented.

"We have to re-educate people to the knowledge that they can't depend on land fill sites," she said. "I feel sorry for people who live near these sites. We should try to find some method of disposing of garbage that doesn't breed rats and disease."

To Mr. Heaman's remark that a well managed sanitary land fill operation does not result in rats and litter, Mrs. Smith replied that she had never seen one that didn't.

Paul Davidson of Kingston, a representative of the waste management branch, said the city should make a study of garbage disposal.

"In four years you will be faced with a decision on what method of disposal is best," he told the committee. "The best way to start is to hire a consultant to do a study."

He determined that about 34 tons of newspaper is sold within the city limits each week.

"If we could assume an average and consistent price of $17 a ton, it means that each year in excess of $60,000 is being thrown into the garbage container," noted Mr. Keast in his figure includes no card board whatsoever."

"All products made from reclaimed paper are low in quality and have their principal use in packing and dividers for boxes," reported Mr. Keast. "High quality writing paper and that used for publishing must come from original sources. Increased demand is obviously going to apply for more high quality papers rather than the reclaimed products."

But even if the city could begin to separate collection of newsprint, it could not find a market to buy it.

"Family - owned businesses the size of Miller Brothers in Trenton are not large enough to handle what the city could collect," said Mr. Keast.

He suggested that a broker would have to be employed, whose sole job would be to find markets for collected products.

But despite the problems involved, Mr. Keast recommended that the recycling aspects of waste-management should be explored more fully.

Farmers' Cheques Due This Month

The Canadian Dairy Commission has announced that subsidy payments to Quebec and Ontario industrial milk shippers for their March deliveries and year-end adjustment payment will be included in one cheque.

The government said the payment should be in the mails before the end of June.

Subsidy payments to industrial milk producers have been delayed beyond the normal time because of calculations involved at arriving at each producer's full eligibility for the fiscal year ending March 31.

Other complications were the necessity of supervising any additional eligibility between the first eight months when the holdback was deducted from the subsidy and the last four months when the full rate of subsidy was paid.

Failure to receive milk subsidy payment at the normal time created a storm of protest among Quinte district producers, some of whom said their late payments amounted to between $300, and $400 per month.

Dairy Princess Has Busy Life

Another county dairy princess competition is coming up June 29 to, choose winners for Hastings and Prince Edward and if either of the two girls goes on to win provincial honors, she can be assured of a busy year ahead.

Just how busy the Ontario Dairy Princess is during her year of reign is indicated by the itinerary of Miss Dianne Gunning of Tweed during the nine months since she was crowned.

Since last September 3, Miss Gunning has travelled more than 10,000 miles by air, 36,- 795 miles by land and made 342 appearances at schools, television and radio stations, plus 36 newspaper interviews.

Among the groups Miss Gunning has talked to are women's clubs, young mothers' groups and service clubs, hospitals, in-store promotions, charity dinners and county milk committee functions.

Adventurers Return

Sixty students from BCI and Moira Secondary School returned Thursday from the third annual Moira Adventure, an outdoor education experience at a camp near Huntsville.

This year the week-long adventure was expanded to include an advanced section. Twenty students who had taken part in Moira Adventure in a previous year took a five-day canoe trip through Algonquin Park.

The students who participate in the school sponsored camp must have been exempted from most of their final examinations. They are permitted to write two exams at camp.

Eight teachers accompanied the students. Moira Adventure is headed by Gordon Smith of Moira and Brian MacKenzie of BCI.I

Baby Elephant Visits Airport

Kal Kal Thai (pronounced Key Key Tie) the three-foot elephant will be making his first appearance tomorrow at the Belleville airport between 2 and 4.

"It's not everyone who ever feeds own personal elephant and there are many reasons for its existence," said the owner of the 250 pound baby, Fern Delaney, of Tweed.

The Delaneys are planning to use the elephant in a variety of ways including renting the little fellow as a promotion gimmick.

Originating in Thailand, Kal Kal Thai flew for 35 hours enroute in a mahogony crate.

"Because of rigid quarantines in the mother country, the only infection that could result was that of a common cold. When we picked him up in Detroit he wasn't sneezing and didn't have a runny trunk so we brought him back to our home in Tweed," said Mrs. Delaney.

At three months old, the baby is eating about a dozen oranges a day as well as pineapple, bananas and a mixture similar to what you would feed a pregnant cow.

Children who have seen him already (very few) have stood for as much as 15 to 20 minutes making no sound, to observe Kal Kal. They are fascinated by the way he explores the public world with his trunk," remarked Mrs. Delaney.

For this reason it is likely that the Hastings County Board of Education will commence taking students to visit with Canada's newest elephant.

"One of our major uses for the baby," said Mrs. Delaney "will be taking pictures of children on the back of an elephant and turn the tables on the pictures of the child on the pony's back."

"He is selling down nicely and soon we will be able to make him more available to public viewing," said the owner.

Driving Course Rates Up

Learning to drive is going to cost $10 more for students taking a course under the auspices of the board of education.

Trustees voted Monday night to increase the cost of the driver education course in secondary schools from $20 a student to $30.

The increase in fees was dictated by cuts in the education budget and the increased number of students enrolling in the course.

Last spring about 201 students enrolled in driver education. This spring the number jumped to 254. Another 200 are expected to enroll in the fall, and there is no money in the budget for salaries of instructors in the fall term.

The board approved the appointment of about 14,000 from the night school instructor's budget to driver education to help cover the costs.

Cost to the board of teaching each student to drive is about $36 of which $40 is for instructors' salaries. The instructors, all teachers with special certificates in driver education, are paid $10 an hour for in-class instruction and $5 an hour for in-car instruction.

A male student who passes the course is allowed an annual insurance premium reduction of about $35.

IN MEMORIAM

GREENE — In loving memory of our darling daughter Pauline Joan Greene who passed away so suddenly June 19, 1967.
Yr so she has not gone away,
But in our hearts she will stay.
Memories are golden memories,
And let the gate stand open.

BRADLEY — In loving memory of a dear brother, Raliff Franklin, who passed away June 19, 1970.
Today recalls the memory,
Of the one we loved so dear,
A smile, a look, a thing of him is here,
Are those who loved him best,
The flowers we bring, the tears we weep,
May winter send decay
But the memory of him who lies beneath
Will never fade away.
Always remembered by brother Garnet, wife June and family.

BRADLEY — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Raliff Franklin, who passed away June 19, 1970.
Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence flow,
For memory keeps you near us,
As dear to-day as years and years ago.
—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by Mother, Dad, daughter Muriel, son-in-law John, grandchildren Debbie and Jeffrey.

Walk Work Under Way

The city's annual sidewalk construction program is well under way with two separate contractors at work in different parts of the city.

Weldon McEachen Construction Ltd. of Toronto was awarded the contract for construction of new walks while Tatham Company Ltd., is doing this year's sidewalk replacement program.

Weldon McEachen has already laid new walk on both sides of a section of Herchimer Ave., and currently is working in the Bridge Street - Palmer Road - Ann area. New walk is being laid along the south side of Bridge Street from Yeomans Street past the new Senior Citizens apartment complex to Palmer and down the West side of Palmer to Leland Drive.

Other new sidewalk being constructed this year is on Victoria Ave., between Farley Ave. and Haig Road.

The Tatham Company commenced the sidewalk replacement program and has already completed walk on south Front Street and a section of walk at the intersection of Bridge Street and High land Ave.

The Tatham Contract for this year's sidewalk replacement program is for approximately $70,000 while the contract for new sidewalk was for $40,000.

Checking Sale Offerings

Jack A. Ireland, of Ireland's Furniture and Appliances, checks anniversary sale offerings with daughter Mrs. Joan McKenna, secretary treasurer of the 20-year-old firm.

Ireland's Celebrates Twentieth Birthday

In an age when many Canadian firms are observing 100 or more years in business, 20 years may not seem very long but in a highly competitive operation such as the home appliance trade, it can seem almost a lifetime.

Ireland's is the oldest appliance dealer in Belleville with all other competitors in operation 20 years now having been sold or gone out of business.

Strong points in the continued success of the firm are felt to be fair dealing with customers, operation of it's own appliance service department and availability of in-store credit.

And the 20 - year veteran in the local retail appliance field also takes pride in the fact that the business is to a large extent family operated.

A daughter, Mrs. Joan McKenna, for many years has been the firm's secretary-treasurer, while a son Jack Jr. has been with the business full time for several years.

A former Kelvinator representative, who moved to Belleville from London in the late 1930s, Mr. Ireland opened his first appliance store on Lower Front Street where O'Neil Sales is now located.

From there he went to 12 Victoria Ave., and a short time later moved to the four corners on Front just north of Bridge Street where furniture lines were added.

To celebrate the store's two decades in business, Ireland's is running a 20th anniversary sale which will continue until the middle of July.

Subdividers' Agreement Stalled in Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — One thing became very clear at council here Monday — there will be considerable difficulty reaching agreement on any new standard form of subdividers' agreement.

As proposed by Mayor Duncan McDonald developers should pay 100 per cent of the cost of extending services into their subdivisions. Under present arrangements the town and builders share the cost 50-50.

"I do not agree with the 100 per cent proposal," said Councillor Paul Tripp, adding he did not like the idea of the town and the Public Utilities Corpmission being the parties to these subdividers' agreements, as is the case now.

This position was promptly rejected by the decision of the PUC earlier this year to refuse to sign a subdividers agreement with Dufferin Developments.

Councillor Ted Parker concurred with Mr. Tripp. "We should enact only legislation for which we can be responsible," he said.

"While it was the original intent that the two would work together, it has been our experience, at times, that they can't" he concluded. The PUC he stated can have its own subdividers' agreements.

Mayor McDonald questioned the legality of divorcing the town and PUC on such pacts with developers. He called for council to prepare a legal opinion of the issue and a draft form of the new subdividers' agreement was tabled for two weeks.

Air Cadets To Be Active In Air Show

TRENTON (Staff) — Needed to fit together in the-presentation of Canada's first international antique airplane flyin and air show are scores of exciting and colorful Hrsps.

The biggest air show of its kind ever staged in the Quinte area takes place at Mountain View airport south of Belleville, June 25, 26 and 27.

Since one of the two benefactors from the profits is air cadet development, the participation of 794 Air Force City squadron throughout proceedings supports the RCAP Association's aim to maintain leadership in Canadian youth training programs.

The CFB Trenton - based cadet unit received notice recently that squadron personnel with their reconditioned Silnson 108 Voyager, single-engined aircraft had been selected to appear on display at the aerodrome for the three days of the event,

On Thursday, June 24, an official tea at the Belleville Armories between 2 and 4 p.m. will highlight the week's events. Starting at 7:45 p.m., a special bingo will be held at the Ben Bleecker Hall with half-price admission for senior citizens.

Friday, June 25 is open house at the senior citizen residences throughout the city and visitors and guests will be welcomed.

A special talent show and antique show has tentatively been planned for Saturday but plans for this event have not yet been completed.

Wrapping up the week of special events will be a series of cars offering transportation to Zwick's Island for the Sunday after noon Intelligencer — Music Performance Trust Fund concert. Mrs. Ruth Burrows, one of the organizers, commented "last year some old folks hitchhiked home . . . they got tired."

She then informed other organizers that the dedicents escorting the visitors to the concert would remain with their charges, to provide immediate transportation if they wished to leave.

Dignitaries and special guests will be on hand at the Thursday afternoon tea to officially open the Senior Citizens' Week which the organizers hope will be sanctioned by city hall.

Next Week Belongs To Senior Citizens

Every year, the city sets aside a week in June in honor of senior citizens, with banquets, special exhibits, theatre, music and picnics.

Acting on an endorsement by Thomas Wells, Ontario minister of social and family services, the week of June 20 to 26 has been established as province-wide senior citizens' week.

Locally, a program is being arranged by the volunteer bureau of the United Community Services to operate along the lines of a "bridge the generation gap week," as suggested by one organizer.

Special church events will be held at all but four local churches, with programs geared to senior citizens in attendance.

Special films from a stock of 200 will be shown at the Carlton Library between 7:30 and 9 p.m.

Monday, June 21, and 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 22. Features such as Between Two Wars and Helicopter Canada will be requested during the program, which will be available at no charge to visitors.

Starting on Tuesday, special motor boat excursions will be made available by the Bay of Quinte Power Squadron and will continue all week. Senior citizens are invited to make appointments through the volunteer bureau for the trips around the bay.

Also on Tuesday, a number of roving entertainers will be visiting rest homes and the hospital. The Gad Guys, a four-piece youth band, will be visiting Montgomery Lodge, 6:30 to 7 p.m.; Belleville General Hospital, 7:30 to 8 p.m. and the Women's Christian Association between 8:30 to 9 p.m., The Moira Folk singers will entertain at the hospital between 7 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., the Prindle Nursing Home, 7:45 and 8:15 p.m. and the Shepard Nursing Home between 8:30 and 9 p.m. The Entertainers Tibor and Friend will visit Montgomery Lodge between 7 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. and the Bellcrest Nursing Home between 8 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. The Triad Players from Finnicle Playhouse will visit the Woodcock Nursing Home between 6:45 and 7:15 p.m., the Bellcrest Nursing Home between 7:30 and 7:55 p.m. and the Women's Christian Association between 8 and 8:30 p.m. The final group, Marie and Two, will entertain at the Woodcock Nursing Home between 6:15 and 6:45 p.m., the Prindle Nursing Home between 7:15 and 7:45 p.m. and the Shepard Nursing Home between 8 and 8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

On Wednesday, special buses will leave for a picnic at O'Hara Mills in the Moira Conservation Authority near Madoc. Arrangements for this trip can be made by calling Mrs. Wilma Summers at 962-1403.

Alewives Commit Annual Suicide

Hundreds of thousands of alewives, a tiny, silver fish, have begun to begin to Quinte waters in growing, rotting piles.

This year's dieoff began in the middle of May, "They've been dying at least since the 13th of May, when I saw the first dieoff," said Glenora Fisheries director William Christie.

With talk of pollution and unfounded theories surrounding this annual phenomenon, researchers at the Picton area fisheries mentioned two theories produced to explain the massive kill.

"It depends on water temperature whether they condensate from year to year", said resource technician Wayne Miller. In the spring, a built-in nerve system alerts the alewife to the approaching spawning period and they begin to emerge from the depths of Lake Ontario to spawn in the rocky shores of the lake.

"Schooling fish are particularly dumb. They charge through the temperature barriers", said Mr. Christie.

"They charge up" and this is part of the reason for massive deaths and subsequent layers of the fish lining the shores.

The second theory involves water turbulance.

"They are a fairly fragile fish", explained the fisheries director, "and if the water is rough, the waves rolling in fairly heavily, they can't swim against this and they get washed up on shore."

A study by Dr. J. J. Graham of the University of Toronto, in the 1950's, produced this generally accepted theory of temperature effects on the alewife. They are now really acclimatized to life in Lake Ontario," explained Mr. Christie.

He suggested few if any reports have dealt with the history of the alewife, which he says is not a native to Lake Ontario.

"They were introduced in the late 1860's, the circumstances of which are a little obscure. They are known in the Finger Lakes district of the U.S. as far back as 1848 and we believe they infiltrated through the Erie Barge Canal system, connecting Lake and up the Oswego River."

The fisheries director explained certain stocking of these fish took place by accident in 1871, 1873, and 1874. These fish were the American shad, a species which grows to between five and six pounds and a cousin of the alewife and sea herring.

It is theorized that alewife fry were mixed in with the shad with early plantings of the larger fish numbering only 5,000.

However, Mr. Christie rules out this introduction as the major cause for infiltration of the little ocean alewife. Historical reports dating back to 1872 show massive schooling of the silver fish off the shores of Lake Ontario with massive dieoffs noted on the Ontario side from 1901. "This was the first dieoff of major epidemic proportions," he explained.

"It is easier to feature them progressively becoming landlocked, away from the oceans tributory streams. During the winter, the fish live in the deepest portions of the lake, emerging at spawning time in a rapid rush to warmer waters. Following the massive deaths, the survivors, presently swimming in Bay of Quinte waters, begin to spawn well into the middle of July.

With spawning over for another year, the alewife, incorrectly referred to as "shad" return to deeper portions of the lake to await another life cycle.

Mr. Christie discounted reference-to deaths by pollution. "I don't mean to put dowri talk of pollution, our principle headache, but these fish have been dying since long before any pollution problems were noticed."

A complete, conclusive, theory surrounding the lives of the tiny fish has not been tabled. "Not all facts are in about the alewife, but there is a mounting program to keep abreast of most of the kinds of fish in the lake."

Several years ago, the federal fisheries research board, together with provincial agencies, undertook a massive study, with test packaging in the hopes of finding a market for the alewife as a sardine. However, this plan did not work out and was abandoned.

Game fish weed out scores of the fish, with principal predators the coho salmon, the ling and lake trout. However, a suitable market for the fish is of growing concern to researchers.

In recent years, several trawlers have attempted a harvest of the alewife from Lake Ontario for sale to manufacturers of fertilizer and pet food.

The Glenora Fisheries director stated a large industry of this kind exists in Lake Michigan. "The largest haul I ever heard about in one year totalled some 30 million pounds of alewives."

Certain economic advantages could readily be realized in Canadian waters. With heavier concentrations of the fish in the western end of Lake Ontario, fleets of trawlers could possibly market the alewife for the previously mentioned purposes. But there is no real advantage for fisheries to work in the lake.

However, because the future of life in the world's waters is of utmost importance, Mr. Christie suggested increasing studies were possible.

"It's important for the future of fish management. We have to build around the vectors of the ecology of the lake; we have to get to understand the whole story."

However, he stressed that any economic breakthroughs would not stop the annual dieoffs and hordes of the small fish will continue to line swimming and beach areas' along the beligth and breadth of Lake Ontario.

As one man said of the body-lined beach at Wellington in Prince Edward County, "It's a shame your camera can't capture the smell as well."

8.8 Per Cent Increase

SS Teachers Get Raise

Teachers with the Hastings-Prince Edward County separate school board have won an 8.8 per cent over-all increase next year in salary improvements, fringe benefits and allowances.

A beginner teacher with no university training will now start teaching at a salary of $5,500. a year and reach a maximum of $7,500 after six years.

The new maximum for level 2 is $8,800, for level 3 is $9,900, for level 4 is $11,800, for level 5 is $12,800, for level 6 is $13,800 and for level 7, $14,800.

The board will pay one-half the cost of Ontario Hospital and Ontario Medical plans for the teaching staff.

Principals will be paid a responsibility allowance, depending on the size of their schools, up to a maximum of $600.

Co-ordinators will be given an allowance of $1,800, a year consultants $2,200 a year.

Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your h earts to the Lord.

Justice is Done

Nobody in Canada, least of all Jacques Laroe-Langlois and Charles Gagnon, acquitted the other day of seditious conspiracy to overthrow the governments of Quebec and Canada, need complain of injustice in the performance of the judiciary or the jury system.

And surely unique in judicial history was the spectacle afterwards of Laroe-Langlois accompanied at a hotel celebration not only by his lawyer and Messrs Chartrand and Lemieux but by members of the jury. And not to mention the two conservatively-dressed men who came up to tell the former CBC producer how happy they were with the acquittal, and who turned out to be court officials.

Charles Gagnon missed the celebration — he was to appear in court the following day to ask for bail pending an appeal on conviction for contempt of court. But his presence was of little account one way or another, for the celebration breezed merrily along with Mr. Chartrand, according to one report, "growing and glowing with a torrent of jokes about the judges, the prosecution's witnesses politicians and newspapers."

One would have thought, in the circumstances — the acquittal of the two men, and Chartrand's own earlier release — would have inspired some respect, some degree of restraint in the behavior of the labor leader. But not grouped with the others on a narrow terrace, Mr. Chartrand, watched by curious passers-by was at his outspoken best (or worst). "Standing and gesturing like a curious barker, he declaimed a series of words, some of them vulgar all rhyming in French."

Mr. Chartrand's confrontation with Prime Minister Trudeau in the corridors of the Commons last year comes to mind. Then too his tongue waxed lengthily and explosively. More decorous was the earlier courtroom behavior of the other principals in this peculiarly Gallic drama, when Gagnon thanked the jury. So too did lawyer Lemieux who noted that the verdict was "a victory for freedom of speech." There was no mention of the judge. But then he is of the Establishment, while the jurors are of the people!

Now ... New Mexico

In one of his recent 'Goodtime Hours," before the summer layoff many TV programs take, sometimes never to return due to network and public whim, Glen Campbell concluded his program singing, by way of a change, "By the time I get to Albuquerque," (instead of Phoenix).

Albuquerque, New Mexico, not to mention the southwest at large, has always seemed relatively free of violence (other than on western movie locations), and the kind of political trouble that has plagued Washington and much of the east.

Campbell was scarcely indulging in political prophesy, but he would not have been far wrong if he had sung, "By the time I get to Albuquerque there'll be trouble. . ."

Trouble there has been and it all started when police tried to arrest some young people for drinking in public. And on a Sunday at that.

So it goes. It is a big country the United States and it has many problems, not least of them the brushfire mentality that grips a substantial segment of its 200,000,000 or more citizens, and which leads to trigger-happy situations such as those experienced recently in New Mexico.

Tricky Situation

It is aggravating enough to encounter a traffic jam at the best of times, but when you are virtually out of gas it can be even more distressing. Still we made it when re-routed from the new Dundas Street bridge route down Coleman and onto Bridge and there was just enough in the tank to get to a service station a little later. Soon the extra lane will be in use on Dundas and things should be less crowded at rush-hour.

While Bureaucracy-Breakers Come and Go...

Parliament Remains Firmly in Grip of the 'Mandarins'

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — You would think that something has to give in the years-long power struggle between Parliament and the Bureaucracy.

If anything does have to give, it could be any real chance of Parliament, barring the totally unexpected, ever winning the struggle in the forseeable future.

But what will not give—and for this you can thank your lucky democratic stars — will be the determination of Parliament to keep on trying.

Prime Minister after Prime Minister has come to power swearing to break the rule of the bureaucrats and restore the authority of ultimate decision-making to Parliament where it properly belongs.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker publicly swore he would, but discovered he could not. And did not.

Prime Minister Pearson never tried, for he was one of bureaucracy's own.

Prime Minister Trudeau took the oath at a televised press conference — his first after coming to power — that where others had failed, he would succeed.

The power of Parliament and its elected members would be restored, he swore, and went into detail as to how he would strip the bureaucrats of their supreme authority as decision-makers by shuffling them around from department to department, commission to commission, board to bureau, to agency so that none of them could remain long enough in any one place to build an empire.

But he did not.

Since, from time to time, this parliamentarian and that takes a run at it.

Among the latest to fight the good fight was former Defence Minister Paul Hellyer who said "probably as many as 80 per-cent of the senior bureaucrats should be replaced."

They had been around too long, he said, come to so love power as to think Canada was contained within the confined boundaries of the National Capital, recently widened to bag the Ottawa River to take in Hull And so, he lamented, they had lost all touch with the real world.

And now into the battle has come Maritime Conservative MP Lloyd Crouse of Nova Scotia's South Shore.

What makes a little difference and perhaps a change in parliamentary pattern is that Lloyd Crouse, unlike Paul Hellyer is not a political hell-raiser.

So what has he been saying about the decades-old issue of Parliament versus the Bureaucracy?

Well, he is alarmed that the bureaucrats have raised their eyes beyond the boundaries of the National Capital and have discovered the North, the deep North, the High Arctic.

And having stumbled across this previously unknown wilderness they see it as virgin territory where they can start from Day One "conducting." Lloyd Crouse warns, "a vast experiment in state socialism."

What else is contained in the Crouse Bill of bureaucratic indictment?

He has found, as did so many other parliamentarians, that old bureaucrats not only never die — in the sense of being chopped from the taxpayer's payroll — but they even refuse to fade away.

Lloyd Crouse, a quiet, reasonable, entirely amiable man, assures, after 14 years of watching the unpromising process, that "even when a senior departmental officer makes a grave kind of error, he is not dismissed or even demoted. He is moved and most likely promoted to serve as the assistant deputy in an old department or as the deputy minister of a new department or agency or duties in empire-building are only adding to our inflationary problems.

"The Government is prisoner of the bureaucracy.

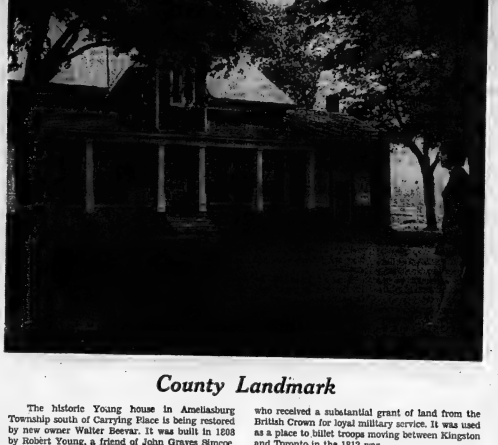
"By the time one of these mandarins has worked his way to the top, as did Jack Pickersgill — who had the best of both worlds, appointing himself when a member of Cabinet as the chairman of the Canadian Transport Commission — "he has lost touch with the people and the country.

"Money is no longer the taxpayers' hard-earned dollars, it is revenue to be collected and spent, and always a little more than was budgeted so that the budget can be increased again next year.

"Departmental programs are set up, not in terms of what they will do for the taxpayers, but on the basis of what they will do to the taxpayers and for the department."

In the strange world of the federal Civil Service went on Lloyd Crouse, competition is not for excellence in public service but for dollars and progress.

As a benchmark he cites the sad case of the Fisheries Department which grew to become the Fisheries and Forestry Department, and now is to expand into the new Department of the Environment.



So what?

So the current Finance Department Estimates show that 2,094 civil servants are on the Fisheries and Forestry payroll.

But when it becomes the Department of the Environment, charged Lloyd Crouse, the staff will number more than 13,000.

But whether it is 10,000 or 15,000 it will be many, many times the current 2,094, and by all Government statements, one of the very biggest of the federal departments where bigness is best. So big, says Lloyd Crouse, that no existing building in Ottawa, can accommodate the enormous staff — so they have to custom-build a huge new office tower.

Gourdy Landmark

The historic Young house in Ameliasburg Township south of Carrying Place is being restored by new owner Walter Beevar. It was built in 1808 by Robert Young, a friend of John Graves Simcoe, the first Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada who received a substantial grant of land from the British Crown for loyal military service. It was used as a place to billet troops moving between Kingston and Toronto in the 1812 war.

Telephone Rate Increases Under Fire

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

We believe this is another instance of companies with a monopoly attitude and structure, increasing prices without fair consideration to the public.

There is absolutely nothing in their service to show that the public is receiving a fair return on their money.

On two occasions telephone calls, long distance, have been made: (1) the daily rate between two southern Ontario cities is now increased from 85 cents to $1.10 for the first three minutes. This is an increase of 16 per cent. (2) This Company advertised the Great Sunday Rate. The people used it and enjoyed this way of speaking to loved ones away from home. Now after educating and seeing the public enjoy this service The Bell Telephone Co. increased the rate, based on the same call by 90 per cent.

The increase on a private telephone is about 11 per cent per month.

It appears that the public was used, that the company indulged in some long planning — the public to enjoy a service, and then taking advantage, increased the charges.

This shows that it depends on who you are and who you know, if you have these credentials—the sky is the limit.

The Quinte District Labor Council takes exception to the complete disregard taken by both the Bell Telephone Co., and the Government.

These unfair costs affect all aspects of the economy whether it is business, industry, private life, fixed income or government.

ROBERT ANDRUS
President, Quinte District Labor Council

Whey Fertilizer Plan Runs Into Criticism

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

With reference to the report on Firm Plans to Use Whey as Fertilizer, this tells one side of the story only, and I request space in your valuable paper to give readers the Tyendinaga township residents' side of the story.

We in Tyendinaga township welcome good industry, and Industrial Commission, offers any time that the Belleville is a good one we will be forever grateful.

The local people, who signed options to sell their land Sidney, Thurlow, Rawdon, Huntingdon and Madoc township. We feel that the use of this system will turn the area into a breeding ground for vermin, rats and flies plus air and water pollution.

We in Tyendinaga do not want Nuclarus Ltd. to be located in our township and we suggest that the Belleville Industrial Commission start looking for another site.

'Culture Camp' Project Led to Misunderstanding

The Editor,
The Intelligencer,

On reading the news item "Culture Camp Promoter Gives Up His Project," I feel I must write to set the record straight.

I have attended the recent meetings of the Marmore and Lake township council and heard the discussions concerning Mr. Rossi's proposed project. The council at first endorsed Mr. Rossi's project, albeit with some misgivings, since Mr. Rossi described his proposal as "outdoor education," and the council did not know the meaning of this term.

"Outdoor Education" took on an entirely different meaning from that envisaged by the council when the powers advertising the project appeared. These posters, described in our news item, bore Mr. Rossi's name and address and gave every indication of being authentic. Naturally, and rightly, the council on seeing these posters withdrew their endorsement, and took steps to prevent this project from developing. Subsequently, on being assured by Mr. Rossi that a terrible mistake had been made, the council accepted his request to appear before them at their next meeting and clarify the whole matter. Members of the council were present and when instead of attending the June 5 meeting Mr. Rossi advised them that he had cancelled his plans.

From discussions I have had with members of the council, I believe they are convinced now that Mr. Rossi is genuine and his project was an admirable one.

I think it is most important to all who are interested that it be understood that responsibility for the misunderstandings concerning this project lies with those individuals who apparently tried to convert a worthwhile project into something quite different, and in this community undesirable

June 19, 1971 . . .

The Russian military government of the eastern zone of Germany announced 23 years ago today—1948—it would cut the road, rail and canal links between the western zones and Berlin—and the Berlin Blockade began. The Western air forces responded to the isolation of Berlin to carry on by bringing in food and fuel by air. Allied flights over million tons of freight were flown to Berlin in the year-long blockade at a cost of $200 million. Western leaders said the blockade was an attempt to squeeze the Allies out of Berlin and Russian officials said it was a protest against the establishment of unified West German economy excluding the Russian zone.

1953—The first woman in space, cosmonaut Valery Bykovsky, landed after 48 orbits of the earth, followed by Col. Valeri Bykovsky.

1963—Finance Minister Walter Gordon withdrew the 30-per-cent tax on foreign purchasers of Canadian stock imposed in the June 13 budget.

1944—The Japanese carriers Shokaki and Taiho were torpedoed and sunk in the First Battle of the Philippine Sea.

There's A Meeting There Tonight

Jesus People Come to Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — "Put your hand in the hand of the man from Galilee," the crowd sang.

The Jesus People had come to Toronto.

A Sunday meeting which recently drew 400 persons to a makeshift bandstand behind the legislature buildings in Queen's Park was the city's first mass rally for a new breed of Christians.

Theirs is an unconventional fundamentalism: They have many traditions of the established churches and pursue their faith directly on the charismatic qualities of Jesus.

Converts accept the Bible literally and search out lost souls with a sense of urgency based on the assumption that these are indeed the last days before the return of Christ.

As the crowd clapped and swayed to the rhythm of guitars, 21-year-old Craig MacMillan moved among them handing out free copies of a Toronto-published paper, Maranatha.

Maranatha is an Aramaic word meaning: Come, Lord.

Across the back of his jacket he wore a fluorescent green-and-black bumper sticker saying: Consider Jesus.

"Just a year ago," he said, "this could never have happened.

"People just weren't ready for it then. I know I wasn't. I was a different person. I'd dropped out of school. I was unemployed. All I did was sit around all day and smoke grass."

This simple style of religion has been gaining popularity in North America for at least two years. In California, the number of converts among drug-oriented youths has been so great that the trend got a name: The Jesus Movement.

"It's its simplicity that's so appealing," said Danny Swarts, 19, of the Hollywood Free Paper, a "Jesus paper" that claims a circulation of 325,000.

"With pollution, communism, over-population, the threat of nuclear war and all the other problems facing the world today, people are becoming more receptive to the message of goodness and hope that salvation offers."

David Zavitz, 24, a University of Toronto student who recently became a Christian, now is associated with a Jesus People community called the House of Emmaus.

"The other night a bunch of us were handing out papers," he said. "We found we had to compete with Satan People and Communists who were also distributing literature."

Robert Velick, an elder at the House of Emmaus, said: "Many young people at our place come from rough backgrounds—broken homes, drugs...We try hard to teach each other overcome these problems, to keep each other on the right path. But it takes a lot of prayer, a lot of faith and hard work."

Roman Catholicism and Islam Are Now Coexisting Peacefully

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Roman Catholicism and Islam, the world's two largest religions whose members once slaughtered each other as an act of faith, now coexist peacefully. At times they even co-operate.

Gone are the days when one viewed the other as "inferior" or "infidel."

At the Vatican now, the Secretariat for non-Christians, rather than the office for non-believers, deals with Islamic affairs. A recent Vatican communique referred to Islam-Roman Catholic ties as "fraternal among believers who have in common the respect of all religious values and faith in God."

Islam still lacks the equivalent of a religious structure like Vatican City. But more and more Moslem countries are establishing diplomatic relations with the Vatican. Eight have full ambassadors accredited here.

Vatican observers and Moslem envoys say Roman Catholic-Islam coexistence is the making ever since the inconclusive Crusades centuries ago—gained momentum for cordiality in recent years. Some even say it's a natural step after ever-increasing ecumenism within Christianity.

They point out the efforts of Pope Paul, who travelled 2,000 miles in 1967 for a trip to Turkey, which is 95 per cent Moslem. The Pope's main reason for going was to meet Orthodox Patriarch Athenagoras.

Even during his last overseas trip, an eight-nation swing to Asia and the Pacific last year for "the rediscovery of the church," the Pope's first stop was in Moslem Iran. He later visited the Islamic state of Pakistan and predominantly Moslem Indonesia.

In Jakarta, Buddhists and Moslems were among 50,000 attending the Pope's mass at a stadium. The pontiff later was presented a copy of the Koran in Arabic.

Some Roman Catholic-Moslem rivalry persists.

But, over-all, both religions have entered into dialogue on an unprecedented scale. For the first time, the Vatican held official talks last year with the Supreme Council of Islamic Affairs, headed by an Egyptian.

The Vatican and the Council agreed to consult each other regularly "on social, cultural and spiritual levels." They also plan to exchange permanent observers.

Underlying such contacts is concern for Jerusalem, the Holy City of Christianity, Islam and Judaism. After changing hands scores of times and surviving one sacking after another since the Crusades in the 11th century, the city now is in Israeli hands.

Christians and Moslems have access to it, but little say in running the city their traditions hold as a precious shrine.

Multiproject Club Hold Meeting and Ball Game

TWEED — Tweed's multiproject club met at the home of Mrs. Ted Ray recently. The program began with a ball game at 7 p.m. followed by the business meeting which opened with Peter Tummon leading in the reciting of the 4-H Pledge.

Neil Reesvie read the minutes of the preceding meeting. Miss Susan Ray conducted the informative part of the meeting which dealt with the care and feeding of calves. Her talk was divided into three parts — rearing calves, feeding programs and care of the calf.

Mr. Chambers demonstrated the making of a rope halter, following which each member made a halter. Neil Reesvie thanked Mr. Chambers for his assistance. Susan and Mrs. Ray served a delicious lunch.

The members of the Stirling 4-H Club have invited the members of the Tweed Club to join them for a baseball game and meeting in July.

Bishop Inducts Minister Of Combined Churches

MARMORA — The Rt. Rev. J. B. Creeggan, Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, inducted Rev. John A. Lombard as rector of the combined churches of St. Paul's, Marmora, St. Mark's, Roslin, and St. Thomas' Church, Belleville, Thomas', Rawdon, before a large gathering on Wednesday evening in St. Paul's Church.

Ven. Archdeacon W. L. Simmons of Napanee and Rural Dean Rev. Peter Tett, of St. escorted Rev. Lombard to the font, the chancel steps and the altar as he made his promises to carry out the duties of rector of the parish.

The keys of the three churches were presented by Claude Nicol and William Lavender for St. Paul's, Hugh Jones and W. Barlow for St. Mark's and George Tanner and John Courtney for St. Thomas' to Rev. Lombard.

The address was given by Padre Clarence White, CFB Trenton, a long time friend of Rev. Lombard's.

Other clergy who were present in the Chancel included Rev. John Peters, St. Andrew's United Church Marmora, Rev. C. Staples, Stirling and Rev. Michael Caswell of Trenton, who assisted Bishop Creeggan. Several clergy from other parts of the Diocese were also resent.

An informal reception was held in the Church Hall following the service.

Top Award Presented

Dr. W. B. Stiver, president of PSI presents the top award for medical secretaries in Ontario to past president Mrs. Doreen Ware of the Quinte Medical Secretaries. Looking on is president of the local group Mrs. Diana Maxwell. The award which is given in recognition of significant achievement in professional and public service was presented at the recent convention at the Skyline Hotel in Toronto represented by 24 chapters whose total membership is 1,700.

Past Noble Grands Hold Meeting

Monday evening, 39 members of the Past Noble Grands Club met at the Riviera Inn, Campbellford. Sisters Cora and Evelyn Bailey of Peterborough, Sister Blake of Springbrook and Rosa Spry of Stirling were visitors.

The regular meeting followed the banquet and the president, Sister Irene Hogle extended a welcome to all and read a short poem about "The Things in Life". Sister Eileen Woodcox read the devotional. Members were reminded to remember their "Secret Pal" birthday or anniversary during the summer recess.

It was reported catering to the bowling banquet was successful.

Sister Isobel Good composed an appropriate (self-composed) poem to Sister Gladys Elliott who celebrates her 90th birthday June 20. Sister Elliott was presented with a Rebekah ring by Sister Marion-Carter. Sister Gladys responded most graciously in spite of the surprise.

It was decided to carry on with the support of our Foster Child, Frederick in Manilla. Sister Mary Hulin, secretary, read a letter of appreciation from his mother telling that the group's support is a great meaning for him. He is 10 years of age.

Plans are in the making for Past Noble Grands night, to open and close Laurel Lodge meeting in September and also for the program and lunch. The next meeting will be held at the Oak Lake home of Sister Versa Woodlock on September 13.

A pleasant program of "Bingo" was enjoyed by all for the rest of the evening.

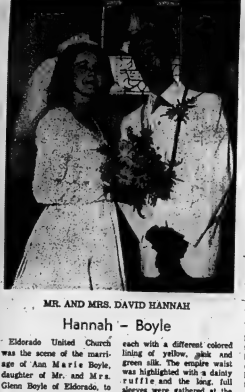
Silhouettes Popular Prior to Photographs

Silhouettes derive their name from Etienne de Silhouette a distinguished Frenchman born at Limoges in 1709. His hobby was the cutting of profiles from black paper.

A favorite of Madame de Pompadour, he was appointed Controller General of France in 1759. His reforms included a proposal for a tax on the nobility and a reduction of their annuities from the crown. The nobility reacted violently and complained that Silhouette's proposals would turn them into shadows and ridiculed him by saying that he was reducing them to his paper profiles. Silhouette lost his position but his name stuck in the public mind as a synonym of an object reduced to a shadow of its former self.

In Silhouette's day miniature likenesses in black and white were known as shades or profiles. They became tremendously popular in the 1770s and lasted until they were replaced by daguerreotypes in the 1840s.

Most silhouettes were made by artists who travelled from town to town setting up shop briefly in each place. Some did miniatures as well as silhouettes. Many 'touched up' their silhouettes with bronze, gold paint, color washes and colored mounts.



Silhouettes were made two ways. They could be cut from black paper and mounted on white or cut from white paper and mounted on black. The cutaway portion formed the silhouette and the technique is known as hollow-cut.

In the late 1770s Johann Casper Lavater published "Essays on Physiognomy Calculated to Extend the Knowledge and Love of Mankind." He claimed to be able to read the character of a person by his silhouette. His book was extremely popular, in spite of the fact that a fully bound copy weighed 24 pounds. Lavater developed a special screen to produce the accurate silhouette necessary for proper character reading. The public flocked to have their silhouettes done and he had many imitators.

Although many silhouette artists were itinerant, some achieved fame and fortune. August Edouart was a French emigre who started cutting silhouettes in Cheltenham, England, in 1826. He achieved fame quickly and was in demand by the famous, the rich and even royalty. He cut his silhouettes from double paper and carefully kept the duplicates on file, clearly marked. He lived to be almost 100 and completed 200,000 silhouettes. In 1839 he went to the United States, remained for 10 years and did more than 3,800 silhouettes, including many of Canadians who visited his studios in New York, Boston, and Philadelphia.

In Canada, silhouette artists started at an early date, although the majority of recorded artists appear after 1800. Bouker, King and Gilbert all advertised in the early 19th century.

An early framed silhouette is worth $40 to $50. Examples with the artist's and sitter's name are worth more. Family groups command higher prices and "Conversation Piece Groups" are worth even more. The country of origin does not affect price and quality of silhouettes are as valuable as those cut.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID HANNAH

Hannah – Boyle

Eldorado United Church was the scene of the marriage of Ann Marie Boyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Boyle of Eldorado, to David Stanley Hannah of Mississauga, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. David Hannah, Belleville. Rev. W. Sedgwick performed the ceremony. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Fred Bailey of Eldorado who accompanied the soloist, Kenneth Bronson of Tweed.

The bride was in a full length tafetta gown highlighted with a dainty lace trim around the scoop neckline, down the full legth sleeves and around the full skirt. The bodice and sleeves also featured rose appliques and her long full train with matching lace trim was attached at the waist with a large bow. The three - tiered bouffant veil was gathered to a circle of dainty white orange blossoms and seed pearls, leaving the centre open for flocks of curls. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow daisies.

Miss Susan Boyle was her sister's maid of honor, and another sister, Miss Barbara Boyle, and Mrs. Jackie Lieman of Cornwall were bridesmaids. They wore full-length printed chiffon gowns, each with a different colored lining of yellow, pink and green silk. The empire waist was highlighted with a dainty ruffle and the long full sleeves were gathered at the wrist with a matching ruffle. They carried baskets of white daisies with ribbons matching the gown linings.

Best man was Karl Hannah of Thompson, Manitoba, brother of the bridegroom, while Ron Hannah, brother of the bridegroom, and Brent Boyle, were ushers.

Receiving the guests at the reception held in the church parlors, the mother of the bride wore a blue coat and dress ensemble of silver, grey and beige tones. A corsage of coral sweetheart roses with a silver bow completed her ensemble. Assisting, the bridegroom's mother wore a mauve coat and dress ensemble and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Kingston and on to a cottage on Sharbot Lake, the bride donned a pink knit crimplene pant suit, white accessories, and a corsage of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Hannah are residing at 1701 Waverll Crescent, Apartment 7, Mississauga.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

MARTIN — HOLLAND

Bethesda United Church was the scene of the recent wedding of Lorraine Elizabeth Holland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Holland, RR 5, Madoc to William Clarke Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Martin of RR 1, Selby. Rev. D. N. Beard officiated at the double ring ceremony. Wedding music was played by the bride's cousin Mrs. Margaret Farrell who also accompanied the soloist Lawrence Main.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a sleeveless sheath style gown of polyester crystal peau with a scoop neckline and empire waist decorated with chantilly lace. A long sleeved chantilly lace coat flowed into a full train at the back. A four tiered nylon illusion veil was caught with a headpiece composed of small chantilly lace daisies centred with seed pearls. She carried a cascade of melon sweetheart roses and lily of the valley.

The maid of honor was Miss Linda Carley of Kitchener. She wore a floor length melon polyester crepe featuring an empire waistline. A melon tossed headpiece adorned her hair and she carried a bouquet of melon and white mums.

Dressed identically to the maid of honor were the three bridesmaids, Miss Elaine Downey, Miss Heather McTaggart the bride's cousin and Miss Linda Martin the bridegroom's sister.

The flower girl Miss Annette Scott wore a floor length gown of white polyester crepe with melon daisy trim and a band of matching daisies in her hair. She carried a basket of white and melon mums.

The best man was Keith Wood, while the ushers were Daniel Jaynes the bridegroom's cousin, Dale McTaggart the bride's cousin and Eric Wilde. The ring bearer was Stephen Martin the bridegroom's cousin.

At the reception held in the church parlor, guests were greeted by the bride's mother wearing a rose green dress and coat ensemble with a matching hat and white accessories and a corsage of melon roses and white 'mums. Assisting her was the bridegroom's mother in a pink dress and coat ensemble with a corsage of pink and white 'mums. White accessories completed the costume.

PROCLAMATION
"Ontario Senior Citizens' Week"

WHEREAS this year for the first time, there will be a Province-wide Ontario Senior Citizens' Week. The Government of Ontario is recognizing this Special Week in 1971. It is hoped that during this Week as many people as possible will become aware of the contributions of the elderly, the services for the elderly, and what it means to grow older.

WHEREAS Ontario's senior citizens have a lot of time for. They can bring a lot to give to other members of the community. That is why the Ontario Department of Social and Family Services is officially recognizing Ontario Senior Citizens' Week. They want to stimulate general interest in and knowledge of aging, the elderly, and all existing programs for senior citizens in Ontario.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Russell Scott, Mayor of the City of Belleville, do hereby proclaim the week of June 20 to 26, 1971, as —

"ONTARIO SENIOR CITIZENS' WEEK"

RUSSELL SCOTT, M.D., C.M., MAYOR.

Poisonous Gas Results From Mixing Cleaners

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I would like to pass on some information that could save a life. It is from a news service story by Patricia McCormack.

Sometimes a homemaker, faced with a stubborn stain in the sink, bathtub or anywhere will combine two cleaning agents. The results might put her in the hospital or in the grave. Two separate incidents involving an ordinary bathroom-bowl cleaner and a dash of household bleach killed one woman and hospitalized another for several weeks. What happened was that a poisonous gas was liberated when the two cleaning agents were mixed:

ANN LANDERS

A U.S. Navy medical newsletter told of 39 persons in separate incidents being overcome by gases released when women mixed chlorine bleach and ammonia. If the gas is inhaled, it can cause serious injury and even death. The following safety rules were suggested: Use chemical cleaners only as manufacturers direct on the label. Never mix chlorine bleach with bathroom-bowl cleaners, ammonia, lye, rust remover, vinegar or oven cleaner. In short, don't mix chlorine with any other cleaning agent. — A FAN IN EPPELHEIM, W. GERMANY.

DEAR EP: Thanks for the tip. I had never heard of this before — and I'll bet I'm not the only one. It was good of you to write — especially since it cost you 40 cents to mail the letter.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I should not be writing to you for two reasons. First, I do not believe you exist and second I have to get up early for an all-day outing and it is now 1:00 a.m.

This kid Billy is O.K. but he is driving me nuts. He always calls when I am washing my hair or eating supper. I made the mistake of accepting a couple of dates with him and now he acts like mine.

Is there a polite way to split with a bossy, possessive boy who sort of pushes people around but not exactly? What I mean is they don't realize they are being pushed around until it's too late. Thank you. — LONG BRANCH, N.J.

DEAR L.B.: I have a feeling it's too late, but here's the advice anyway. Tell Billy the Kid to pick another target because you want to be a loose hanger and he's cramping your style.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My darling cousin passed away six months ago at the age of 38. Her husband has taken a housekeeper to help him raise their three small children. It is sad to see that their home is not kept up the way it used to be. Whenever I go over there I notice the difference.

What I am writing about is a highly personal matter. Yesterday I saw my dear cousin's husband happily chatting away with his son's teacher. They were standing outside the school and seemed very chummy. I don't know what they were talking about but they seemed intimate. I had to pass them to go into the school so I stopped to say "hello." I couldn't help but notice that he was not wearing his wedding ring which my cousin always loved to see on his finger. It was like a knife in my heart. His dear wife has been gone less than six months.

Should I tell him I feel he is doing her memory an injustice? — ONE WHO DOES NOT FORGET EASILY.

DEAR ONE: Maybe wearing the wedding ring was like a knife in his heart — so why don't you mind your own business? I think you need a hobby, Lady.

AN ETIQUETTE QUIZ

"There used to be a right side and a wrong side of the tracks — but I have torn up the tracks." — Emily Post.

* * *

Who of us have ever considered, or wondered:

Question: "Who was so enraged over servants' manners that he wrote a tract called "The Indolence and Insufferable Behavior of Servants in England, Duly Inquired Into," and then invented the perfect servant in his novel?

Answer: Daniel Defoe. In his novel Robinson Crusoe's man Friday.

Q.: Who wrote famous letters on social behavior for his son who turned out to be a lout and a glutton" and had no instinct for the correct people?

A.: Lord Chesterfield. He couldn't make his son behave nicely.

Q.: Who introduced into the English language the French-born word "etiquette"?

A.: Lord Chesterfield.

Q.: What did an author of an American etiquette book in 1880, think caused such a terrible epidemic of crime?

Q.: What is the advice on etiquette, the first ever written, by an Egyptian back in 2700 B.C.?

A.: You have to laugh at your superior's jokes, if you wish to please." Laugh when he laughs . . . and what he does will be very pleasant to his hearer.

Q.: Who advised treating women with the utmost tenderness?

A.: Both the Egyptian in 2700 BC and the Talmud of the 5th century.

Q.: When did real stream of instructions on social graces begin?

A.: In the 13th century.

Q.: Who led the way and accidentally invented the term "gentleman"?

A.: The Italians.

Q.: Who wouldn't accept the French way of using the fork until the 17th century?

A.: The English.

A.: England's first printer, William Caxton. He urged men to read about Lancelot and Galahad, to learn of manhood, courtesy and gentleness.

Q.: Who felt that education was important to social behavior in England?

A.: Henry VIII.

Q.: Who used "Youth's Behavior", a translation from the French as a guide?

A: Young George Washington, who at the age of 15 copied out in his notebook many of its rules and precepts.

Q.: When did any American etiquette books appear?

A.: Fifty years after the Revolution.

Q.: Who wrote most of them?

A.: American women, especially after 1830. Finally, in 1922, appeared "Etiquette, the Blue Book of Social Usage" by the well-known authority, Emily Post.

"The rather moderate general demand for books on behavior had remained quite constant," notes Miss Dorothy Matthews of James Tent in Belleville. "But one observes both Canadian and American writers on etiquette are now taking a different approach. A good example is Katherine Whitehorn's 'Social Survival' dealing with social faux pas, errors and hazards all humanity is heir to, in a light, informative, amusing way that makes the human race akin."

POINTS FOR PARENTS

BY MARY BRYSON

The first time you have a new babysitter, ask her to arrive at least a half hour before you expect to leave, so the children can become acquainted with her and vice versa. Brief her on the rules the children are permitted to do, and also on the things that are forbidden, such as watching the late show on TV. Leave a list of emergency numbers and a number where the sitter can reach you.

Friend Wants All the Pleasure in Giving

By DORIS CLARK

"What can I do about her?" Jean consulted her neighbor about a close mutual friend. "She does so many lovely favors for me, but when I try to do something in return, she turns me down flat. It makes me feel like a heel not to be able to reciprocate when she's so generous!"

"Maybe it's selfishness, not generosity," observed Peggy. "She wants to have all the pleasure of giving, but denies you and me the same pleasure."

There's a lot of truth in Peggy's words. We all know the person who just can't do enough for others, yet refuses to accept favors herself. "because you're so busy, dear." Or, "You have so many more pressures than I do." It isn't it selfishness turned inside out? Instead of pleasing the receiver of the favor, as true generosity does, it makes her feel inadequate and guilty.

Let's examine our motives for giving and make sure that they are the right ones — the ones that make us truly appreciated by others. — Dorothy Turcotte.

Dear Doris: Much credit must be given to the Indians who have formed Alcoholics Anonymous Groups on their reserves. Such groups have had astounding results that reflect throughout the reserves, not to mention the communities around them.

We often hear of the Indians when they are in trouble but may be blind to the many good achievements of these people against severe obstacles. They still come up again.

So here is a plug for them, especially in the Western Manitoba Region with which I am familiar. Keep up the good work and continue to help other reserves to form AA groups. God will continue to bless your outreach. — Ed Ludwig, Director, Western Region Alcoholism Foundation of Manitoba.

Dear Ed.: From you, that is high praise. You know the problems our Indians face and are acquainted with their fine, stanuch personalities.

Dear Doris: Fifteen years ago in England a civil official proclaimed us husband and wife. Afterwards, we settled down in Canada and became Canadian citizens.

Are we, according to Canadian law, a married couple? Do we need a divorce to dissolve this union? — Puzzled

Dear Puzzled: If you don't, there are a great many innocent Britishers living in sin in this fair land of ours.

Indeed you are very much married. There is reciprocity between Great Britain and Canada, between the United States and Canada and a number of other countries, when it comes to recognizing marriage vows as binding.

Interesting Tips for Those on Diets

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: You gave me exactly what I needed: a detailed list of what to eat to reduce with all of the calories listed for each item. Any time you put in recipes for reducers that's for me. I'm working gradually to take off 50 pounds and I'm proud to say I'm succeeding. Any more hints? Loser.

ANSWER: Dear Loser: You are a brick! Yes I do have other items. I wanted to add them to that June 5th column but did not have the space.

Make a mug of Chicken Bouillon by measuring 2 tsps. chicken bouillon cordial into a mug. Add 1 cup boiling water and salt. It contains only 12 calories and will ease your hunger and tastes wonderful.

To make Orange Jelly soak 2 pkgs. plain gelatine in ½ cup cold water 5 min. Add 2 cups boiling water and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Add one 12-oz. can fresh frozen orange juice concentrate and stir to blend. Pour into mould and chill. This contains approximately 180 calories and will make 6 servings. So if you make it for yourself and make it last for six desserts you will be having only about 30 calories per serving. Cover leftover orange jelly tightly with Saran and keep chilled.

Many years ago there was a fad reducing diet that included hard cooked eggs and bananas. These are both high calorie foods but the hard-cooked egg had one good feature: it could be ready in the refrigerator for that low moment when you are tempted to eat "no-no" foods. So try it. Hard cook three or four eggs. Then with a lead pencil write H.C. on them. Put them in the rack on your refrigerator door. When you are tempted beyond your endurance peel one and eat it, sprinkling a average egg contains 75 calories. Add little salt on it if desired. An orie.

Nationalism Dominates Quebec Rally

QUEBEC (CP) — Nationalist speeches by the three leading candidates for the Union Nationale party leadership Friday night marked the last public campaigning before voting gets under way today.

Marcel Masse, Gabriel Loubier and Mario Beaulieu, whose nationalist views had already been expressed when they were ministers in the former Union Nationale Quebec government, restated them Friday night before about 2,000 party supporters at the opening session of the leadership convention.

Pierre Sevigny and Andre Leveille, the underdog candidates, were the only ones to take strong stands for federalism.

Seating had been arranged for 7,000 in the sports centre at Laval University, and the light turnout for the speeches Friday night emphasized the task facing the winning candidate.

The man chosen in today's voting will have to rebuild the party's electoral base after its crushing defeat at the hands of the Liberals in last year's provincial general election.

Though the sport centre was only half full, delegates and observers waved placards and cheered their favorites.

Both Mr. Masse, a former intergovernmental affairs minister, and Mr. Beaulieu, who held the finance and immigration portfolios during a brief term in the national assembly, were mobbed by supporters following their addresses.

Mr. Masse was lifted to the shoulders of his supporters.

Mr. Loubier, former minister of tourism, fish and game who is considered the candidate of the Union Nationale "old guard," was given a noisy but more sober show of support.

Former premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand who is retiring almost two years to the day after he won the leadership, was given a 35-second ovation after a speech in which he urged the party to seek new policy directions to return to power.

He was given a color television set and Mrs. Bertrand was presented with a bouquet of roses.

Mr. Bertrand announced shortly after the party's defeat last year that he would not lead the party into another election.

Mr. Masse, who seemed to get the loudest applause Friday evening, said only the Union Nationale can enable Quebecers to take political, economic and social control in their "fight for survival." He also said he would bring civil servants "under control" when they do not facilitate implementation of government decisions.

Mr. Beaulieu called for "new ideas," although he hardly made reference to his own record proposal for a Quebec-Canada-United States common market. He also attacked the Liberal party.

Mr. Loubier blasted socialists and "hot-heads", promised to preserve the Union Nationale's "French and nationalist" character and plugged again at his law-and-order theme.

Mr. Sevigny and Andre Leveille received polite applause, although Mr. Sevigny, a former minister in John Diefenbaker's cabinet, was greeted with some booing.

He has been out of political office since 1966 when he was implicated in the Gerda Munsinger sex-and-security scandal.

Mr. Leveille, who has served only one term as a backbencher, presented separatism but called for measures to protect Quebec's French language and culture.

He also tried for the leadership in 1969, polling 22 votes, compared with 1,277 for Mr. Bertrand and 928 for Jean-Guy Cardinal.

Voting begins at 2 p.m. EDT today and each ballot is expected to take 30 to 40 minutes.

Each of the province's 108 ridings is eligible to send 12 delegates—four senior, four women's and four youth—choose the leader.

There are also 18 university delegates and 17 UN members from the national assembly eligible to vote.

Poor Attendance 'Upsets' Speaker

TORONTO (CP) — Poor attendance by members of the Ontario legislature has "upset" Speaker Fred Cass to the point where he intends to complain to Premier William Davis.

Mr. Cass told the legislature Friday it was deplorable that at one point in Thursday's session only nine of the 117 MPPs were present in the House.

"I think that those who make speeches in this House on the budget debate are entitled to the attendance and attention of a few more of us," he said.

Earlier, Eddie Sargent (Lambton-Kent-Middlesex) said "we have come to the point where this government is so completely disorganized no one knows what is going on."

"There is no one here to run the government," he said, "PMs there we should abolish the sittings or they (members) should shape up or ship out because we are getting fed up with no one being in the House."

Mr. Sargent said at one point Thursday there were only two government MPPs present and four opposition members, including himself.

Arthur Wishart, financial and commercial affairs minister and government House leader, said most of the 24 cabinet ministers should be excused from being absent Thursday.

He said that in the afternoon a special committee on legislation was meeting and in the evening a special meeting of the cabinet was held until after midnight.

Mr. Cass agreed that the "cabinet was busy last evening . . . but after all there are also another 100 members."

Alex Carruthers, Conservative whip, said outside the House it "is very difficult to justify the remarks of the Speaker."

"He certainly shouldn't be critical of the members because they are working long arduous hours."

He said at the same time the legislature was sitting a committee was also meeting grib more than a dozen MPPs attending.

Provincial Quilt A Joint Effort

As part of their grade six experience classes, Laurie Sills, right, and Laurie Timbrell, left, of Harmony School near Corbyville, joined Mrs. Doug Sills and other mothers and grandmothers who came to claim yesterday. The children designed the provincial flowers; others painted the cloth surfaces and the sheets were then sewn together. Fine embroidery put the finishing touches to the project. As well as work on the quilt, students have been involved in cookery, art, and they hope to visit Upper Canada Village before school ends for the summer.

Evidence Indicates Hanoi Privy to U. S. War Plans

NEW YORK (AP) — How secret were the plans of U.S. leaders for deepening the American involvement in the Vietnam war?

There is evidence that the North Vietnamese and their Viet Cong allies in the South know a good deal about U.S. plans, operations, prospects and weaknesses. In any case, the evidence suggests that Hanoi may have known more about such things than the American public.

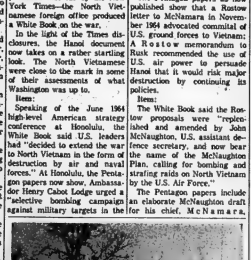
As far back as July 10, 1965—which is in the period covered by the secret Pentagon papers published thus far by the New York Times—the North Vietnamese foreign office produced a White Book on the war.

In the light of the Times disclosures, the Hanoi document now takes on a rather startling look. The North Vietnamese were close to the mark in some of their assessments of what Washington was up to.

Item:

Speaking of the June 1964 high-level American strategy conference at Honolulu, the White Book said U.S. leaders had "decided to extend the war to North Vietnam in the form of destruction by air and naval forces." At Honolulu, the Pentagon papers now show, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge urged a "selective bombing campaign against military targets in the North" to bolster Southern morale. He was supported, the Pentagon papers show, by Robert S. McNamara and Dean Rusk.

Item:



The White Book said at one point: "Since the beginning of 1964 the U.S. ruling circles have many times discussed the policy of extending the war to North Vietnam. The strategists of the U.S. White House and Pentagon have worked out many plans on this question, of which Plan No. 6 by Walt W. Rostow, the chairman of the policy planning staff of the U.S. State Department, is the most noteworthy."

The Pentagon papers as now published show that a Rostow letter to McNamara in November 1964 advocated committal of U.S. ground forces to Vietnam; A Rostow memorandum to McNaughton, U.S. assistant defence secretary, and now bear the name of the McNaughton Plan, calling for bombing and strafing raids on North Vietnam by the U.S. Air Force."

The Pentagon papers include an elaborate McNaughton draft for his chief, McNamara, sketching a "proposed course of action" which would include stepped up air strikes on the North and an important role for U.S. "combat support" personnel. It was dated March 24, 1965.

The White Book of 1965 expressed deep suspicion of the U.S. taking "new and very cynical and dangerous steps in their policy of war adventure."

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, in retrospect, seem to have been rather expert in judging their antagonists' weaknesses and prospects.

Two U. S. Newspapers Now Under Court Order

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Both the New York Times and the Washington Post were under court order today not to publish further articles based on the secret Pentagon study on the origins of the Vietnam war.

The Times had cited The Post's publication of excerpts from the study Friday in an effort to end legal restraints on continued publication of its own stories.

But a 2-to-1 decision by the United States Court of Appeals in Washington early today reversed a ruling by District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell and ordered The Post to halt publication of its projected series after today's instalment.

When the Appeals court issued its order, early copies of today's edition of The Post were on the street with its second instalment on the report.

In New York, District Court Judge Murray I. Gurfein said Friday he would reserve decision overnight on whether to grant the federal government a preliminary injunction extending the prohibition against The Times or whether to allow the paper to resume its series.

The restraining order against The Times was issued Tuesday with an expiration time of 1 p.m. EDT today.

The Times printed three articles of its series beginning last Sunday before the government obtained the restraining order from Gurfein.

In defending its decision to publish material from the 47 volume study for former defence secretary Robert S. McNamara in 1967-68, The Times said its material is not in the classified national security or current military or political operations. Rather, the paper contended, it was publishing an "historical record."

But the government continued to maintain that the "top secret-sensitive" study on the origins of the Vietnam war and policy decisions made before President Johnson sought to negotiate a peace could still compromise military plans.

At one point, Gurfein said he thought the press could "sit down with the justice department and screen these articles to determine whether publication of any of them is or is not inimical to the security of the United States."

The Times' lawyer, Alexander M. Bickel of Yale University, protested that the length of articles made the procedure impractical and that, in any case, it was clearly inconsistent with the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press.

Deputy State Undersecretary William B. Macomber, testifying for the government, contended publication of excerpts would destroy the confidence of foreign governments in their ability to deal confidentially with Washington.

Dennis Doolin, deputy defence secretary for internal security, testified that McNamara had ordered the study "to see what we did right and what we did wrong."

While not everything in the study was top secret, the top secret-sensitive classification was decided on because there was much material in every volume," he added.

The Post's story Friday said the Pentagon study asserts there was no connivance in 1954 between the United States and Saigon to prevent elections through which Vietnam was agreed to at the Geneva Conference.

The story in today's editions of The Post said the Pentagon documents showed that Johnson administration strategists had little expectation that the pauses in the bombing of North Vietnam between 1965 and 1968 would produce talks, but believe they would "help placate domestic and world opinion."

There were these other developments:

—A spokesman for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Mass., said it received a grant Friday from Daniel Ellsberg, a former Pentagon official who was identified by several sources as the man who leaked the study to The Times, saying he was well, and at an undisclosed location.

—Representative Paul N. McCloskey Jr. (Rep. Calif.) said Ellsberg had given him copies of documents "more than a month ago, but he didn't know if they were from the same study. Dickel told Gurfein that McCloskey was planning to introduce the entire study into the Congressional Record.

—The Viet Cong charged that The Times stories proved that the United States had carefully planned aggression in Vietnam "throughout the time of Truman, Eisenhower, Johnson and Nixon." The broadcast by the Viet Cong radio, did not mention the late John F. Kennedy.

—In Canberra, Australian Prime Minister William McMahon said The Times articles affected his country only "at the edges" and he declined to say whether a document cabled in which South Vietnam asked for Australian aid.

—Former president Lyndon B. Johnson issued a statement, which said the manuscript for his memoirs may book on his White House years was complete and would not be changed as a result of the disclosure of the Pentagon papers.

—Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, president and publisher of The Times, said in an interview with the New York Post that he was surprised that the Nixon administration had taken court action against The Times.

Sulzberger said he was "startled" by the move because "I happen to think that he (Nixon) is trying to get us out of the war.

"It just doesn't make sense to me."

Constitution Changes Agreeable to Davis

BRAMPTON (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis said Friday night he expects the Ontario cabinet to approve a charter of proposed constitutional changes by the deadline of June 28.

Premier Davis said the charter on constitutional reform compiled this week at a conference in Victoria of provincial and federal leaders may turn out to be one of the most significant accomplishments of the last 50 years.

The federal and provincial governments gave themselves a deadline of June 28 for acceptance or rejection of the charter.

If all governments approve the package of proposed changes, ratification will be sought in Parliament and all 10 legislatures.

It could be came away from the Victoria conference "satisfied that Ontario's points of views were by and large met."

Income Taxes to Come Down in '72

Man in Street Aided and Hurt

First the good news.

Good, that is, if you're on the side of the street taking in lower-to-middle income brackets and where the pay cheque comes basically from one source — your immediate employer.

"All taxpayers who claim married status and whose income is from wages and salaries will pay less tax in 1972 than they do at the present time," Finance Minister E. J. Benson said in his Commons budget speech.

"Taxpayers filing as single whose income is from employment will pay less than at present on incomes of $8,000 or less."

There was good news for virtually everyone in Mr. Benson's announcement that as of July 1 the three-per-cent surcharge on personal income tax exceeding $200 is being scrapped.

People with taxable incomes of $500 or less are being stricken from the taxpaying category. Mr. Benson says this will remove 750,000 taxpayers from the list immediately. There are about 8.5 million income tax payers.

There are some other goodies.

The 15-per-cent sales tax on radios, television sets and hi-fi sets is being abolished, a move Mr. Benson says should cut about $75 from the cost of a $500 color TV.

Basic personal income tax exemptions go up—to $1,500 from $1,000 for a single person and to $2,850 from $2,000 for the married taxpayer. This is the first change in this category for 20 years. The $500 exemption for persons aged 70 or more is being raised to $650 and extended to age 65.

Others include a basic exemption of $150 for wage earners against the cost of clothes, tools or other outlays involved in holding their job. As with the basic flat-rate exemption for clothing, no receipts are required.

And there is a child-care exemption—up to $500 a child to a limit of $2,000 a year a family. Mr. Benson says this should meet complaints of women who said costs of child care prevented them from entering the labor market. Taxpayers claiming jobs can deduct moving expenses.

There is also some questionable matter that probably will tend to confuse those trying to figure out whether they're far ahead or behind under the new system. Parliamentary opposition has pounced on them.

For example, employer contributions to medical care insurance programs and pension plans become income and therefore taxable — for wage earners.

Unemployment insurance is being widened by new legislation, meaning a whole new group of Canadians—persons exempt—will start paying weekly premiums. The premiums will be tax deductible, but the benefits to jobless will be taxed.

An exemption was announced for the bonuses some employees get for working at remote sites where it is not feasible for them to move their families.

Capital gains become taxable, at half the rate of each taxpayer's personal level.

But the taxpayer's home and up to an acre of surrounding land are specifically exempt, meaning that the major outlay for most Canadians, and one of the few payouts on which he could expect to make a profit by resale, won't be subject to tax.

The capital gains tax does hit hard at the non-average side of the street, among those who have piled up some capital and invested it in areas formerly untaxed.

But in adopting the half rate for capital gains as opposed to the full rate suggested by the royal commission on taxation sparking the whole tax reform program, the government has eased the pain here as well.

Finally, tax deductions are to vanish for membership fees in dining or recreation clubs, or for expenses related to a yacht, camp, lodge or golf course.

White Paper Made Mild

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has backed far away from its original aim of transforming Canadian tax law and settled instead for a milder scheme that leaves much of the rates and rules of the existing system.

The only fundamentally new tax in legislation outlined Friday by Finance Minister Edgar Benson is a levy on capital gains, but that would be only half as heavy as originally proposed in the tax white paper of Nov. 7, 1969.

Gone altogether is the keystone of the 1969 proposals—the so-called integration plan that would have applied the same tax on business profits whether held by corporations or taken as personal income by owners.

In essence, all the major features of the 1969 proposals that enraged the business community and aroused some opposition in governments have been dropped or significantly moderated.

Among them, is the 1969 proposal to do away with a special low rate of corporate tax. It will be retained in modified form and applied more strictly only to smaller businesses.

Also gone is the proposal to tax a person's paper gains on corporate shares every five years, an idea of the white paper.

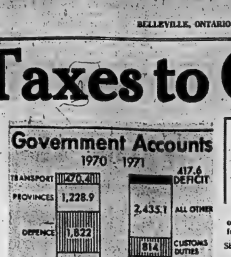
Expense-account tax deductions would be more liberal than first proposed.

Mr. Benson made clear repeatedly in outlining the revised plan that the government's change of tack was inspired by the criticism of the business community and some provinces.

In the process of changing direction, the government also shuffled its objective for the tax system.

First on the list of goals in the 1969 white paper was "a fair distribution of the tax burden based on ability to pay," with the secondary aim to interfere as little as possible with economic growth. Use of tax incentives to special interests ranked third.

In his speech Friday, Mr. Benson changed the ranking — economic goals first, fairness second.



"Despite the many changes in our social and economic structure," he said, "we must continue to look to the private sector and to business organization to provide the jobs for our rapidly growing labor force and to produce the income required to finance our growing appetite for goods and services."

Announcing reduced rates of tax for corporations, the minister said he was sure that would make Canada "a most attractive place in which to invest, grow and prosper."

Business taxes in general would be largely a carbon copy of effective rates in the United States, an official said, especially in the key areas of corporation taxes, levies on capital gains and in incentives to invest in productive enterprises.

In the original white paper, the systems would have been different from those of the United States.

Government Accounts 1970 — 1971

Where Money Went

Bars show where the federal government spent its money and where the money came from in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1971. White Paper released Wednesday shows expenditures were $13,186.6 million and revenues $12,769 million leaving a $417.6 million deficit. Welfare includes health and welfare department, unemployment insurance commission and welfare section of veterans affairs department. (CP Newsmap)

Benson Finds Friend In Robert Thompson

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson's budget found one friend — but apparently only one — in opposition ranks Friday night.

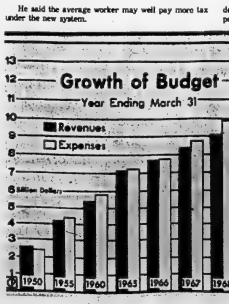
In an interview, Mr Thompson said "this budget is a great improvement over the white paper and certainly represents a positive step and I must give Mr. Benson credit for that though it's taken a long time to come."



But official spokesmen for all three opposition parties blasted the budget.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield told reporters the budget would be of no immediate value in fighting unemployment or in stimulating the economy.

He declined to assess the long-run implications of the budget and proposed tax changes until he had had time to study them.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis rejected Finance Minister Benson's assertion that the government's planned changes will produce a more equitable system of taxation.

He said the average worker may well pay more tax under the new system.

Growth of Budget

Preliminary 1970-71 federal government figures show continuing budget growth. Expenditures in all the year ended March 31, 1971, were $13,186.6 million, compared with $11,931.3 million in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1970. Revenues were up $12,769 million from $12,232.9 in the previous fiscal year. White paper was tabled in the Commons Wednesday. (CP Newsmap)

Dec. 31, 1971—Federal gift and estate taxes abolished.

Jan. 1, 1972—These tax changes:

Basic individual tax exemption increased to $1,500 from $1,000, and married exemption to $2,850 from $2,000.

—Child care expenses deductible up to $500 for each child under 14, with a $2,000 family maximum.

—Special exemption increased to $650 from $500 for those age 65 and over, the disabled and blind.

—Employment expenses up to $150 a year deductible without receipts.

—Limits raised on allowable deductions for contributions to pension and retirement plans.

—Half of capital gains to be taxed, with half of capital losses allowable.

—Corporate general tax rate imposed at 50 per cent, reducing in stages to 46 per cent in 1976.

—Tax rate of 25 per cent applied to small businesses within certain income limitations.

—Dividend tax credit to shareholders of Canadian corporations increased to one-third from 20 per cent.

—Corporations allowed to deduct from taxable income the interest on money borrowed to buy shares of other corporations.

—Initial federal income tax rate of 17 per cent begins to be reduced progressively to six per cent by 1976.

—Unrealized capital gains to be taxed at taxpayer's death, with private homes exempt.

1977—Federal tax on mining profits reduced to 25 from 40 per cent to allow for provincial mining taxes.

Capital Gains Taxed

The capital gains tax will apply to both personal incomes and corporate profits. Where capital gains contribute to corporation profits, they will be taxed at half ordinary income rates—which are to be 50 per cent, scaled down in four years to 46 per cent.

Corporations will be able to offset capital losses against capital gains. Personal income tax payers will be able to do the same and also deduct up to $1,000 of capital losses a year from their other income.

The gains will be taxed when an asset is sold and profit realized, or when the asset is given as a gift. It will also apply when a taxpayer dies. With these rules, federal gift and estate taxes will be eliminated effective Dec. 31, 1971.

Sometime before the new tax plan takes effect, the government will set a Valuation Day. Only the gains realized after that date will be taxed. If a capital asset is valued at below cost on that date, the cost value will be taken as the starting figure for tax purposes.

The new tax system discards the white paper's proposals to integrate corporation and personal income taxes and make a distinction between closely-held and widely-held corporations.

Instead, the present 20-per-cent dividend tax credit for recipients of dividends from taxable Canadian corporations will be increased to 33.3 per cent. It is then counted both as income and as a credit against taxes. This credit becomes more valuable for lower-income shareholders.

How Dollar Is Spent

| | 1970-71 | 1971-72 |
|---|---|---|
| Revenue | 12,769 | 13,660 |
| Expenditure | 13,187 | 14,410 |
| Deficit | 418 | 750 |

How a dollar is being spent in 1971-72:

Defence, 12.7 cents.
Health and welfare, 24.8.
Education assistance, 3.9.
Economic development, 14.5.
Transfer payments to provinces, 9.
Transport, 7.
Public debt, 13.8.
Others, 14.3.

Exemptions Will Be Raised

OTTAWA (CP) — The personal income tax rates proposed by Finance Minister Edgar Benson to take effect next Jan. 1 will spread the tax burden more evenly across the board.

Basic exemptions will be raised to $1,500 from $1,000 for single taxpayers, and to $2,850 from $2,000 for married taxpayers. The present $100 exemption for each taxpayer in lieu of itemized medical expenses and charitable donation receipts will still be added to these basic exemptions.

Current exemptions for dependants are also to be maintained at $300 each for children under 16 and $550 each for dependants 16 and over. The $500 exemption for persons aged 70 and older is to be increased to $650 and the qualifying age reduced to 65.

New child care allowances of $500 a child, with a limit of $2,000 a family, are to be introduced. There will be allowances for employment expenses—a three per cent of income up to $150 a year.

A new scale of income tax rates will be applied on the tax table income base after all these exemptions are taken.

If it could be shown on a graph—and it can't because of many varying factors that make it almost three-dimensional—the scale of new tax rates would appear to rise more gradually.

From the higher base of exemptions, the new rate starts at 22.1 per cent for the first $500 of taxable income and rises up to a peak of 61.1 per cent for all income in excess of $60,000.

At $9,000 a year after deductions, a taxpayer will pay $2,328.50 in combined federal and provincial income taxes, and 35.1 per cent of the next $2,000 of income.

Federal officials say the rate at which the new taxes climb with rising income is more moderate than that in Mr. Benson's white paper tax proposals in November, 1969.

The new rates do not include the present three-per-cent anti-inflation surtax, which is being dropped July 1. It was included in the white paper proposals. Dropping it was a big saving in the middle- and upper-income brackets.

All Married Pay Less

"All taxpayers with married exemption and income solely from wages and salaries will pay less tax than at present," says a new pamphlet. Summary of 1971 Tax Reform Legislation, issued by Mr. Benson with his budget.

"Taxpayers with single exemption and employment income only will pay less tax on incomes under $8,000; above this level the tax increase will not exceed $78 a year."

Taxpayers who move because of a new job will be able to charge moving expenses against their income before taxes. The taxpayer's new residence must be 25 miles closer to his new job.

Where employers pay living expenses for working at distant sites, more taxpayers will be able to claim exemption. Such payments hitherto were regarded in many cases as a form of income and taxed.

But other allowances will be taxed as part of normal income. These include adult training allowances, unemployment insurance benefits, scholarships and bursaries in excess of $500 and employer contributions to public medical care insurance plans.

The big addition to taxable income will be one-half of a taxpayer's earnings on the sale of capital assets—in other words, capital gains. Capital losses will be allowed as an offset.

The capital gains tax will not apply to a taxpayer's residence and up to one acre of land around it. But it will apply to such goods as art treasures, worth $1,000 or more, which might be expected to increase in value over the years.

Taxpayers who normally expect to have sharply-increased income from year-to-year —such as farmers, fishermen, authors, and sports and entertainment personalities—will have a choice of two plans by which they can gauge their income for tax purposes.

National revenue department computers will automatically carry out one form of averaging. Another can be done by the taxpayer by putting his big earnings one year into an annuity which will smooth out his earnings in future years.

Limits on how much a taxpayer can divert from taxable income into registered pension plans or registered retirement savings plans are being increased. The registered retirement savings plan limit will be $4,000 a year, or 20 per cent of earned income. It now is $2,500.

Corporation Tax Cut

The general corporation profits rate will start at 50 per cent and drop by one percentage point a year to 46 per cent. But privately owned Canadian corporations will have a special rate of 25 per cent on the first $50,000 of their taxable income each year until they have consumed $400,000 worth of this privilege.

The latter proposal replaces the current 21-per-cent low rate of tax on the first $35,000 of profits for all corporations. The new rate applies to profits derived back into business expansion, encouraging them to grow. It is designed to be used up when a corporation gets big enough to sell its shares on the stock market.

The three-year tax holiday for new mines will be ended, as scheduled, Jan. 1, 1974.

But mining companies will be permitted to charge as an expense before taxes a larger share of their expenditures on plant facilities, including townsite facilities such as sewage plants, roads, schools and hospitals. This more rapid write-off will also apply to expansions, where capacity is increased by at least 25 per cent.

After 1976, mining and petroleum companies will have to earn allowances for the consumption of their mineral bodies at the rate of $1 of depletion allowance for every $3 spent on new exploration and development.

Last of Little Men, Stewart Retires from Rough Riders

OTTAWA (CP) — After 13 years of starring with Ottawa Rough Riders, Ronnie Stewart announced Friday he is retiring from professional football.

He told a news conference, football would take him away too long from his job as special assistant to Health Minister John Monro. And besides he was "running out of steam."

Rider coach Jack Gotta expressed regret at losing the 36-year-old halfback who still holds the Canadian record for the most yards gained rushing in a single game—287 against Montreal Alouettes in 1960.

"We just don't get guys like him coming down the pike," Gotta said.

Frank Clair, now general manager of the Riders, coached Stewart through most of his career. In Clair's mind, he was the best player he had ever handled.

Stewart, a native of Toronto, was a small man as football players go, 5'8", But that didn't stop him from becoming one of the Canadian game's best blockers as well as top-notch ball carrier and scorer.

Since coming to the Riders from Queen's University, Stewart had won just about every honor the Canadian Football League has to offer.

He's been an all-star again and again, he was named the country's outstanding honebrew in 1960 and belongs to the exclusive club of footballers who have gained in excess of 1,000 yards rushing in one season.

In 1960, when the Riders beat Edmonton Eskimos to win the Grey Cup, he was named the game's best player.

Many who saw him score two key touchdowns against Saskatchewan Roughriders in the 1969 Grey Cup game figured he was the top player that day too. But most sportswriters saw it differently and named Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson.

Red O'Quinn, now general manager at Montreal but a former Rider general manager, thinks Stewart may be the last of the small men in Canadian football.

"There may be the occasional one who's a specialist—a flanker back or someone who runs back punts. But you'll rarely find a small man in the backfield."

Stewart, a swinging bachelor, had a reputation among his team-mates as a ladies man.

"You can always pick Stewie out of a crowd," one Rider said at a Rider victory banquet in 1968.

Cowan All Smiles After Assuming Driver's Seat

Cowan, a 32-year-old Kitchener, Ont., insurance salesman, had a one-stroke lead over two Toronto professionals—George Knudson, the first-round leader and Jack Kay.

Cowan was 138, four under par, after 36 holes of the 54-hole tournament. The final round has been cut to the top 60 and ties. A total of 71 players will compete.

At stake is $16,000 in prize money, including $3,000 to the winner.

Cowan took the lead after several professionals had problems in the second round.

Tallon Among Team Contenders

TORONTO (CP) — Gary Cowan of Kitchener practically assured himself a berth on Ontario's Willingdon Cup amateur team Friday when he took the lead in the Ontario open golf championship with a four-under-par 138.

Should Cowan win the Open, he would gain an automatic position on Ontario's team for the Willingdon Cup, emblematic of the Canadian amateur championship, scheduled for Halifax later this year.

Otherwise, the team will be chosen from the best four scores after 36 rounds of the Open and another 36 in the amateur July 14-16 in Toronto.

Ken Dolg of Seaforth was at 145 and Dan Hamilton of Brampton had 146.

Three players were at 147—Jack Lavery of St. Catharines, Dale Tallon, the rookie defenceman with Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League, and Kelly Roberts, a promising 17-year-old from Milton.

There were three more at 148 —Leo Bradshaw and Wayne McDonald of Toronto, and Bob Barrett of Georgetown.

There were five more at 149, including Nick Weslock, the Mississauga golfer who has represented Ontario more than anyone else.

Palmer, Nicklaus Feuding

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — Bob Erickson, a 45-year-old outsider, and 30-year-old Jim Colbert were co-leaders of the U.S. open golf championship today, but all eyes were on the two all-time golfing greats, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, feuding both on and off the course.

Erickson, of Sanford, Fla., and Colbert, of Overland Park, Kan., started today's third round with 36-hole scores of two-under-par 138, one stroke ahead of Jerry McGee, two up on Gay Brewer, and three over Palmer and Nicklaus.

The field of 150 starters was cut at a 36-hole total of 148, with 65 survivors of Merion's killing rough, 126 bunkers and merciless greens.

Palmer, golf's greatest money-winner, checked in with a two-under-par 68. He was happy with his game, but angry about it taking five hours to play a 6,544-yard, par-70 course, and he blamed it on Nicklaus.

"I understand Jack's group was 23 to 25 minutes behind the group in front of them. They should be told."

Palmer was egged on by a question on the pin placements. He was told what Nicklaus had said. "That's Merion," said the 41-year-old belter from Latrobe, Pa.

"The placements weren't anymore severe than other places we play on the tour. I look at pin placements like this every week. I don't think we complain about them any more as long as they're on the green."

While Palmer and Nicklaus were making the news in the press tent, Erickson and Colbert confined their activity to the golf course.

Erickson shot 35-33—68, including four birdies. He didn't miss any short putts despite Merion's subtle breaks.

Colbert shot a 36-33—69, including four birdies. He didn't miss any short putts despite Merion's subtle breaks.

Mahovlich, Bergman Team-mates Again – But Not in Hockey

WOODBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Frank Mahovlich of Montreal Canadiens and Gary Bergman of Detroit Red Wings will become team-mates once again next week-but in golf, not hockey.

They are defending champions in the American Airlines—National Hockey League Players' Association golf tournament, scheduled June 24-27 at the Board of Trade Country Club in this community just northwest of Toronto.

They will be challenged by 56 NHL players, four from each of the league's 14 clubs.

The Canadiens' contingent includes Mahovlich's brother Peter.

Others entered in the tournament include Boston Bobby Orr, Stan Mikita, Chicago, Brad Park, New York, Gary Unger, St. Louis; Norm Ullman, Toronto; and Vancouver's Dale Tallon, who competed this week in the Ontario Open golf championship.

Bob Stimpson of Ottawa and Lane Bickel and Mickey Batten, both of Montreal, were tied at 70 in the 145-entry field.

Among the surprises were the failures of defending champion Claude Dufour of Montreal and last year's runner-up Graham Zelmer of Ottawa to make the 72 cut to continue play. Each had 80s.

No Detours Anticipated For Kennedy Road

TORONTO (CP) — Three horses hold the spotlight in today's 113th running of the Queen's Plate but for the second year in a row E. P. Taylor's Windfields Farm will not have an entry.

Two other Toronto-owned horses are expected to provide the main opposition—Charles Bathgate's Speedy Zephyr and George Gardiner's Chatty Carrier. The rest of the nine-horse field, smallest since 1964, is given an outside chance.

The chartreuse and gold polka dot silks of Taylor's Windfields Farm have not entered the winner's circle since 1964 with Northern Dancer. Fans have to go back to 1960 even to find a Taylor-bred horse in the winner's circle. That was the year Tilled Hero, son of Canadian Champ and owned by Peter Marshall, outran Coon Smythe's Rye and Near in the stretch.

The next three years, Taylor's entries finished out of the money and last year Windfields did not have a Plate entry for the first time since the 1940s.

But even without a Taylor entry, the small field that will take part in the historic race at Woodbine racetrack, the fact there are no entries from Western Canada, and that owners Warren Beasley, J. Louis Levesque of Montreal and the Bregram Stable are not competing, the race still has created interest with the emergence of Kennedy Road.

Kennedy Road's convincing 7¾-length victory in the second division of the 1 1-16-mile Plate Trial last Sunday has made him the even-money favorite. The three-year-old colt will be ridden by Sandy Hawley, most successful jockey in North America last season and among the leaders this year with 116 wins.

Chatty Cavalier, trained by Lou Cavalaris and ridden by Bob Unserry, is the 3-to-1 second choice while Speedy Zephyr, ridden by Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B. and trained by Les Lear, is a 4-to-1 third choice.

The winner will receive $54,288.75 of the total purse of $90,481 and $23,775, second place is worth $18,775, third $8,287.50 and fourth $4,162.75.

Filion Wants Own Winner

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite his success as a driver on North American harness tracks over the last few years, Herve Filion of Angers, Que., has yet to develop and race a champion standardbred of his own.

But Filion hopes to correct all that when he drives his own 3-year-old, Nansemond, in Sunday's $75,000 Prix d'Eté at Blue Bonnets Raceway.

This might have already been Filion's year, but another 3-year-old, Albatross, keeps popping up in the same races.

In three meetings so far, twice at Roosevelt and once at Brandywine, it has been the same story—Albatross the winner, with Nansemond second.

For Sunday's classic, Albatross is rated at 1-3 favorite with Nansemond the runner-up choice at 3-1.

But Filion refuses to accept the odds.

"I know Albatross is a tremendous colt, but I think Nansemond can beat him," Filion said Friday. "It may take a while but my big ambition this year is to beat Albatross with Nansemond."

Moon-Golfing Taken Off Agenda

HOUSTON (AP) — There'll be no more golfing on the moon, or any other games either, said Apollo 15 Commander David R. Scott Friday. The boss has said no.

Scott, who will be launched toward the moon on July 26, said he and fellow crew members James B. Irwin won't take the time to hit a golf ball or throw a spear, as did the Apollo 14 moon walkers.

"We had a neatsy thing cooked up, too," said the boyish astronaut. "We can't do it now because it would take time. I'd like to, but I guess we owe the scientific community all we can give them."

Scott said astronaut chief Donald K. (Deke) Slayton took a firm stand against any unscheduled moon-walker games and against taking any personal items to the moon and back, a frequent practice of previous missions.

During Apollo 1' last February, astronauts Alan Shepard and Ed Mitchell toted the lone moon gravity with golf balls and an improvised spear.

Pirates Survive Expos' Hardest Shots

Pittsburgh Pirates took Montreal's best shots, including a grand-slam home run by John Bateman, but still got in the last licks for an 11-inning 9-8 victory Friday night over the Expos.

Asst Dan Francisco Giants, floored by Bob Barton's grand slam in the top of the ninth inning, held back a San Diego Padres with a five-run flurry in the bottom half to complete a 7-3, 7-0 doubleheader sweep over the Padres.

Dave Cash and Richie Hebner supplied the Pirates' counter-punch with successive pinch-hitting homers to cap a tying four-run rally before Gene Clines lashed a base-clearing triple in the 11th and Cash delivered the knockout blow with a single.

Dick Dietz' pinch-double with two out and the bases jammed in the ninth at San Francisco sent home two runs and the winner scored when centre fielder Clarence Gaston let the hit slip through for an error.

New York Mets blanked Philadelphia Phillies 2-0 on Gary Gentry's two-hitter. Los Angeles Dodgers trimmed Houston Astros 5-4; Cincinnati Reds downed Atlanta Braves 6-1 and Chicago Cubs bombed St. Louis Cardinals 15-5 in other NL action.

Bateman's bases-loaded homer—first ever at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium—sank a two-run wallop by Bob Bailey gave the Expos an 8-4 cushion going into the last of the ninth.

JOHN BATEMAN

But Manny Sanguillen's double and a one-out single by Bill Mazeroski got one run across for the Pirates before Cash drilled his second homer of the season and Hebner followed with his seventh, sending the game into extra innings.

Chines tripled to open the Pirates 11th against reliever Claude Raymond and held third as Mazeroski fled to short right field. Cash then smacked the next pitch into right for the winning hit.

Bobby Bonds stroked four of his seven hits, including his 19th homer, as the Giants breezed past San Diego in their twilight opener behind the six-hit pitching of Juan Marichal.

The Giants, leaders in the West Division, struggled from behind in the second game to take a 5-4 lead into the ninth. But Nate Colbert hit a tying leadoff homer and the Padres filled the bases on Ollie Brown's single, a walk and Gary Jestadt's sacrifice bunt. Barton then unloaded them with his grand slam for a 8-5 San Diego lead.

Chris Speier launched the Giants' counter-attack with a double. Singles by Tito Fuentes, Bonds, Ken Henderson and Fra Healy and in two runs, leaving the bases full with two out and setting the stage for Dietz.

Ken Singleton's two-run homer in the second inning decided the New York duel between Gentry and the Phils' Ken Reynolds.

The Dodgers nailed their sixth victory in seven games on Wes Parker's two-run single in the seventh, which snapped a 3-3 tie.

Billy Williams, Ron Santo and Jim Hickman crashed two-run homers and knocked in three runs apiece in all as the Cubs stormed to a 13-6 lead after five innings and handed St. Louis its 10th setback in 11 games.

Judge Denies Owner Due

OAKLAND (AP) — A trial judge set aside a $2,500 award Friday to William Cutler, Portland Beavers owner, in a $100,500 breach of contract suit against Charles O. Finley, owner of Oakland Athletics.

"This is a contract matter which should not have been before a jury," Superior Court Judge Leonard Dieden told the eight-man jury after their 6-2 vote to award Cutler the money.

Dieden said he could not understand why it came in with a $13,500 verdict because "the contract is clear and unambiguous."

Cutler testified he was administrative assistant to Joe Cronin, in November, 1967, when he signed a contract with Finley to be front office manager for the Athletics.

He said the four-year agreement called for a starting salary of $27,000 a year with $1,000 yearly increases in a job overseeing all Oakland Athletics' front office functions.

Finley testified Cutler was hired to serve as a consultant for public relations.

Cutler said he refused that job and a subsequent assignment as farm director.

He said Finley fired him in 1968 the rest of the year because work the rest of it to year because it was "too late to get another baseball job."

Cutler's complaint, filed May 5, 1969, said he worked as a Montreal Expos scout in 1969 for an $8,000 salary.

He was paid $18,000 as general manager of Portland Beavers in the Pacific Coast League in 1970 and now is owner and operator of the club. Robert Burnside, Cutler's attorney, was granted a request to file motions contending the jury's verdict should stand. He contended that Judge Dieden had indicated to the jurors that he had prejudged the case.

Dieden said he would rule on the defence challenge within 30 days.

Soccer on All Fronts

A crowd of 14,420 saw the Italian team score after 15 minutes on an easy header by outside left Fabio Enzo.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — St. Catharines Heidelberg Nationals came up short in their third straight victory in defeating London German Canadians 2-0 in National Soccer League action Friday night.

It was London's fifth loss against three victories and left them in 10th place after Toronto Olympia defeated Hungaria 2-0 in the only other game played Friday night to move a point past the Germans.

CFL to Get Halifax Bid

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — A Canadian Football League franchise bid from a Halifax group will be presented to commissioner Jake Gaudaur at Grey Cup time this fall, J. I. Albrech said at a news conference Friday.

If the proposal is accepted, the team would be in operation by 1972, he said.

Beanball Duel Touches Off Brawl

Detroit Tigers' and Cleveland Indians, after attacking each other with baseballs for most of the game, finally went at it with fists in the eighth inning of Cleveland's 7-0 victory at which umpire Jim Honochick called "the bloodiest fight on a baseball field I've seen in 23 years."

The brawl started when Cleveland's Ray Fosse was hit by a pitch and charged Tiger hurler Bill Denehy. When order was restored, Fosse and teammate Gomer Hodge were ejected, along with Detroit's Denehy, Willie Horton and Ike Brown. Fosse needed a few stitches to close a cut on his hand and also was cut about the neck.

Elsewhere in be American League, Oakland Athletics dumped Milwaukee Brewers 6-2, Baltimore Orioles erased a four-run deficit and beat New York Yankees 6-4, for Mike Cuellar's ninth straight win. Washington Senators downed Boston Red Sox 8-5, Kansas City Royals trimmed California Angels 6-1 and Minnesota Twins edged Chicago White Sox 4-3.

Cleveland pitchers nailed three Tigers before Denehy clipped Fosse on the ear. Hill Bill Freehan in the second inning. Ed Farmer nicked Jim Northrup in the sixth and Clay Colbert clipped Eddie Brinkman in the seventh. In addition, Horton and Cleveland's Chris Chambliss, who slammed a two-run triple in the fourth inning, had to avoid close pitches.

Chambliss followed the melee with a two-run homer. "I really wanted to hit one just to cool everybody off," he said. "The best way to get back at them is the way I did it. That hurts the most."

The Athletics scored five runs in the third inning against the Brewers and Catfish Hunter coasted to his 10th victory. Hunter also struked two run-scoring singles. Frank Tepedino homered for the Brewers.

WILLIE HORTON

Baltimore's Cuellar settled down and ran his record to 11-1 after falling behind 4-0 on thirdinning New York homers by Horace Clarke and Bobby Murcer.

Yankee catcher Thurmon Munson was knocked cold in a third-inning collision as Andy Etchebarren barrelled home with the first of three Baltimore runs.

No Sneakers in Sports Centre

OTTAWA (CP) — Not long ago an eager young man in striped running shoes padded into the luxurious new Amateur Sports Administrative Centre.

He was told in no uncertain terms that sneakers had been replaced by black oxford burnished to a dazzling sheen. If he was still wearing his sweatshirt, it was beneath his conservative suit of sombre hue.

The story may be a bit apocryphal, but it's told by Reg Sellner, public relations man for the recently opened centre, as an example of how the image of amateur sport has changed in Canada in the last years.

The centre, financed by the federal government, occupies two floors of a modern business block in suburban Vanier. It houses the head offices of 22 amateur sports federations, each with an executive director, and provides aid and facilities for 28 others not in residence.

The budget is between $300,000 and $400,000 a year, not including executive directors' salaries which are covered by separate grants.

Each sport is allotted 150 square feet of office space free. That's enough room to take care of two chairs, a desk and a low bureau. If more space is required, the federation concerned must pay rent for the additional footage.

One secretary is provided for each two federations. If more help is needed, the federation in question hires it and pays the difference.

A grant of $12,000 is made to the individual federations to cover the salary of an executive director. No restriction is placed on how this is used —the federation may pay the director $10,000 a year and earmark $2,000 for his expenses. Or it may supplement the $12,000 by as much as it thinks its man is worth.

In addition, the various sports bodies have access to a central accounting department to help keep its books straight.

Wrong Number

It was Friday the 13th for Belleville's peewee baseball representatives.

The Conductors and Trainmen peewees ran into 13 Kingston Inks Friday and absorbed a 13-5 shellacking.

Peter Hall and Clyde Routley shared the Belleville pitching duties, walking seven while registering eight strikeouts.

Kevin Scott homered and singled for Kingston.

Cards Fell Wrong For Industrial Losers

V. L. Card had a good excuse for dropping a 6-1 Industrial Softball League loss Friday to Brooks Bond: they made too many mistakes.

Losing pitcher Dennis Snell walked four batters while winner Bob Chambers didn't issue any free passes, and V. L. Card committed four errors while the winners didn't make a single miscue.

Rivers hit a pair of singles for Brooks Bond, while Sharpe paced the losers with a single and double.

Canadians Will Face New Tax Hazard When Capital Gains Become Taxable

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will wade waist-high into capital gains tax waters in 1972.

The tax, first such in Canada although imposed in countries including Britain and the U.S., grew out of meeting the recommendations of the tax white paper that called for full taxation of capital gains.

The new plan was outlined by Finance Minister E. J. Benson in his budget speech to the Commons Friday. It would apply starting Jan. 1 to profits on personal property such as stocks, paintings, antiques and other assets. But it won't apply to profits from the sale of homes as had been recommended.

Mr. Benson said the new system will begin with Valuation Day, a day on which personal assets are evaluated. This will be before Jan. 1 and it won't be announced in advance.

After that, capital gains or losses will be rated according to Valuation Day figures. Gains will be taxable.

The most important exemption is the taxpayer's home.

But for taxable property, one-half of capital gains will be included on a taxpayer's income.

This will be taxed at personal rates if the taxpayer is an individual or at corporate rates if the taxpayer is a corporation.

One-half of capital losses will be deducted from taxable capital gains. Persons may also deduct up to $1,000 of deductible capital losses from their other income.

The finance minister abandoned another white paper suggestion that called for taxation of accrued gains on listed shares every five years, substituting taxation of accrued gains at death and moving to eliminate the federal gift and estate taxes by Jan. 1.

The decision to wipe out these death duties was made to prevent double taxation of estates, Mr. Benson said.

Assets of taxpayers leaving Canada will be taxed as if they were sold. The first $5,000 of capital gains will be exempt.

But taxpayers who are transferred out of the country for short periods may defer the tax until the assets are sold. This option is also open to others giving up residence in Canada.

For personal property such as paintings and antiques, items must have a minimum value of $1,000 before they can be taxed.

The main residence of a taxpayer and one acre of surrounding land are exempted from the gains tax.

Farmers have the choice of this new plan or the white paper proposal which provided for exemption of profits of up to $1,000 annually. The white paper also allowed actual improvements or a flat $150 per year as exemptions.

The revenue department is preparing a booklet which will list taxable items and records that taxpayers should keep.

Canada Had Deficit

The federal government reports a $417.6 million deficit on its 1970-'71 fiscal year operations, compared with a $392.6 million surplus in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1970. The 1971 deficit was on expenditures of $13,186.6 million and $12,769 million revenues. (CP Newsmap)

Budget Aids Working Mothers

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson had good things to say Friday about all Canadians earning wages and salaries but he retained a special gleam in his eye for working mothers.

Among the tax reforms Mr. Benson proposed for next year are exemptions for child-care costs of up to $500 a child or $2,000 a family.

The proposed exemptions are much as originally outlined in the government white paper on tax reform but the new tax bill spells out specifically that the tax break goes to the mother if she is working and even if she earns more than her husband.

In some cases, the deduction may be claimed by the father, Mr. Benson allowed. But generally, the exemption "will go a long way towards removing a deterrent that many women say prevents them from taking jobs."

The reform is even kinder to divorced, widowed or separated mothers. A working parent with one child and no spouse would be able to claim up to $3,350 as tax-exempt compared with the present $2,000 exemption.

The principal restrictions on a claim for the child-care exemption is that it must not exceed two-thirds of the mother's income, receipts must be obtained and payments to dependents or relatives under 21 may not be included.

Almost all workers are likely to benefit from another reform brought forward from the white paper. A deduction for work-related expenses of three per cent of employment income to a maximum of $150.

Benson Says Tax Reforms Will Help Canadians to Avoid Foreign Takeovers

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson bid for support from economic nationalists Friday with argument that proposed tax reforms will encourage Canadian ownership.

The budget and proposed tax changes he announced in the Commons contained no plans for recovery of industries that have already passed into foreign hands.

But some of his proposals could put Canadians on a better footing to compete with future foreign takeovers.

Borrowing Will Double

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government plans to double its borrowing this financial year to a record sum of $2,439 million, more than double the sum raised for government programs in the past fiscal year.

That total does not include any sums that might be needed for operations on international currency exchanges in support of the Canadian dollar.

First is a decision to exempt from taxation the interest on funds raised by a Canadian corporation to buy another business.

The exemption is no more than the concession now enjoyed by U.S. corporations, its absence until now in Canada may have been a critical factor in the ability of U.S.-based McGraw-Hill Publishing Co. to outbid Maclean-Hunter Ltd. of Toronto for control of Ryerson Press earlier this year.

Another proposal may save Mr. Benson from the wrath of both nationalists and many small businessmen who have viewed the roly-poly minister with alarm since the 1969 white paper on tax reform.

Described as a special tax incentive, it would shelter small businesses from the full weight of the tax on corporate profits so long as Canadian ownership is maintained.

The incentive would replace the traditional protection for family firms and other small outfits offered up to now by the low 21-per-cent tax rate on the first $35,000 of corporate profits.

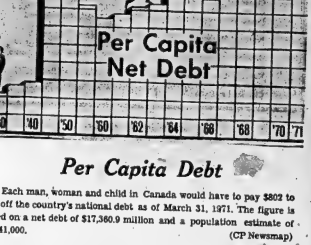
Mr. Benson's stated intention is to impose a tax of 25 per cent on the first $50,000 of profits from Canadian-owned business until such time as they have accumulated a total income of $400,000.

By then, it is reckoned, a firm will have grown large enough to be able to attract new capital from outside investors.

As originally outlined in the tax white paper, the budget also contains a lever to increase the amount of capital available for investment in Canada.

Pension funds would be required in future to limit their foreign assets to 10 per cent of their total worth. The funds would not have to repatriate their foreign investments but rather be required to build up their Canadian side of their portfolios.

The finance department believes pension funds now hold more than $100 million in foreign stocks in excess of the proposed limit. They have invested abroad to harvest greater investment earnings than exist inside Canada.



Compliance with the tax reform could make available for investment in Canada an additional $1 billion or more.

A certain element of nationalism also can be seen in Mr. Benson's plan to reduce corporation taxes to 46 per cent from 51 per cent. As he quickly pointed out, the new rate will be lower than in the U.S. and may give Canadian business a competitive advantage.

The reverse side of the move could be the new tariff protection to be provided for the petrochemical industry by higher import duties.

One change that probably does not qualify under the heading of nationalism is reduction of tax privileges for the mining and petroleum industries.

The extent to which these are dominated by foreign ownership, however, perhaps made the decision easier for the government.

Per Capita Debt

Each man, woman and child in Canada would have to pay $802 to pay off the country's national debt as of March 31, 1971. The figure is based on a net debt of $17,360.9 million and a population estimate of 21,641,000.

(CP Newsmap)

Housewives, Music-lovers and Pollution-haters All Given Reason to Cheer

OTTAWA (CP) — There is good news in Finance Minister Edgar Benson's budget for housewives, music-lovers and pollution-haters.

The finance minister Friday announced removal immediately of the sales taxes on margarine and pollution equipment and the 15-per-cent excise tax on record players, TV sets and other electronic equipment.

The tax repeals will cost the treasury an estimated $55 million annually.

The withdrawal of the 12-per-cent sales tax on margarine, which will apply to similar spreads sold under brand names, will mean an estimated $7 million annual loss in revenue.

Mr. Benson told the Commons that the margarine industry has "promised to pass on the tax savings and therefore the growth in bill of Canadians should be reduced by at least this amount."

The federal treasury will lose another $8 million on removal of the 12-per-cent sales tax on anti-pollution equipment.

This equipment includes machinery bought by manufacturers to detect, prevent, remove or reduce water, soil or air pollution.

Manufacturers now spend an estimated $65 million annually on anti-pollution equipment.

Mr. Benson said removal of the excise tax on radios, record players, TV sets and other electronic items is aimed at making Canadian manufacturers more competitive with foreign firms. The tax currently applies to Canadian-produced and imported goods.

This $40-million-per-year tax reduction will lead to lower prices for consumers, said Mr. Benson. The retail price of a $500 television set should be reduced by $75.

Employer-paid Medicare Taxable

OTTAWA (CP) — The government proposes to raise as much money from new taxes on medical care programs in three provinces as it will get from a new tax on share profits and other capital gains.

Figures published Friday with Finance Minister Benson's outline of a revised tax system estimate that the two new taxes each would generate about $80 million in 1972.

Under the new tax plan, the share of government medical care premiums paid by an employer would be counted for the first time as part of an employee's income and taxed.

That would mean more tax for employees in Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia, the only provinces where employers pay a significant share of medical care premiums.

Estimates are that the new levy would generate $59 million from Ontario residents, $12 million in Alberta and almost $18 million from British Columbia.

Residents of Manitoba and Saskatchewan would pay negligible amounts and Canadians in the rest of the provinces would pay nothing extra.

The proposal to levy income tax on capital gains for the first time in Canada—tax would be imposed on half of any gain instead of the full profit—would raise an estimated $81.5 million next year.

BRAND NEW CEDER EAST HILL 4 BEDROOMS

Now you can own a new 4-bedroom home without moving into the outlying new sub-divisions. Close to downtown, this home has 1½ baths and full basement. Sound good? Well listen to this! The downpayment is under $3,000.00. Possession almost immediately.

THEY SAID IT COULDN'T BE DONE

but we did it anyway: built a 3-bedroom home with carport on a fully-serviced lot with sodded front yard, close to schools, for under $20,000.00. No, it hasn't got colored basin fixtures, nor has it a family room, but it is derned good 3-bedroom accommodation for the family that doesn't want the kids smothered in an apartment. Call us today! You will be pleasantly surprised.

APARTMENTS FOR RENT

Some with immediate possession. East and West hill locations. All services paid. Most apartments fully carpeted.

WE'RE STARTING SOME NEW ONES

Check our list of new models to start this month. Some in the East end. Ask about our new 3-bedroom model with garage. A large variety available.

Rink Costs Rise

Additional and unexpected costs in connection with construction of the new Richard Ellis Rink in West Belleville came up for discussion Tuesday by members of the recreation and arena committee.

Prompting the discussion was a report from City Engineer Wilbur Hall, prepared as result of a query by Alderman Ben Corke who, during the recent council meeting, asked what the total costs of the new rink would be.

According to the May 18 unaudited report of the city engineer, the total cost of the rink at that time stood at $305,317.54.

Work still to be completed at the rink includes painting of interior woodwork, landscaping and laying of sidewalks estimated at $18,000, or a total of $315,000.

However, the city decided to act as its own prime contractor and this resulted in the corporation being requested to pick up the tab for additional items.

At the time of the construction start last fall, a February completion date was expected but the severe winter slowed the work and additional winter heating was approved by council in the hope that at least some use could be achieved from the building before the end of the skating season.

OMB Approves Frankford Arena

But it didn't work out quite Approval has been received by the village of Frankford to go ahead with the installation of artificial ice equipment in the arena. A letter received from Ontario Municipal Board and read by Mrs. Carol Ann Smith, village clerk, said that approval for the spending of $65,000 to complete the project has been given.

This amount of money will be raised by applying five debentures for $40,000 which will be repaid over a period of 19 years. The balance of $25,000 is already available in cash.

Up until now the Frankford arena had a natural ice surface but the recreation committee has been steadily working toward artificial ice. Many activities have been launched to raise the cash.

At a regular meeting of the council, Reeve William Rose said the way is now clear to draw up tenders for the supply of ice - making equipment, to construct a separate building to house it, and to excavate the floor area of the arena. This floor said Mr. Rose will have a two - inch base of insulation. On top of this will be a five inch slab of concrete in which the cooling pipes are imbedded and this will be topped with a ¾ inch terrazzo type topping. This will enable the arena to be used for activities other than those connected with ice.

Mr. Rose said the work will be completed by the end of August.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Isn't it true that people with heart disease can live to be 70 and over? — Mrs. A.

Yes, but — it's also evident that many do not reach the Biblical age. Whether or not they do depends upon their heredity and their way of life and upon the severity of the heart condition.

For example, you may have poor heredity, yet live a long time simply because you have learned to live with your heart without putting too much strain on it, that is, not smoking, overdrinking, overeating, living in abnormal tension, etc. On the other hand, you may have good heredity and not too bad a heart, yet die early of heart trouble simply because your way of life drained it of its energy potential.

Isn't it true that tobacco isn't harmful to everyone? I'm 22 and love my cigarettes. Why should I deprive myself of many years of pleasure on the chance that I may be one of the unlucky ones? — Mr. J.

Yes, but — how do you ever seen a patient in a coronary attack?

Have you ever seen a man who couldn't walk a hundred yards without having to stop because of pain in his chest or in his legs?

Have you ever seen an emphysema patient fight for air even when he was not exerting — just sitting in a chair?

Have you imagined what it is like to suffer the boring, relentless pains of an ulcer?

Yes, you may get away with it. But — the years pass quickly. You may be sorry you played the game of Russian roulette.

* * *

Isn't it true that aspirin is just as good for arthritis as the more expensive cortisone? — Mrs. G.

Yes, but — be thankful for cortisone and its cousins. There are times when aspirin doesn't do the job as well as cortisone, for example in the management of cases of rheumatoid arthritis and other cases due to some systemic disorder.

I could go on and on saying yes, but — In medicine, which is not an exact science like mathematics, two and two do not always add up to four, I tend to mistrust the doctor who says yes or no unequivocally in reply to a medical problem. There's always room for honest doubt and careful evaluation.

Heart Sufferers Can Live to 70

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For June 20

Your birthday today: The momentum of your life now brings you swiftly up and forward: your work is more effective, directed precisely where you have planned it. Today's natives succeed by finding a different, distinctive way of doing everything. They are usually impulsive, and positive.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 1): Pressing people to your viewpoint doesn't work — trying to get them to cooperate on anything is too much of a chore. Let them all alone to find their own slow way.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Money matters have to be attended promptly. At least know how far off budget you're getting, so you can plan some early recovery.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You have to be your own source of help. Everybody is off on his own tangent and busy. It would even be difficult to gather more than a small party on short notice.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Current resources are best saved for serious future operations rather than frittered away in today's passing moments of inconvenience. Plan savings if you can; keep Sunday budgets low.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Good money pursues bad as readily as any other course you choose. Austerity and simplicity make for a smoother advantage in the coming week.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Stay within reach of those who may have news for you. Nothing else is as important as refreshing your soul.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Take a vacation, real or symbolic. Leave behind your weekday habits, limits, and reach for spiritual fulfillment. Prayer brings guidance beyond expectations.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Extravagance becomes first nature in this Sunday's stress. Your family and associates also change their tune somewhat later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Do what seems logical and ethical while the going is good. Surprisingly little impulsive activity needs serious explanation later. And it's always available.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): For all your natural sense of values and caution in managing assets, you can be misled by current situations. Defer splashy expenditures or hasty investments — get more facts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Yor system does not cope with present escalating phenomena. Whatever you do ahead it, leave your money in safe places, drawing interest and slow to be interested. Seek quiet, social fun.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Restless urges and ideals of what might be made to happen pull you into more projects than you can hope to manage on present resources and available time: moderation!

Commons Speedily Passes Complicated Bill on Ship Pilotage

OTTAWA (CP) — In the calm before Finance Minister E. J. Benson's budget Friday, the Commons gave smooth sailing to a complicated bill on ship pilotage.

After a langorous debate, the bill was given third and final reading and sent to the Senate on an informal voice vote.

The measure would establish four regional authorities in the form of Crown corporations to regulate navigation in Canadian waters and set qualifications for the men who pilot ships.

Conservative House Whip Thomas M. Bell (Saint John-Lancaster) called it a good measure that implemented the recommendations of a government commission.

Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni) offered an amendment that would restrict pilots' licences to men qualified on Canadian-registered ships.

He said men working foreign ships would not be familiar enough with tricky coastal waters.

The amendment was defeated.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said he hoped the new law would be used to assert Canadian sovereignty over shipping through Hudson Bay.

Transport Minister Don Jamieson said he recognized the need for special attention to navigation in the North. And he adopted an opposition suggestion that he report periodically on the operations of pilotage.

Roland Godin (SC—Portneuf) said it should be mandatory for ships on the St. Lawrence River to be in charge of experienced pilots—some of whom live in his riding—at all times.

Earlier in the Commons, State Secretary Gerard Pelletier announced that Quebec will get $9 million of the $23.5 million so far allotted under the government 's opportunities-for-youth program.

The Atlantic provinces will get $2.2 million, Ontario $3 million, the Prairies and Northwest Territories $3.8 million, and British Columbia and the Yukon $2.4 million.

An additional $580,000 would be spent on national programs.

Stock Markets Quiet on Eve of Benson Budget

By PETER LEICHNITZ

As most observers had predicted, prices on major Canadian stock markets traded within a narrow range in moderate trading this week.

Observers have been saying during the last three weeks investors would reclaim out of the market the week previous to the budget, preferring to adopt a wait-and-see attitude regarding possible tax changes.

Volume on Canadian exchanges was down sharply from the previous week.

At Toronto, total volume was 11.36 million shares, down from 13.1 million last week.

On the week, the Toronto market's industrial index, a prime indicator of market movement, lost .1.75 points to 182.28.

At the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index moved fractionally lower. Trading on the two exchanges was light.

Wall Street recorded its sharpest drop in several months, as investor fears of announced increased interest rates forced prices sharply lower.

Volume was 69.90 million shares, compared to 89.30 million last week.

Base metal issues remained generally unchanged on the week, despite the news of domestic copper price increases by major Canadian copper producers.

The Toronto base metal index closed at 94.77, down .77.

Western oil issues drifted lower this week, primarily due to a minor sell-off early in the week.

At Toronto, the western oil index lost 2.61 points to 217.51.

With little news on the international money markets, gold issues dropped fractionally lower during the week. The Toronto gold index lost 2.06 points, closing at 169.17.

Deformed Girl, 9, Awarded 2 Million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A court awarded $2 million damages Friday to a nine-year-old girl whose mother said she was administered the since-banned tranquilizer drug thalidomide during pregnancy.

James Butler, lawyer for the girl and her mother, Shirley McCarrick Whitehead, 36, said it was the first time a U.S. court had made such a judgment.

Richardson-Merrell Inc. of New York City, a drug manufacturer, was defendant in the lawsuit filed by the mother and child.

A Superme Court jury after a 10-week trial, voted $2.5 million to the girl and $250,000 to the mother but judge Julian Beck reduced the amounts. He decreed $300,000 for Mrs. Whitehead.

Stronger Car Safety Rules Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — Stronger requirements on exhaust emissions from light vehicles are among proposed amendments announced Friday to federal motor-vehicle safety regulations.

Transport Minister Don Jamieson has invited manufacturers, importers and others interested to submit representations on the proposals.

They include more rigid standards for hydraulic brake fluids; extension of requirements for seat-belt anchorages to buses, trucks, chassis—cabs and multi-purpose passenger vehicles; and minor modifications on the design of seat belts and buckles.

Proposed regulations to establish minimum noise levels for prescribed classes of motor vehicles are expected in about two months.

Brown Finds Reforms 'A Bit of Alright'

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The man who launched a nationwide newspaper ad campaign last year against proposals in the government's white paper on taxation, said Friday the new budget "appears to be a bit of alright."

Colin Brown, a London insurance salesman, said in an interview that 50 per cent tax application on capital gains is "not too unfair if you don't have estate taxes."

If there are no estate and gift taxes and no hidden meanings in the budget we could start attracting all kinds of international wealth and with stimulated business that will mean jobs."

Mr. Brown suggested if the budget is as "first blush" has it, it should be acceptable.

"It's not a tax reform-just a chance in the tax structure which most of us were hoping for."

Construction Strike Feared in London Area

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The construction industry in the London area could be shut down by midnight Wednesday night, the strike deadline of Local 1059, Laborers' International Union representing about 1,000 workers.

Ernie Deens, union business agent, said Friday a meeting of union members will be held before the deadline so workers can decide what action to take.

Negotiations with the Industrial and District Construction Association broke down earlier this week, and no future date for talks was set, Mr. Deens said.

Soviet Space Expert Flees

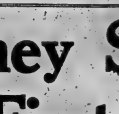
LONDON (AP) — British security chiefs kept Soviet space scientist Anatol Fedoseiev under wraps today as newspaper commentators speculated on the likely effects of his defection.



The Home Office announced Sunday that the 52-year-old scientist was in Britain and "has been given permission to stay." Unofficial sources said he was a deputy minister in charge of space research and the brains behind the Soviet Union's Soyuz space station and Luna moon programs, and apparently the most important Soviet defector since the Second World War.

Fedoseiev disappeared three weeks ago while attending the Paris Air Show as deputy head of the Soviet delegation.

Some British newspapers said the defector was holed up in a London suburb with an English woman he had met in Moscow.

Kenneth Gaitland, vice-president of the British Interparliamentary Society, thought the defection might hamper future Soviet-American co-operation in space, including plans for joint space rescue arrangements. But a 20-man Soviet team arrived in Houston, Tex., Sunday night to open discussions with American space experts on common spaceship docking systems, and officials of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration said they could not see how the defection would affect the talks.

Peter Fairley, science correspondent of Britain's Independent Television network, said Fedoseiev's value to the West may lie less in his scientific knowledge than in his familiarity with Soviet space and defence planning.

Apartment Building Will Be 14 Storeys

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville's first high rise apartment — soaring a total of 14 storeys and containing a total of 135 suites — is to be erected in the city's west end.

Site of the new apartment structure is at the corner of Sidney Street and Leland Drive on a lot which was rezoned about four years ago to allow apartments. The rezoning was from R-1 to RM-4.

The construction permit has been taken out at city hall and excavation for the foundation has already commenced. The owners are Quinte Towers Construction of Trenton with Trenton builder Stan Klemencic one of the partners.

The permit value of the new structure is listed at $1,250,000.

A spokesman for the Trenton builder stated this morning that parking for 170 cars would be provided with approximately 50 per cent in a two-level underground parking garage.

Among the amenities provided the tenants will be an outdoor swimming pool.

The structure will face Sidney Street, with the side elevation along Leland Drive. It will be immediately to the east of Sir Mackenzie Bowell Public School.

Zoning requirements call for one and a quarter parking spaces for each tenant and for at least 40 per cent of the apartment site to be landscaped open space.

But the open space requirement will be far exceeded at the Sidney St. — Leland Drive site. The lot size is 435 feet along Sidney with a depth of 230 feet on Leland, while the apartment foundation will measure only 295 feet by 53 feet.

Mr. Klemencic said today that construction would take about 12 months, although the first units would be ready for occupancy by next March or April.

OTTAWA (CP) — Kelth Spicer, commissioner of official languages, today formally accused the Dominion Bureau of Statistics of "serious infringements" of the Official Languages Act in the taking of the 1971 census.

Light Bulb Kills Cancer-type Virus

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Scientists from Baylor College of Medicine at Waco, Tex., reported today they have developed a new and effective treatment for the common virus that causes cold sores and fever blisters.

The key to the treatment, they said, is a common light bulb.

Their work has great implications because one type of the same virus — herpes simplex — is believed by many scientists to cause cancer of the cervix.

A certain kind of dye, one that serves to absorb light, is applied to the skin lesion and the dye becomes bound to the virus.

The lesion is then exposed to ordinary daylight-type fluorescent light. Somehow, the scientists said, the dye combines with a portion of the DNA — or genetic material — of the herpes virus, causing breaks in the DNA strands and preventing the virus from reproducing itself. The process is called photodynamic inactivation.

South-West Africa Rule Held Illegal

THE HAGUE (AP) — The International Court of Justice ruled today that South Africa's control over South-West Africa is illegal and Prime Minister Vorster's government should surrender the former German colony immediately to the United Nations.

The court issued an advisory opinion, asked by the UN, in which 13 justices concurred and one dissented. The opinion carries no legal weight, but it was considered an important element of international pressure on South Africa.

The United Nations has declared the League of Nations mandate no longer valid, and Secretary-General U Thant has called for an economic boycott of South Africa to enforce demands by black African states that independence be granted to the territory, which has been renamed Namibia by a UN vote.

Poor Hardest Hit by Taxes

Poverty Really Product Of System, Probers Say

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's economic system "not only tolerates poverty, but in many ways creates, sustains and even aggravates the problem," says four former staff members of the special Senate poverty committee.

Economists Peter Penz and Brian Hill and writers Bill Cameron and Ian Adams quit the committee in April after a disagreement with committee chairman David Croll (L—Ontario).

"We resigned because the chairman ..... did not want to accept a candid appraisal of our society," the four write in the current issue of the magazine Last Post.

"What he really wanted was a rather maudlin discussion of what it was like to be poor, an indignant denunciation of the inadequacies of the current welfare system, followed by a call for a guaranteed annual income.

"He certainly did not want to tell people why they were poor."

Poverty, the four say, is built into the Canadian economic system, aggravated by government policies and unimpeded by welfare, housing, legal and medical programs.

The authors say the tax system does very little to redistribute income from the rich to the poor.

Those earning under $2,000 pay out 40 per cent of their incomes in all kinds of federal, provincial and local taxes.

Taxpayers earning over $7,000 annually pay between 32.9 per cent and 36.4 per cent.

About 40 per cent of total income is taken in by the top 20 per cent of the population, and the gap between rich and poor continues to expand.

LBJ Says Papers Deceptive Their Leak Almost Treason

NEW YORK (AP) — A hearing on the United States government's claim that the New York Times should be barred from further publication of a secret defence department study of the Vietnam war was postponed today to allow the case to go before a full seven-judge panel of the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Tuesday.

In Washington, meanwhile, the government argued in U.S. District Court that documents from the Pentagon study used by the Washington Post in assembling its stories contain information about current operational plans in the war.

Both the Times and the Post remained under restraints not to publish articles about the study pending outcome of the court actions.

Meanwhile, it was learned former president Lyndon B. Johnson believes the secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war does not reflect the true picture of his role, according to reports in Time and Newsweek magazines.

Time, in a report on the Pentagon study controversy, says Johnson feels the documents "do not tell the true story because they are mostly contingency plans."

Newsweek says Johnson believes the study presents a dishonest, distorted and biased picture of his role and that the circumstances surrounding its being leaked to the New York Times "come close to treason."

Quoting "those in Austin privy to his feelings," Newsweek says the former president see "the ghostly hand of Robert Kennedy" on the Pentagon study.

According to this view, Newsweek says the late New York senator needed an issue for his intended 1968 challenge to Johnson for the Democratic presidential nomination and "planted his hopes on Vietnam."

The study was ordered by then defence secretary Robert S. McNamara. Newsweek says Johnson considered McNamara "a Kennedy man."

Time, which notes that it gives no support to Johnson's views, says Johnson feels that his greatest mistake in the war was waiting until he had been in office for 18 months before sending U.S. soldiers into battle for he then felt that Vietnam was almost lost.

Time also says Johnson believes he made a mistake in "failing to institute censorship fast to cover up mistakes, but to prevent the enemy from knowing what the United States was going to do next."

Newsweek quotes Daniel Ellsberg, the man who was named by a former New York Times reporter as the source of The Times' documents, as saying in an interview last week that he had tried unsuccessfully to get Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's foreign affairs advisor, to read the study.

"Now he can read it in the papers," Ellsberg is quoted as saying in an interview at his Cambridge, Mass., home before he dropped out of sight last Wednesday.

U.S. Hero Was 'Stoned' on Pot

DETROIT (AP) — A Medal of Honor winner says he was "stoned" on marijuana the night he fought off two waves of Viet Cong soldiers and won the highest military honor in the United States.

"It was the only time I ever went into combat stoned," Peter Lemon, 21, said in Tawas City during an interview with Detroit Free Press reporter Howard Kohn.

"You get really alert when you're stoned because you have to be.

"We were all partying the night before," Lemon said. "We weren't expecting any action because we were in a support group.

Lemon said he almost decided not to accept the Medal of Honor from President Nixon at White House ceremonies last week.

"That was one of my first thoughts," he said. "But it was just a little thought.

He said he is anti-war, though not necessarily anti-military.

Residents of the Tawas City area near Lake Huron in northeast Lower Michigan who knew Lemon before the war described him as a sort of devil-may-care, high-spirited, mischievous high school pupil who would do almost anything on a dare.

Friends now say he has become sl-contemplative, thoughtful man. Lemon said he spends a lot of time padding around the countryside barefooted, wondering about his future.

"The war is ridiculous," Lemon said. "How would we like it if we went to war with Canada and the Russians or the Chinese came over here and wanted to help us"

In April, Lemon married Diane Smith. They live in a wood-frame cottage shaded by pine trees. They have no television set and only an occasional newspaper.

Fence Erected For Controlling Crowd

Setting up more than a mile of snow fence for crowd control went off with the ease of a well rehearsed military scheme. Everyone pitched in as soon as marquees (tents) at prearranged points. They will serve as accommodations for display of the model of the RCAF Memorial to be built at Trenton, the air show administrative staffs and food and drink concessions that will function on the grounds throughout.

If the success of the first international antique aircraft fly-in and air show presented in the Quinte area depended on his effort.

Air Show Could Attract 30,000

MOUNTAIN VIEW — The stage is set for the Quinte area's first international fly-in and antique air show coming here for three successive days, June 25, 26 and 27.

Saturday the Mountain View airport, once a busy RCAF training depot, was reactivated for six hours by 80 of the most enthusiastic adults and youngsters ever banded together for a good cause.

Former airmen, retired, and air cadets from Belleville and Trenton squadrons took part in the preparation of the site to be used for the presentation of the vintage aircraft spectacular. The parts of the base off limits to the public were made clearly visible by erecting snow fence a distance of more than a mile in length. Work crews also pitched Toronto ex-servicemen and air cadets who took part in the exercise were accompanied by Ronald Bailey the antique air show chairman and Major Ronald Butcher, chief liason officer of the RCAF Association in the Toronto district acting as exercise co-ordinator.

A feature of the first day's program, according to Mr. Bailey, will be the personal appearance of Canada's oldest pilot, 84 - year - old Tom Williams with the Fleet 21M aircraft he prizes. Anyone planning to see this rare model is advised to attend by late afternoon Friday because the emachine is flying out on a trip to western Ontario later in the day to be sold by auction at Woodstock on Saturday.

At Mountain View it is possibly the last time the pre-World War II vintage machine will be on display in Canada. American collectors interested in obtaining it are expected to be the high bidders chairman Bailey explained.

World War II veterans in the full swing of Saturday's operation found they adjusted quickly to the airport environment. "It was like the clock had been turned back 25 years," commented Adolph Peasereill with the representatives of Toronto's 403 wing RCAF Association. He had a gala reunion with wartime buddies Kenneth Mosley and James Stone both of Belleville. The three of them met at the air force training camp at Yorkton, Saskatchewan.

Assurance that everything was ready for the big three days came from Toronto Association member Howard Reid, vice-chairman of planning. "We're praying for fine weather and a large crowd," he reported.

The sponsors, the RCAF Association in conjunction with the International antique aircraft association, look for attendance of 30,000.

Profits after expenses go to the purchase of a new glider for air cadet training and the memorial fund.

The price of admission to the show is $2 for a 3-day pass.

Raising Marquee on Site

Activity at the Mountain View aerodrome on Saturday included the raising of tents for use as accommodations during the international antique air show starting this Friday. Former airmen and air cadets from Belleville, Trenton and Toronto spent six hours to finish job of preparing site for three-day event.

City to Get First High Rise

Construction will be of reinforced concrete and will be done by specialist workmen.

But as many of the sub trades as possible will be completed by local workmen.

Frank Stockmans, assistant planner with the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, said that the Quinte Towers lot at Sidney and Lelia was the first rezoning for apartments which called for a minimum of 40 per cent landscaped open space.

Under the old bylaw in the "B" district of the city there is no requirement for grass area, and only one parking space per unit has to be provided.

Issuance of the permit for the 135-unit apartment on Sidney Street brings to more than 350 the number of multiple family housing units under construction so far this year.

In the same period the number of permits for single family residences was less than 50.

Last year there were 331 apartment units constructed in the city as compared with but 62 single family houses, while in 1969 the ratio was 365 apartment units to 126 single family residences.

The trend to apartment construction in Belleville became noticeable back in 1963 when the number of multiple family units and single family dwellings almost broke even.

In 1964 the ratio was 195 apartment units to 179 single family houses. There was a falling off in apartment construction in 1965 followed by a resurgence in 1966.

But since 1968 the number of multiple family units constructed has exceeded single family residences and the ratio is widening every year.

And according to Mrs. Mary Colling, president of the Belleville and District Real Estate Board, there is still a demand for more apartments.

"Hardly a day goes by that we (Bowes and Cocks Ltd.) don't get four or five enquiries about apartments" said Mrs. Colling.

"There are not too many apartments available: I feel there is still room for them."

At the same time, however, Mrs. Colling felt that with the new high rise Sidney Street apartment, and proposals for other large apartments in other parts of the city, the demand for such accommodation could shortly ease off.

She said the current demand for apartments came mainly from residents selling their family homes, from teachers and newcomers moving into the city.

Indian Opens Gift Shop

DESERONTO (Special) — A new gift shop featuring international gifts has been opened by Andrew Maracle, Sr. at the junction of Highways 2 and 49.

Authentic Indian craft from the reserve will be major commodities and supplies will be brought from surrounding reserves.

Mr. Maracle, of the Deseronto Mohawks tribe, an international orator on North American Indian custom, culture and lore, will provide taped music to add to the atmosphere.

Cleanup Nets 300 Bagsful

Litter Lift Day was a success over the weekend although more school hudtens than Belleville were expected to turn out than did.

Organizers plan to gather the youngsters together at a later date for a more concentrated drive on areas they touched lightly or missed altogether.

The exercise in cleaning up the city, the part of the river that comes through it in particular, was an undertaking of the Moira Conservation Authority in conjunction with public schools in Belleville and Hastings County. About 400 youngsters from 11 schools participated in the Saturday operation.

Collectors' performance resulted in ridding the waterfront and a number of local neighborhoods of large amounts of discarded cans, paper boxes and a variety of unsightly items. The organizers counted 300 green plastic bags filled with litter for the dump at the end of the effort.

HOW TO PUT DROPS IN YOUR EYES
Of course the easiest way is to have someone else put the drops in your eyes for you. It is not difficult to do it yourself. First tilt your head as far back as possible, or lie flat on your back.
Then, look up at the ceiling. Close one eye and center the dropper over the other and squeeze the drops into the eye. Finally, close your eye and gently massage for a few strokes. Do not touch the dropper to your eye. This may contaminate the remaining drops.

Ready to Start

Youth Project Programs For City Outlined by Sponsors

Belleville's two students make work programs sponsored by the Opportunities for Youth are ready to go into full swing with the planning done and only the waiting left for the official day for the projects to begin.

On June 24 both the drug survey taken by Gordon Wilson and the multi-pourofit recreation plan of Hugh Pepper will start with the evaluation of projects taking place throughout the summer.

"This evaluation is very important, especially now with the occurrence of disreputable projects" in other parts of Canada said Mr. Pepper.

One of the stipulations set down by the federal government was that each group receiving funds from the program would have to submit a written report on the outcome and the end result of the project when they carried out during the proposed 11-week period.

Individuals in the city of Belleville, through the Opportunities for Youth have been granted approximately $17,000 of the hotly-contested $24 million made available for the national program, resulting in about 25 summer jobs for area students.

One spokesman said Belleville recipient of funds said "some criticisms passed, of the program at large can only be premature said will be treated with indifference until proper evaluation of the individual programs has been completed at the close of the summer.

"Crombie's appraisal was premature," said Hugh Pepper one recipient of funds. "It's a generalization and like all generalizations it can only be part truth."

In the beginning, first communications from the federal government outlined 4 programs where interested people in communities or individuals could form a summer program, giving employment to students, and creating something of a lasting effect on the community.

At that time, members of various project planning boards in Belleville were alarmed that not enough guidelines were forwarded by the federal department responsible for the program and not enough time was given for adequate planning and laying out of projects.

George Wilson, engineer for the CNR and recipient of funds defends the program by saying, "the lack of specific criteria was a result of the need for individuals to stretch their imaginations and humanity to come up with a unique, youthful summer program. The government didn't want sewers placed, they wanted creativity."

Mr. Pepper's program, dealing with the adolescent in the community, involves 12 people and will be designed to involve many other youths in the city.

The program will include an odd job service for Belleville residents, a survey on drug activities in the city and a recreational program in connection with the Y.

"Our justification for the program will be in the evaluations that will be carried out during the summer. We are inviting anyone to contribute to the evaluations and if criticisms are felt in the community we will be glad to hear them, use them in the evaluation if they are pertinent, and rectify them in the ongoing programs," said Mr. Pepper.

Mr. Wilson claims that he will, if necessary, employ a professional to make the final evaluation of his program. Mr. Wilson, with the aid of 10 to 12 youths, will endeavor to find a profile picture of the typical drug experience in the city.

The program was suggested to him by the Canadian Mental Health Association.

Hugh Faulkner, parliamentary secretary to Secretary of State Gerald Pelletier, said, "the opposition seized every rumor and unsubstantiated fear to cast doubt on the program."

"Through tight administration, the recipients of funds in the city have no fears of accusations," said Mr. Pepper.

"However," said Mr. Pepper, "there must have been mismanagement somewhere in the machinery of the program. It's incredible though that when so many small groups are doing such widely dispersed projects, that some waste will occur."

It is up to the taxpayer in the community to see that there is no wastage of funds, implied a Canada Manpower spokesman.

"We have nothing to do with the program for the Canada Manpower other than be a line of communication between the federal government and the community," said H. W. Kerr, administrator.

"But, if I see any waste in a project that is unjustified, it would be my responsibility to alert my superiors," he said.

Poverty

Between 1951 and 1969 the richest top fifth of the population had gained more than the lowest fifth received as total income in 1969, they say.

The government, by fighting inflation at the cost of unemployment, had added to the burden of the poor, who earn low wages, are the first fired and last hired.

"If the government policy has failed miserably in the objective of full employment, it has not even attempted to deal with the fundamental responsibility of creating a more equal distribution of income.

"There has been no change of income distribution over the past 20 years."

The authors attribute government inaction to the ideology it shares with big business-that corporations must have autonomy to pursue free market competition.

"Corporate autonomy means that the government abdicates its responsibility to control the economy it always cuts back on public spending rather than interfere with corporate investment. ....

"In 1967 the government refused to bring in cost-sharing, but for the same initial amount of money allowed the private corporations to bring in color television. Why not postpone color TV, and bring in medicare?"

The news media and their advertisers perpetuated this premium on private consumption.

While the authors reserved their recommendations for a future article, they suggest the poverty line-and programs to bring people above it-should be based on the average standard of living, not the cost of living as at present.

As for opportunity, the authors cite figures showing that "the possession of wealth and power in this country is, with few exceptions, determined by inheritance."

What counted was how rich your parents were and whether they could afford to send you to school.

Flying Farmers To Visit

The Belleville airport has been chosen as the 1971 meeting place of the Ontario Flying Farmers.

At the convention, held September 17, 18 and 19, the agriculturally - inclined flying enthusiasts will discuss methods of farming, trade ideas and elect their queen for the coming year.

A gathering of about 200 flying farmers is expected and they will be shown the sights of the city by the Belleville Flying Club.

A tour to the Canada Cement Plant has been arranged for the men while the women will go for a shopping spree. While many of the festivities will be held from the airport, the formal convention supper will be held a the Sun Valley Motel.

Corbies Distilleries will also be providing entertainment for the delegates.

At the eighth annual convention held in Stratford this year, 200 members were present for the meet.

Total membership for the Ontario branch of the International organization ranges at about 600 people.

"We can only guess at the figure of representatives at our meet," said a flying club spokesman. "Weather will play a big part in the success of the weekend."

Popular Subject

Safe Proves Too Difficult

First they sawed through the safes hinges. Then they sawed through the corners. When that didn't work, they took a hammer and chisel to the surface, but to no avail.

Thoroughly frustrated, the thieves turned away from the safe at Belleville Glass and Mirror Saturday and attacked a soft drink dispensing machine.

From this they obtained $15 in cash.

Total damage at the Pinnacle Street establishment, was one broken window in the garage door, $100 damage to the safe and $50 to the soft drink machine.

City Yeggs Don't Like Eggs

Police reported entry was made through a roof window. Drawers were searched in the offices but lowe change left untouched. No eggs were disturbed.

Nothing has been reported missing and no damage was done.

Loose Moose On Way Home

The latest on the cow moose, loose in Prince Edward County for more than a year, is it may be heading back to wilderness, more rugged haunts in North Hastings.

An Ameliasburg resident reported the animal surprised a motorist crossing the Murray Canal bridge on the back road in Bridgetown one night recently. The moose was on the north shore.

The animal was first noticed on the golf course west of the city about a year ago. It was spotted swimming in the Bay of Quinte toward the south shore afterwards.

Lands and Forests, keeping tab on the moose's movements in Prince Edward County, observed fresh hoof prints it left where it wintered until a month ago. The department's wildlife officer for the area is checking the animals whereabouts at the present time.

Budget Concessions

Unwelcome is any budget that does not fulfill hopes of concessions to the taxpaying public, especially when those selfsame worthies are already paying dearly in that regard. Such a budget moreover would be bad politics and any Government's point of view given the possibility of an election before too long.

Friday's budget presentation by Finance Minister Benson clearly had regard for such a premise, for it does make concessions which will be welcomed by the average citizen while alienating few.

Changes in the federal tax system will eliminate personal income taxes in 1972 for about a million low - income and elderly taxpayers, while tax reform proposals will reduce annual tax bills for up to five million more. About 1.3 million higher - income people will be paying higher taxes, mainly because a capital gains tax, due to come into effect next year, has been introduced for the first time.

One of the most obvious concessions to Canadians is removal of the three per cent surtax on corporate and personal incomes. It will free about $130 million for spending or saving by the private sector. Basic exemptions also have been raised.

The full ramifications of such a budget and of the long - awaited reforms would require further study, but the expansionary nature of Mr. Benson's proposals are apparent. It will act as a stimulant to the economy and will provide for more spending as well as investment. The relief which the budget provides for low - income families and the elderly are particularly welcome. All in all it is an interesting budget, one which has followed many months of preparation and public controversy.

For Mr. Benson, the urbane man-in-the-middle, target of every taxpayer's and Opposition speaker's wrath, has had plenty of advice in this most important of all budgets. He has listened to that advice, watered down some of the more punitive measures which would have dampened initiative as well as the economy, and come up with something reasonably acceptable.

Arms Thefts

It is satisfying to learn that Quebec is planning to crack down on its underworld, that is the hoodlums based in Montreal in particular, and the plan, according to Justice Minister Choquette, is to make things so hot for the gang bosses that they will find that crime does not pay.

Whether this tack will be successful is another thing, for Montreal has never been crime-free for any prolonged length of time. Getting at the underworld's supply of arms is another problem, and this involves not only the underworld but weapons in the hands of the FLQ.

The FLQ may not be a serious problem any more, but the fact remains that in the past five years, according to a Commons report, arms valued at $283,000 were stolen from the services, including machine-guns, rifles and pistols. Moreover, lack of success by Quebec police in recovering defence weapons from the FLQ in police searches under the War Measures Act, led police to believe that the arms had been stolen by the underworld.

But if Montreal and Quebec at large are a focal point of the crime scene in Canada, there is discomfort for us here in the information that more thefts of arms took place in Ontario than Quebec — 72 weapons valued at more than $8,000, taken from armories at Rockcliffe and Petawawa. The others are though, that some of these arms ended up in Quebec.

There were thefts in Canadian overseas establishments too, with $3,287 worth of arms being stolen in Germany.

Security of establishments like armories undoubtedly has been tightened as the result of such intelligence. Certainly we should expect this to be the case if the underworld in Quebec and elsewhere in Canada is to be curbed.

Budget Briefs

Tax reform? Well, that is not how some view that aspect of the budget. Oddly enough, two who technically are in Opposition see things the same way in this regard. They are NDP leader David Lewis and maverick Liberal and ex - cabinet minister Eric Kierans. It is not tax reform, both say, but rather tax "changes". What they are saying, in effect is that the more sweeping proposals of the White Paper were shot down in the wake of succeeding controversy. Meanwhile there is talk of an election. Prince Edward - Hastings MP George Hees predicts a fall vote.

European Security Also an Issue

Russia Worried Over U.S. Thaw with China

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — By a curious twist, United States President Nixon's courtship of China may nudge the Russians to move a little faster on settlement of East-West problems in Europe.

So far the Soviet Union has resisted what some diplomats describe as only a bit of "procedural" grousing on four-power talks on Berlin while pressing for European military forces reductions between NATO and Warsaw pact countries.

The suspicion that lingers in some NATO minds, while attempts are made to find out what the Russians really mean, is that Moscow would like to manoeuvre the West into a backdoor recognition of East Germany without yielding any substantive ground on the central Berlin issue.

NATO has long insisted there can be no final solution on European security without a settlement on Berlin though a lesser agreement on reductions of weapons and troops can stand alone, without being tied to the city's future.

Nevertheless at the back of NATO minds is the view that progress on Berlin would provide assurance of Moscow's good intentions.

So the jamming and hawing about Berlin becomes important. Western powers want to ensure that West Berliners no longer will be harassed in travelling to and from the Communist-surrounded city and that they will be able to visit friends and relatives in East Berlin.

Meanwhile, Nixon has lifted a 21-year trade embargo against China amid unofficial hints that the United States may also lift its opposition to seating China in the United Nations.

This courtship, which so far has brought no parallel response from Peking, may nevertheless worry the Russians who still fear the possible aggressive intentions of the Chinese.

As remote as it may be at this stage, an American-Chinese good-neighbor alliance is unlikely to fit in with Soviet foreign policy. It may be better for the Russians if the Americans place greater trust and confidence in Soviet relations, particularly in Europe, where a deal can be made without great Soviet sacrifice.

The proof is likely to come in further Soviet action on the four-power Berlin bargaining. Attempts now are being made to "marry" Soviet and Western draft agreements on the city. Some progress in intertwining the two has been made in low-level diplomatic bargaining. Later this month the ambassadors will review the procedural talks and the West will take it as a good sign if the Russian higher-ups verify the action so far.

The Russians in previous bargaining showed a fine hand in language - half-splitting which destroyed the foundations of other understandings. Whatever the outcome of current bargaining, it would appear that Berlin will continue to be under four-power control for some time to come.

Ottawa Ban On Cigarette Ads Raises Questions

Montreal La Presse: As soon as it is admitted that cigarettes are bad for one's health, and it is difficult to pretend otherwise, it must be admitted that the federal health minister was right to want to reduce the consumption of cigarettes in Canada. The role of the minister is to watch over the health of the citizens and . . . tobacco has done nothing to improve the strength of the human body.

Thus, John Munro cannot be criticized for having introduced legislation in the Commons on the manufacturing, publicity and sale of cigarettes. It is obvious that in wanting to encourage Canadians to smoke less the federal government was led to collide with the interests of cigarette-makers and those who advertise their products. . . .

But shouldn't the health minister only invite people not to smoke any more? The efficiency of this type of campaign must be seriously doubted. . . . To do nothing after stating the harmful effects of cigarettes would have been difficult for the minister.

The future will tell if forbidding cigarette advertising will reduce consumption. We can list hypotheses; it is difficult to be categorical.

For example, is it publicity that leads people to smoke or does it only push smokers to try different brands of cigarettes? And, instead of important channels such as the mass media, will tobacco companies find other means to promote their products?

Mr. Munro's bill, however, deals not only with publicity. It aims at controlling the tar and nicotine content of cigarettes and at accomplishing what could be called smokers' education. A few words more or less on the packages would not be bad. Besides, it is good that a closer surveillance would guarantee tobacco quality. After all, a good cigarette has never displeased real smokers.

The surrendered German fleet was scuttled in Scapa Flow, Scotland, 52 years ago today in 1919 in a last gesture of defiance. The fleet of 11 battleships, five battlecruisers, eight light cruisers and a number of destroyers was at anchor at the war base of the British Grand Fleet when the German crews opened the seacocks and the ships went down. Only four ships stayed afloat, the battleship Baden and three light cruisers. The action proved expensive for the Germans who had to surrender a large quantity of dockyard equipment in place of the scuttled warships.

To Err Is Human

Summerside Journal - Pioneer: Reporters, of course, make mistakes, but they don't make as many as they are blamed for by busybodies and politicians who are trying to squirm out of something they said and which is causing them embarrassment in public. The politician, and in this category we include people in municipal politics, press for their own mistakes, we commend a reporter who was dared made in public recently by a person who has many copies to speak publicly and be quoted in the press. This is the case of "When the paper reports me in a way that is embarrassing, it is not because it quotes me correctly, but because I have failed to say what I meant."

Apartment Buildings

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

We heartily agree with the thoughts expressed by Messrs. Hockley and Peoples in their letters in Wednesday's issue of The Intelligencer.

Surely our elected representatives of this city will heed the wishes of the ordinary taxpaying citizens, who are concerned about maintaining the beauty of our city. In our opinion it cannot be done by building apartment buildings indiscriminately using parkland and crowding private dwellings.

NDP Leader Maintains Stand on National Unity

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite pressures from the Quebec wing of the party, New Democratic Leader David Lewis is said firmly to be refusing any compromise on the NDP's strongly-federalist stance.

At the party's April convention here, the Quebec delegation went home unhappy after failing to get approval for a resolution calling for the province's self-determination. There also was support for this from the party's so-called Waffle Group.

After the convention ended, the newly-elected Mr. Lewis said he would meet with Raymond Laliberte, the Quebec party president, and discuss policy regarding Quebec and Confederation.

The meeting has taken place and sources say it was not so much a discussion as a firm statement by the party leader that there could be no compromise on Confederation.

The party's federal council is studying the entire question of relations between Quebec and English-speaking Canada, and policies are expected to be formulated from this early next year.

In the meantime, said a source close to the party leader, Mr. Lewis made it very clear to Mr. Laliberte that "the fall will not wag the dog".

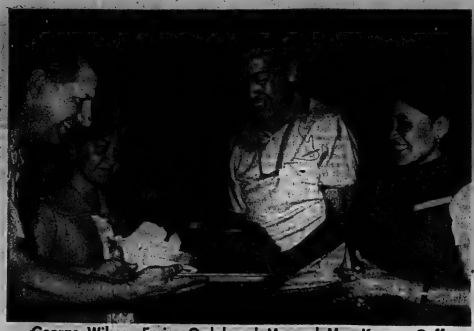
Mr. Lewis had told a post-convention news conference the NDP as a federal party had to commit itself to the continuance of the country even though there may be changes in its constitution.

"You can't compromise on this sort of thing," he said.

The sources said this was the gist of his conversation with Mr. Laliberte, and that a national party could not alter its basic viewpoints to accommodate one provincial group.

Mr. Lewis was said to have taken the view that everyone joining the NDP did so knowing its federalist position.

Some Quebec members of the party say they have a unique problem in a province where, traditionally, relatively few NDP candidates run in provincial elections.



Although the party constitution prevents members from belonging to any other organized political party, there are many Quebec members who don't have the opportunity to support party candidates in provincial elections.

In the last Quebec election, say party officials, there were many NDP members who supported Parti Quebecois candidates on the grounds that the PQ was closer than any other party to socialist principles.

In any event, the Quebec wing of the NDP has, to some degree, come to be regarded as independence-minded. It reached a peak during heated discussions over the self-determination issue at the April convention.

Party sources say it remains to be seen whether the federal council will produce constitutional policies to satisfy all segments of the party.

But, in the meantime, Mr. Lewis is flatly refusing to give ground on basic questions regarding national unity.

Tibetans Guests At Party

Belleville's newest immigrants, the 11 Tibetans brought here by the Government were guests of honor at a party and shower given by Quinte International Club Saturday night at the Family Y.

The four Tibetan families now living and studying here were showered by club members with household gifts.

Miss Enrica Ocdol, president of the club welcomed the guests and program director George Wilson conducted a panel discussion with the Tibetans on the customs of their native land. Interpreter was Tsering Dargee Wangkham, one of the two Tibetans who came to Belleville last fall.

This was the second party held for the Tibetans, The Indo-Canada Association entertained them earlier.

Dogs Move to Frankford

FRANKFORD (Special) — The Belleville and District Kennel Club will stage its International Dog Show in Frankford this year rather than in Belleville.

The dog show, which more than 5,000 persons are expected to attend, will be held in the new Frankford Arena on Oct. 22-23. Confirmation of the event was given to village councillors at their regular meeting Monday evening.

The first international dog show sponsored by the Belleville club was held last year at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium in Belleville.

But the building proved too small for the number of dogs entered and because the proposed dates for this year's show would have interfered with placement of ice, the club was unsuccessful in renting the Belleville Arena for the event.

Club president L. Bark and public relations officer J. Finlin are already arranging for trophies for the event which will attract dogs from a wide area.

Councillor Kenneth Lawrence, chairman of the council recreation committee, said if the Frankford arena proves satisfactory, the Belleville club would hold future exhibitions and judging at the Frankford Arena.

Name Change Is Suggested For Industrial Commission

Directors of the Belleville Industrial Commission have been asked to collider a change of name to change the emphasis to economic development instead of the image of strictly industrial progress.

One name informally proposed was the Belleville Economic and Development Council, which would parallel the Ontario government agency.

Industrial Commission chairman Ald. Gerald Joyce explained "a more descriptive name would describe activities and still work within the corporate image."

"Since they are the only promotion and public relations arm of city hall, I feel it may be worth considering a change of name," he said.

Fred Bemis, industrial commissioner, told the directors his time is based upon a 50-50 split. Half is spent on economic development, the other half on industrial prospects.

Because jobs and expansion of the city results from new industries, the commission does not want to give the impression they are limited to aiding only industrial prospects.

Drama Teacher Off to England

For many teachers and scholars of the dramatic arts, to study at the Shakespearian Institute at Stratford-on-Avon, England, is a goal worth seeking.

Sister Mary Fleurette, 10-year teacher of drama at Nicholson Catholic College, has been chosen one of only 25 to have the chance to study at the institute this summer.

"I was very, very lucky to get in," Sister Fleurette said when she announced her forthcoming trip.

Annual plays are presented by the Nicholson Drama Club under the direction of Sister Fleurette, who has studied theatre at the University of Waterloo, University of Toronto Hart House, and Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Wannamaker

A pleasant time was enjoyed recently when Mr. and Mrs. George N. Wannamaker were entertained at a family dinner on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary. The celebration was held at their home 15 Wellington Street, Frankford.

Mrs. Wannamaker is the former Laura Lyons and Rev. J. Henry Martin officiated at the wedding ceremony in Long Branch on June 11, 1921.

The couple had six children, two daughters (Ellen) Mrs. Frank Boyle and (Betty) Mrs. Ray Fox, both of Trenton and four sons, Ronald of Pembroke, B.C., Delmer of Deseronto and William and Eugene, both deceased. There are also 12 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

During this eventful occasion, the honored guests received many lovely gifts, flowers and cards along with numerous congratulatory messages.

Women Journalists Suited for PR Duties

The needs of women journalists have largely been ignored by male public relations practitioners, members of the Canadian Women's Press Club were told Saturday by Toronto public relations man Ben Vicari.

Speaking to an idea-trading session at the CWPC's Triennial Conference, Royal York Hotel, Viccari, a partner in the Toronto public relations consulting firm, Scott-Atkinson, Only, International Ltd., said that he felt his own sex did not sufficiently take into account the specialist information requirements of the women's press.

"It is only one example of what some of you ladies are now calling male chauvinist swingery, but what I prefer to call the 'Henry Higgins syndrome'" said Viccari. "P.R. men should take the blinkers off. Analysis of most communication situations will reveal a woman's side to them. They should learn from some of their female colleagues and regard them more as equals than as Galateas to their Pygmalion.

"As an employer of lady public relations practitioners since 1957, I can report nothing but delight with their efforts. Their sensitivity to any given situation, their imagination and their ability to work hard have distinguished them."

Viccari said that Canada, like the United States, had some outstanding women public relations practitioners, the best of whom had come from the ladies media.

"Unlike many of their male counterparts who are pushed upstairs from such jobs as accountancy, personnel, long range planning and other areas not remotely concerned with the written or spoken word, most of them have had direct media experience with understanding of its requirements, a vital essential if you are to communicate with other communicators."

Viccari said that both he and his two male colleagues had hired women in England. He himself had reported to Dame Susan Walker of the Central Office of the Conservative Party of the United Kingdom and Brian Hetherington had worked for Cynthia Fig and Shirley Harrison of the Fig-Harrison public relations concern.

"After all we bot only survive but were the better for such an experience" said Viccari. "We learned to ask not 'Why can't a woman be more like a man?' but to sing: 'There is nothing like a Dame!'"

Actinolite Art School Will Open June 28

TWEED — Like a smiling welcome the century - old log cabin rests on the hilltop of the Schneider School of Fine Arts near Actinolite, on RR 3, Tweed. Already stirring are the signs of preparation for the opening of the 1971 summer season by June 28th — the roomy cabin now being the school administration building.

Founded in 1963 by Mary and Roman Schneider, more than 500 holiday painters have found it just the place to enjoy summer outdoor living, outdoor and studio painting with some of Canada's leading artists. This summer with permanent managing director Mary Schneider, will be visiting artists Oscar Schlenger — week of June 28; Viktor Tinkl, Don Fraser, AOCA, John Gould, Alexander Millar, AOCA, OSA, CGP, Carl Schaefer, RCA; Jack Pollock SCA, August 23 to Labor Day weekend; and Gutton Otto, for Thanksgiving weekend.

For them the big attraction is the endless choice of scenic subject matter for painting, combined with comfortable outdoor living in hillside cedar cabins among maples and fragrant evergreens, and meals at a nearby highway dining-room. Another century - old cabin for studio painting, evening discussions of paintings of the day, movies and social activities, stands beside the Skootamatta River at the bottom of the hill.

"Ever look at houses and see faces in them?" commented John Hall, OSA, SCU, at a recent group review of Mary Schneider Art Club paintings. Perhaps he sees the face of Pierre Rajotte, when he visits the hill - top cabin at the Schneider School.

In 1854-55 Rajotte built it in Tweed, when he moved his family from Grenville. Their farm on Ile de Grace, one of many Sorel islands in the St. Lawrence River delta, had been flooded out in spring thaws. The story is that Pierre Rajotte's ancestor, Gilles Rajeot, born in Normandie France in 1642, came to Quebec about 1663.

One Crib Serves Twins

EDMONTON (CP( — If the stork arrives with unexpected twins it's not necessary to rush out and buy two of those expensive furniture items, says the Edmonton Twin and Triplet Club.

Its monthly newsletter, "Twindow," which exchanges hints from and for mothers of twins, advises trying to borrow extra pieces of furniture or to buy second-hand.

And Deanna Katona wrote that her family managed nicely with one crib until her twin girls were six months old.

A board padded with several thicknesses of sheeting was fitted through the centre bars of a large - size crib and tied securely to serve as a partition.

Clubs Hold Joint Installation of Officers

TWEED — A joint installation of officers for the Kinsmen and Kinette Clubs of Tweed was held at the Stoco Motor Hotel recently. Deputy Governor Archie Kingma of Picton installed the new executive to take office on July 1st.

The new executive for the Tweed Kinsmen Club are as follows: past - president, David Coulter; president, Robert Bush; vice - president, Jerry Hughes; secretary, Bob Bleecker; treasurer, Don Norris; directors, Tom White, John Beatty and John Thompson; bulletin editor, Maurice Carter.

The Association of Kinsmen District 6 Convention was held recently at Brockville, Several couples from Tweed attended the convention and enjoyed meeting other Kinsmen and Kinettes. The district extends from Quebec City on the East to Campbellford on the West and North to Pembroke and South to Lake Ontario.

Those attending from Tweed were: David Coulter, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Don Norris, and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bleecker. This year's 51st national convention is being held at London, Ontario, the end of August. Several couples from Tweed plan to attend and renew old friendships and meet new Kinsmen and Kinettes from across Canada.

Club Activities

KINETTE CLUB

TWEED — The final business meeting of the Tweed Kinette Club for the year was held as an open meeting at the home of Kinette Carol Norris, Monday evening, June 15.

Eleven members were in attendance and this meeting was to end the successful year the Kinettes have experienced and to tie up any loose ends of business.

There will be a joint meeting of the Kinsmen - Kinettes of Tweed clubs on Saturday, June 19 at the cottage of an honorary member, Kinette Muriel Wood, on Stoco Lake which will be the last get-together prior to the summer vacation for the club. The Tweed Kinettes have accepted an invitation to a Kinette club splash party of the Belleville Kinettes, on June 24 when the members from Tweed club will participate in the initiation of Belleville's new members.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES JOHN SMITH

Smith – Snefjella

Eastminster United Church, Belleville, was the setting on Saturday, June 12, 1971, when Anne Snefjella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Snefjella, Belleville, was united in marriage to James John Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Smith, also of Belleville. Rev. Alexander McDowell officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white voile gown trimmed with rose braid and accented at the bodice with dainty white lacing. She carried a nosegaay of white and pink carnations.

Maid of honor Miss Jodie Lavender wore a yellow and white ensemble and carried a nosegay of yellow and white mums.

R. Forrest Smith attended his brother.

After July 31, the couple will reside in Bergin, Norway.

Lonely Little Lad Picks on Baby Sister

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: This four-year-old boy comes every time his mother goes out. He knows where she is and yet forgets and starts to cry. She could be just next door and he still can't find her.

Do you think something could be wrong? He is mean to little sick smaller than himself. He picks on his little sister who is just one-and-a-half years. If you baby him he is sick and then he leaves her alone.

His father does not live with them. You just can't tell his mother anything he does like this because she doesn't believe anyone but him. What do you think is wrong? — One Who Cares

Dear One: My four-year-old should be left alone at all, even to go next door. What with having no father around, and with a mother who leaves him alone in the house, this youngster's feelings of insecurity must be something terrific.

Surely must be something terrible because she gets attention from his mother that he wants himself. His world is an unhappy one because of his lack of love.

If you can do anything to impress this woman with what her child needs, please do. If you can't, it may be your job to let a public health nurse know that this child is being left alone in his house.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am the bride's aunt. I have been asked to propose the toast to the bride and now I find that the list has grown to 200 people. I don't feel capable of speaking at such a large reception. My voice won't even carry in a hall of this size.

Should I ask her to try to find a man? Does it make it excusable for me to decline, because she has enlarged the crowd from what was at first going to be just 30 people? — Perish The Thought

Dear Perish: Oh, don't let us girls down! You've been honored to be asked; with a little effort you can make yourself heard.

If you really want to withdraw, have a talk with the bride about the large crowd, large hall and small voice. Suggest a male friend of the family to her.

Then if she insists, start practising.

* * *

Confidential to Jilted: Your two-timing swain was far too old for you. But at 17 you are old enough to be dating boys your own age.

Of course they are anxious about you. But parents can't put a gal in a little glass case and carry her around in their pocket — not forever!

* * *

Confidential to Going Places: For October in Tennessee, I would suggest light weight suits, light woolen dresses, an all-weather coat and a pant suit for shopping and sight-seeing. Take along your wig, which is a nice substitute for a hair appointment when you are moving and can't find the time. Also easy to pack.

My 10-cent leaflet, Make the Most of Your Travels will give you some good tripping ideas. I'll send it along.

Ann Landers

Widow Now Plans New Life for Herself

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband passed away 18 months ago. He was a wonderful man and we had a good life together, but I realize he is gone forever and now I must make a new life for myself.

I am 43, look younger, and have always kept myself up. I have a problem about men. The ones who have asked me out do not interest me. I see no point in accepting dates just to be seen in public with a male.

ANN LANDERS

The man I would like very much to go out with is my dentist. He was divorced several years ago and he is just about my age. (Maybe a couple of years younger.) He has always treated me in a somewhat former manner, but I believe this is just his professional posture. He sent me a condolence card when my husband passed away. I considered this a friendly gesture.

I'm a good cook and would like to prepare a delicious meal for this man. I'll bet he gets tired eating in restaurants all the time. Should I give him a call? — WONDERING IN TULSA.

DEAR WONDER: Only if you get a toothache. Nothing scares off a bachelor faster than a widow — who cooks.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter is planning to be married in the fall. We all like the young man very much. There is one small problem. My husband had a bone disease as a child and it affected his hip. He has a noticeable limp. Our daughter wants a church wedding, which means she would walk down the aisle on the arm of her father. Both my husband and my daughter are unconcerned about his handicap. They see nothing wrong with a man limping from the back of the church all the way to the altar. I'm afraid the effect might be depressing — or even ludicrous. Perhaps my brother should give the bride away. What is your opinion? — OBJECTIVE MOTHER.

DEAR OB: The only thing depressing or ludicrous is your attitude. If the father of the bride has a limp — so what? He should not be deprived of one of the greatest joys of his life simply because he has a physical handicap. Your suggestion that an uncle substitute for him is unthinkable.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two years ago when my son was barely 20 he married an 18-year-old girl because she told him she was pregnant. As it turned out she was not, which was a big relief because she would have been a very poor mother.

Zora comes from a family of alcoholics and mental defectives. It nearly killed me when my son married but I kept my mouth shut. The girl did not graduate from high school. She ignored all suggestions that she enroll in night school and get a diploma. She sleeps all day, reads garbage, watches TV all night, does no housework and drinks beer with her neighbors. A good marriage this isn't.

Last night my son called and asked if he could drop over with a surprise. I said, "Of course." He came in with an attractive young woman who seemed well educated and beautifully mannered. I was cordial. Period. This morning my son called and asked, "How do you like her?" I replied, "As far as I am concerned you are a married man. I have nothing more to say."

My husband says I let the boy down. He says our son was seeking approval and I should have given it. Is he right? — HIS MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: No — he is not right. Your son showed irresponsibility and poor taste. He is still married and he should not be bringing a girl to your house for approval, or for anything else.

Babies who have slipped peacefully off to sleep until about age 2 suddenly find it's more fun to stay in the living room where the big folk are. However, going to bed can be fun, too, and if you establish a routine. After a bit of cuddling and quiet talk or play, most tots will be ready to be popped into bed for sleep. The secret: Don't vary the routine and don't rush it.

Serbian Recipe Using Apples

By MARY MOORE

Grandmother for Serbians is "Baka" and one of our regular readers sent me one of her sister's Serbian mother-in-law's recipes. It is an apple cake that Mary H. tells me was often used at Serbian weddings.

I was so intrigued with this lovely recipe that yesterday when the temperature was 86 degrees I turned on the oven to warm things up a little more and made it.

It was so delicious I immediately took a portion over to my sisters for their dessert.

BAKA'S SERBIAN APPLE CAKE

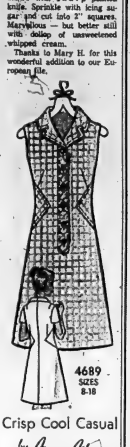
DOUGH:
2½ cups stirred but unsifted cake and pastry flour
2 tbsps. baking powder
9 tbsps. sugar (¼ cup plus 1 tbsp.)
¾ lb. butter (no substitute)
2 egg yolks
6 tbsps. milk

FILLING:
4 cups shredded apples
2-3 cup sugar
1 tsp. cinnamon



Make the dough (or pastry) by cutting the butter into the flour, baking powder and sugar with a pastry blender as you would for pastry — until size of large peas. Add the egg yolks and tossing with a fork, drizzle in the milk. With your warm palms pack into a ball and cut in half. Press one half evenly onto a large cookie sheet into an 8½" x 14" oblong with straight sides. Chill remaining dough.

To make Filling wash and pare six apples and sliced on ¼" shredder. Squeeze excess juice from them in colander by pressing with the bottom of your 2-cup measure. (Be sure to do this or filling will be juicy and leak out of baking cake.) Spread squeezed out apples over dough on cookie sheet perfectly uniformly to within ½" of edges. Sprinkle evenly with sugar and cinnamon. Now roll out on floured board remaining dough about ½" wider and longer than bottom. Loosen with two lifters and fold over. This dough is very tender. Transfer to half cover apples using two lifters. Unfold to fully cover apples. Press edges together with your finger tips. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr.

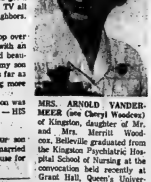
Sr. Citizens Club Given Official Charter

TWEED — On Monday of this week, the Tweed Senior Citizens' Club obtained their official charter and joined the United Senior Citizens' Clubs of Ontario.



A week ago was a busy one for Club members, who held a regular meeting in St. James' Anglican Hall, with 41 members and visitors present, including three new members.

The club received an invitation to visit O'Hara's Mill on Wednesday, June 23. Lunch will be provided. This will be the final meeting for the summer season as the Club will not meet during July and August. Mrs. Glenn Hagerman and Mr. Arthur McCarry were appointed at this time to plan a program for the first meeting in September.

Club members were guests of the Canniffon Senior Citizens at a tea and bazaar held at Canniffon earlier this month.

Subsequent to the Ontario Housing Corporation survey to ascertain the need for Senior Citizens' housing in Tweed, a representative from OHC, Toronto, was present at the June 8 meeting to further discuss the project.

Over 100 preliminary questionnaires were completed and returned to OHC. Application forms will be sent to those who have been contacted by the OHC representative. It depends upon the response to the applications whether or not Senior Citizens' housing will be built in Tweed.

MRS. ARNOLD VANDERMEER (nee Cheryl Woodcox) of Kingston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Woodcox, Belleville graduated from the Kingston Psychiatric Hospital School of Nursing at the convocation held recently at Grant Hall, Queen's University. Mrs. Vandermeer is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School.

End of Federal Estate and Gift Taxes Big Budget Surprise

Toronto lawyer Ronald Robertson, a former director of the Canadian Tax Foundation and member of the Carter Commission finance committee on white paper tax reform, wrote this assessment of one aspect of last week's tax reform proposals at the request of The Canadian Press.

By RONALD ROBERTSON

The biggest tax-policy surprise in Finance Minister Benson's tax-reform proposals was his almost casual announcement that the federal government will abolish rather than lighten federal estate and gift taxes Jan. 1, 1972.

It leaves as the most important unanswered tax-reform question: Will the provinces step into the void?

If the provinces do nothing, there would be some startling results which could start a tax debate of major proportions.

The provinces are not now geared for the collection of gift tax, except indirectly in British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec which do have succession duties covering gifts made within five years of death.

Two provinces, Alberta and Saskatchewan, have virtually withdrawn from the death-tax field by rebating their portion of the province's federally-collected tax.

Ontario's argument that the imposition of a capital-gains tax reduced the need for death taxes was one which Mr. Benson used in his budget speech. Ontario's tax committee recommended a provincial gift tax in 1967.

It seems probable that at least some of the provinces will move in, perhaps with Ottawa collecting for them-for a time. If any do not, there is sure to be some fast and fanciful estate planning.

If there is the slightest gap between the end of the federal taxes and a start of provincial taxes, it may be possible to regain assets on which taxes without gift by way of a gift for the first time since 1935 or upon death for the first time since the turn of the century.

At present such gifts are taxed at the effective rate of up to 50 per cent under the integrated federal gift and estate tax laws which were tightened by Mr. Benson as recently as 1968 in one of the first reform moves. The tightening was on transfers other than between spouses on which gift and estate taxes were eliminated.

On the passage of property to other than spouses, anything over $200,000 is taxed at 50 per cent and gifts made during a person's lifetime are accumulated to bring up the total for rate purposes. The 1968 change was in answer to the Carter commission recommendation that gifts and bequests be taxed in the recipient's hands as income at the regular income-tax rates, up to 50 per cent.

If the provinces do nothing, a person dying one minute before midnight Dec. 31, 1971, with a sizeable estate going to anyone other than a spouse would have it cut by half by federal estate taxes, but with the province of his domicile getting 75 per cent of the tax.

In Alberta and Saskatchewan, that 75 per cent would find its way back to the heirs. Alberta started this trend away from death taxes several years ago and this trend appears to have been a main factor in Mr. Benson's conclusion.

If the person survived until a minute into 1972, in all but British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec, there would be no tax on the passing of property. In those three provinces, there would be a tax of about half what it would otherwise be.

Heirs who have struggled to meet the heavy death taxes in recent years, sometimes, probably, at the cost of controlling a family business, will no doubt feel aggrieved for themselves if not their heirs.

Auditor main rationale for lowering or eliminating death taxes at this time is the impending capital-gains tax. This is not to become effective until 1972, which means that capital gains accrued up to that date, will be subject to neither estate gift nor capital gains tax in most provinces.

The province or provinces that do not step in with a gift tax can expect an increase in the number of temporarily-wealthy residents. Gift tax is based on residence rather than domicile. Residence is easier to change than domicile and can be relatively temporary. By moving to a gift-tax-free province, the family business or other estate can be passed along to the next generation intact, providing the donor survives the years-before-death provisions in the province of domicile.

The scope for inter-provincial rivalry is wide in this area. The scope for argument of the social necessity or otherwise of taxing property passing between generations, even wider.

The argument has gone on since the days of the Roman Empire to which death taxes can be traced. Given the spectrum of political philosophy of the provincial governments across Canada to whom Mr. Benson has thrown the problem, the arguments could possibly lead to a major reopening of the whole tax-reform debate. However, arrangement with the provinces could resolve the matter quickly before such a debate gets started.

If the void is not filled by the provinces, there will be some dismayed tax reformers, particularly among tax economists who were the strongest supporters of the Carter commission proposal to tax gifts and bequests as ordinary income. They saw the integration of the gift and estate taxes as implemented by Mr. Benson to some at a second best. The taxing of capital gains is no substitute under the commission's approach which would also have taxed capital gains at full rates, and at death.

There would not, however, have been tax on transfers within the "family unit."

This double impact will to be alleviated by elaborate averaging provisions. The reasoning here was simply that capital gains are another form of income accruing year to year.

Not taxing them annually, in their view, was a concession to the practical difficulties of measuring the gain annually, and this gave a preference to such gains over ordinary income. In no sense, in this view, was a capital gains tax a substitute for either death and gift taxes, or the inclusion of gifts and bequests in the income of the recipient.

Budget Debate Starts Today

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons begins up to six days of debate today on Finance Minister E. J. Benson's budget and tax reform proposals.

By a scheduling change approved last week, the House sits at 11 a.m. EDT Mondays and Tuesdays rather than the usual 2 p.m. on those days. Evenings will be spent debating other legislation.

Barring last minute delays, the House is due to rise for the summer recess Wednesday, June 30. It will resume sittings Sept. 7.

Highlights of the budget included removal of the three-per-cent surcharge on personal and corporate income effective July 1, removal of the 15-per-cent excise tax on electronic equipment, tax reductions for the poor and pensioners and removal of sales taxes on margarine and acid-pollution equipment.

Two other features are the start of a capital gains tax, and removal of death and estate taxes.

Hees Says Fall Vote Is Certain

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal Conservatives met during the weekend and decided the goodies in the government's budget make it certain there will be an election in the fall, one party spokesman says.

"There is not the slightest doubt in any of our minds," George Hees (Prince Edward-Hastings) told reporters Sunday.

"I have no idea," Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield replied to the question of election timing.

"I can't read the government's mind."

Mr. Hees, who was chairman for the two-day caucus session, said he knew because public servants had told him the economy would soar next winter and because "if you don't get a feel of the game after 20 years you're awfully stupid."

It was the "general consensus" of the caucus that the election would be called in September and held late in October. He had already bet numerous bottles of whisky on it.

Emerging from a Liberal caucus—the agenda of which is always secret—Mr. Trudeau said elections were not discussed.

"We never talk about elections."

Mr. Trudeau said the cabinet would make a final, formal decision this week whether to accept the constitutional charter proposed at the Victoria federal-provincial conference.

The federal and provincial governments have until June 28 to accept or reject the package.

The prime minister welcomed the report from Mr. Hees that the Conservatives would not fight the constitutional proposal when it comes before the Commons.

Mr. Hees told a news conference that the Conservatives spent the first 3½ hours of their meeting discussing the budget brought down Friday. The next day and a half were spent on campaign strategy.

Mr. Hees said the budget would fail to stimulate the economy, but was designed to please as many voters as possible.

Mr. Hees said he had contacts in the finance department who have told him—and the government—they predict worsening unemployment next winter along with renewed inflation.

The government had decided it would be "impractical to take the pounding next winter" from the Commons opposition, press and public.

It would not wait long after handing out the goodies in the budget to call an election.

"We are looking forward to fighting an election," Mr. Hees said.

The party was far better prepared for a campaign than ever since 1930.

But he declined to describe the Conservative strategy.

Ontario Gains Tax Advocated

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, has called for a provincial tax on the 50 per cent of capital gains that will not be covered by the federal government under proposals announced in Friday's budget.

Mr. Lewis, in a press release Sunday, also urged the introduction of a provincial inheritance tax to replace the federal tax being dropped in 1972.

He described the tax cuts in the new budget handed down by Finance Minister Edgar Benson, as welcome relief, but said too much of the cuts were going to upper income groups "whose savings are at an above average level already and who will not put their cuts in the spending or investment stream.

United Church of Christ Report

Most Draft Dodgers in Canada Intend to Make Homes Here

NEW YORK (CP) — A study released by an American church says that the majority of the 30,000 Americans draft resisters and dodgers it estimates are in Canada would not return to the U.S. even if the opportunity were given them.

"While concern exists for the United States, the majority have come to Canada to make it their home," says the study released by the United Church of Christ.

"Perhaps hardest for parents and friends to understand is that their children have made the decision to leave permanently. Except for the fact that they will be unable to visit family and friends back home, few express regrets over being unable to return to the United States."

Emphasizing the permanence of the Americans, the 113-page study is entitled They Can't Go Home Again.

It was released Saturday in hard and soft cover books by Pilgrim Press, an imprint of the United Church Press.

United Church Press is an organ of the United Church of Christ, a two million-member Protestant denomination created by the merger of the congregational Christian, Evangelical and Reformed churches.

The study was written by Rev. Richard L. Killmer, a Presbyterian minister who has been associated with an anti-Vietnam war group and belongs to a national association providing pastoral help for the parents of those who have fled to Canada; Rev. Robert S. Lecky, author and associate director of the department of ministry of the National Council of Churches and Debrah S. Wiley, a staff member of a religious magazine called Witness. Report, who has travelled extensively in Canada.

The authors conducted or had conducted for them interviews with 20 draft resisters or dodgers across Canada.

The authors record, some praise for Canada and give a balanced picture of Canadian nationalism and fears of American dominations.

The study says that disagreement over the Vietnam war is not the only reason for the fact the young persons have moved to Canada, a statement that is supported by increased emigration by Americans of all ages to Canada of late.

"The exodus is not only a 'no' to its military policies in Southeast Asia, but it is a 'no' to the quality of life and the style of the United States generally.

Carol Armstrong Heads West

Ex-champ Travelling Economy Class

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Carol Armstrong, who brought ten Canadian titles back to Belleville in 1967-68, is ending a year-long retirement in quest of a spot on the Canadian archery team for next month's world championships in York County, England.

The eight team spots will be decided at the Canadian championships July 5-8 in the Vancouver suburb of Richmond. Sunday, Carol, husband Floyd, children Donna and Tony, and a baby-sitter packed themselves into the family car and headed west towing a camper-trailer.

"Even this way it's going to cost us about $1,000," said husband Floyd, who convinced Carol to quit her office job after she finished third in last month's Ontario championships to devote all her time to training.

Financial headaches have always posed a greater threat to Carol Armstrong's archery than the ability to fire arrows 70 metres into a four-inch circle.

"It's even worse than it was a few years ago. We thought when the women's team came second at the world championships at Valley Forge in '69 that we'd get a royal reception when we got back," Carol recalls, with a touch of bitterness. "Instead, the government cut all the archery grants. They said we weren't a priority sport."

Carol packed in her bow a couple of years ago. She could literally not afford to be Canadian champion. There were the plane tickets, living allowances, and baby-sitting to pay for, and the shoot she ever got from government agencies was one over plane fare — after she'd won each of her two Canadian women's titles.

"The city gave me $200 once — and I really appreciated that," she was saying in the midst of packing and road-map plotting Saturday afternoon. "But it costs a lot of money to compete. When I won my first national title at Saskatoon, I had $5 in my pocket for three days."

For Carol and husband Floyd, the 1971 Canadians at Richmond represent the final financial screw. "If Carol makes the Canadian team and we don't get some sort of assistance, she just won't be able to go to the Worlds," says Floyd, who, along with Tyendinaga John Whidden round out the Belleville Archery Club contingent in Richmond.

His attractive, 31-year-old wife has a special incentive for regaining her championship form. Archery is on the agenda of the 1972 Olympics for the first time in nearly 50 years.

"I'm scared to death — I haven't been in a big shoot for so long," Carol said. "But I seem to shoot my best under pressure."

Whatever the outcome, Carol has the consolation of knowing she has some people in her corner. "The girls in the office where I was working took up a collection and raised $25 for me," she blushed. "I got all gushy on them."

Beading Again

Carol Armstrong, former two-time winner of the Canadian women's archery crown, has ended a year's retirement from competitive shooting and is drawing a bead on the upcoming Canadian championships in Richmond, B.C. In the background is camper-trailer the Armstrong family will drive to the July 5-8 event.

County Field Day

Elementary Schools on Mark

A total of over 700 elementary school students will be on their mark Tuesday for the second annual Hastings County Track and Field meet.

The top three competitors from the five area meets, held previously, will be contesting first place in seven track and four field events to be held at Centennial Secondary School.

District Three (Belleville west of Moira River) will be looking to defend the title which it won last year when the events get under way at 9 a.m. The closing ceremonies are scheduled for 4 p.m. The separate schools were to hold their annual meet at Centennial today, weather permitting.

Basketball Back

Belleville basketball enthusiasts will again have the opportunity to practise their skills this summer. For the second year a summer basketball league is in the planning.

Organizers are hoping for an expansion of the six teams in operation last year and all interested parties are invited to the registration meeting tonight at Moira Secondary School from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

Juniors in Tune For Third Time

BOWMANVILLE — Rick Meagher provided the frequency, Glenn Carleton the amplitude and Garnie Adams the pitch as the Belleville Kinsmen Juniors tuned out Bowmanville 8-3 Sunday.

RICK MEAGHER

Meagher collected three singles and two sacrifices in five trips to the plate, while Carleton blasted a key three - run homer for the Kinsmen and Adams turned in a strong mound performance as Belleville collected their third consecutive Lakeshore Intermediate Baseball League victory.

Carleton's drive came in the fifth inning breaking a 2-2 deadlock to send the Kinsmen out ahead for the duration of the contest. A single by Wayne Andrews and a walk to Steve Moore put two runners on base preceding Carleton's clout.

Adams, the team's playing-manager, fired seven-hit ball to record the win. The slim right-hander slipped third strikes past two batters while issuing two walks. He picked two runners off base during the nine-inning stint.

Meagher drove in four runs and scored one himself to pace the ten-hit Belleville attack against starter Guy Parks and reliever Guy Akey. The pair gave up three free passes and fanned eight batters.

Wayne Andrews added a double and single to the Belleville cause with Barry Culkin and Paul Hall each accounting for two base hits.

Leo Kelly had a homer for the Bowmanville Intermediates.

The Belleville Juniors, who lost the services of catcher Steve Bedard for a couple of games wth a dislocated thumb, will play their next home game Wednesday night at eight o'clock against Port Hope.

Drivers Locked Out

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — No lights, new pavilocks and a Supreme Court ruling joined forces at Morrow Park Saturday night to stem an attempt by the Peterborough Driving Club to hold a race meet "regardless."

Despite a turnout of more than 70 drivers, a group of security police and a handful of racing fans, the racing club was forced to concede it found all necessary facilities pavilocked and the power for the lights and score board cut.

Elwood McDonald, treasurer of the driving club, announced at 7 p.m. Saturday that the racing was called off because of lack of lights and facilities. He had assured horsemen earlier in the day that there would be racing.

The Peterborough Agricultural Society which controls all racing facilities at nearby Morrow Park had ordered track electrical power cut and new padlocks installed in the grandstands and judges stand Saturday morning.

A force of 30 security men from the Cosmopolitan Security Company in Toronto was on hand early Saturday night.

Walter Neeser said they had been hired to ensure that "padlocking interrupted the races." McDonald said they were hired as a "precautionary measure just to maintain law and order."

Some of the horsemen who came from up to 100 miles away expecting to race were not happy with the decision.

Some of the drivers suggested that they would no longer race at the driving club but "something such as this hurts everybody — horseman and public alike."

Earlier, the Jaspreme Court of Ontario had refused to continue an injunction which was allowing the driving club to race at Morrow Parks. After a meeting Thursday, the driving club announced they were going to race "regardless."

The agricultural society in turn threatened criminal prosecution if the club attempted to race on Saturday.

Ladies First

This winning twosome couldn't be beaten at Saturday night's Quinte Exhibition Raceway weekly harness racing card. Irene Clissold of Amherstview, the only licenced female harness driver in the area, won the fourth race reining Vesper, a six-year-old mare.

Who Says Harness Drivers Aren't Polite?

By MAURICE SWITZER

The fourth race on Saturday's third Quinte Exhibition Raceway card of the season was a polite affair, strictly a case of ladies before gentlemen.

Amherstview driver Irene Clissold won her second race in her one - year harness racing career by reining Vesper to her maiden win in a 2.16.4 photo finish.

"We came to the right place," Miss Clissold, 21, beamed after her first appearance on the Belleville track this year. The only woman harness driver in the area has been behind Vesper since Wade Island owner Larry Staley bought the six - year - old mare to Toronto last fall.

"That's her eleventh start this year. We're going to Richmond Carleton next weekend, but now I expect we'll be back here the following Saturday," she said after edging Norm Edwards and Smokey Valley at the wire before the Fairgrounds largest paid harness crowd on record — 1,352.

Miss Clissold, a striking short - cropped strawberry blonde, got her driving license just over a year ago. Her only win before Saturday night was a Kingston track success last summer.

How does a gal get into a harness sulky?

"When I was around nine years old, I used to help around the Kingston farm," she replied. "Then my parents got me a saddle horse when we moved out to Amherstview. I got into harness racing when I bought half of Princess Magic.

"No, I can't say I've had any special problems," she says of her participation in a male - dominated field. At least half a dozen people agree with her the six male drivers she beat to the wire Saturday night.

Cup Comes Home to Roost

TRENTON (Special) — The historic Quinte Cup will roost on the Bay of Quinte Country Club mantel for the 12th time.

The nine-man Belleville contingent recaptured the trophy lost to Napanee two years ago on Sunday's 49th renewal of the Belleville - Picton - Trenton - Napanee team rivalry.

This year's draw had the Quinte golfers paired with Picton in the morning and defending champion Napanee for the nine afternoon matches.

Getting two wins each from ace captain John Woodcroft, Max Haggarty, Bill Miller, and Tom Lorney, the Quinte contingent compiled 25 out of a possible 36 points, based on two points for match wins, and one for ties.

The host Trenton team, who was tied with Quinte after morning matches with Napanee, wound up in second spot with 22 points. Picton accumulated 14 points from their 18 matches, while Napanee, winners the past two years, had trouble with the slick Trenton Country Club greens and brought up the rear with 11 points.

Belleville had four - year monopoly on the annual challenge before Napanee recorded wins '15 and 16 the past two years.

The 1972 matches, marking the 50th anniversary of the Quinte Cup, will be staged in Picton, where the rivalry began.

Bill Bottles Jam

Bill Barberstock pitched himself out of a bases-loaded jam in the seventh inning to help Shannonville hold on to a 2-1 South Hastings League win over Plane's Saturday night.

Barberstock checked the league leaders on six hits while walking one batter and fanning six. He allowed only one run in the seventh when Plane's filled the bases to threaten a 2-0 Shannonville lead.

Bud Hill cracked a double and single for the winners with the other hits going to Ken Genereaux, Blaine Loft and Pete Young. In defeat, it was Warren Hay with a double and Larry Lewis, Ken Abrahm, Larry Adams, Bud Wannamaker and Bernie Coughlan with singles.

Course Cured

Hipson took the Barrett Trophy by four strokes over runner-up Don Tracey who had a low gross of 83. Third place went to Fred Smith with a round of 86.

The most honest golfer award in the field of 33 went to Lee Garrett for turning in a round of 154.

Third Game Hard to Swallow

OTTAWA (Special) — Rollins Construction had their first taste of tournament action over the weekend and while the first two courses suited their flavor buds the dessert brought nothing but indigestion.

The local Commercial Softball League leaders breezed through the opening two rounds of the Ottawa Open Fastball Tournament by stopping the Hull Wizets 4-0 on Saturday and hammering the Ottawa Montagards 14-0 on Sunday. Their victory celebrations were quickly doused though as the Montreal Combines blanked Rollins 5-0 in the tourney finale.

Scott Reid pitched all three games for the Builders and was touched for ten hits in the final - game loss. Unlike the previous two games, Reid received little batting support from his team-mates as Ralph Place was the only one able to out-guess Montreal hurler Fred Burley.

In the opening game against Hull, Reid fired five - hit ball and got all the help he needed in the form of Dale Duvall's three run homer and Larry Mavety's two base hit.

Three hits apiece from Wayne McTaggart, Ted Waite and Paul Goodfellow led the Rollins to their convincing victory over Ottawa. Reid allowed only two hits. He totalled 25 strikeouts in the three games.

Playoff Pits Nicklaus And Nemesis

Nicklaus and Trevino wound up in a tie Sunday after 72 holes, when Trevino missed a six-foot putt and went one-over par on the 18th hole, while Nicklaus two putted for a par on the same green. They each scored a par 280 for the 72-hole test over Merion Golf Club's short but demanding course.

Nicklaus posted rounds of 69-72-68-71 and Trevino 70-72-69-69 to set up the 35th playoff in U.S. Open history.

Third-round leader Jim Simons, the 21-year-old amateur from Butler, Pa., who led after three rounds, buckled under the intense pressure, went two-over par on the final hole and wound up with a six-over-par 76, tied for sixth place.

Trevino shot a one-under-par 69 Sunday to come from four strokes off the 54-hole pace to a tie and playoff.

Trevino told of how Nicklaus gave him words of encouragement last February.

"He (Nicklaus) said 'let me tell you something.' He said 'you can play any place you want to' and I hope you never find out how good you can play because it will give the rest of us a little better chance to win."

"It was really something coming from a man who is the best in his profession saying that I am one of the best," said Trevino said. And he gave me some encouragement. And since then I've set the record. I've been right there knocking on the door for the last six weeks."

Trevino tied for the lead on the 12th hole of Sunday's final round over the 6,544-yard Merion course, treacherous layout of 134 bunkers.

On the 13th, Trevino said he made a shot he almost didn't believe. He hit a nine iron that almost ran over the green, but the backspin and downward slope of the green left the ball inches from he hole. He sank the putt for a one-under-par three tying him with Nicklaus and Simons, who were playing together.

Trevino took the lead at the 14th where he put his drive in the fairway and his second shot about 12 inches to the left of the pin and made the putt to go one under for the tournament, a stroke ahead of Nicklaus.

The five-foot-five Trevino only had to make par at 18, and he would have forced Nicklaus to birdie at least one of the last two holes to tie. However, his second shot went to far rough near the right rear of the green. He chipped to within six feet and missed for a one-over par five.

Nicklaus, who is seeking his 12th major golf championship, only one behind the record 13 earned by Ben Hogan, had trouble all day with one of his best clubs, the three wood. He couldn't keep the ball in the fairway.

Nicklaus knew that he could win it all with a one under par at 18. His booming drive was the best he hit all day, and he hit a four iron to the green 12 to 15 feet from the pin.

"Actually it was an easy putt," Nicklaus related. "It was straight and I must have pulled it a few inches off." Then he tapped in for his par and a tie.

JUMPING FOR JOY — Jockey Sandy Hawley leaps high out of the saddle in the winner's circle at Woodbine racetrack in Toronto Saturday after riding Kennedy Road to victory in the 112th Queen's Plate. At left is Art Stollery, breeder of the horse, and behind him are Governor-General and Mrs. Michener. (CP Wirephoto)

The Colt Nobody Wanted Wins Queen's Plate in Walk

TORONTO (CP) — Kennedy Road, the lean mahogany colt nobody wanted, emerges today as the top Canadian-bred three-year-old of his generation after winning the Queen's Plate Saturday with indisputable ease.

The big bay son of Victoria Park, running with the poise of a champion, thrilled a crowd of 30,813 in 85-degree weather at Woodbine racetrack as he romped to a 3½-length victory in the 112th running of the Plate.

Kennedy Road, the overwhelming 2-5 favorite, surged into the lead midway in the far turn, with Sandy Hawley aboard, and galloped to the wire over Fabe Count, owned by last year's Plate winner, Parkview Stable.

His time for the 1¼ mile classic was 2:03, one second slower than the record established by his sire Victoria Park, in 1960.

Saul Wagman's Great Gabe won a four-horse photo finish for third place, finishing in front of Preston Gilfoble's Cool Moon. Bennet Farm's Briarcrist and Gardiner Farm's Exciting Cavalier.

Kennedy Road paid $2.90, $2.70 and $2.50 to his backers. Fabe Count, a 30-1 shot, won $16.735 for owner Malcolm Smith last year's Plate winner, and paid $9.80 and $5.60 for those who bet him to place and show. Great Gabe, who went to the post at 50-1, picked up $6,367.50 for owner Wagman. He paid $9 to show.

Fourth place was worth $4,182.75 to Gilbride, who purchased Cool Moon two months ago.

Kennedy Road's victory was worth $54,288.75 for his owner, Mrs. Art Stollery of Toronto, who with her husband enjoyed a successful week of racing by winning the Canadian Oaks the previous Saturday with Lauries Dancer and the Plate Trial last Sunday. The three purses totalled $92,733.75.

Stollery, 56, who bred Kennedy Road, said after the Queen's Plate victory: "This is a thrill, but winning the Oaks with Laurie last week was a little bigger thrill. Kennedy has always done well and you kind of expect it."

As Stollery walked across the track, he said of his Plate winner:

"And just think, anybody could have had Kennedy, Laurie and the other horse (Gallant Glen) for $90,000 last spring. I priced them at $30,000 apiece before they got to the races, but I didn't have any buyers."

The big question now is Kennedy Road's next start.

The Manitoba Derby in Winnipeg July 17 has been mentioned but trainer Jim Bentley said Sunday he was undecided. He revealed, however, that Stollery has made the final nomination payment for the $100,000 added 1¼-mile Hollywood Derby in Los Angeles July 10.

After the race Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Stollery said they plan to race here in the United States in find out how good the colt is.

Stollery said: "We'll pick our spots, put blinkers on him and we'll take any of them."

Kennedy Road is not new to U.S. competition. As Canada's top two-year-old he had a fling at it last year when he was sent to the Remsen Stakes at Aqueduct. He was involved in a tangle coming out of the gate and chipped a bone in his left hind ankle. He finished seventh. The resulting injury kept him out of the three-year-old races in the U.S. early this year.

Kennedy Road's win gave the Stollerys their first Plate victory, but it was the second in a row for the 22-year-old Hawley, who won last year with Almoner.

Winning of two successive Plates was last accomplished by Chris Rogers when the Hamilton rider won in 1949 on Epic and 1950 on McGill. Ironically, Hawley, a 22-year-old from Oshawa, Ont. and North America's leading rider last year, went to the post eight times on Canada's nine-race card and won only once—the Plate.

Hawley said he hit his colt at the top of the stretch, but it wasn't to get more run out of him.

"He was waiting for horses to come to him and I hit him once to keep his mind on running. I didn't want him on the rail, but if anybody had come up on the outside of him, I'd have let him drift out a bit to let him see better."

Open Victory Morale Boost For Knudson

TORONTO (CP) — Last week George Knudson admitted he was playing bad golf and said he needed a morale booster.

On Saturday, the 33-year-old Toronto professional got just that as he captured the Ontario open golf championship with a 54-hole score of 207, six under par.

Knudson started the final day tied with Jack Kay, a Toronto professional making a comeback, and one stroke behind the perennial amateur threat, Gary Cowan of Kitchener.

Kay waged the par-five third hole to go one up and Cowan started slipping on the Weston Golf and Country Club's 6,434-yard course.

It wasn't until the 15th, that Knudson caught Kay by going one under on the par three, 189-yard hole and passed him with another one-under on the par-five, 536-yard 18th. Kay couldn't do better than par on either hole.

The win meant $3,000 to Knudson as well as the Peter Jackson trophy. Kay picked up $2,250.

It was the first time Knudson had entered the Open in 10 years. He has only entered three and won them all, including 1961 and 1960.

Ken Fulton, 27, of Ste. Julie de Verchieres, Que., shot a 69 Saturday, best round of the championship, and gained a tie with two others for fourth place.

They were veterans Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont. and Gery Proulx, a Montreal-area professional from St. Eustache, Que. The three made $1,300 each.

Ben Kern of Weston, Ont. was alone at even par 213, closing with a round of 70 to go with his earlier 71-72.

A field of 138 started play in the championship which was held under hot, humid conditions. Saturday, as TI finalists teed off the temperatures soared into the high 80s. More than 6,000 spectators lined the fairways and greens.

GEORGE KNUDSON

John Elliot of Florida, who married the former Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., had 216.

Stu Hamilton of Brampton was the top amateur-high amateur with rounds of 70, 76, and 70 for 216.

Barbara Best Over Bar

ORANGEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Barbara Simpson of Calgary outjumped top riders from Canada and the United States Saturday to win the $5,000 Bohemian's Grand Prix of Dufferin.

In the final moments of the event, Miss Simpson faged a jump-off with both her horses, Magnor and Australis, involved in a five-way tie for first place.

Magnor produced an unbeatable round on the tough international course, knocking down fences and accomplishing the course in 51.7 seconds.

Terchy Allen of Marguerite, Que., on Pistol Pete bobbled a single bar on the final jump for fourth place and second place in the jump-off.

Sue Stephens of Palmetto, Fla., who qualified both Tooche, owned by Patrick Butler of Minneapolis and Houdini, owned by Eddie Bourbeau of Quebec City, had to settle for fourth and fifth places with 12 faults for each mount.

Australis was third behind Pistol Pete, also with four faults but with a slower time.

The Grand Prix is the third of four events in a selection series to nominate Canada's Pan-American Games equestrian team.

Standings after the three events gave Miss Simpson 78 points, three more than Miller. In third place was Jim Elder of Aurora with 49 points, followed by Ian Millar of Aylmer, Que. with 66.

The final event will be held June 27 in Toronto.

Trainer Feels Albatross Can Pace 1:54

MONTREAL (CP) — Trainer Joe Wideman feels that one day Albatross will pace the mile in 1:54.

"He's good enough to do it," Wideman said Sunday after the three-year-old's super win over $75,000 Prix d'Eté at Blue Bonnets.

"He's an easy horse to work, you just put him on the track, point him in the right direction and away he goes."

That seemed to be the winning formula Sunday.

Albatross, with driver Stanley Dancer in the sulky, sat back for the first quarter-mile of the race, took over first place from Yankee Rocket at the half-mile pect and stayed in front to finish 4½ lengths ahead of Dexter Hanover.

He was timed at 1:57 2-5, the fastest mile paced this season at the Montreal racing oval and one-fifth of a second faster than his winning time at Brandywine Racetrack in the first leg of harness racing's Triple Crown.

"I never did let Albatross go flat out," Dancer said after the race.

"There was no need to; no one gave us a real serious challenge and it would be silly to take chances with a horse like this."

Albatross was never seriously threatened after the half-mile pole as Dancer kept him four to five lengths ahead of the eight-horse field to the finish.

"We stayed far enough ahead to discourage anybody from making a serious run at us and yet close enough to the pack so Albatross wouldn't go flat out," Wideman said.

Tie win was Albatross' fifth straight.

Keith Waple's Ron Rob Tarios broke stride shortly after the race began but regained his composure and seemed ready to make a strong bid for the lead after Albatross went in front just at the half-mile pole.

In eighth position, the horse put on a burst of speed over a 50 yard stretch which carried him past the rest of the field and into second place. But Ron Rob Tarios broke stride again and finished a dismal eighth.

Napoleon and, with former world champion Herve Filion in the sulky, challenged early in the race but could not get untracked and finished fifth.

A first-place purse of $37,500 pushed Albatross' lifetime earnings to $349,528. The pacer has been racing for just over a year.

The three-year-old was purchased last winter by a racing syndicate in Pittsburgh, Pa., and makes his home at Alhatross Stables there.

He is entered in 21 more stakes races this season, including the Trans-Canada Pace at Blue Bonnets next Sunday.

"You know, all he has to do is win about 10 of those 21 races and his earnings will be nudging the $600,000 mark," Wideman said.

"He's the horse to do it, too."

The mutuel prices indicated the betting public's respect for Albatross as he returned $2.30 and $2.10. Dexter Hanover paid $4.60 in second place and both horses combined for a $12.20 quinella payoff.

Pilous Goes to Wheat Kings

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — Rudy Pilous, former coach of Chicago Black Hawks, has been appointed executive general manager of Brandon Wheat Kings.

The appointment was announced Friday night by Bruce Kent, president of the Western Canada Hockey League club.

Pilous, who led the Hawks to a Stanley Cup in 1961 and last year coach Denver Broncos of the Western League, is a Winnipeg native who was owner-coach for nine years of St. Catharines Teepees of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series.

* * *

TORONTO (CP) — Despite adverse weather conditions, Debbie Van Kietchelt of Scarborough Central Lions and Penny Stuart of British Columbia Internationals each scored more than 5,000 points during the weekend in the Canadian pentathlon championships.

RUDY PILOUS

The points totals broke the North American women's record and established Canada as the team to beat in the event in the Pan-Am Games at Cali, Colombia, July 30-Aug. 13.

* * *

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Braves, the Boston Bruins' new affiliate in the American Hockey League, announced Saturday that more than 7,000 season tickets had been sold for the 1971-72 season at the Boston Garden. All season tickets at the top price of $4 a seat already have been sold.

* * *

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League announced Sunday that Peter Della Riva was to undergo surgery on his left knee. Dr. Ted Percy, team doctor, said the offensive end tore ligaments in the knee during a scrimmage and will be out of action until August.

* * *

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ken Harrelson, Cleveland Indians outfielder-first baseman, confirmed Saturday he will retire from baseball today to try playing professional golf.

* * *

EDMONTON (CP) — Mark Donohoe of Medita, Pa., after trailing for most of the first 50 laps, won the fourth race Monday of the 1971 Trans-Am road racing series.

Donohoe, in a Javelin, picked up $4,000 and nine points in the standings, leaving him three points behind the series leader, George Follmer of Arcadia, Calif., who finished second in his Mustang and picked up six points.

Joe Chamberlain of Portland, Ore., was third in a Camaro.

Umpire Intervenes

Tempers Still Flaring In Tiger-Indian Series

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chuck Hinton's 11th-inning home run gave Cleveland Indians a 7-6 victory in the first game of a doubleheader against Detroit Tigers and they led by the same score after seven innings of the nightcap as several rows of fights behind the plate blew over.

The contest was suspended until Sept. 28, when Detroit next visits Cleveland.

The two teams staged a wild free-for-all Friday night and it looked like more of the same in Sunday's opener when Detroit's Mickey Lolich hit Chris Chambliss with a pitch and Cleveland's Steve Dunning retaliated and clipped Lolich.

Umpire Larry McCoy summoned both managers and told them: "If in my judgment either pitcher throws at anyone again, both the pitcher and the manager will be out of the game."

Elsewhere in the American League, Chicago White Sox mauled Minnesota Twins 18-8, Boston Red Sox edged Washington Senators 4-3, Baltimore Orioles trounced New York Yankees 10-4, Oakland Athletics drubbed Milwaukee Brewers 11-4 with the Brewers taking the second game 7-4 and Kansas City Royals and California Angels also split, the Royals winning 5-1 and the Angels 4-3.

In Saturday's games Washington blanked Boston 2-0, Detroit defeated Cleveland 5-3, New York outslugged Baltimore 6-4, California beat Kansas City, 7-4, Minnesota edged Chicago 2-1 and Oakland shut out Milwaukee 2-0.

MICKEY LOLICH

The White Sox, trailing the Twins 4-0, broke loose for nine runs in the sixth inning and Rick Reichardt poled a grand slam homer in a six-run seven-run. Rich McKinney also homered as Minnesota's six-game winning streak ended.

The Red Sox, who had dropped 14 of their previous 19 games, were held to two hits through six innings by Washington right-hander Pete Broberg, making his professional debut.

Broberg, leading 3-0 on Frank Howard's 15th homer in the eighth, let George Scott lead-off the seventh, fanned Doug Griffin for his seventh strikeout and gave up a single to Bob Montgomery.

Paul Lindblad relieved and Boston tied the score on Billy Conigliaro's two-run double and Phil Gagliano's single. The winning run crossed in the sixth on an error by Dave Nelson, a sacrifice and John Kennedy's two-out single.

The Orioles jumped on Steve Kline for five runs in the first inning and then withstood a longball barrage by the Yankees, including solo home runs by Horace Clarke, Thurman Munson and Danny Walton.

Andy Kosco's three-run pinch homer capped a five-run outburst in the seventh inning as the Brewers erased a 4-0 Oakland lead in the nightcap.

The Athletics had run their winning streak to five games in the opener, pounding out 16 hits, including three runs by Mike Epstein, Reggie Jackson, Dave Duncan and Sal Bando. Jackson also connected in the second game.

Jim Spencer, who bounced for the Angels' only run in the first game, drove in three more with a single and triple in the nightcap. The Angels took the lead for good in the fourth on pitcher Tom Murphy's two-run double.

Bruce Dal Canton, Kansas City's pitcher, laced a two-out single in the opener and Chuck Harrison also drove in a pair of runs for the Royals.

NOTICE

The Expropriations Act, 1968 - 69
NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL TO TO EXPROPRIATE LAND.

IN THE MATTER of an application by the Minister of Transportation and Communications for approval to expropriate lands in the Township of Sidney.

FOR THE PURPOSE of the reconstruction of Highway No. 2.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that application has been made for approval to expropriate the land described in the schedule hereto.

Any owner of lands in respect of which notice is given who desires an inquiry into whether the taking of such land is fair, sound and reasonably necessary in the achievement of the objectives of the expropriating authority shall so notify the approving authority in writing,

(a) in the case of a registered owner, served personally or by registered mail within thirty days after he is served with the notice, or where he is served by publication, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice;

(b) in the case of an owner who is not a registered owner, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice.

THE APPROVING AUTHORITY IS
The Minister of Transportation and Communications, Parliament Buildings,
Toronto 5, Ontario.
Minister, Right-of-Way Branch.

NOTES :

1. The Expropriations Act, 1968 - 69 provides that,
   (a) where an inquiry is granted, it shall be conducted by an inquiry officer appointed by the Minister of Justice and Attorney General;
   (b) the inquiry officer,
   (i) shall give every party to the inquiry an opportunity to present evidence and argument and to examine and cross-examine witnesses in person or by his counsel or agent, and
   (ii) may recommend to the approving authority that a party to the inquiry be paid a fixed amount for his costs of the inquiry not to exceed $200 and the approving authority may in its discretion order the approving authority to pay such costs forthwith.
2. "Owner and "registered owner" are defined in the Act as follows:

   "owner" includes a mortagee, tenant, executor creditor, a trustee, except a trustee entitled to interest in land, a committee of the estate of a mentally incompetent person or of a person incapable of managing his affairs, and a guardian, executor, administrator or trustee in whom land is vested;

   "registered owner" means an owner of land whose interest in the land is defined and whose name is specified in an instrument in the proper registry, land titles or sheriff's office, and includes a person shown as a tenant of land on the last revised assessment roll;
3. The expropriating authority, each owner who notifies the approving authority that he desires a hearing in respect of the lands intended to be expropriated and any owner added as a party by the inquiry officer are parties to the inquiry.

SCHEDULE

All right, title and interest in the following lands:
In the Township of Sidney, in the County of Hastings, being part of Lots 23 and 23, Broken Front Concession, designated as PART 2 on Plan P-1361-43, deposited in the Registry Division of Hastings as Plan HSR-276.
THIS NOTICE FIRST PUBLISHED JUNE 7, 1971.

CORRECTION
In the personal Column of The Classified Section last week an advertisement —

"Man 45 Wishes To Meet Lady" was run. Unfortunately there was a mistake in the phone number, and we regret the embarrassment caused to a respectable married businessman.

Cough by Car at Standstill Can Be Due to Ignition Flaws

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"I have a 1966 Plymouth Valiant — 6 cylinder. It has recently developed a "sneeze" or "cough" in the carburetor. This happens at times when I am at a standstill and press the accelerator to move ahead.

"After the "cough" occurs, if I take my foot off the gas pedal and press down again, it is usually okay, but if I leave my foot down, the engine stalls — whether the engine is hot or cold. Any suggestions you can offer will be greatly appreciated." — Mr. D. J. T., Willowdale, Ont.

This problem can be triggered by defects in the fuel system, the engine, or the ignition system. I will first suggest some possible causes that can be quickly located and corrected at modest cost:

Late ignition timing; defective vacuum-operated automatic spark control unit; disconnected, plucked, plugged, or broken vacuum line between carburetor and vacuum unit; sticking, worn or maladjusted centrifically - operated weights inside the distributor (depending on engine speed, these weights automatically adjust the ignition timing to the most advantageous setting — they must be operating freely and be properly adjusted).

Testing the ignition coil is sometimes overlooked during a routine tune-up, but when weak, it can lead (among other things) to loud coughing under heavy acceleration.

Spark plugs or ignition points that are worn or maladjusted are sometimes the culprit. A fractured inner cable in one or more of the high-tension wires can cause erratic coughing or backfiring. Occasionally, a defective ignition condenser prevents maximum power from firing the spark plugs effectively.

Testing all these items is not too time-consuming for a technician who is familiar with the electrical system and has the necessary equipment.

Though few motorists are aware of its existence, many engines are equipped with a heat-riser valve in the exhaust manifold. Too often these valves are inoperative. When functioning normally, a heat-sensitive spring closes the valve when the engine is cold, preheating the fuel before it enters the combustion chambers.

As the engine heats up, the spring tension diminishes and a counterweight pulls the valve open to the hot running position. In time, foreign matter in the exhaust fumes will seize the valve in the manifold. If the valve seizes in the open position, the engine may cough — especially for the first few minutes of running.

Do-it-yourself motorists can usually free a seized heat-riser valve in minutes. Simply lubricate the shaft that protrudes through the manifold and then twist the counterweight by hand. When locked solid, it may be necessary to tap both ends of the shaft gently with a light hammer.

Built into the carburetor is a device that squirts a solid stream of gas into the engine each time the driver depresses the gas pedal. This temporary rich mixture prevents the engine from stalling or coughing when starting or during acceleration once the car is mobile. Defects in the mechanism that operates this device can result in coughing and stalling each time the engine is accelerated. A mechanic can remove the carburetor's air cleaner and pinpoint this defect in minutes.

On rare occasions, a burst, sticking, or otherwise defective intake valve in the engine can cause violent backfiring through the carburetor. While this seldom occurs on today's cars, defective intake valves should not be overlooked when everything else is in good order. A thorough compression test will quickly locate a defective valve.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Competitive Sport Is Health Hazard

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband has gone haywire in trying to make a big league pitcher out of our 13-year-old son. For the past three years he has been complaining of a sore elbow, but his father tells him to be a man.. To grit his teeth and take the pain.

I have a feeling Johnny would like to give up baseball altogether. But my husband keeps shaming him into playing. Shouldn't a youngster be allowed to make the choice? — Mrs. M.

* * *

COMMENT: I am spirit-minded myself. If your husband reads today's column, I hope he will remember this and not think that my opinions emanate from one who doesn't get a thrill out of watching football, baseball, basketball and other games.

I'm in favor of contact sports for the physically and emotionally mature. But I'm against too much emphasis put on Little League encounters, between kids whose physical and emotional development still has many years to go.

Parents like your husband should realize that sometimes they sacrifice the health of their youngsters to their own overzealousness—whatever the reasons for it. Some children are naturally gifted athletes (even they must be protected from themselves); others — poor athletes by nature — are often forced to play against their wishes.

The truth is that competitive sports in youngsters have become a health hazard — especially for those in the age range of 8 to 14. Some misguided parents and coaches believe Boys must learn to take it." The question is: How early in life must they learn to be a frustrations and physical injuries?

* * *

It's not easy to look into the face of a disappointed father. Forgetting about the psychological factors in the youngster, neither is it easy to suffer the pangs and pains of an injured elbow or knee — or worse.

In an article for the Bulletin of the American College of Surgeons, Dr. Nicholas J. Giannestras makes some pertinent remarks on the subject. Competitive sports organized by these various groups are now played on universally, and with such overemphasis, throughout the United States, that they have become a health hazard. Nor are the parents without blame. The possible exploitation of children and community boosters constitutes a concrete danger."

It seems to me, Mrs. M., that perhaps your husband has innocently fallen into this classification of exploitation. Your son's complaints about a sore elbow need investigation. It's possible that he may already have unnatural pressures on the ulnar nerve in his elbow.

Why not consult an orthopedist? If your son sustains a serious injury, your husband will never forgive himself. I'm for well-regulated sports for youngsters. But I re-emphasize: "well regulated".

* * *

For Mrs. D.: Unless there are contraindications found by an eye specialist, I am in favor of contact lenses. But before your daughter becomes too excited about the possibilities of improving her physical appearance, better warn her that some people simply can't wear contact lenses because they are too impatient to learn how — or because their eyes become too irritated.

Her eye doctor will make the necessary adjustments and reach the decision on whether glasses or contact lenses are the answer for her nearsightedness.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Pentagon Prayer Strange

At the beginning of this year, U.S. Secretary of Defence Laird formally dedicated a small room in the Pentagon as a quiet place for prayer and meditation. "Until now," he said, "this building lacked a place where man's inner spirit could find quiet expression."

The thought of a "prayer room" in the Pentagon reminded me of Mark Twain's bitter diatribe "The War Prayer." It begins: Sunday morning in a church, the day before the battalions would leave for the front. The preacher gave the "long" prayer, and none could remember the like of it for passionate pleading and beautiful language.

The burden of its supplication was that an ever-merciful and benign Father of us all would watch over our noble young soldiers, and aid, comfort and encourage them in their patriotic work; bless them and shield them in the day of battle . . .

Then an aged stranger entered, moved down the aisle to the preacher's side, and said: "I come from the Throne — bearing a message from Almighty God! he has heard your prayer and will grant it, if after I, His messenger, shall have explained to you its full import — for like many of the prayers of men, it asks for a such shall be your desire, more than he who utters it is aware of."

The stranger continued: "When you have prayed for many unmentioned results victory, you have prayed for which follow upon victory — must follow it, as winter follows autumn. For the All-Father commands me to put the unspoken part of the prayer into words. Listen!

"O Lord our God, help us to tear their soldiers to bloody shreds with our shells; help us to cover their smiling fields with the pale forms of their patriot dead; help us to drown the thunder of guns with the shrieks of their wounded writhing in pain; help us to lay waste their humble homes with a hurricane of fire; help us to wring the hearts of their unoffending widows, to turn them out roofless with their little children to wander unfriended the wastes of their desolated land in rags and hunger and thirst . . . broken in spirit, worn with travail, imploring Thee for the refuge of the grave and denied it — for our sakes who adore Thee, Lord, blast their hopes, blight their lives, protract their bitter pilgrimage, make heavy their steps, water their way with their tears . . . We ask it, in the spirit of love, of Him who is the Source of love and Who is the ever-faithful refuge and friend of all that are oppressed, and seek it and find it not, and shall be denied it."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For June 22

Your birthday today: A sense of adventure stays with you through most of the coming year since much of what happens is new in your experience. You will go well ahead on any projects which depend on your own decisions and management, while self-discipline is needed to stay in step with activities led by others. Today's natives are astute observers of cause and effect.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Concentrate on the more cheerful side of life. Anything like business and commerce is apt to be uphill no matter how ordinary.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Healthy interest in yours elf, your personal welfare lead you to seek a more even balance. Prepare to try again on any recent setback.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Stop, look and listen includes restraint; if you cannot remain unruffled, at least don't rise to the bait.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Promises seem too good to be true — be wary of what you offer while staying away from dependence on the offers of others.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Pick your own occasion to plunge in — though not yet; others are well ahead of you and will need a chance to move out of your way. Patience!

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): An old memory returns in lighter form and becomes a guide for present thoughts. The spark of romantic interests gleams.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Diligent search brings special rewards. Something long sought comes within your reach. Deal gently with people where differents opinions are involved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): Whatever has failed of its purpose may be replaced or bypassed. Find and stick to the simplest path, then press forward with a positive program.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Again you have broad opportunity to attempt projects that seem to reach. There are no short cuts on matters of skill and accuracy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Settle for practical achievement along essential lines; make the best of it and go ahead. Don't waste energy on extra details.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Advice from rather unlikely sources may be hard to accept but is of special value. Diligent effort yields good results and a few surprises.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Faraway and nearby interests clash and it seems you must neglect one or the other for the moment. Avoid haste and rash language.

Gabriele Loubier Chosen to Head Quebec's UN

QUEBEC (CP) — The test of Quebec's new Union Nationale Opposition leader, Gabriel Loubier, is whether he can breathe life into an ailing political party which some say is already on its death-bed.

Mr. Loubier was elected leader Saturday on the third ballot with 607 votes compared with 594 for Marcel Masse. Three other candidates were eliminated in the first and second ballots.

Speaking on the eve of Mr. Loubier's narrow victory, outgoing leader Jean-Jacques Bertrand alluded to the condition in his farewell address to the leadership convention.

He called for new directions to bring the party into step with the times and lashed out at "false prophets who, in 1939 and in 1998 as well as today," predicted the party's "impending extinction."

Mr. Loubier said after his election he will begin the rebuilding process immediately by setting up regional party secretariats on a permanent basis.

This would re-establish the powerful organization which has always been one of the Union Nationale's major strengths.

To find new directions for the party in the changed Quebec of the 1970s, Mr. Loubier said "orientation sessions" will be held within six months.

This is where the real challenge lies for the former minister of tourism, fish and game.

When the "false prophets" were predicting the Union Nationale's demise in 1939 and 1998, the party was still the only credible alternative to the Liberals who had displaced it as the Quebec government.

Now, however, the Creditistes, who entered provincial politics for the first time in last year's Quebec general election, have made serious inroads in the UN's rural strongholds.

And the separatist Parti Quebecois has outflanked it as spokesman for the more extreme proponents of Quebec nationalism.

Mr. Loubier made it clear Saturday night that the party he leads will support federalism, although he believes in a "resounding nationalism" in relations with English-Canada.

In terms of new policy, however, the party will have to walk a fine line to offer a relevant constitutional alternative to the Liberals and Creditistes both of whom have their territory staked out as spokesmen for Quebec federalism.

Besides Mr. Masse, Mr. Loubier defeated Mario Beaulieu former finance and immigration minister in the last Union Nationale government, Pierre Duvigny, former associate defence minister in John Diefenbaker's federal cabinet, and Andres Laville, a former bachbencher who lost his seat last year.

Ontario First To OK Charter

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's constitution took the first of 11 vital steps homeward Monday when the Ontario government threw its "full and unqualified support" behind last week's Victoria charter.

Two other provincial governments — those of Alberta and New Brunswick — have hinted support will be given, as has the federal government.

By mutual agreement, the federal government and the 10 provincial governments are to decide within the next six days whether to accept the Victoria agreement on how to amend the 104-year-old British North America Act, and how to amend it in Canada.

There was a possibility the crucial Quebec reply could come today, following a Monday meeting of Liberal Premier Robert Bourassa's cabinet and a party caucus set for today.

British Columbia's government also postponed any statement until today after a Monday cabinet session.

Premier Harry Strom's Alberta cabinet discusses the charter today after the premier's indication last week he would recommend acceptance without reservation.

No date has been made public for the New Brunswick cabinet discussion but Premier Richard Hatfield and other government sources have indicated strongly that acceptance of the charter by that province is likely. Wednesday is the normal day for weekly New Brunswick cabinet meetings.

Acceptance by the provincial governments would be followed by submission of the charter in Parliament and the provincial legislatures for final endorsation.

Defector Talking

LONDON (CP) — British authorities are reported to be gaining valuable information from Soviet electronics expert Anatoly Fedoseyev though diplomatic sources continued to play down the defector's role in the Soviet space program.

While the whereabouts of the "prominent electronics engineer" was still shrouded in secrecy, published reports today suggested that Fedoseyev is cooperating with British intelligence agents and answering questions, thus proving "of positive value."

Rezoning Move Meets Rebuff

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville council has turned down a recommendation for temporary re-zoning to block the construction of apartments in the city's present "B" zoning section.

And at the same time it has learned that a discontinuance has been granted on the injunction brought against the city by East Hill residents who are seeking to block the erection of a seven-storey apartment at 217 Bridge Street East.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey introduced the recommendation for the temporary rezoning, asking that it apply until the report on the residential section of the city's official plan is adopted and a new zoning by-law is passed by council.

Her motion, introduced, she said, after considerable "soul searching", prompted one of the longest debates in council for some years.

Alderman Jeffrey noted that it could be anywhere from three to six months before the new residential zoning bylaw could be brought in and in the meantime construction of apartment buildings on small lots could go ahead.

She said the requested temporary rezoning was not a new thing, as it had been previously granted by the OMB in certain rural areas.

Mayor J. Russell Scott agreed that the motion was an excellent one, but said council had to represent all the people rather than just residents seeking to block apartment construction.

He said council could not arbitrarily put a freeze on apartment construction without public hearings.

This was especially so when the report of the planning director on residential rezoning was to be presented to the planning board this week, he argued.

In introducing the motion for temporary rezoning Alderman Jeffrey said she realized there would be repercussions but added she was prepared to accept that.

The motion was seconded by Alderman Ben Corke, who said he realized there were always two sides to a story but he wanted to stop construction of apartments lacking parking and other requirements expected today.

All members of council entered into the discussion which ended with a 7-4 recorded vote opposing the rezoning motion.

Favoring the motion were Aldermen Jeffrey, Corke, Orr and Smith. Opposing were Mayor Scott and Aldermen David, Ireland, Joyce, Keegan, Russell and Soutter.

The main arguments of objectors was that it would take as long to get OMB approval for temporary rezoning as it

Teamsters Begin Port Picketing

TORONTO (CP) — Harbor officials claimed today that efforts by picketing teamsters to close harbor operations had been unsuccessful.

The officials said an hour after longshoremen normally report for work that enough men had crossed the picket lines to keep freight moving.

The two Toronto locals of the International Longshoremen's Association had been asked by International headquarters to respect the teamsters' picket line.

But Cecil Rampersaud, secretary of the stevedoring local of the ILA, said Monday night the stevedores, while sympathetic to the Teamsters, were bound by a collective agreement signed only recently.

"We've just filed a grievance against one of the companies for a violation of the agreement. How can we turn around and violate our labor contract"

Captain Walter Culbertson, director of terminal operations for the Toronto harbor commissioners, said the port authority "will do everything within legal bounds" to prevent closure of the port. He said he had spoken with checkers and grievance locals of the ILA and discussions "pivoted around keeping the port running smoothly."

U.S. Admiral Sought Right to Use A-Arms

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Globe prints what it says are excerpts from a Pentagon study on the Vietnam war. It includes a report on a high-level meeting at which a top United States officer demanded that commanders be given the freedom to use tactical nuclear weapons in Vietnam.

The report, taken from the 47-volume Pentagon study of the war, said that at a meeting in June, 1964, Admiral Harry D. Felt, then commander of the Pacific forces, demanded the option to use nuclear weapons.

The Globe is the third U.S. newspaper to publish excerpts from the Pentagon study.

The New York Times and the Washington Post published excerpts last week, but the justice department won a temporary restraining order against both newspapers on the grounds that publishing the classified report was a national security risk and could hurt U.S. relations with other countries.

The discussion about the use of nuclear weapons in Vietnam arose, the Globe says, on the question of whether the Chinese Communist forces would enter the war.

"Admiral Felt responded emphatically that there was no possible way to hold off the (Chinese) Communists on the ground without the use of tactical nuclear weapons and that it was essential that this commander be given the freedom to use these as had been assumed under various plans," the report said.

Philip Calls Common Market Farm Policies 'Frightful Mess'

EDINBURGH (AP) Prince Philip said Monday that if Britain should join the European Common Market it would discover the Market's farm policies were producing "a most frightful mess."

His remarks, made on the same day that Britain gained another edge in its effort to join the six-nation Common Market, drew barbs from London newspapers.

"It was a bombshell" said The Mirror, adding that "even among anti-Market politicians the duke's speech will be regarded as an astounding and ill-advised thing to make one of the greatest political issues to face Britain."

The Daily Mail said it was the first time Philip had spoken of the Common Market venture and commented: "It is hardly helpful to a government that has made the Market one of its major policy planks."

Philip took his stand in a prepared speech at a conference of the Royal Agricultural Society of the Commonwealth.

He said that once agriculture is considered to be an industry it is natural to adopt a "crude industrial philosophy" to farm problems and this produces "a frightful mess."

"I think that this is something that popular sentiment is running against the administration in a mid-is first year in office.

Public displeasure, attributed by most observers to rising prices and high unemployment, will probably make it harder for ministers to get their base for Europe across to the people, political observers feel.

Gloomy statements by spokesmen for business and industry on Britain's general economic outlook have added to the uneasiness.

this country is about to discover if and when it joins the Common Market," he said.

Dairy Import Quota Settled

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — The foreign ministers of the six Common Market countries were putting together a package offer today to ease Britain's entry into the European Economic Community.

The European ministers agreed on terms covering Britain's imports of butter and cheese from New Zealand and expected to agree to another meeting today on a sliding scale for Britain's financial contribution to the market budget.

A British spokesman said the proposal for imports from New Zealand was "not entirely satisfactory," but Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann of France was adamant.

"There is no question whatever of resuming discussions on this text," he said. "It was approved unanimously and it is our last word."

The proposal provides for duty-free imports of New Zealand's dairy products to continue for a five-year transitional period, but with a gradual decrease to 68 per cent of the current levels by 1978. No cheese guarantee would be extended after 1978, and a unanimous decision by the ministers would be necessary to continue the butter quota unchanged.

Britain's current imports of New Zealand dairy products amount to 170,000 tons of butter and 73,000 tons of cheese annually.

A New Zealand diplomat described the proposal as better than the first offer that was expected, but he said the actual quantities are too small.

Selling Job Is Facing Heath

LONDON (Reuter) — A major selling job confronts the British government now that the hour of decision on joining the European Common Market has been fixed for October.

The fall date will give Prime Minister Edward Heath and his colleagues several months in which to persuade an apparently reticent public that joining the European community is in the British people's best interests.

Ministers have consistently taken the view that lack of rank-and-file enthusiasm on Europe would probably persist until disclosure of entry terms offered a realistic basis for judgment.

The government is hoping that agreed terms will emerge from this month's negotiations in Luxembourg. It will then be ready to embark on a concerted campaign aimed at transforming public feeling on the European issue.

But the clearer picture on Europe is clouded for government strategists by strong indications

Annual Report

BGH Moves Forward But Still Some Improvements to Come

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Last year at Belleville General Hospital was one of change and expansion and all the provisions that come with construction and renovation.

The hospital graduated 114 last class of nurses and construction of the new Edith Cavell Regional School began in the fall. At the same time, the second phase of the hospital building program, construction of the administration, laundry and stores building, got under way.

The hospital obtained provincial accreditation, recognition of its standard of patient

But, says the recently released annual report of the hospital, there are still problems to be solved.

Msgr. J. P. Sullivan, chairman of the board of governors, said in his report that lack of out patient service in the emergency department is a situation for concern. The solution to out patient service in a non-teaching hospital "still eludes us", said the chairman.

Msgr. Sullivan remarked that the board opened its meeting to the press in January, 1970 and "this was a good decision.

"We now enjoy a growing understanding of hospital problems throughout the city and county."

Acting administrator John Kunetsky drew attention to some "minor and not so minor problems with- systems and equipment" during the year. But the most serious problem was lack of sufficient elevators, he said. the situation is now being remedied.

The possibility of the hospital obtaining in 1971 an intern who wishes to proceed directly into family practice was mentioned by Dr. S. D. Horne president of the medical staff.

"It is my feeling that the family practice department and specialty departments of BGH could provide for such an individual an internship program for a future family practitioner that would be superior to, or at least as good as, that offered at university centres in Ontario," said Dr. Horne.

He remarked that the hospital board is now studying the possibility of incorporating the obstetrical department in the new building now under construction.

He urged the hospital to "extend ourselves further into the community . . . particularly in the realm of the education of our youth on the dangers of the non-medical use of drugs".

Dr. P. A. Scott, chief of staff remarked on standards that must be met before the hospital can receive full accreditation.

"It is here that the medical staff, collectively, must improve," he said. "Noted were deficiencies in attendance at departmental meetings a-nd the sometimes chaotic state of medical records."

"It should be noted," Dr. Scott continued, "that, after the first 12 months there were 21 doctors who had lost their admitting privileges for a total of 285 days for failure to complete 1,012 charts according to hospital regulations.

Dr. Scott also called for each department "to study the treatment of diseases peculiar to their departments and attempt to streamline the treatment."

At present, many patients are being held in hospital for longer periods than those "in similar situations at similar sized hospitals" in other parts of the province.

Dr. Scott said the chronic shortage of hospital beds will become more acute. Further efforts to decrease the average length of stay in hospital will enable the increased patient load to be looked after with no lengthening of the waiting list.

At the same time, he noted that the average length of stay at the hospital declined by .75 days in 1970.

This area still needs more p s y c hiatrists, anaesthetists and family doctors. In 1970 the area had an obstetrician, two family doctors and a pathologist. It gained a pathologist, an ophthalmologist, an obstetrician and two family doctors.

The hospital now has 463 beds." It admitted 10,180 patients in 1970 and 1,197 babies were born there. The birth rate is up over the 1,104 recorded in 1969 and is higher than any year since 1960, when the birth rate here began to decline.

The active treatment department had 82 per cent occupancy, with length of stay for each patient averaging 10.41 days.

The extended care unit recorded 69 per cent occupancy, with the average length of stay being 37.5 days.

Deficit Is Paid Out of Own Funds

Belleville General Hospital, now in the throes of a massive building and reorganization program, ended 1970 with an excess of expenditure over revenue of $128,783.

Hospital revenue was $7,- 226,906 last year, and expenditures were $7,355,689.

The deficit, will be paid out of certain funds of the hospital's own, over and above the budgeted amounts permitted by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission. Some of the funds the hospital retains come from the differential charges for preferred (private) accommodation over semi-private accommodation.

Bulk of the hospital's revenue came from the provincial hospitalization plan. It amounted to 81 per cent. Salaries and wages accounted for most of the expenditures, 59.7 per cent.

Salaries and wages cost $4,762,708 in 1970. Other special and general services took the next largest portion of the budget, 8.8 per cent or 2602,- 676.

Administration took 6.7 per cent of the budget, or $481,- 048.

The dietary department cost $211,202 last year, or 4.5 per cent of the budget.

The three remaining budget categories, plant operation, drugs and medicine and medical and surgical supplies each accounted for slightly over 3 per cent of the cost of operation of the hospital.

Medical and surgical supplies cost $255,651 Drugs and medicine cost $235,909. Operation of plant cost $217,718.

PE County to Discuss School Bus Operation

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Members of the Prince Edward County board of education's transportation committee will discuss larger buses for use in the Hillier - Wellington area at a meeting on June 30. Bus drivers Jack McNeil, Morden Wagar and Douglas McFaul attended a trustees' meeting last night to explain the need for a decision by board members allowing them to make future plans.

The buses operated in the Hillier - Wellington area are now loaded to capacity and it is expected there will be additional students next term.

Trustees have urged the purchase of larger buses while drivers have requested more money in their contracts to compensate for these capital purchases. One bus driver pointed out it could cost $7,000 for him to trade his present bus for a new model. The estimated cost of a new 72-passenger bus is $11,000 to $14,000.

The difficulties of this transportation route were solved temporarily last year when bus driver Morden Wagar was permitted to reverse his route and to drop pupils off easing the situation.

Taxi owner Ronald Carnahan also spoke with trustees last night concerning a renewal of his contract to provide transportation for pupils at Harper Hoard School. He is now using three cars and requested information from trustees on whether obtaining another. Chairman for the transportation committee Harmon Montgomery assured trustees bus drivers and Mr. Carnahan should attend the June 30 committee meeting.

Board May Give Press Committee Reports

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Prince Edward County school trustees will discuss the advisability of permitting members of the press to receive copies of committee reports at their next meeting in July. Chairman of the board, George Flower, last night referred to a meeting between press representatives and several trustees on May 28 when a discussion of board - press relations led to a request from reporters for committee reports. Newspapers represented included The Trentonian, The Intelligencer, The Kingston Whig - Standard and The Picton Gazette.

Mr. Flower said it was mutually agreed during the meeting between reporters and trustees that relations are "good" but could be improved through certain alterations. It was suggested members of the press might receive copies of minutes recording certain committee meetings and also copies of reports. A break period during board meetings, permitting reporters to question trustees concerning topics under discussion, also was suggested.

Mr. Flower observed board-press relations have been favorable and reminded members of the press records kept in the board offices are available for their examination.

Trustees briefly discussed the pros and cons of allowing reporters to receive copies of committee meetings and reports. Further discussion was deferred because one member of the press was absent last night when the subject was introduced during a report of the board's organization committee.

Council Endorses Plan
Realtor Proposes Tent Hostel

Transient youths hitchhiking through Canada this summer could have overnight hostel accommodation in Belleville if the proposal of a Belleville realtor is carried out.

At yesterday's city council meeting an offer was received from D. J. Whalen Real Estate Ltd. to provide a large tent for use as overnight accommodation for the young travellers.

The proposal was that the tent be set up on vacant city-owned industrial land in the north end of the city and adjacent to Highway 401.

Council accepted the proposal in principal and referred that details be worked out with recreation committee staff.

Alderman Don Soutter as chairman of the recreation committee, said the city should be giving serious consideration to providing accommodation for transient youths and noted that it was encouraging the first offer had come from the private sector.

He said senior governments were prepared to give municipalities assistance in staffing such hostel accommodation. There would be no direct cost to the municipality, he indicated.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said Mr. Whalen's proposition was a "wonderful thing."

Many centres across Canada were providing hostel facilities and were having little or no problems, he said.

"More than 95 per cent of the (transient) youths are good kids and they should have the opportunity of seeing the country.

Mr. Whalen intimated that he would be prepared to take out the necessary liability insurance for the operation of the overnight accommodation. He would provide sanitary facilities and arrange for garbage pick-up.

Signs would be posted advising that if drug use became a problem the program would be immediately discontinued. Also the facility would be phased out if this action was requested by police.

Moira High School is ready to go ahead with its summer make work program without the funding from the federal government.

Allan Bender, 18 - year - old co-ordinator of the program, and five committee students met to reappraise their program in terms of costs when it was learned two months ago that no funds could be granted for his purposes.

Since that time Mr. Bender, with the help of the recreation department and David Smith constituency assistant, co-ordinator of the board of education, has pushed his program to the stage where it can be implemented using volunteers and the donated school facilities.

"What we plan on doing is making the central portion of the school, including the gym, art classes and class rooms, into an unstructured recreation area," said Mr. Bender.

"A variety of classes will be offered including art for juniors up to adults, home economics, creative drama, physical education and a keep fit program for women."

To determine what courses would be most widely accepted, the student committee distributed questionaires and application forms outlining the possibilities of the program.

"We found the keep fit program was the most popular with the adult set while both the art classes and the drama was the chief interest with the younger set," said Mr. Bender.

"The project will go on regardless," said Mr. Bender. "However, if a little more money was available we could do a much better job and we would be able to give the 20 volunteer students for the summer."

The only possible sources of revenue for the group are donations from service groups, cafeteria facilities and a day care centre to be set up in the school under the eye of students.

"From these sources (none have come through yet) we will take the majority of the money and give it to the Grade 13 students. These are the people who really need it for next year," said Mr. Bender.

The only cost for a person to use the school is one dollar which will entitle him to attend any of the classes for the entire summer.

The doors will be open from nine until nine with one hour breaks for lunch and supper. On weekends the school will be closed.

Junior Achievement Program Outlined to Rotarians

There is no generation gap in the Junior Achievement organization, the speaker who will be the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Belleville Rotary Club, Monday morning told Belleville Rotarians.

He described it as "a fantastic program." A survey had shown that 65 per cent of young people with junior achievement experience had gone into business. He noted that school teachers, as well as business people, assist in the program.

Bon Echo Service

TWEED — The Right Rev. R. J. Wilkinson, Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, will be the guest speaker at the interdenominational church service at Bon Echo Provincial Park, Cloyne, on Sunday, July 11.

This outdoor service will begin the third year of summer and will be held every Sunday at 10.45 a.m. in the amphitheatre at Bon Echo. The congregation from the Trenton United Church, Cloyne, sponsor this endeavor and invite speakers from many denominations. The popularity of these ecumenical outdoor services is indicated by the large congregations — often 400 summer visitors attend.

Ethnic Groups Play Big Role In Trenton Canada Day Plans

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON (Staff) — Canada's 104th birthday will be celebrated Trenton - style with a full slate of athletic and cultural activities scheduled to be held at Centennial Park.

A baseball tournament, four track events, open air concert and mammoth fireworks display are all planned for July 1.

The tyke baseball tournament is being organized by members of the Trenton Minor Softball Association for the afternoon drawing primarily hometown teams.

However, participants from throughout the region are expected for the four races that will be sponsored by the Trenton Track Club. Planned are a 1,000 metre event for boys under 14 as of Jan. 1, 1971, a boys 3,000 metre event for those under 16 by Jan. 1, 1971, a girls 1,000 metre race for girls ages and a boys 2,000 metre competition open to all ages.

Invitations have been sent to all schools in COSSA and others as far away as Perth. Medals and ribbons will be provided to those placing one through six in each race.

The Trenton Citizens Band will be out in full force to provide an evening concert in the park while several ethnic singing groups . . . two from the Dutch community, will perform native melodies from their homeland.

Members from the Quinte Creek and Dutch Canadian cities will be setting up booths in Centennial Park to sell foods of their native lands during the supper hour and on into the evening and other groups will sell Canadiana fare.

One of the Canada Day organizers, Gerry Goldberg, says there is considerable need for more groups to participate in the entertainments and provisions of those interested may join by calling 392-3258.

"We are working on the beginnings of an annual ethnic festival," he said.

Winding up the evening of Canada Day events will be a large fireworks display provided by the Trenton Volunteer Firefighters.

Two Boards in Operation

City Approves Interim Fund for Quinte Planning Board

Belleville city council has balked on approval of an amount of approximately $5,400 representing the corporation's share of budgetted expenses for the month of June for the newly formed Quinte Planning Board.

Instead it has voted $3,000 to enable the board to pay its current bills.

The new planning board is taking in the city of Belleville and the town of Trenton, along with Brighton village, Frankford and Stirling and the townships of Brighton, Murray, Sidney and Thurlow had budgetted for $81,967 for seven months of this year, and the request to city council was that it pay one seventh of its share of $38,625, amounting to approximately $5,400.

But city council during budget discussions earlier this year provided only for Belleville and Suburban Planning Board is still functioning.

Alderman Paul Russell said he was not aware that staff for the new board had been hired or that quarters had been secured and said council should have more information before approving the June bill. He asked the matter be tabled until the next council meeting.

Ald. E. A. Orr, however, pointed out that the new board had certain expenditures and urged that a temporary payment be made until the budget was approved.

Ald. Robin Jeffrey took the same position noting that meetings had been held and costs had been accrued.

"We believe in area planning and want to get it (the Quinte Planning Board) off the ground. We don't want to stifle the board," she said.

Ald. Ben Corke moved that an advance of $2,000 be paid the Quinte Board only to have Alderman Jack Ireland move an amendment for $3,000.

But Mayor J. R. Scott didn't entirely agree.

He felt that Sidney township as the designated municipal in boards," said city manager J. R. Reynolds.

Staff members for the new area planning board still have not been hired and the Belleville and Suburban Planning

"We didn't budget for two the board make-up should look after the board's initial financing.

"That is one of the great privileges of being the designated municipality," he said.

In the end council voted the $3,000 temporary payment pending council adoption of the board's 1971 budget.

pression of hope that this would encourage others to follow suit quickly.

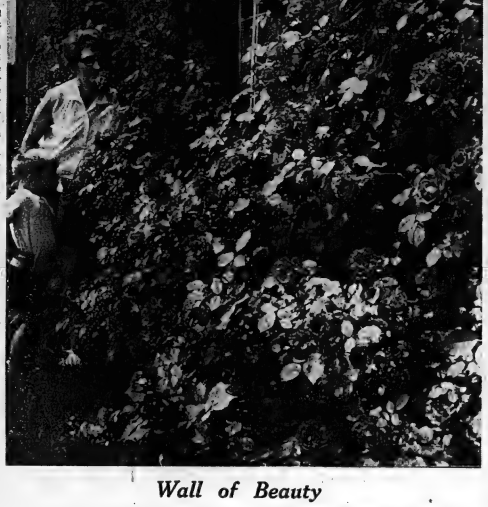
He warned there is no time left for doubts about the need for constitutional reform. He told the legislature the charter is the "best opportunity we have had in Canada" for many years to achieve basic constitutional reforms.

Later, he expressed optimism the charter would win general approval, although he cited extraordinary difficulties in Quebec.

If any province or the federal government rejects the Victoria charter, that would be enough to kill it.

Premier Bourassa promised Sunday to meet the June 28 date for a decision and, at the same time, ruled out the idea of a referendum on the charter.

Mr. Bourassa expected difficulty convincing his cabinet the province's demands for social security reforms would be met under the charter.



Quebec sought to have its legislation paramount to federal laws in certain social services, such as family allowances, youth and manpower training, with equivalent transfer of federal money for these services.

The charter would amend section 94A of the British North America Act to provide parsimonious provinces that want it—but without the fiscal transfers.

Prime Minister Trudeau's position has been that Quebec should go out and raise the taxes among her people for any social security field over which she wants exclusive dominion.

Mr. Davis said at a news conference Monday there was no compromise with Quebec on this issue. But, he said, it was recognized that there could be flexibility.

"I don't like to phrase it as an accommodation for Quebec."

Wall of Beauty

A downtown attraction in the summertime is a profusion of roses covering the south wall of Mrs. Martha Golka's home at 112 Pinnacle Street. Blaze Climber is the variety which produces new blooms until fall if old blooms are removed daily. The showplace captivated four-year-old Jamie Turner out shopping with his parents yesterday. He is shown with Mrs. Golka.

Temporary Rezoning Move Is Rejected

would for a permanent change which is already in its initial stages.

The report of city planner Bert Kenyo will be presented to the planning board Thursday evening and, when official members and the public are invited to attend, city council will take no action on the report until there is a recommendation from the planning board.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said he would be prepared to call a meeting of council to consider the report any time after the recommendation was received.

Rezoning 45 ma indent en

In the meantime council has learned that the injunction brought by East Hill residents seeking to restrain the city from issuing a building permit for 217 Bridge Street East will not be proceeded with.

The initial hearing on the injunction was scheduled for last Wednesday but on the request of City Solicitor John C. Miller was adjourned for one week.

Yesterday the city solicitor was advised that the injunction was being discontinued.

In the meantime the fight against indiscriminate apartment construction in certain R-zoned districts of the city continues on other fronts.

Several West Hill residents have appealed by letter to the Ontario Municipal Board objecting to the request by Albert College for a land split for its Highland Park manor property.

The fear is that the two-acre manor property at present used as a city playground will be sold for apartment construction.

The land split application has already been before the committee of adjustment which has indicated the split will be allowed on fulfilment of certain conditions.

In turn Albert College has appealed against the conditions set by the committee of adjustment.

However, no date has yet been set for a public hearing by the Ontario Municipal Board.

In another area of the West Hill, the residents of Sinclair Street have applied for rezoning of their area to block apartment construction.

A petition was taken up by residents and presented to council but now opposition to the proposed rezoning has been lodged by at least three parties.

One of the objecters is Rollins Construction, which is opposing the "principle" of the requested rezoning.

The other two objectors are Sinclair Street residents, one of whom had planned conversion of a residence to multiple family use.

Council agreed that the objections be forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board.

Storm Sewer Request Vetoed by Aldermen

City council yesterday turned down the request of a Belleville developer for the city to construct a storm sewer near the corner of Victoria Ave. and Haig Road to allow him to go ahead with a new housing subdivision.

The storm sewer, needed to correct a drainage problem at the above intersection would have been completely outside the subdivision. Cost of the sewer to the city was estimated at $7,000.

(Under current city policy the cost of storm sewers is paid out of the general rate except where the sewer is completely within a new subdivision.).

Alderman Robin Jeffrey initiated discussion on the sewer request by asking how the city could approve when requests for storm sewers on other streets had been turned down this year at budget time.

She said such a decision would be unfair to present home owners in areas where storm sewers were needed.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said a similar request had been approved a couple of years ago in connection with the Bracebridge subdivision in the West Hill area.

"I objected to that but council okayed it and I object to this one too," he said.

Ald. Donald Sautier felt it would be reasonable to approve the Rollins request on grounds that needed housing would be provided.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcel said that without the storm sewer it would be unlikely that the subdivision would be approved.

Later in the meeting after that the subdivision would be sewer request City Manager J. R. Reynolds said he felt council voted no action on the storm sewers being paid for out of the general rate still applied.

REAL ESTATE

"THERE IS A BUYER FOR EVERY HOUSE"

ED McKINNEY
R.E. McKINNEY
Realty Ltd.

As every Realtor knows from his experience, every home will sooner or later find a matching buyer whose needs it suits. If a problem arises, it is that it's later than sooney.

If a house remains on the market without selling for longer than the time it normally takes to sell a property of that type, then it is likely that two conditions may be at fault:

Either the house is priced beyond its market value or the terms are unsuited to the type of buyer who is likely to be interested in the property.

These are faults of an incorrect listing. It cannot be emphasized too much that the best remedy is preventive: Buyers suspect a home that has been on the market too long — "There must be something wrong with it or why hasn't it sold?"

If a property is listed at the correct price and terms initially (or terms that can be tailored to the buyer's financial condition by the Realtor's mortgage arrangements) it will usually sell quickly with maximum gain to the seller.

McFarland Awarded North Front Contract

The H. J. McFarland Construction Company has been awarded the contract for the construction of Bell Blvd., west of North Front Street and for the widening of North Front Street.

Both projects were made necessary by the construction of the new Quinte Mall in north Belleville scheduled for opening about the middle of August.

The McFarland contract is for $197,158.50. It calls for the contract to be completed in 30 days.

Two tenders for the North Front Street area project were received by the city, that of McFarland's and another from Lightfoot Construction. The McFarland bid was for $222,608.50 and that of Lightfoot's $219,082.50.

However, the city decided to eliminate some of the work covered in the original tender call and the bids were adjusted accordingly. Eliminated were the construction of sidewalk on North Front Street certain underdrainage on Bell Blvd. and the "singing" medians on North Front Street.

The contract calls for the construction of approximately 1200 of Bell Blvd. widening of North Front Street to provide turning lanes, and the placing of medians on North Front Street south from Highway 401 to control turning movements.

The "singing" medians eliminated from the contract were the raised warning strips at the end of the medians.

Council Asks for Meeting To Discuss Track Removal

Belleville city council will make a last minute effort to halt the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway overpass on Highway 2 west of the city and have the railway tracks moved.

On the recommendation of traffic committee chairman Alderman Arthur Keegan, council voted for a meeting to be arranged with senior government and railway officials to discuss the possible removal of the CPR tracks.

If this could be arranged the so-called "cemetery crossing" immediately west of the city as well as crossings in other areas could be eliminated thus making the costly grade separations unnecessary, the alderman said.

Ald. Keegan said if the tracks were removed from $15-$20 million would be saved in the construction of grade separations.

The alderman asked that provincial transport minister Hon. Charles McNaughton, federal transport minister Donald Jamieson and Robert Andras, minister of urban affairs, be asked to attend a meeting in Belleville.

Ald. Keegan said the city was cut in two by the CP tracks and maintained that the Foster Ward area would never reach its potential until the tracks were removed.

He said he had a solution for tracks were removed.

He presented at the requested meeting.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said removal of railway tracks from urban centres was a very pertinent problem across Canada.

And he said track removal was being done in many areas.

The mayor said he would be pleased to investigate the possibility of arranging the suggested meeting with senior government officials.

Sidewalk Decision Upheld by Council

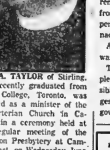
Victoria Ave. residents living between Farley Ave. and Haig Road lost out yesterday in an effort to have the location of a proposed north side sidewalk moved closer to the street.

Terry soden, acting as spokesman for the delegation, said the planned location of the walk which was up to 20 feet from the roadway, would result in residents losing much of their lawns; trees would be lost and property values would be lowered.



After hearing from City Engineer Wilbur Purcell council voted to take no action on the residents' request.

Mr. Purcell told council the proposed placement of the walk was to provide for possible future widening of Victoria Ave., proposed as an eventual collector street leading to the downtown area.

He said if the walk was moved nearer the street there would be no room for a boulevard in the event the street was widened to four lanes.

The proposed walk is part of a contract for new sidewalks being carried out in the city by a Toronto area construction firm.

Council was told that the contractor was almost ready to start work and there was little possibility other walks in another section of the city could be substituted.

ROY A. TAYLOR of Stirling, who recently graduated from Knox College, Toronto, was licensed as a minister of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, in a ceremony held at the regular meeting of the Kingston Presbytery at Camden East, on Wednesday June 16, 1971. ## More Election Talk

There is talk now, red-by Prince Edward - Hastings member George Hees, of a fall election. Certainly, the announcement before too long of a vote at that time would come as no surprise.

Finance Minister Benson says his budget was not brought in with an election in mind but adds that he would not mind fighting an election on the strength of it. Well this is all by way of the usual jockeying and the next month or so should clarify the political atmosphere in this regard.

As for the mechanics and psychology of elections in Canada we are all so familiar with them that we just hope their credibility does not deteriorate any further. By the time an election is over the arguments have been propounded so often that the whole thing sounds like a worn-out record. Promises, however, have gone out of fashion, for invariably they cannot be fulfilled even if the electorate remembers them when it is all over. Prime Minister Trudeau will doubtless guard his tongue from such fancy intangibles as the "Just Society."

Opposition leader Robert Stanfield, for his part, would be well advised to eschew platitudes, meaningless descriptives like "absurd" as applied to this or that piece of government policy, and abrupt interruptions of a train of thought with "let me say this . . ." while we all wait breathlessly for a point that never comes.

Much more erudite is NDP leader David Lewis of the earnest, furrowed brow, who in budget discussion acknowledged one or two of Mr. Benson's tax concessions,like those to low-income lawyers and pensioners, but turned this to his advantage by saying in effect, "well big deal, but why were these people asked to bear such a tax burden in the first place?"

But then, Mr. Lewis carefully avoids suggesting any concrete remedies for such pressing problems as inflation or unemployment. Whoever is in power at Christmas there likely will still be thousands of unemployed, and it is said that this winter things indeed will be little better than last. Mr. Lewis makes a big thing about his party's concern for people, but just what do they have in mind for putting people to work?

The Trudeau government should have a trump in its budget, especially as its major tax concessions do not go into effect until January 1. Whatever government is in power following an anticipated fall election will be committed, for a time at least, to its provisions. For the electorate it is, in a sense, a case of Hobson's Choice.

The ensuing months should be interesting politically. There are still rumors of an Ontario election as well, but let's hope we shall be spared both running into each other. The public can take only so much of politicking.

Climb Every Mountain

The death of Michael Rennie recalls to mind sundry Hollywood films in which the lean and darkly handsome British-born actor starred. Most of the titles escape us now but there was a Somerset Maugham aura about their plots and we can see him now in memory in a sun-baked Indian setting playing opposite Lana Turner.

One we do remember especially and it was the last Rennie film we saw, was Third Man on the Mountain, based on a novel by James Ramsey Ullman. The mountain is the Matterhorn and in the film Rennie and fellow climbers reach a pinnacle from which their gaze travels to a far horizon, across awesome alpine terrain, broken by cloud and mountain ranges. They stand there and for a while nothing is said. Then from Rennie, this: "Everyone should see this." A simple tribute to a panorama of overwhelming beauty.

There is something of the same in an article in this month's National Geographic. In it Mike W. Edwards is travelling the Pacific trail from Mexico to Canada. He talks about the "exhilarating loneliness" experienced while camping in Glacier Peak Wilderness, not far from the Canadian border.

"I was deeply impressed," he said, "by the contentment I found alone in the wilderness."

In interviews with the CBC's Norman Depoe, some of the young people now on the road across Canada, seems to express, perhaps haltingly, a longing for this kind of experience. Maybe they should head for the mountaintops and see what the James Ramsey Ullman character said everyone should see.

Shades of the Bonaventure—Again

How the Bureaucrats Get Away with Mismanagement

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Like Maritime Conservative MP Lloyd Crouse of South Shore (and nothing ever happens — no matter how enormous an error a senior federal department[al] officer makes he is never disciplined, demoted, much less dismissed, but sometimes promoted).

He had scarcely said it when out there came documentary proof.

It was the whitewash of the $10,000,000 boo-boo of the refit of the now scrapped Canadian aircraft carrier Bonaventure.

No one, but nobody has been disciplined, demoted, nor dismissed, Supply and Services Minister James Richardson and Defence Minister Donald Macdonald, in a mind-bending two-man political act, have told the Commons Public Accounts Committee.

But all is well, they guaranteed, promising it will never happen again because they have changed the system.

And would you believe it, the Committee not only bought that incredible bucket of whitewash, but commended the two imaginative ministers who mixed it. But hold.

That is only the hard "today" news part of it.

And it scarcely tells the story.

For that you have to turn back the clock more than a year.

It all began when Auditor General Maxwell Henderson, the President Government Scold, revealed to the consternation of the Administration that refitting the Bonnie, which initially had been estimated at $8,000,000, had run up $18,000,00.

Here was something just too big to sweep under the thick, allconcealing federal rug.

Here was something for Parliament's own continuing bureau of investigation, the Public Accounts Committee, to probe.

Solemnly swearing to get to the bottom of this suspected pork barrel, hoist out the culprits, name names, file charges and let heads roll where they may, the Committee got down to months of work.

Although the Committee is dominated by its Liberal majority and directed by Conservative MP Alf Hales who is so amiably reasonable as to be almost pap - partisan, it made it sound like it meant business.

Forecasts of tough findings and stern—even disciplinary — action came stalks from Conservative and Liberal.

But give Alf Hales his due.

In his long service as chairman of the Public Accounts Committee, he conceded, he had never heard of a federal civil servant being disciplined, demoted or dismissed.

There could always be a first time, he hinted darkly, and perhaps this might be it.

For a two-year long parliamentary time, it looked as if Alf Hales and the Committee had something.

Their report was tough. Unanimous, too. Named names, two deputy ministers and four senior civil servants allegedly involved in the $10,000,000 mismanagement of the Bonnie refit.

And most astounding — unbelievable it sounded and turned out finally so to be — disciplining was sternly recommended.

And then the Big Backoff began.

Within hours of the hard-line recommendations, the Liberal majority on the Committee softened them down, insisting there had been a "misunderstanding" about the "disciplining."

And poor Alf Hales, Hales, having the grace to look embarrassed, knuckled helplessly under the majority pressure and agreed it was the case.

To the rescue for a brief but glorious moment, rushed Conservative Whip Tom Bell of Saint John Lancaster, proclaiming the motion in the Commons, not only that the House concur, accept and approve the initial unrevised and unrepentant report, but censure Treasury Board President Bud Drury — who had been Defence Production Minister with the ultimate responsibility when the big spending was overdone on the Bonnie — in the process.

But Tom Bell did not. And again nothing happened.

Nothing, except that Donald Macdonald, then Privy Council Minister, hammered Alf Hales for having had the temerity to actually blame the bureaucrats for wasting a paltry $10,000,000.

Imagine! What a no-no for Alf Hales to have committed, letting his Committee slap Civil Service wrists.

Then Donald Macdonald said he had not really meant it: he was not "blaming" Alf Hales for being mean to the bureaucrats, but "only" the Committee. So everybody kissed and made up.

Again having the good grace to look embarrassed by the games MPs play, Alf Hales publicly swore that his Committee would take another run at it and this time ask for an accounting by the two deputy ministers and the four senior civil servants "named" and called to heel for "disciplining."

Well, the charade has been played out.

The same Donald Macdonald has told the same Committee that nobody has been demoted, disciplined nor dismissed; but one of the deputies put on the Commons mat has been promoted.

Like Lloyd Crouse says, you can not lick the Civil Service, no matter what.

But in the public interest you can keep trying.

June 22, 1941

This afternoon a small blue pennant upon which is embroidered a colored torch fluttered from the city flagstaff beneath the Victory Loan Banner. As its blue folds moved slowly in a warm breeze, those watching below on the street swelled a bit with pride. The blue pennant symbolized the fact that Hastings County had achieved its objective in the Victory Loan Campaign.

The Special Property Committee recommended to the Council "that all plans and specifications for any hose or building proposed to be erected in Belleville be first submitted to the City Engineer and the Comptroller for their approval before any construction is commenced—no permit is issued and before used."

United States forces landed in Cuba 73 years ago today — in 1898 — after the sinking of the Maine in Havana Harbor and the consequent declaration of war on Spain. There had been a bloody civil war on the island for 30 years and, while the inhabitants had made some gains (e.g. slavery was abolished in 1886) Spain had again suspended constitutional guarantees in 1895. After the short war, the United States took over all Spain's Pacific and Caribbean colonies and withdrew from Cuba in 1902, retaining the right of intervention.

Raising Children Japanese-Style

Japan Times Weekly

The general image that people have of Japanese children is that they are hopelessly spoiled. In fact, a recent report compiled by the social and education council lamented the present "confusion in the educational concepts of parents" and pointed to "the trend toward either overprotection or neglect" of children.

However, a recent survey undertaken by the ministry of education shows that the younger the mother and the higher her education the greater her tendency to bring up her child/ren with strict discipline.

Further, some 31 per cent of the mothers surveyed felt very satisfied with the way in which they were bringing up their children and 38 per cent more or less satisfied. In other words, 69 per cent of Japan's mothers feel they are doing a good job in rearing their children.

The survey, carried out last September, covered some 3,000 mothers with children in primary and junior high schools.

In announcing the results of the survey, the ministry of education, however, cautions that the replies given by the mothers do not necessarily reflect the real manner in which children are being brought up, but are colored to a certain degree by wishful thinking.

More on Those Pants

Windsor Star

Hot air over hot pants.

That's what Separatist School Board chairman Gordon Jamieson produced when he blasted students — and some teachers — for wearing hot pants outfits in the schools.

After all, when the temperature reaches the 80s, and hot pants have become a perfectly acceptable garment, even for school wear, it is only natural that students should wish to wear them. Furthermore, what business have the schools telling anyone what to wear or not to wear?

Mr. Janisse's criticism was amazingly archaic and depressingly unwarranted, because it reflected a concern — typical of many these days — for the superficial and trivial. A school trustee would be better off showing some more concern for the minds of students instead of their legs.

Not to Mention Banks and Hijackings

Millions of Dollars Lost in Airport Thefts

By KEN PRITCHARD

NEW YORK (CP) — Thieves respect property.

The late G. K. Chesterton is The Man Who Was Thursday. "They merely wish the property to become their property that they may more perfectly respect it."

The type of property most attractive to the larcenous, and the means of acquiring it, change from era to era. Negotiable paper now is avidly sought by the larcenous segment of the populace.

Cheques are constantly being stolen from the mails, sometimes in wholesale lots. Wall Street has lost millions of dollars worth of stocks and bonds, and has been busy devising ways to lock the barn door.

And this week a convicted thief named Robert P. Cudak told a United States Senate subcommittee about the ease with which millions have been stolen from mail, express and airfreight shipments passing through major airports.

Robbers and thieves for a long time made banks a principal target, one found assumption that that's where the money was.

A 1911 robbery of $721,000 from a Bank of Montreal branch at New Westminster, B.C., was long regarded, rightly or wrongly, as the largest cash robbery in the world.

Then came the 1960s and the era of the explosives experts. Among their multi-million-dollar achievements were the rifling of safety deposit vaults at an Ottawa resort, Que., bank in January, 1967; another such coup in Montreal the following February, and the Brockville, Ont., Trust and Savings Co. safecracking in May, 1966.

Arising at about the same time and extending into the next decade were large-scale hijackings. Nine masked men got $1,218 million in cash in the Brink's robbery in Boston, Jan. 17, 1950. The take went up to $1.55 million in a mail-truck hijacking near Plymouth, Mass., Aug. 14, 1962. And topping this was the Great Train Robbery near Cheddington, England, Aug. 8, 1963, in which masked bandits made a $7 million haul.

But this was hard and potentially dangerous work compared with the simple methods used by thieves who have been garnering a fat living from airports, until recently loosely guarded.

"At most airports a person who put on a pair of coveralls and wore a plastic helmet . . . wasn't questioned and could move about without restriction," Cudak testified. He estimated he and his pals got valuables, mostly securities, worth at more than $100 million in four years by simply walking away with the stuff.

The only violence connected with this effort apparently was amount the thieves, when they had a falling-out.

Transportation Secretary John Volpe has ordered a major counter-attack on crimes against transportation, estimated to have cost each United States resident $5 in 1970.

A many-pronged effort will be needed, directed not only at preventing thefts but at catching and penalizing the ultimate passers and holders of he stolen goods.

Cudak told the Senate group that the marketability of stolen negotiable paper has increased dramatically since 1966.

The closing of this market, through better identification of valuable paper or even the elimination of the direct passing of securities from holder to holder—a Wall Street idea — would make this sophisticated form of crime unprofitable.

Radio Tractor Surprises City Dwellers

Green Acres Gang Takes Over County

By MARGARET RAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County yesterday welcomed "the green acres gang" when five teenagers participating in an urban - rural exchange program arrived to spend a week in the county.

Sponsored by the extension and home economics branches of the Ontario department of agriculture and food the program is geared to provide a learning experience for urban and rural youth. Local program co-ordinator, 26 - year - old Monica Alyea, yesterday visited the Milford farm of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Walter, introducing her first group of "city cousins." The students, who will spend this week at five farm homes in Prince Edward, are urban residents 14 and 15 years of age. Their brief visit at the Walker farm offered them a first hand look at rural life complete with surprises. The farm tractor, for example, is equipped with a radio.

Although four of the exchange students left the Walker farm yesterday afternoon, 14 - year - old Robert Elder, a Toronto youth, remained to spend the week. Two other Toronto area teens, Brian Magee and Denis Landry will enjoy country living at Miss Alyea's Hillier township farm home. Victoria Williams, a Toronto area girl will holiday at the James Alexander farm in Hillier. Desiree Solder, a Kingston teenager who is interested in veterinary medicine, will visit the Ted Landry farm at Roslands.

To gain realistic insight into life "down on the farm" these students will assist their host families in daily farm chores.

The program participants must be young people who have never lived on a farm and who have not enjoyed the opportunity of visiting one for any period of time. The youngsters, the host farmer and his family have been insured in the event of accident and liability. Farm safety talks have been presented to all students participating in the exchange program.

Miss Alyea, a third year student at the University of Toronto, explained yesterday farm living presents a new experience for the teens in her first exchange group. One young girl lamented she would miss using the family dish washer but was reassured when told her host family also boasted this convenient appliance.

District newspaper items also puzzled some members of the visiting group. Familiar only with the Toronto dailies, one youth clipped a petty thief report carried in the Intelligencer recently amused by the story of an $11, break-in at a park canteen. It did not compare with city crime stories.

Miss Alyea observed the youngsters in the first group of exchanges students will be billeted on mixed farms and dairy farms. She hopes, eventually, to find interested host farmers who operate hog farms and cash crop farms in rounding out her program.

Approximately 40 teens will experience farth living in the county this summer, coming in small groups.

Miss Alyea is a native of Prince Edward County and attended a two-day orientation session in Guelph prior to becoming a program co-ordinator.

The rural - urban exchange program is free with the exception of a nominal $3 per student fee.

Church Groups

WESLEYAN METHODIST WMS

The regular, monthly meeting of the Wesleyan Methodist WM Society, was held Thursday evening with president, Nellie Greenwood leading in the service.

Program committee members were Mrs. Helen Spearman and Mrs. Joyce LeRoy.

The field study on Japan was most enlightening. Japan has a population half as large as the United States, but compacted into an area of approximate size of New York State. From the Japanese prison cell, where he was interred during world war II for his Christian faith, Dr. David Tatsuda emerged with a vision of a Japanese Christian church that would send the gospel of love to every nation, where Japanese armed forces had persecuted during the war. From the six charter members of the Immanuel General Mission, under his direction, has grown 60 organized churches and 43 unorganized churches on Japanese soil, as well as a missionary program overseas.

The members were reminded of Hastings Manor visitation in July and the delegate to the district convention was elected: Mrs. Vivian Trotter.

A decision was made to accept the responsibility for sending out the newsletters for Rev. and Mrs. Sanders who have gone to South Africa. An informative letter was read from the Seelings in New Guinea. A social time closed the service.

DOUGLAS and MARY-LYNNE MILES, son and daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Miles, graduated recently from Queen's University. Douglas with his BA in biology and Mary-Lynne with her bachelor of education degree from the McArthur College of Education. Douglas will return to Queen's in the fall for further studies and Mary-Lynne has accepted a position to teach biology at Loyalist Collegiate, Kingston.

Aprons Given Manor LA

The regular meeting of the Hastings Manor Auxiliary was held in the library of Hastings Manor on June 14.

Mrs. Alva Meyers donated ten aprons to the Auxiliary, with proceeds to go to the funds of the Auxiliary.

The summer project is the purchase of a port-a-lift and pulsating mattress for the hospital section, also a dozen lawn chairs. It was reported that 64 flower bowls have been sent to residents in the General Hospital since the 1st of January.

Mrs. Earl Naismith will be showing a film of a recent trip to Russia.

Special programs are planned for each day of Senior Citizens' week.

At the birthday party, following the business meeting, June and July birthdays will be celebrated. The oldest residents celebrating birthdays in June were Mrs. Mary Graham, 91 and Mr. William Gannon 86, and for July, Mrs. Benny, 91 and Mr. George Digby, 87. The birthday cake was cut and it was noted that there were 45 birthdays.

Tea was poured by Mrs. Prentice and Mrs. C. MacDonald.

The Only Vietnamese Woman To Receive Physiotherapy Degree

MONTREAL (CP) — Marie Le Thi Hoa, just graduated with a science degree in physiotherapy, already has lined up a job more challenging than many of her colleagues will face in a lifetime.

She has flown home to Vietnam, where it will be her responsibility to organize a three-year course in physiotherapy. There won't be much assistance available to her—it is believed she is the only Vietnamese ever to have obtained such a degree.

The task will be enormous. As Miss Le Thi Hoa noted in an interview prior to her departure, Vietnamese civilian hospitals haven't any physiotherapy departments.

There are some foreign doctors working in small rehabilitation clinics throughout the country, but a desperate need exists for amputees to begin rehabilitation while still in hospital, she said.

"Sometimes rehabilitation starts even before surgery, ji a japanese psychologically for the patient to know what is going to happen to him.

"If he is to walk until the stump is healed and he is transferred to a clinic, the rehabilitation takes twice as long."

Since completing her science courses, the tiny Vietnamese woman has been spending all her time at the Montreal Rehabilitation Institute, looking up therapy techniques and experience.

She has a special interest in the training of amputees, but said many Vietnamese suffering from leprosy and the after-effects of polio also need, but are not getting, rehabilitation.

Miss Le Thi Hoa first came to Montreal in 1962 and studied physiotherapy at the University of Montreal with the help of a United States government scholarship.

After finishing the three-year course, she returned to Vietnam and worked for five years. During that time she realized "we had to train more people."

"Physiotherapists work as a team. It is impossible to do it all alone."

In 1968 she returned to Montreal on a Canadian government grant and took the two-year course in the teaching of physical therapy. Her leave was extended for a year so she could obtain the science degree.

Although there now is no question that she must use her knowledge to teach, the decision was not made without some regret.

"I love to work with the patients," she said, looking longingly toward a rehabilitation gymnasium, "so I'll just have to try to spend as much spare time as possible with them."

She will be based in Saigon, although her parents live in a quiet community about 200 miles farther north, where she says it is "greener, cooler and not nearly as crowded."

Nevertheless, after a quick visit to her home, Miss Le Thi Hoa will return to the capital to outline the course of study, choose her students "with the help of the ministry of health, unfortunately" and find hospitals where her students can get their clinical training.

To qualify for the program, students must have high school education and speak English—as it will take some time to translate "my books."

Today, though, young Vietnamese are more likely to speak English than French, and language is not expected to be a problem.

They expect about 10 students the first year, and Dr. Gustave Gingras of the Montreal Rehabilitation Institute has promised to supply an additional teacher. He will also order the equipment needed for training.

But so easy to find, though, will be doctors to instruct her students in subjects such as anatomy and physiology.

The trouble is, the doctors need to know something about therapy so they'll know what to teach. Physiotherapists need to know a lot about muscles and nerves, not blood and stomach.

She had some regrets at leaving, and "it would have been easy for me to stay here where everything has been done."

"But I must go home. I know I can't do much, but at least I'll try."

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Green, 19 Ritchie Avenue, Belleville, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter Carol Ann to Vincent Thomas Barry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Barry, Madoc. Marriage will take place Saturday, July 10, 1971 at 3 p.m. in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville.

On June 12, Janet Marie Fletcher, daughter of Rev. W. G. Fletcher and Mrs. Fletcher was united in marriage to Wayne Francis Twiddy, son of Mrs. Anne Twiddy and the late Mr. F. Twiddy at Havelock United Church. Rev. W. G. Fletcher, the bride's father officiated at the ceremony while Mrs. Ronald McMillan provided organ music for the occasion and also accompanied the soloist Mrs. Allen Fletcher.

Given in marriage by her brother Dr. Allen Fletcher, the bride wore a princess line gown of white polyester crepe with an empire waistline trimmed with guipure lace. Lace appliques enhanced the veil and streamer train, of nylon tulle. She carried a white Bible crested with an orchid, stephanotis and ivy.

The matron of honor Mrs. Kathleen Russell was dressed in an empire style gown of coral crepe adorned with pale yellow and green embroidery. The bridesmaids were Miss Marion Camm and Miss Shan Pinkerton. The flower girl Denise Twiddy carried a basket of white and tinted shasta daisies. All the bridal attendants were identical gowns of coral crepe with empire waistlines outlined with pale yellow and green embroidery. All except the flower girl carried bouquets of white and coral tinted shasta daisies.

The best man was Rayburn Twiddy while the ushers were John Camm and Stephen Hough.

The reception was held in the Havelock United Church hall. The bride's mother wore a turquoise crepe dress with a matching floral jacket and a corsage of yellow roses.

The bridegroom's mother was in a pink crepe dress with a crocheted lace jacket and a corsage of pink roses.

The newly married couple left for their wedding trip, which took them to Northern Ontario, Manitoulin Island and on a boat trip. The bride's going away outfit was an orange ice crepe dress with white accessories and an orchid corsage. Upon return the couple will live at 5 Homewood Drive, Belleville.

Tweed Couple Wed 50 Years

The family of five daughters and three sons was present and these included: Mrs. Fred (Geraldine) Cox, Peterborough; Donald D. of Fraserville; Graydon C. of Leander; L. Dale, of Smiths Falls; Mrs. Howard (Marion) MacNunn, of Kingston; Mrs. Grant (Cleo) Price of Mountain Grove; Mrs. Wilbert (Erma) Morrow, of Elphin; and Mrs. Ray (Norma) Cox, who has since left for Germany where her husband will be stationed for three years.

The anniversary was held early so that Mr. and Mrs. Cox would be able to attend. The anniversary date is June 29.

Mrs. MacCrimmon is the former Mabel Badgley, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Badgley formerly of Corbyville. Mr. MacCrimmon is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Norman MacCrimmon formerly of Mountain Grove.

They were visited by many friends and relatives, some of whom they had not seen for many years. The bridesmaid Mrs. Grant McMullen (Ines Osborne) formerly of Picton, and the groomsman John MacCrimmon, of Pembroke, brother of the "bridegroom" were present.

They received many lovely gifts, cards, flowers as well as congratulatory telegrams and letters from Federal Government at Ottawa. They also received letters and a plaque from the Provincial Government at Toronto.

The engagement is announced of Shirley Woodcox, Belleville, to Adrian Caddick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Caddick, 27 Ponton Street, Belleville. The marriage will take place in Westminster United Church, on Saturday, July 24 at 12 noon.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Bean, Belleville, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Barbara Ruth, to Mr. Gregory Roland Bellemare, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland G. Bellemare; also of Belleville. The marriage will take place on Saturday, July 24 at 2 p.m. in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville.

WEDDING

LEAVEY — VALLEAU

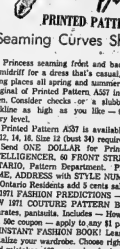
Tabernacle United Church was the setting for the recent wedding of Linda Marie Valleau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Horby and of David Earle Leavey, son of Mrs. Albert Leavey and the late Albert Leavey. Rev. Leslie Dean conducted the ceremony while C. Templer played the organ.

Given in marriage by her step father, the bride wore a street length dress of white Swiss guipure lace with a stand-up collar with peau-de-soie ribbon interlaced through it and down the front of the bodice. The long sleeves were caught up at the wrist with triangular points of lace and a large lace bow further enhanced the bodice. She wore a headpiece of peau - de - soie flowers in the narcissus design with stems of seed pearls and a three - tiered shoulder length nylon illusion veil flowing from it. Her bouquet was composed of red roses and daisies.

The maid of honor Miss Wanda Barton wore a street length aquamarine dress of linen shantung with a stand-up neckline of white lace trimmed with aquamarine ribbon. Matching lace trimmed the detachable panel which fell from the semi flare skirt. She carried a bouquet of six red sweetheart roses and daisies.

The best man was William Leavey while the ushers were James Kaiser and Stephen Leavey.



The ceremony was followed by a reception in the church hall. Receiving the guests was the bride's mother in a pale blue silk shantung dress with beaded trim at the neckline. Her matching coat featured an Elizabethan collar and she wore a corsage of baby 'mums tinted blue.

Assisting the bride's mother, the bridegroom's mother wore a medium blue lace dress and coat ensemble with a corsage of white carnations.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride left in a round necked, sleeveless A-line dress of lilac crimplene with white accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses. Upon return the couple will live at 27 Highland Avenue, Belleville.

CAROLYN SCHOFIELD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Schofield, Shannock Rd. recently graduated from McMaster University, Hamilton with a bachelor of arts degree (psychology) and a bachelor of physical education degree. Miss Schofield, who is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School plans to attend Lakehead University at Thunder Bay this summer.

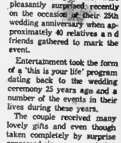
Surprise Party On 25th Anniversary



Mr. and Mrs. Wes Rees of RR2, Carrying Place were surprised recently on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary when approximately 40 relatives and friends gathered to mark the event.

Entertainment took the form of a 'this is your life' program dating back to the wedding ceremony 25 years ago and a number of the events in their lives during these years.

The couple received many lovely gifts and even though taken completely by surprise expressed sincere appreciation to everyone. A bountiful buffet lunch including a beautifully decorated anniversary cake was enjoyed.

Co-hostesses who had arranged the event were Mrs. Wilma Graham, Mrs. Ruth Mounch and Mrs. Mavis Row.

Relatives and friends were in attendance from Hamilton area, Kingston, Belleville and Trenton and surrounding district.

Ann Landers

Women's Toleration Greater Than Men's

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The other evening a group of us were talking about Women's Lib. Someone made the point that a great many females want the same privileges that men enjoy, yet they wish to be treated like ladies. In other words, they want the best of both worlds. A physician made the point that females are biologically stronger than males and since this is a scientific fact, the social amenities should be reversed. Men should be given the seats in the bus and women should stand. They should also be given the first life boats, the choicest cuts, the precious water, etc. In other words, the motto should be changed to: "Men and children first."

ANN LANDERS

Are women physically stronger than men, or is this a myth? Please give us the facts. Ma'am — NOVICE IN NEBRASKA.

* * *

DEAR NEB: Nature has decreed that the male, generally speaking, is larger and more muscular, so in that sense he is physically stronger, but . . . women are better able to tolerate exposure to heat and cold, starvation, and shock. Women are also less susceptible to baldness, color blindness, skin cysts, stomach ulcers and heart attacks. It is a well known fact that women live longer than men.

There is a genetic rationale for these differences, according to some scientists. Females have two X chromosomes in their sex cells. Males have one X chromosome and one Y chromosome. The Y chromosome is considered inferior.

These are the scientific facts. Make of them what you will!

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was incensed by the man who referred to the people who write to you as "nutty creeps." At least the people who write to Ann Landers are searching for answers. They are concerned folks, willing to admit they need help.

The people who are in real trouble are the ones who don't know they need help — or are too proud to ask. I'm frank to admit that when I first started to read your column I thought it was odd that so many people would pour out their troubles to a stranger but I have come to understand that they consider you a friend — just as I do now.

Another thing. It makes me mad when people tell you to drop dead and get lost. This usually happens when you don't agree with them. I hope this doesn't hurt your feelings. Please ignore the insults. Ann, a lot of people love you and hope you continue to write for at least another 50 years. — PHILADELPHIA READER.

* * *

DEAR PHIL: Thanks for those kind words. I'll settle for 25.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a divorcee who has been going with a very attractive man for over a year. Something bothers me about him and I don't want to discuss it with anybody. Hal is very superstitious. We have had to change our plans for a motor trip because he refuses to be on the highway on a Friday if he says it's bad luck.

I've seen Hal walk blocks out of his way to avoid a black cat. If I whistle in the house he asks me to stop. On the positive side, he is kind, considerate, dependable, extremely well thought of and has very few small children. He's a great company and he wants to marry me. What do you think? — M.A.R.

DEAR M.A.R.: So you won't take a motor trip on Friday or whistle in the house. Hal sounds like he'd make a wonderful husband. Knock on wood.

Everyone Carries Some Harmful Genes

MONTREAL (CP) — Every human carries a small number of potentially harmful genes in his or her cells, and it is the awesome task of genetic counselling clinics to determine the chances that pairing of such genes will produce afflicted children.

The risk, of course, is remote, but the fact remains that about five of every 100 babies born have some genetic defect. Resulting diseases account for one child-hood death in five, compared with one in 50 caused by infectious disease.

The McGill University-Montreal Children's Hospital genetic counselling and treatment centre has been included in a continental network of 10 centres organized last year by the National Foundation for Genetics and Neuromuscular Diseases.

To date, said Dr. F. Clarke Fraser, human genetics professor at McGill, and Dr. Charles R. Scriver, a specialist in human biochemical genetics, there isn't much medical science can do for children born with genetic conditions such as mongolism, dwarfism or club feet.

The clinic, however, sees up to 100 cases a week and provides a consultation service as well.

"People usually come to us for counselling when they've had one defective child and are wondering about their chances for another, or when they are planning marriage and know of, or suspect, some inherited defect or disease in the family background," Dr. Fraser said in an interview.

Some defects can be detected by examining the patients' cells. Others, such as the late-developing disease, Huntington's chorea, must be determined by family history.

"It is rarely possible to go back more than two generations or to get very accurate information, but this is often enough with many diseases to predict the odds fairly accurately."

Dr. Fraser then advises the couple of the chances of a defective child "and we consider anything over a 10-per-cent chance a grave risk."

A 25-per-cent risk, for example, means that any one of the couple's children would stand one chance in four of being affected.

Some people, however, are under the mistaken impression that if they have one affected child, the other three will be normal.

In fact, Dr. Fraser said, it is possible for the couple to have four affected children, although this is unlikely.

Of all the people I've counselled," he added, "some chose not to have children at all, many chose to adopt, some chose to gamble, usually where the risk was low. But none have wanted artificial insemination."

If the couple decide to go ahead and have children, a procedure known as amniocentesis can detect some conditions. A needle is inserted in the mother's abdomen to withdraw some of the amniotic fluid in which the baby is floating.

Cells in the fluid are then tested for a limited number of conditions.

"You can detect and treat by transfusion Rh babies this way," Dr. Fraser said, "and you can detect a certain kind of childhood muscular dystrophy. You can also tell the sex of the child, which may be important if it's a sex-linked defect like hemophilia."

Asked about the effectiveness of genetic counselling, he said a British report "showed that 70 per cent of those with a risk of more than 10 per cent did not have children.

"In my experience, many people with hemophilia, PKU (a type of mental retardation) and things of that nature asked to be sterilized and then adopted their children."

Mixed Up Teenager Really Wants to Die

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I'm 15 and a girl who is really mixed up. I want to die so very bad, and am not scared to try it; in fact, have everything to do it. But there is a catch.

If I do decide it is my life and I can take it. If I want, will God still accept me into His house? Because I want to be with Him and my grandmother so much it hurts. And if I do take my life and find this is a sin too big for God to forgive, I would just be so horrified. Because - never again could I see my family or God.

If your answer is what I think it will be I've decided to be a nun. I think I can help people better this way and that's what I want to do, especially old people who are in the hospital and sick like my grandmother was. — Confuddled

Dear Confuddled: If you could speak to your grandmother right now, don't you think she would say that suicide is the coward's way out? In a few short years on earth, be a grown responsible woman and your slowing down in helping people will be put to use in some wonderful way.

Our Christian faith tells us we must not take anybody's life, not even our own. We all have a job to do here on earth. You can join the loved ones who have passed on. We have a bargaining God, but He expects the best out of us; and we must accept the challenge of being His in a few short years on earth.

Talk it all over with your priest.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am happy to say I passed in the nine and ten subjects. All my grades but one were A's. I now have my Grade 12 Equivalency Diploma. It was very hard work but I feel I gained more out of it than the diploma.

Though I graduated so much since I left school 27 years ago. The work load is much heavier, and I seemed to be far more tired than the younger students when it was over.

We owe a lot of credit to our teachers. There were many times of all taking the upgrading course at night.

I am proud of going from grade eight to grade 12 in 16 months. I owe much of it to you for the help and encouragement and steering you gave me. — Grey Hairs

Dear Grey Hairs: What a plucky student! You deserve every inch of it and my help plus.

Veal Is an Expensive Dish

By MARY MOORE

One of our friends, Marie B., has been visiting in provincial France. She declares being a cook but she does claim to know a good dish when it is served to her.

Her hostess in Paris made, right before her eyes, Escalope de Veau so effortlessly that Marie made a mental note that even she could reproduce that in her Canadian kitchen.

On her return she told my sister of her culinary discovery and was enticed to come and make it. Come she did but make it she did not. She said

"I can't cook. With two good cooks like you girls why should I?" She is adorable but she is crafty.

My sister Peady had bought 1½ lbs. sliced veal cutlet costing $3.50 to be ready for that shock if you plan to try this little gem.

MARIE'S ESCALOPE DE VEAL (
(veal in cream — Serves 4)

1½ lbs. fillet of veal cut ¼" thick (serving size pieces)
Salt
Pepper
Lemon Juice
¼ cup butter
1 apple, pared and chopped (we used a Spy)
1 cup IB per cent cream
2 tbsps. Calvados or cognac or whiskey (optional)

You will need two frying pans.

Melt the butter in the two pans (2 tbsps. to each). Sprinkle the veal moderately with salt, pepper and lemon juice on both sides. Add it and chopped apple to melted butter in pans and brown until rich gold — about 5-7 min., turning once or twice and pushing apple around. Add the spurt of your choice if you use it and light it if you can. (One's burned for a few seconds.) Add half of the cream to each pan and simmer basting about 10 min. until cream takes on lovely tan. Have preheated plates ready and serve. We had a separate course of asparagus and chef's salad with bolthouse tomatoes and watercress. You gourmet cooks should try this. It is heavenly.

Psychology Teacher Addresses NSA Group

The Bay of Quinte Chapter of the National Secretaries Association (International) met on Tuesday, June 15 in the Fiesta Room at the Hotel Quinte, Belleville. Secretaries were urged to develop healthy personalities by becoming more involved in their jobs and accomplishing goals they set for themselves, by Mr. Peter Beattie, teacher of psychology at Loyalist College of Applied Arts and Technology.

He said, "70,000 people are in psychiatric and mental hospitals across Canada because they couldn't cope with life". "Happiness is a part of your personality and involves the ability to wrestle with conflict, adjust to situations and achieve success by fulfilling your potential". How does one become well adjusted" — By dealing with each problem as it arises, developing insight into your behavior, learning how to cope with it, worry, maintaining a sense of unit of balance and above all keep laughing" were a few suggestions offered by Mr. Beattie. If you make use of these suggestions you will have a richer and fuller life, both at home and at the office.

Marjorie Cross welcomed the Quinte Medical Secretaries on behalf of the Chapter: Mrs. Barbara Lewis, Dr. Wong, Transferred: Mrs. Donna McNevill, Dr. Swalpe; Mrs. Mae Calhart, Dr. Hurst and Underwriters; Mrs. Dorothy Ware, Dr. Miranda, and Mrs. Beth Cunningham, Dr. Horne.

Jean Wilson welcomed guests: Mrs. Faye Morden, Head Johnson Canada Ltd.; Mrs. Coral Quinn, Belleville Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Geraldine Grad, Trenton Police Dept.; Mrs. Lois Edey, Queen Alexandra School, Belleville; Miss Pat Arm-strong, student BCI, Miss Dicia Ellis and Miss Wickerson, Head Johnson Canada Ltd.; Mrs. Mary Mills, and Mrs. Moira Williams, Pyrotenax of Canada Ltd., Trenton.

An impressive candlelight ceremony followed with the installation of the new executive for 1971-72 and nine new members — Mrs. Mireille Miramontes, Lake Ontario Cement Ltd.; Mrs. Dorothy Aitchison, Harry J. Clarke Insurance; Miss Janet Mehlig, Hastings Co. Board of Education; Mrs. Dorothy Lensen, Head Johnson Canada Ltd.; Miss Kathryn Kosi, Pyrotenax of Canada; Trenton; Miss Susan Johnston, Belleville General Hospital; Miss Anita Culloden, Dept. National Revenue, Taxation Div.; Mrs. Betty Jaffery, Morton Parker Ltd., Trenton and Mrs. Eileen Gilbert, Miron Wiggers Const. Ltd., Trenton.

Door prize was won by new member Susan Johnston.

UCW MEETINGS

SALEM UCW

Salem UCW met at the home of Mrs. M. Weir on Wednesday afternoon for their May meeting with 12 members and one visitor in attendance. The president Mrs. Irene Keenan opened the meeting with prayer after thanking the hostess for entertaining the group.

The devotional was conducted by Mrs. Jean Ellis and consisted of prayers, hymns and readings.

Mrs. Bessie Smith conducted a Bible study. Minutes were read and approved by Mrs. Jean Ellis. It was moved by Mrs. O'Hara and seconded by Helen Keene that new hymn books should be bought for the new members.

Plans were made for catering for a forthcoming wedding. An auction sale was conducted by Mrs. Betty O'Hara.

A delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Irene Keenan and a social half-hour was enjoyed by all.

THOMASBURG UCW

The June meeting of the Thomasburg UCW was held in the church on June 10. A delicious potluck dinner was served at 12 o'clock. There were 13 women, 1 child and four men present for the dinner. Later the Bible Seekings presided at the meeting. Mrs. Mildred Preston read the scripture and Mrs. Rita Walker provided the music. Mrs. Maines read a thoughtprovoking story. During the business it was reported that the recent bake sale was a success. Plans were finalized for the Explorer's Mother and Daughter banquet. Everyone was reminded to collect used eyeglasses and postage stamps. Mrs. Barbara Sararas was in charge of the program. A skit was presented with Doris Morton, Mildren Preston, Mary Jane Rollins and Barbara Sararas taking part.

Al Dick had a pair of hits for Hillier while McKay's pair of safeties were tops for the losers.

You Can Bank On Marilyn

Toronto Dominion banked on the clutch relief pitching of Marilyn McLeod to down the Royal Bank of Canada 22-22 in Belleville Girls Financial Softball League play last night.

Rebecca Muir slugged six hits for the winners with Marg Oliver and Marion Whitehead slamming five apiece. For the Royal team it was Sue Meeks, Marg Bennett and Lisa Clarke with five hits each.

Point Anne Has Commercial Horses

Point Anne continued to have the horses in the two-horse Commercial Softball League pennant race as they hung a 6-2 defeat on the Ellis Juniors last night to move into a tie with Rollins Construction for first place.

Big Don Holowaty hurled seven-hit ball to record his fifth win of the season, while rookie lefthander Ron Rodgers yielded the same number of safeties absorbing the loss.

A pair of unearned runs in the fourth inning proved to be the difference in the contest. Doug Olsen singled and moved to third on a two - base clout by Tom McDonald. Both Point Anne baserunners subsequently scored on errors by Rodgers' teammates.

The Juniors tallied both their runs in the fifth inning on a bit batter, a single by Rick Graham, a fielder's choice, John Campbell's RBI.

Payne, who was the outstanding offensive player for the winners then scored the tying and winning goals with less than four minutes remaining to play. His winning marker came at the 59-minute mark on a 20-footer that bounced into the Tweed goal.

Payne with five goals and Clarke with two tallies and three assists were the top Belleville marksmen.

The home team was hit with 11 of the game's 21 penalties including a major to each team.

Jackie Platcha soars into the air in the girls' long jump event at the Hastings County Separate School Track and Field meet yesterday while officials wait to measure the length of the jump. A total of 300 competitors from the Roman Catholic schools in the county were on hand at Centennial Secondary School for the event.

Who's Happy?

Belleville goalie Paul Muldoon appears to be doing a victory dance, but actually he's recording one of the many stops he was called on to make in a 7-6 Quinte Junior Lacrosse League win over Tweed last night. The local juniors staged a last period rally to get the victory which tightened their hold on first place in the five team league.

When Going Rough Then Juniors Tough

"It's a rough game. I don't like fighting and roughhouse tactics but if you're pushed, then you have to show that you'll push back," was how coach Gary Curtis explained the get-tough tactics of the Belleville Juniors in last night's 7-6 win over Tweed.

For too-and-a-half periods it appeared as though Tweed would spring an upset on the Quinte Junior Lacrosse League leaders as the fellar - dwelling visitors held a 6 - 1 lead with 11 minutes left to play in the game.

"Yes, I think that we were overconfident going into the game," admitted the Belleville coach, "For two periods it was Tweed against our goalie and in the last period it was our team against theirs."

The home team came up with a listless performance during the opening 30 minutes playing loosely defence and not failing to come up with the kind of team play to enable them to mount a serious offensive threat.

Their aggressive third period tactics, however, appeared to wear down the visitors.

Danny Payne scored his second and third goals of the game to pull Belleville to a 6-3 defeat at the five - minute mark. Forward Joe Clarke then hit for a pair of quick counters on a two-on-one break and cashing in a rebound attempt.

Two Tadpoles Share Baseball No-Hitter

Jonathan Dent and James Forrester showed last night that when it comes to pitching no-hitters two can do the job as well as one.

The pair of Richard Ellis (Tadpole) combined for a no-hit effort to lead their team to a 2-0 Belleville Minor Baseball Association win last night.

The winning duo fanned 19 batters and issued only four walks. David Maikawa, Kenny Kent and Tim Turner turned in a three-hitter for the losing' Motorland Chrysler tadpoles striking out 15, but issuing 13 bases on balls.

Dent slammed a homer and single for Richard Ellis with Steve Shanque picking up the other safety.

Louis Crawford and Doug Austin hammered two homers each and Mike Lazier connected for a pair of triples as Cablevue tadpoles stopped Bobs Sports 11-7.

Charlie Dorrett had a pair of homers and Kevin Jones a homer and single for the losers.

Willie Gagne, Rob Hagerman and Tom Masterson combined for a four-hitter as the Thurlow Hopkins Wreckers edged Deseronto 8-7 in tyke action.

Gagne powered a triple and Gord Lauders a double for the winners while Tingland had hits for Deseronto.

CNR Yardmen peewees got six-hit, 13 - strikeout hurling from Peter Hall and Dennis Greer as they downed Porters Thurlow peewees 16-9.

Steve Silliren had two singles and a double and Ed Mariseau a triple and double for the winners while Brian Masterson had a double and single for Thurlow.

A trio of singles by Larry Denike weren't enough to stymy the four-hit pitching of Paul Weeks and Brian Loveless as Golden Mile buried Fitzgibbon Construction 25-2. Weeks fashioned a pair of homers and two singles and Simon Bennett a homer and three singles for Golden Mile.

In midget play the CNR Yardmen trimmed Trenton 18-5 behind the four-hit pitching of Ron McTaggart. Allan Wood had a homer and single and Don McThaggart added a triple for CNR, while McLean collected a triple for Trenton.

CNR Softballers Picking Up Speed

The CNR Trainmen continued to climb in the Industrial Softball League, but nobody was able to make any headway on the league heading Union Carbide entry.

The undefeated Bakelite squad registered their eighth win in nine games by downing AOCO 27-5 last night.

Frank "Junior" Day spun a four-hitter for Unioncarbide, fanning 12 batters and issuing one walk. John Smith started for the losers, giving way to Belch in the fifth inning. They were pounded for 18 hits and 15 walks while not striking out a batter.

Garner Bird had a homer, double and single for the winners with Day punching a homer and double and Jack Hughes two doubles and a single.

Boomhower and Brown connected for AOCO home runs.

Separate School Athletes Compete With Postmen

By RANDY DERRY
Sports Staff

Postmen aren't the only ones to brave the extremities of the weather as torrential downpours of rain and swelt-ering heat failed to stop the Hastings - Prince Edward Separate School Board track meet.

Over 300 competitors shivered through a mid-day squall and blistered under a June sun the rest of the day, in the first such track meet held by the Separate School Board. Eleven schools, covering the area from Marmora to Picton, entered the meet.

The participants themselves ranged from grade 4 to grade eight and were fitted into divisions from Atom (nine years and under) to Midget (14 years and under). Each division produced its own champion who won at least two events.

The Atom girls champion was Susan Shriner with victories in the 80 and 100 metres. Steve Molina was the big winner in the Atom boys class picking up wins in the 80 and 100 metres.

The Peewee girls produced two heroines Cindy Duffy with victories in the triple and long jumps and Mary Martels, victorious in the high jump and the 400 metres. Mike Logan and Jaques Belanger were also both double winners in the Peewee boys as Logan was the class in the 100 metres and the 400 while Belanger took the 200 metres and the long jump.

AAU President Advocates Opening Olympics to Professionals

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Lloyd Ward, "revolutionary president" Jack Kelly of the Amateur Athletic Union is advocating an "open" Olympic Games matching the world's premiere athletes . . . pro and amateur.

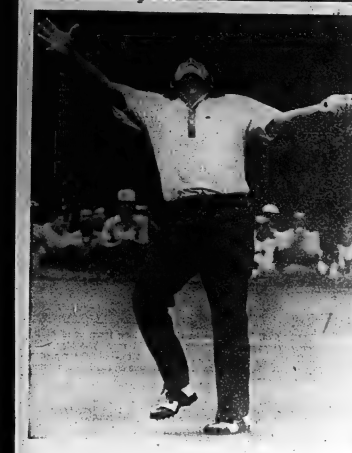
"When eight 100-metre sprinters line up for the Olympic finals," he said, "there's no reason it shouldn't be the fastest eight humans . . . regardless of their daily jobs."

Kelly, handsome older brother of Monaco's Princess Grace, was elected Amateur Athletic Union chief last year and is willing to take shots at his own organization as well as other members of the sports establishment.

"Avery Brundage," he said, turning to the aging head of the International Olympic Committee, "may be the world's only simon pure amateur. His committee is made up of self-perpetuating old men."

Kelly agrees with many United States athletic leaders that Yank chances in the Olympics suffer since the nation generally adheres to amateurism while socialist nations subsidize programs.

"If America's fastest runner happens to be a cornerback for the Philadelphia Eagles," he said, "then I think he should be in the starting blocks at the Olympics."



Bending a mike, the slick-haired Philadelphian—a four-time Olympic rower—said that "at the least, an athlete who is a professional in one sport should still be able to compete as an amateur in another."

Such a ruling would clear the road for sprinters such as Bob Hayes to run in the Olympics even though he has been handsomely paid to play football for Dallas Cowboys.

Kelly said that an "open" Olympics would "help to eliminate cheating and under-the-table dealings; much the way an open format has done for tennis."

Many of the amateur sports regulations, he said, "were established in Queen Victoria's time when athletes were generally considered to be a low class of people. My father once was denied a chance to sail in the Henley Regatta because he carried the union card of a bricklayer."

Among the antiquated amateur rules, he said, is one that forbids a man coaching swimming to perform as an athlete in the Olympics. "On the other hand, a life guard can enter the Olympics . . . but he must not have served as a life guard within 30 days of the Olympics."

Sports on All Fronts

TORONTO (CP) — The father-son crew of Bill and Bryan Gooderham enhanced its position in the North American Amateur championships Monday, winning both races over a seven-mile triangular course. Combined with Sunday's races, the Gooderham entry from Toronto's Royal Canadian Yacht Club now has three victories and one second-place finish. Final race in the North American series is today with the World championships set to go on the same course Wednesday. Hamilton Ed McGrath, with crew John Jones of Toronto, chased the Gooderhams across the finish line on Monday's first race with D. T. Pearce of England the second man across in afternoon racing. Just beating Jack Langmaid's Oshawa entry in the Bigwin field.

NEW YORK (AP) — The $150,000 Walt Disney World Open has been added to the 1971 professional golf tour at Orlando, Fla., Dec. 2-5, it was announced Monday. The event will be played on the Magnolia course on the Walt Disney vacation park, which will open in October.

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — Lee Trevino accepted an invitation to represent the United States in the World Cup matches in Florida later this year shortly after beating Jack Nicklaus 68-71 in an 18-hole playoff for the United States Open golf championship Monday. Trevino will have Nicklaus, the PGA champion, as a partner in the two-man team event that has drawn entries from 46 countries.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Rowers from the Boston and Philadelphia areas and Washington state predominated among the qualifiers Monday for today's finals in the single sculls and eight-oared event at the U.S. trials for the Pan American Games. In the morning qualifier for eights, the University of Washington varsity edged a combined Penn-Vesper Boat Club shell in six minutes 3.6 seconds and a combination boat comprised mainly of Dartmouth rowers defeated the Brown B boat by nearly three full seconds in 6:02.5. The afternoon repechage, or second chance, races saw Rutgers and Penn-Vesper finish 1-2 in one contest and the Brown A and Harvard lightweight crews get the top two spots in the other as all earned starting berths in the finals. National champion Jim Dietz of the New York Athletic Club and two Boston lans, William Tytus of the Union Boat Club and Ken Foote of the Narragansett Boat Club, won easily in the morning heats of the single sculls.

Beats Nicklaus in Playoff

Trevino Takes Second U.S. Open

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — Lee Trevino, who until a month ago considered himself a give-up artist, won the 71st annual U.S. Open golf championship Monday by beating Jack Nicklaus, the man many rate the best golfer in the world.

The 31-year-old Trevino, Mexican-American grandson of a Dallas gravedigger, was one over par on the first hole at Merion Golf Club and then went on to shoot a two-under-par 68 for a three-stroke victory over the favored Nicklaus.

It was the second U.S. Open title for Trevino, who won in 1968 with a record-equalling 72-hole total of 275. Both he and Nicklaus shot par 280s over Merion's short but tough course to force the 25th open playoff.

Nicklaus, in his bid for a third Open title, left two shots in the sand and they were disastrous.

"I just made a bad swing on two, and on three I tried to get under the ball and didn't hit it hard," said a dejected Nicklaus.

The mixed sand shots gave the steady playing Trevino a two-shot lead and he never trailed. The victory was worth $30,000 to the fun-loving Trevino, who outlived over Nicklaus (161-213) into first place on the money-winning list with $150,000.

Trevino said this second Open title was more satisfying to him, even though that initial one took him from relative obscurity as a pro to a golfer who had to be reckoned with. He used a comment by former golfing great Walter Hagen to make this point.

"Hagen said that anyone can win one U.S. Open, but it takes a great golfer to win two."

It was Trevino who referred to himself as a give-up artist. He described himself as a guy who tried to miss the cut when he got two or three over par in a tournament. He said he came to his senses last month in a tournament in Houston.

"It just so happened that in Houston after 36 holes, Hubert Green was leading. If I'm not mistaken, he was five under par and I was six over par for the tournament. With 31 holes to go I was tied for the lead. I had made up 11 shots on the field.

"And right then I knew and I said to myself, 'You should never give up in this game because you never know what is going to happen in the remaining four or five holes to anyone.' So, I just keep plugging."

"He's getting better and better every time out," said Nicklaus of Trevino. "And he's going to continue to get better with experience."

Although the same age as Trevino, Nicklaus has been playing tournament golf since he was 18 while the new Open champ has been on the PGA tour only about four or five years.

Nicklaus suggest the new champ will have to start pacing himself, just as he's had to in recent years.

'Womens Lib' Hits Wimbledon

LONDON (CP) — The "women's lib" movement in tennis invades Wimbledon today, traditional women's day of the championships.

The group, now appropriately referred to as "women's lib," is led by American Billie Jean King, who has played in the last five women's singles finals at the all-England Tennis Championships, winning three of them.

This new professional power in women's tennis was formed last September because many top girls considered the men were getting too big a share of prize money on the international circuit.

They signed nominal $1 professional contracts, and under the aegis of Gladys Heldman, editor of the magazine World Tennis, set up their own professional tournament schedule.

The first tour, sponsored by a tobacco company, ran from January to April and resulted in Billie Jean winning eight of the four team tournaments to net $37,000.

There is certain to be intense rivalry between the "women's lib" professionals and the top independents headed by Australian Margaret Court, the 1970 Grand Slam winner.

Mrs. Court is seeded No. 1, with Mrs. King ranked second.

Mrs. Court, as reigning champion, opens the centre court program today in a second-round match against fellow Australian Lorraine Robinson. But Mrs. King, who also had a first-round bye, will not begin her challenge until Wednesday.

Tom Gorman of Seattle registered his mastery over Clift Drysdale as Wimbledon opened Monday, knocking the eighth-seeded South African out of the men's singles in the only upset of the first day of play.

Gorman, whose third-round victory last year was in straight sets, needed five to subdue the 20-year-old Johannesburg professional this time as he dropped the first two sets and overcame a match-point himself before winning 2-6, 6-8, 6-3, 6-4, 7-5.

Other seeded players advanced without too much difficulty. But Ilie Nastase of Romania, rated seventh, had his match against Ray Keldie of Australia called by darkness with the score tied 7-7 in the fifth set.

Third-seeded Ken Rosewall of Australia straight-setted Patrick Hombergen of Belgium 6-3, 6-3, 6-1 while Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., seeded fourth, beat French left-hander Michel Leclercq 6-2, 6-4, 6-3. Fifth-seeded Arthur Ashe of Gum Springs, Va., won a close 3-6, 8-3, 6-4, 7-5 match against Erik Van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif.

Blue Not Counting--Just Throwing

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vida Blue is go for a 30-game season, but he's not really counting.

The sensational Oakland lefthander won his 15th game of the season Monday night, setting down Minnesota Twins 3-2 with a 13-strikeout performance that increased the Athletics' American League West lead to eight games over second-place Kansas City Royals, who lost 5-1 to Chicago White Sox.

VIDA BLUE

Elsewhere Monday night, Baltimore Orioles ripped Washington Senators 7-2 and Milwaukee Brewers nipped California Angels 3-2 in 10 innings. Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians were rained out and the other teams were not scheduled.

Blue's workmanlike job on the Twins moved him halfway to 30 victories, a fact that doesn't impress the cool youngster.

"At the end of the season, "we'll see what I've got," he said. "Whatever it is, I'll be satisfied."

What Blue has right now is a major-league-leading 146 strikeouts, 15 complete games in 19 starts and a 15-2 record. He allowed just seven hits against Minnesota, but only one after the fifth inning.

The Twins nicked Oakland's ace for three hits and both their runs in the third inning, giving rookie Ray Corbin a 2-1 lead. The Athletics tied it on Mike Epstein's double and singles by Sal Bando and Dave Duncan in the sixth and then scored the deciding run in the seventh when Minnesota catcher George Mitterwald threw wild on a delayed double steal.

The last man to win 30 games was Denny McLain in 1968 and the controversial right-hander could reach 30 again this season, but on the wrong side of the ledger.

Washington's McLain lost his eighth straight and 13th in 17 decisions as Baltimore belted him for 16 hits.

Boog Powell, who was batting .179 before the game, cracked three singles and a double and drove in three runs for the Orioles. Paul Blair also had four hits and drove in one run and Frank Robinson knocked in three with two hits for he Birds, who lead the East Division by 5½ games over Detroit Tigers.

Mike Andrews raced home all the way from a second on a strikeout for the tie-breaking run and Chicago went on to whip Kansas City behind Tommy John.

Andrews walked in the second and moved up on an infield out. When the third strike on Luis Alvarado got past catcher Jerry May, Andrews took off and scored as May threw Alvarado out at first base. Andrews later doubled home another Chicago run in the eighth.

Roberto Pena tied the game with a ninth inning single and then drove in Milwaukee's winning run in the 10th with another hit as the Brewers topped California.

Willie Changes Face AND Figures

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Willie Stargell isn't one to put a face before a figure—at least not on a baseball scoreboard.

Stargell, pleased with the new likeness of him which appears on the electronic scoreboard at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium, socked his 25th home run of the season Monday night as the Pirates widened their National League East Division lead by whipping the second-place New York Mets 6-0.

"They had me looking like a gorilla up there before," the slimmed-down slugger said after his two-run blast helped the Pirates move 4½ games ahead of the Mets. "My face was so big there was no room on the scoreboard for my statistics."

Stargell's statistics continue to mount. He leads the majors in homers and runs batted in, with 67, and is hitting a solid .311.

In other games, rookie Bobby O'Brien outpitched returning veteran Bob Gibson as Los Angeles Dodgers trimmed St. Louis Cardinals 4-0. Philadelphia Phillies topped Cincinnati Reds 3-3 in 12 innings and Atlanta Braves split a doubleheader with Montreal Expos, winning 6-4 before a 5-3 loss.

After the twin bill, the Braves released 42-year-old reliever Hoyt Wilhelm, all-time leader in pitching appearances with 1,045 in 20 major league seasons.

Pittsburgh's Dock Ellis stymied the Mets on eight scattered hits to reel off his ninth straight victory and become the National League's biggest winner with an 11-3 mark.

"When I'm hitting, it doesn't matter whether the pitcher is lefty or righty," said Stargell.

Pittsburgh's Bob Robertson set a major league record for first baseman with eight assists.

O'Brien, making his first start in the majors after nine relief stints, shackled the Cardinals on six hits. Gibson, back on the mound for the first time since May 29, when he went on the disabled list with arm trouble, was clipped for three runs and six hits before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

WILLIE STARGELL

Willie Davis drilled a single, double and his third homer to drive in two Los Angeles runs.

Willie Montanez's two-run triple in the 12th carried the Phillies past the Reds, handing winless Jim Merritt his ninth setback of the season.

Hank Aaron belted his 20th home run and Mike Lum, Hal King and Darrell Evans also homered in an eighth-inning barrage that brought Atlanta from behind in its opener against the Expos.

Hawk Flies to Golf Links

BOSTON (AP) — Colorful Ken (Hawk) Harrelson bade baseball farewell Monday to try for a new fortune on the pro golf tour at the age of 29.

"My decision to leave baseball is irrevocable," Harrelson said as he teed off with other sports celebrities and amateurs paying $150 each in a charity golf tournament at Woodland Golf Club in neighboring Newton.

Placed on waivers by Cleveland Indians Sunday, Harrelson played 18 holes under a hot sun before heading for Fenway Park and donning a baseball uniform for what he insisted would be the last time in a game against Boston Red Sox.

The game was called because of rain after two innings, however.

Harrelson played his best season in 1968, getting 35 homers and driving in 109 runs.

He found a home in Boston, and expected a lengthy career with the Red Sox.

CFL Action Under Way

AURORA, Ont. (CP) — Two veterans found themselves at unfamiliar posts Monday as Toronto Argonauts opened their Eastern Football Conference training camp.

Dave Rainey, an offensive star on the half line in previous seasons, was playing a defensive halfback position while Dick Thornton, a solid defensive half, was at a split end slot.

Coach Leo Cahill confirmed there was nothing funny in the manoeuvres.

"Rainey can do the job on defence if he has to," said Cahill of one of the Canadian Football League's leading running backs of recent years. "Thornton has always been a good receiver and he has a nose for the ball."

Rainey, a former Western Conference star with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, ran into leg injuries last year that slowed his production.

Rainey originally played as a defensive back with Cleveland Browns of the National Football League before going to Winnipeg.

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders could be missing a pair of key veteran Canadian linemen if a minor revolt in their training camp isn't soon resolved.

Doug Specht and Doug Collins both have decided not to take part in daily workouts that started Saturday until they have signed contracts with theRiders.

The team management said Monday both players would be suspended if they did not start attending practices on a regular basis.

Specht has had six productive years and Collins three as Rough Riders.

* * *

HAMILTON (CP) — It wasn't just the temperatures that were heated on McMaster University football stadium Monday when Hamilton Tiger Cats of the Eastern FoFoball Conference opened their 1971 training camp.

New head coach Al Dorow was steamed up over the absence of halfback Ollie Carson who had assured him by telephone from Miami Beach, Fla., last Thursday he'd arrive in time for the camp.

And newcomer Bill Byrd from New Mexico State took exception to some action by Peter Bender, the rookie from Montreal's McGill University.

Byrd pummelled Bender in the first heated exchange of the camp and it was first feared the young Canadian had suffered a fractured cheek and nose.

But x-rays were negative and Bender was around for the afternoon session.

Canuck Shares Climbing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Trading in Shares of Northwest Sports Enterprises, owners of Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League, resumed Monday on the Vancouver Stock Exchange with the price rising $1.25 to $7.75.

Shares were trading at $6.50 June 11 when the exchange halted trading after four Canadian directors of the company said they would resign because $3.5 million in Northwest funds had been transferred to the United States by Medicor, major shareholder in Northwest Sports.

The order was in force all last week while Minneapolis-based Medicor tried to raise $2.5 million with which to redeem its shares which had been ordered deposited with a trust company.

Caposzzi Enterprises Ltd. came to Medicor's rescue late last week with a loan and in return won interim control of Northwest Sports.

Croll Says Poverty Probers Misused Confidential Papers

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator David Croll (L—Ontario) accused four former staff members of the Senate poverty committee Thursday of a grave misuse of confidential and privileged documents.

All four—economists Peter Penz and Brian Hill, and writers Bill Cameron and Ian Adams—deny that they violated any oaths of secrecy in an article on the committee's work published Monday.

The issue may come before a special Senate committee on privilege.

Senator Jacques Flynn (PC—Quebec), Senate opposition leader, after hearing Senator Croll's prepared Senate statement, said the matter appears serious. He would consider moving a motion today asking that a Senate committee inquire into the matter.

Senator David Walker (PC—Ontario) asked whether the four could get jail sentences if they abused any oaths they took when they joined the committee.

Government Senate Leader Paul Martin (L—Ontario) said it was best to await Senator Flynn's speech before making further statements.

The four former committee employees wrote an article for The Last Post, a Montreal-based monthly publication, saying they quit the committee in April after a disagreement with Senator Croll, the chairman.

"We resigned because the chairman did not want to accept a candid appraisal of our society," they said.

They also said that the committee "has already used the issue of confidentiality in an attempt to block the publication of this work."

The four declared that all Senator Croll wanted "was a rather maudlin discussion of what it was like to be poor, an indignant denunciation of the inadequacies of the current welfare system, followed by a call for a guaranteed annual income."

Senator Croll told the Senate he did not intend "to get in a slanging match" with the four.

But publication of the Senate committee's report on poverty would be delayed until September because work supposed to be done by them was in fact incomplete.

The committee had hoped to make the report public by last Easter.

Senator Croll said that last April, after the four resigned, he placed on the Senate record the agreement and contract signed by Mr. Adams, Mr. Hill and Mr. Cameron. He also quoted from a parliamentary expert who said publication of any portion of evidence or documents given to special committees was a breach of privilege of the Senate.

Mr. Penz, because he was employed by the manpower department, already was bound by such an oath of secrecy, said Senator Croll.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Long gone are the days when people looked upon their fat brethren as "happy - go - lucky" individuals. We know enough about the problem of overweight to realize that beneath the smiles and apparent jollity, lie the rumblings of a volcano, lie the frustrations and emotional sores which produce a very unhappy human being. Here, for example is a letter which indicates that being fat isn't funny:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm having marital problems because of my excessive weight. I tip the scales at about 250 pounds. My husband says that if I could weigh about 130 (which was my weight before marriage) everything would be okay. He says I'm not the same girl (I'm not) and so forth.

I've been to a doctor but failed to lose. He said, "Why do you eat so much?" I said, "I eat when I get angry or upset and tense." He said, "You must have been mad an awful lot." This didn't help. Funny, yes, but no answer for me.

In addition to being fat I'm tired all the time. And I'm always sleepy. I can go to sleep any time, even after I've had 10 hours of sleep, and still be sleepy and tired. Naturally, all this has made me feel nervous and depressed.

* * *

I can't seem to stay on a diet. Especially when I have a doctor who seems to take my problem as a joke. You know, you can be an alcoholic and people still 'lean love you. You can be a drug-user and people will sympathize and understand. But if you're fat, "It's all your fault."

Everyone laughs. Nobody — especially your husband — understands what you're going through. Nobody seems to be able to love someone who is fat. (It isn't true that everyone loves the fat person.)

Can you help? Can you save me — and my marriage? I've thought of leaving home, kids and husband — but I know that isn't the solution. I don't dare to tell you my name after this confession. People would really have cause to laugh their heads — Mrs. C.

* * *

COMMENT: Ask your doctor to refer you to a family physician or to an internist who is especially interested in treating obesity. It's important to have a doctor who does not think that "being fat is funny". You must find one in whom you can lean on—and I don't use "lean" as a pun.

Although excessive eating is usually the reason for overweight, your complaints of tiredness and sleepiness suggest that thyroid tests are in order, to make certain you haven't got a lazy thyroid gland.

You will need a complete physical and understanding, sympathetic physician. And, of course, full development of your will power. Your doctor can only advise — the real job of reducing depends upon the patient.

If you value your happiness, if you want to keep your husband and children together, you will work at your job of reducing. Not an easy one, but it all depends on you.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband smokes at least two cartons of cigarettes a week. He drinks a fifth of white wine every night and about six cans of beer. Needless to say he is drunk most of the time he is home.

On Saturdays, it's from 12 to 18 cans of beer and two or three bottles of wine. He does not drink quite so heavily on Sunday because he doesn't want to miss work on Monday. He is 32 and has not missed one day of work in years. Therefore, no one at the office realizes how much alcohol he takes. Would you call him an alcoholic? — Mrs. F.

COMMENT: He is a chronic alcoholic. He will not improve until he himself admits it. Many a "secret drinker" (a chronic alcoholic) hasn't missed a day's work in years. His associates may not know, but his liver knows. Has he tried Alcoholics Anonymous or your family doctor?

Fat Covers Many Annoying Tensions

Sydney J. Harris Says

Reasearch 'Campaigns' Silly

One of the silliest projects proposed by President Nixon is the mounting of an enormous "research campaign" to find the cause and cure of cancer. Science simply doesn't work this way, as its history adequately shows.

The odds are long that, when a cancer cure is found, it will come from a different field of research — one that is not looking specifically for a cancer cure. Thus, by diverting funds from basic scientific research in general to this specific goal the search is actually being hampered rather than furthered.

To lay minds, there is little difference between "mounting a campaign" to land men on the moon and doing the same to find the cause and remedies for cancer. But there is a world of difference between the two; the difference between "practical wisdom" and "theoretical wisdom."

In practical wisdom, the final end is the first principle. That is, we know where the moon is, and our task is to arrive there as safely as possible. Everything is subordinated and focussed on this end, which is plainly in sight.

In theoretical wisdom, the first principle is knowledge for its own sake, not for the sake of a final end. The experimenter does not know where his experiment is going to take him, and his end is the gaining of knowledge, not the achievement of a pre-determined goal.

This is, in the main, how great discoveries are made in all the sciences — not by men who are looking for something in particular, but by men who stumble upon something valuable in their pursuit of broader and deeper knowledge. Atomic fission, for example, came by way of an abstract mathematical formula, not from any heavily funded research campaign to penetrate the atom.

Most Americans are infatuated with technology, and thus fail to appreciate what the enterprise called science really is. Technology merely carries out what theoretical science has already pointed to; it is a blind giant, implementing the tasks assigned to it by the theory. And if theory is ignored, or slighted, all the money and machinery in the world cannot bring technology an inch closer to an ultimate goal.

When and if the cure of cancer emerges from a laboratory, it is most likely that the researchers will have been engaged upon some quite irrelevant pursuit, as Fleming's discovery of penicillin occurred from the "carelessness" of an assistant, and Watson's synthesis of urea while looking for something else entirely. You can bet on it.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For June 23

Your birthday today: A broad range of experiments in living begins for you — new attitudes toward people of long association. Competition, expressed subtly, arises on non-material issues. You learn this year how to free yourself of jealousy. Today's natives offer pleasant personalities which cover their very serious views of life, intense, deep-seated opinions.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proves to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoidal tissues painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort at contact and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered as a new, rectal suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal danger of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Yaremko Plans Reform of Ontario's Antiquated Liquor Laws

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario residents will soon be able to go into a dining lounge and order drinks without having to buy a meal, the provincial legislature was told Monday.

Provincial Secretary John Yaremko later told a news conference this was "the most significant" of a number of changes that will broaden Ontario's drinking laws.

But there was no reduction in the legal drinking age which now is 21.

Some of the changes will come as a result of the passage of two bills which will be introduced to the house. The remainder can be accomplished through regulations which the cabinet will discuss Wednesday or through a liquor control board policy statement.

"Most of these new changes should be well under way by MID-July," the minister told the news conference.

James Mackey, chairman of the LCBO, said most of the changes "are under way now."

Other major changes will give more drinking rights to apartment or condominium dwellers in their buildings and on the rental properties.

And 40-ounce bottles will reappear on liquor store shelves "several months or at the turn of the year."

Mr. Yaremko emphasized he was not attempting to turn dining lounges into drinking lounges. The new legislation will not apply Sundays.

In addition, a proprietor must not allow liquor to make up more then 50 per cent of his business.

"There must be a balance. We are not changing all of the dining lounges into lounges. What we're doing is we're maintaining a system where the emphasis will be on food as well as liquor."

The current balance in dining lounges is 70 per cent food and 30 per cent liquor, he said.

The Liquor Licensing Board of Ontario also has power to suspend licences if the provision is ignored.

To conform with federal legislation, Ontario liquor outlets will open after the polls close on federal election days. This is already permitted on provincial and municipal election days.

Other changes included:

Dancing and dinner music in dining lounges and dining rooms will be permitted on Sundays.

Liqueur candies will now be available with up to five per cent alcohol by weight.

Apartment and condominium residents now will be permitted to drink a beer as they lounge around their pools.

The change, contained in new legislation, broadens the definition of resident for liquor consumption purposes to include condominium and apartment buildings and their pools, patios recreation rooms, lounges, laundry rooms, back and front yards and parking areas.

Mobile homes are also included. So are senior citizens' homes.

Selected liquor control board outlets will be open until midnight where the demand warrants the extra hours.

In most areas LCBO stores close at 6 p.m. Some remain open until 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday nights.

Further categories in outdoor drinking were added to changes announced last month which permitted drinking outside in licenced premises that had some sort of screening from the general public.

The new regulations will apply to "well organized" special festivals and exhibitions.

The LCBO will also establish a duty-free liquor store at Toronto International Airport for international flights, the minister announced.

The $5,000 minimum fine for contravention of the Liquor License Act has been removed as "discriminatory."

Many of the changes are aimed at the tourist industry.

"We believe that the hospitality industry should be encouraged . . . and the regulations which affect the industry be more reasonable, realistic and in tune with the times," Mr. Yaremko said.

He emphasized that local options regarding the changes will also be enforced.

In employment, the new regulations will make it possible for waiters and waitresses to work interchangeably in all licensed premises regardless of the classification of the licence.

This means that waitresses can be employed in beverage rooms. Formerly, they could not.

Mr. Yaremko said the restriction was lifted in view of the Women's Equal Employment Opportunity Act.

In other business:

—Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) and Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) complained over delays in implementing regional government in the Sudbury and Hamilton areas during a committee meeting studying municipal affairs estimates.

—A. T. C. McNab, deputy minister of highways, said tracked hovercraft, riding on a cushion of air, may soon be transporting people in and out of Ontario cities to points 50 miles away. He made the statement at a legislature committee meeting studying transportation and communication department estimates.

—Charles McNaughton, minister of transportation and communication, said at the same meeting he will introduce new legislation on Ontario's transportation policy "hopefully by Thursday of this week."

—A. B. R. Lawrence, Ontario's health minister, said he will not become involved in allegations that some hospital nurses have been threatened with dismissal because they will not participate in therapeutic abortions.

—Allan Grossman, trade and development minister, said the provincial government has delivered the first $351,000 of a $961,000 loan to publishers McClelland and Stewart Ltd. to keep them under Canadian control.

Commons Clears Decks For Debate on Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave final approval Monday to two bills and endorsed the appointment of a minister of state for science as it cleared the decks for today's budget debate.

Marcel Lambert, Conservative financial spokesman, kicked off the opposition assault on the federal budget Friday night, just after Finance Minister E. J. Benson's budget speech, and is to resume his remarks today.

The two bills given final Commons approval Monday are the clean air bill and amendments to the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act. Both now go to the Senate.

All parties approved creation of a ministry of state for science and technology, although New Democrat David Orlikow (Winnipeg North) doubted it would be effective.

McKeough Declares Budget Too Late to Ease His Task

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Monday he found both good and bad in last week's federal budget but lamented that its expansionary fiscal policies had come too late to help burdened provincial treasuries.

He said in a statement to the legislature that tax cuts announced in the budget were a step in the right direction in dealing with unemployment. But the major problem "is the cumulative effect of the delay in introducing these measures."

He said Ontario was pleased with Ottawa's decision to remove the three-per-cent surtax on personal and corporation income, the introduction of a capital-gains tax, and the abandonment of the complicated principle of integrating corporate and shareholder tax.

Mr. McKeough said a more detailed study of the budget was needed before a decision could be made on a future course for Ontario in view of the new tax changes.

He was also disappointed Ottawa chose to use tax exemptions to provide relief for low-income Canadians rather than a universal system of tax credits, favored by Ontario.

He said the budget ignored about two million people whose incomes are too low to benefit from the changes.

"On the basis of ..... forecasts we tend to believe that the federal government has arrived late on the scene with expansionary fiscal policies and has left a large part of the burden on economic reflation with provincial treasuries across the country."

Because of federal fiscal policies, provincial budgets across Canada had been forced into deficits and higher borrowing.

Charge Against Judge Is Reduced

HULL, Que. (CP) — When Heafrew County Judge Frank Dunlap appears in court here Sept. 17, it will be, on a reduced charge of preventing a police officer from carrying out his duties.

The judge originally was charged with assaulting a police officer June 6 at Wright, Que., after he and Larry Regan, general manager of Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League were stopped on Highway 11.

Judge Dunlap pleaded not guilty to the reduced charge Friday when he appeared before Judge Arthur L'Abbe here and was released on his own recognizance.

Queen's Law Professor Is Arrested for Murder

EDMONTON (CP) — Keith Elgin Latta, 43, a law professor at Queen's University at Kingston, arrived here Monday under police escort to face a charge of non-capital murder in the June 13 slaying of Bob Neville, a city businessman and separate school board trustee.

Edmonton-born Prof. Latta was to appear today before provincial court judge John Coughlan.

Latta arrived at Edmonton International-Airport at 7:30 p.m. EDT under escort by an Edmonton police detective. He had been arrested Saturday as he approached his home in Kingston.

Mr. Neville, 38, was shot in his travel agency office in downtown Edmonton. He was shot once in the chest and twice in the back with a .22-calibre pistol.

A .22-calibre pistol was found by an Edmonton couple near a city park Sunday. Police said the weapon was in a brown paper bag and had been covered by muddy water. It is being examined by police.

Inspector A. W. R. LeFeuvre, in charge of the investigation, declined to elaborate on evidence gathered in Kingston that led to the arrest of Prof. Latta.

A green fedora, sunglasses, a hand-drawn map of Edmonton with lettering in Italian and a key to a bus depot locker were found in Mr. Neville's office. The locker contained a gun holster, some unused .22-calibre ammunition, spent ammunition cases, an empty eyeglass case, two newspaper pictures of Mr. Neville, an English-Italian dictionary, a map of Italy in Italian and a June 9 issue of the Calgary Herald.

Prof. Latta was in the travel agency business in Edmonton while practising law. He and Mr. Neville formed a partnership in 1964 and two years ago Mr. Neville became sole owner of the agency.

Census Taking Not Bilingual

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament's linguistic watchdog reported Monday that the census takers contravened the Official Languages Act "on a national scale."

Keith Spicer, commissioner of official languages, sent an "urgent" and "extraordinary" report to the Commons and Senate charging that the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in taking the 1971 census committed "serious infringements" of the act.

The languages act guarantees that persons can deal with the federal government and its agencies in either French or English.

But in the case of the census, many French-speaking persons were given English-language forms and some census takers could not converse in French with Francophones in French-speaking areas.

"Only the envelope and pencil were bilingual," Mr. Spicer said in his special report, tabled in the Commons by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

Quebec Rejects Constitutional Pact

Bitter Regret Voiced

BULLETIN

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today that he is still willing to "contact the other premiers," should Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa indicate that the constitutional charter is still open for discussion.

By The Canadian Press

Prime Minister Trudeau's reaction to Quebec's rejection of the Victoria constitutional charter early today is that "an impasse has been reached" but the business of the country will go on.

Other reaction to Premier Robert Bourassa's announcement included shock, disappointment and resignation.

Premier William Davis of Ontario, whose government was the first to accept the charter when it announced its decision Monday, expressed disappointment today but said he was not surprised at the outcome.

"I guess not, really," he said in an interview. You sort of hope these things will work out but, no, I don't think I can say I was surprised."

This "puts us back to square one" in the effort to bring the constitution home, said Premier Harry Strom of Alberta, who had announced earlier his province's support for the charter.

Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia said it is unfortunate that a charter could not have been reached that would be acceptable to all provinces.

Other premiers were not available or withheld comment until later.

But the reaction of Attorney-General Allan Lawrence of Ontario was "Oh My God."

Resources Minister Ray Williston of British Columbia said the early-morning announcement by Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa means "the whole thing is down the drain."

"I am very surprised and I think it will be a long time before the provinces get together again to reconsider the constitution," he said. "It is to be regretted."

Premier Strom said there appears to be "no point in getting

Income Security 'Uncertainty' Is Bar

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec has turned down the constitutional charter written last week in Victoria because it doesn't like the social security provisions. Premier Robert Bourassa, who announced early today that Quebec cannot accept the charter, said if uncertainty on income security were eliminated "our conclusion might be different."

A deadline of June 28 was set at Victoria for acceptance of the whole charter by the federal government and all provincial governments. Prime Minister Trudeau had warned that lack of acceptance might set back constitutional reform for years.

The Victoria agreement specified that a rejection by any of the provincial governments or the federal government would be enough to void the agreement. Mr. Trudeau said in Victoria that if the charter was rejected, it would end the series of constitutional talks "for a while."

However, the proposed charter aroused strong opposition in Quebec.

After a series of meetings Tuesday, Mr. Bourassa left a cabinet session to say that he had advised Mr. Trudeau of the Quebec decision shortly after midnight. He had made his decision three or four days earlier but did not want to communicate it until he had talked to his Liberal caucus and the cabinet.

While affirming that "federalism continues to be the best means for Quebecers to attain their economic, social and cultural objectives," Mr. Bourassa said in his statement:

"In the present state of the record on constitutional reform, the Quebec government cannot, however, make a positive recommendation to the national assembly in regard to accepting the present constitutional charter."

Mr. Bourassa's statement called for continued attempts "to give Canada a truly modern constitution."

It said Canadian federalism "must be decentralized to reflect the diversity of the regions of our country."

"This federalism must thus guarantee to the provinces the liberty of action necessary so that they may assume fully their responsibilities in regard to their citizens; this federalism must also permit the Quebec government to ensure the cultural future of the majority of its population."

The statement said the decision to reject the charter is based on the necessity for "clear and precise constitutional texts, thus avoiding giving the judicial powers a responsibility which belongs above all

Common Market Accepts Britain

LUXEMBOURG (Reuter) — Champagne corks flew and ministers toasted a historic day for Europe at dawn today as they announced a breakthrough agreement on terms for British entry into the European Economic Community.

The agreement between Britain and the six-nation community of 250 million people swept away all major obstacles to British entry—except for a tough battle expected in the British Parliament this fall.

British chief negotiator Geoffrey Rippon toasted Foreign Minister Maurice Schuman of France with one of the glasses of champagne at a dawn news conference in the 22-storey European Centre—the building where the British entry talks opened June 30, 1970.

Weary but delighted ministers descended a marble staircase from their first-floor conference room to tell waiting reporters that they had settled the crucial issues of New Zealand's dairy exports and Britain's contribution to the community's budget, the two main stumbling blocks.

They also agreed to modify the community's fishing policy to protect the interests of coastal fishermen from Britain and other applicant states—Norway, Ireland and Denmark. This issue, too, had threatened to become a major political issue in Britain.

Officials and diplomats here said that France gave way on the question of New Zealand's dairy exports, enabling the six nations to raise their first offer of guaranteed quantities for New Zealand to 71 per cent from 66 per cent five years after Britain joins.

When this was done the way was clear for Britain to move from its formal offer of paying a first-year contribution of three per cent of the community budget—now at $2 billion a year —to accepting the community proposal of 8.64 per cent.

Rival Conferences On Nationalism Open

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government begins three days of study today of foreign intervention in the nation's economy and culture.

Billed as the Ontario Conference on Economic and Cultural Nationalism, it fulfills a throne speech promise made March 30 by the New Progressive Conservative premier, William Davis.

At least 350 experts from all levels of government, political parties, business and the academic world will mull over the pros and cons of foreign investment in Canada—particularly Ontario—and the influence of other nations on the general life style here.

The object of the conference as spelled out by Premier Davis is to hear a wide range of viewpoints and put into perspective the diverse problems inherent in foreign participation in Canada's economy and society.

The Ontario New Democratic Party, whose leader, Stephen Lewis, has branded conferences on economic nationalism "little festivals of protocol and little pre-election rituals of public concern," has organized a counter-conference, to be held three blocks away, with more openly nationalistic speakers.

Scientists Champion Development

New Nuclear Reactor Urged

MONTREAL (CP) — Senior scientists are taking to the public platforms to champion a major new step in the development of the Canadian nuclear power system.

Their efforts centre on a nuclear reactor with organic coolant which three years ago was judged to have come almost to a developmental dead end. Now it is being talked about as the probable next nuclear furnace for electric plants, as opposed to reactors cooled with water or heavy water.

Dr. O. M. Solandt, chairman of the Science Council of Canada, put it in the strongest language Tuesday by calling for studies to confirm special advantages of this type of reactor with the aim of a prototype by the fall of 1972.

Dr. Solandt and Dr. W. Bennett Lewis, senior vice-president of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., enumerated the benefits in arguing that further development of this type of reactor is a logical next step for Canada's billion-dollar nuclear power program.

Dr. Lorne Gray, president of AECL, told a news conference Monday the Crown agency is making a feasibility study of using the reactor for a 500-megawatt power station, with a target date for the study of September, 1972.

He argued that efficiencies in production of electricity with this reactor will be pure gravy for power authorities. Furthermore, he said, Canada has the only real program in the world involving this kind of reactor.

All were talking about the Whiteshell reactor at Pinawa, Man., a materials-testing and research tool operating for five years.

Dr. Solandt said the heat transport system has proved in five years to be truly outstanding because it picks up only slight amounts of radiation and thus makes it easier to inspect and maintain the power plant.

Even more exciting prospects arose from the ability of this reactor to use higher densities of uranium fuel—that is, less fuel to generate electricity.

And, he said, when fuelled with plentiful thorium instead of natural or enriched uranium, substantial savings in costly heavy water could be achieved plus still greater generating station efficiencies.

Plan Drops Baby Bonus Cutoffs

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the federal government has prepared a revised, countrywide family allowance system that would cost up $100 million more year in additional expenditures.

The newspaper says in a report from Ottawa the revised scheme extends the proposed Family Income Security Plan to include children and relates level of payment to the age of children.

It says the revised plan is still under study by the provinces.

Three categories—for infancy to age 11, age 12 to 15 and ages 16 and 17—are set out for levels of payments.

Older children would receive higher payments under the revised system, says the report.

The government's new plan, it says, rejected a proposal that family allowance be cut off to families with gross incomes of more than $10,000 a year.

The proposal was contained in the government's white paper on income security tabled in the Commons last November.

Instead, says the report, allowances would be scaled on income between a month per child and $15 a month.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Warm and generally sunny weather is expected over southern Ontario today and Thursday although some scattered thunderstorm activity is a possibility later today as a weak weather disturbance crosses the lower Great Lakes. Cooler air is gradually invading northern and central sections of the province and its arrival will result in partly cloudy skies and intermittent shower activity in that area for the next few days.

Recreational Facilities Surveyed

Concern for Canadian performance in the 1976 summer Olympics has led federal health minister John Munro to initiate a detailed nation-wide survey of recreational facilities.

This summer program, presented to provincial officials in March, will attempt to obtain a general picture of recreation across the contry, and determine the demands being sought by the people.

Barry Pyear is one of 44 university graduates or students hired by the federal government to conduct surveys in Ontario. Covering Hastings county, he is presently compiling reports on Belleville.

He said thegovernment is hoping to build large sport complexes across the country starting with more depressed areas and other locations "where they are needed".In Complexes such as this would contain swimming pools, bowling alleys, tennis courts, gymnasiums, playing fields: in fact where funds permit, every possible sports activity could be represented.

Mr. Pyear explained the compiled data would determine where facilities are being properly used. "Sometimes political demands might not be the demands of the people."

The teams are surveying municipalities with populations in excess of 2,000 which, in some instances leaves out towns that may have more organized recreational outlets than townships which are being visited.

A noticeable change in recreation and sports has taken place in recent years and the government data could establish a basis for reorganization. Lacrosse and soccer are two sports which have become organized on a large scale.

"Five years ago there wasn't such a thing," as organized minor lacrosse and soccer teams, the University of Guelph science and physical education graduate commented.

He said funds for sporting activities are granted by the federal government on an annual basis. Because the organizers must make application for the grants, a reorganization of priorities based on public preference could take place once the information is processed.

Field work for the surveyors began at the end of May and cover every province plus the Yukon and Northwest Territories. Hopefully by Sept. 1, all the reports will have been turned in to the central offices in Ottawa for data processing and a final report for each province is expected between January and April. In the government manual, the months of May and June, 1972 are listed as the possible publication date for this first recreation survey project.

"Each of us is assigned a population of approximately 70,000 and once finished we will move into Ottawa," Mr. Pyear said.

He explained a great deal of time and effort is saved with co-operation from recreation directors and their data often cuts down the time required in each municipality. "Recreation directors will tell me all I need to know or will put me in touch with schools, which the municipality uses for recreations."

Mr. Pyear expects to be finished with the Belleville survey by early July and from here he will branch out into other portions of the county. Questionnaires have already been completed for Frankford, Bancroft, Tweed and Sidney Township.

A native of Stirling, Mr. Pyear indicated his job has not been all that difficult. A sport enthusiast, he said "I think I've played in every arena in Hastings County."

County Agrees to Lend Aid To Block Rock Festival Bid

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Hastings county council will give 100 per cent support to any action taken by Madoc township to block the holding of the Rock Acres Peace Festival now re-scheduled to be held early in August.

Assurance of the full support, including possible financial costs, was given this morning at the June session of council when members voted that rock festivals cause to be a county problem.

Earlier Madoc township had been granted an interim injunction blocking the rock festival when it was scheduled for early July.

Since then the Quinlin family have announced they were re-scheduling the event for early August.

At this morning's county council session Madoc township Reeve Cecil Woods said his municipality had "guts about as far as it could (in seeking to block the festival) without the full support of the county.

"We have been fighting this thing for the county, for the province and possibly all of Canada," he said.

Most councillors agreed that any action to block rock festivals should be a county responsibility, but Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen felt that people were terribly over-reacting.

She asked that before council gives full support to Madoc township it should get legal opinion regarding the county's legal responsibility.

At the same time she asked why there was no "hue and cry" about the planned antique air show at Mountain View which also was scheduled as a three-day event.

This was answered by Warden Kenneth Smith who said Mountain View had more facilities for handling large crowds. Bancroft Reeve Jack M. Brown said there was no parallel, pointing out that although the air show was a three - day event people would not be camping there overnight.

Earlier in his session opening address, Warden Smith called for continued support of county council in Madoc township's fight to block the rock festival.

"It could happen to any municipality and we couldn't afford to deal with the problem," he said.

Madoc Reeve Woods said his township had had about enough of the fight and indicated no further action would be taken to block the festival without full county support.

Calcutta Flight For 707

TRENTON—A Canadian Forces Boeing 707 departed from New York's John F. Kennedy airport today carrying 56,000 pounds of vinyl sheet roofing to provide housing for the Calcutta area.

The United Nation's high commission for refugees is providing the materials as part of its assistance to East Pakistani refugees who have fled to India.

Canada has provided $2 million for relief in the area, of which $300,000 was designated to this high commission.

The 707 from Trenton's 437 Squadron is also using Canadian Force aircraft to participate in the assistance program. Services of the jet transport has been donated by the Canadian government.

Two Hercules transports bearing ambulances from the governments of Ontario and Canadian Red Cross air packages flew to Calcutta last week.

Do-It-Yourself Fruit Stand

Demand for strawberries started the first of the week when strawberries came on the market as one of the first summer fruits available to housewives. Housewives from urban centres rushed to the country to take advantage of pick yourself crops offered at lower prices. The scene here is at Bonter's Bayview Orchards Farm in Amelissburg last evening.

Evaporator Condenser Approved

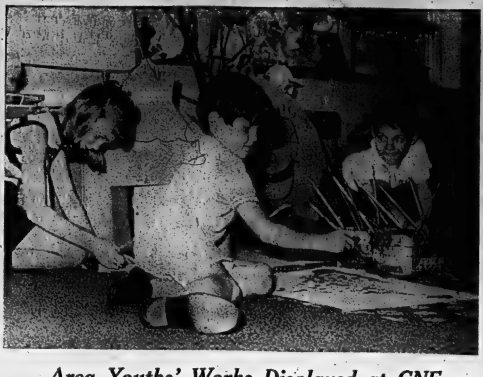
You just can't keep up with the creeping inflation!

That's a truism of life which most people are reminded every day. And it's the same story for municipalities.



Less than three months ago city council approved an amount of $7,000 for the purchase of a new evaporator condensor for the Belleville area.

Then tenders were called but the lowest bid came in at $9,670 or more than 25 per cent above the estimate. In addition to this there will be a further $980 for installation for a total of $10,430.

This week city council approved the tender figure and agreed that the work be proceeded with.

But over the long haul the installation will actually save money.

Council was told that the new machinery will result in an annual saving of $1,500 in the area water bill.

Area Youths' Works Displayed at CNE

Christopher Scully (foreground) and Glen Green, both Grade one students of St. Joseph's School, were awarded second prize in the annual art competition sponsored by the Canadian National Exhibition. Their category was creative design. Audrey McSherry, a Grade three student, placed second in the handwriting competition. A number of honorable mentions were included in the awards for St. Joseph's for April Tracey, Peter Boreiaid, Mary Hanlon, Lori Akey and Cathy Forgie. All works will be on display in the Better Living Centre this summer.

Provincial Grant Likely For Program For Elderly

The senior citizens' program sponsored by Belleville's recreation and arena committee could be eligible for up to $15,000 in provincial grants available under the Elderly Persons Centres Act.

This was made known through a telegram last week to committee chairman Alderman Donald Soutter from the office of Hon. Thomas Wells, minister of social family services.

The telegram said the grant to Belleville was likely provided the committee's senior citizens' program was satisfactory. A survey of the city's senior citizens program is currently under way by the department.

If the program is satisfactory a by-law by city council would be necessary before the grant could be secured.

Ald. Soutter said grant eligibility is based on a 10-point requirement, all of which either is now in effect or could be put into operation.

Among the requirements are a senior citizens' building and a staff member in charge of programs for the elderly.

This week is senior citizens' week and a full program has been laid on for the elderly living in the city.

The week's program for club members has already seen a bus trip to Hamilton on Monday, and a pot-luck supper.

Open events include a picnic today at the Moira River Conservation Authority O'Hara Mill, a bingo Thursday at Ben Bleecker Auditorium (Lions Club), visiting day at county ahf other senior citizens' homes on Friday, a fashion show Saturday at Ben Bleecker and a band concert at Zwick's Island Sunday, featuring the Eastern Ontario Orchestra with S. Chona conducting.

Adult Education Agencies Seek Simplified Format

Every one is getting into the adult education act.

So many agencies are offering leisure and credit courses that Hastings county board of education is trying to sort out the tangle and come up with a simplified program of adult education.

Agencies now offering continuing education for adults are the board of education, (through its high school night courses), Loyalist College, the Belleville Family Y, and various municipal recreation committees in the county, and the board of education, again (through its community use of elementary schools).

The result has been overlapping of educational offerings, with as many as three or four agencies offering the same courses at various levels and depths and with different fees, all at the same time.

An exploratory meeting held by a further meeting is urged to learn the feelings of the different county agencies on a setting up of educational judications, common advertising, common listing of courses offered at different places in the county and joint registration every fall.

A further meeting to report back on community opinion will be held Thursday morning at the board office in Belleville.

Cost of adult education courses offered in the county varies from nothing in community school programs at Quinte Secondary School, Trenton and Belleville and at schools in Madoc and Bancroft, to $26 to $30 at Loyalist.

The board of education charges $10 for winter night school courses.

In Hospital After Crash

Mrs. Dawynne DeRoche, 26 of 50½ Octavia Street, Belleville is in Trenton Memorial Hospital suffering from injuries sustained in an early morning accident on Highway 2, east of the Maxfield Trailer Court.

The incident is believed by police to have occurred when her small foreign car had a tire blowout.

Mrs. DeRoche suffered a fractured arm and multiple bruises when the car struck a mailbox and a department of highways sign.

Idea being debated is the take-over by Loyalist of all leisure and interest courses. Courses that count for secondary school diplomas have to be conducted, by law, by boards of education.

However, some people feel the public might balk at having to pay Loyalist $26 next year for a course, in art or sewing for example, that was given at the high schools last year for $10.

One of the reasons for the higher rates at Loyalist, say board spokesmen, is the salary paid night school instructors.

A Loyalist instructor is paid $13 an hour. A qualified high school teacher paid $10 an hour by the board of education for night school instruction and all part time teachers are paid $8 an hour. Because of the lower cost of instruction, the board of education can offer adult education courses more cheaply than Loyalist College, a board spokesman said.

Northumberland Municipalities Propose Area Planning Board

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

COLBORNE (Staff) — The Quinte Area Planning Board will have a new westerly neighbor, if the minister of municipal affairs approves a scheme now formulated by five Northumberland County municipalities.

By the proposal, the village of Colborne, surrounding Cramahe Township, Haldimand Township to the west and Alnwick and Percy Townships to the north will form a new regional planning area.

Interim chairman for the planning district, Colborne Reeve. Delbert McLaughlin, says the group "is quite sure it will get the necessary approval."

He said the municipalities have been slow with the planning and this has had its disadvantages, particularly for the north.

Whitebrook Estates, a large-scale land development sponsored by Toronto interests, has opened on several thousand building lots in Percy and Alnwick Townships before the municipalities had full planning procedures and operation.

Busloads of Torontonians are being brought in to view the pastoral homesites on weekends and the municipalities face construction of a massive residential district without being able to control it.

In Whitebrook, according to Mr. McLaughlin, there are no control over where houses are to be built on this and there are potential problems with hydro, roads and water services.

He says developers cannot be blamed for any difficulties that may arise because the communities were not prepared for such development and they should have been.

The reeve doubts that the new planning area will be able to impose much control on Whitebrook but is confident a new regional plan will enable the five municipalities "to start controlling their future and prevent further development problems."

The united counties of Northumberland and Durham are now establishing planning controls for their entire administrative area in consultation with the Toronto firm, Municipal Planning Consultants.

Colborne and its surrounding townships will continue to support county-wide planning, while financing the new planning unit too. Respective functions of each have not been defined.

It is expected the new five municipality unit will be administered by the same philosophy, have standardized zoning and be dealt with as a whole.

One of the big surprises of the proposed planning area is that it fuses the destiny of Alnwick and Percy Townships that front the Trent River with three Lake Ontario municipalities.

Mr. McLaughlin indicated that the future of the two northern townships had always been more allied with their neighbors in the town of Campbellford, Hastings Village and Seymour Township.

However, D. C. Lawson of Warkworth, Reeve of Percy Township, has emphasized "the interests of Percy are more towards the south (Colborne, Haldimand, and Cramahe) than the east (Campbellford, Seymour)."

The neighboring village of Brighton, Brighton Township and Murray Township have joined the Quinte Planning Area, while municipalities on the western frinae of the United Counties have merged their futures with the Oshawa Area.

The five municipalities agree that Campbellford, Hastings and Seymour Township mayjoin the new area if they wish. Their participation would boost the population of the new planning region from just under 10,000 to over 18,500.

The Pentagon Papers

Other than to the military man or student of war there is nothing more tiresome—than the re - hashing of old battles and strategies. The same premise, we contend, applies to the secret Pentagon papers run by The New York Times, The Washington Post — and now, The Boston Globe.

For the United States of course, and for the former Johnson administration in particular, their release is an acute embarrassment. Attempts are being made through court injunctions to curb their publication, but the damage has already been done.

The papers cast still further doubt on the credibility of the entire U.S. adventure in Southeast Asia, on its motives for becoming involved in the first place and on its subsequent conduct of the war. Even those who see it as a war of containment against further Communist aggression in Southeast Asia — and there is no question that Communist empire building is at work here — must long since have had doubts about the U.S. role.

Any possibility of a military victory by either side has also been ruled out and the policy of the Nixon administration has been the gradual withdrawal of U.S. forces, while handing over more of the conduct of the war to the South Vietnamese.

We well remember the early beginnings of this conflict, soon after the defeat of the French colonial forces in what was then French Indo - China. There had already been casualties among the handful of U.S. military advisors in Vietnam (as far back as 1957) when it was decided, in May 1960, at South Vietnam's request, to increase the number of advisors to 685. In October of that year the Eisenhower administration pledged assistance to South Vietnam and in April the following year the Kennedy administration signed a treaty of amity and economic relations. By December 1962 U.S. forces in the country stood at 4000. The rest is history, with some of its more secretive aspects being revealed only now. By August 1968 nearly 200,000 Americans had been killed or wounded in the conflict.

At this stage then, the Pentagon papers which have caused such a furore are only academic. We might question also whether they are any more credible than what the administration was feeding the public years ago! Inevitably, they must reflect the bias of their writers, with Newsweek magazine for one quoting associates of ex - President Johnson as saying he sees in them "the ghostly hand of Robert Kennedy," the late Attorney - General being one of the so-called "doves" opposing the war. Newsweek also says the then defence secretary, Robert McNamara, who ordered the secret Vietnam war study, is considered by Johnson as "a Kennedy man."

"Dishonest . . . distorted . . . biased" are other descriptives of the study attributed to Johnson, and the circumstances of its leak "clone treason." True or false, we are witnessing another sorry episode in the unhappy period of American history, and one which will rankle with the U.S. public for years to come.

Petty Stealing

Thievery is a deplorable trait in those who are prone to it, and petty thievery as much-to the big time armed robbery variety. The provincial parks and beaches are prey to this kind of thing and anyone failing to keep his car locked is asking for trouble.

Even the bleeding heart in the game for the light - fingered, as a Belleville couple discovered at The Outlet Sunday. They had been fortunate enough earlier to recover from the park office a thick chair left propped against their car while they dined away the previous week. Then, returning from a short walk along the beach, only a short distance from where they had been sitting, they found two bathing towels missing from a beach table stolen almost from under their noses!

It would have been less exasperating if only one of the wraps had not been hand-made, in use for many years, brought here from half-way around the world, and useful for sitting on, as well as towelling.

At the beach you not only have to keep your car locked, but your property on the beach under view all the time too.

Pakistani Disaster Causing Increasing Concern Abroad

By STEPHEN SCOTT
UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Once again the world is faced with problems created by the artificial division of a people.

Not long ago the world was caught up with the plight of the Biafrans, people who wanted independence from the multitude of others who made up the federation of Nigeria.

Today we have the question of East Pakistanis...the repression of the Bengali revolt by the Pakistani central government, the horror of refugees descending on India, choking and bitter widening of Indian-Pakistani enmity.

The Nigerian conflict produced bitter divisions in the world before the Nigerian central government got the upper hand. Wounds created there are not yet healed.

There is no telling how long or how serious the Pakistan-India situation will become.

One thing appears certain. Whereas Africans fighting or dealing with the Nigerian situation themselves, the problems of the Indian subcontinent, in one way or another, are going to cross before the whole world.

Columnist Joseph Kraft, noted foreign affairs columnist for the New York Times, remarked Tuesday that "the world's heart is already almost paralysed by the multiple death that has stricken Bengal. The world's mind may soon be even more hopelessly bewildered by the problems spewed up by this holocaust."

The direct consequence of the mess created by the East Pakistan civil war would be a move to create another subdivision of the subcontinent.

East Pakistan is a religious creation. Basically, Moslem Bengalis live in that area while Hindu Bengalis live on India's side of the border.

The events of the last months have shown that those who divided the subcontinent in 1947 were wrong in the assumption that a people can be divided by religion alone.

India is seriously worried about the 5,000,000 refugees now on her soil. She doesn't want them and fears trouble if they stay. But she can't kick them out.

Among other things, she must worry that the whole Bengali independence movement will fall into the hands of the far left, which would make trouble on both sides of the border.

Some Americans are reported to fear that, to allay trouble in her state of West Bengal, she may feel forced to intervene in East Pakistan.

Joseph Sisco, U.S. under-secretary of state for Near East affairs, put the fears into words this week when he said: "The situation in East Pakistan and eastern India could escalate dangerously, we have counselled restraint on both sides."

The Americans also are reported to have told Pakistan that they believe the only real way the situation in the Eastern region can return to normal and permit the return of refugees is the granting by the central government of considerable local autonomy to the East, something it has refused to do.

The fact that the U.S. has intervened in this way in what patently is the internal affairs of another country indicates the amount of world involvement that may be in store for the area.

Indian Foreign Minister Swaran Singh, now on a world tour, is virtually calling for such intervention.

The Indians also are saying that foreign aid for Pakistan must be suspended in view of the existing situation.

No doubt in the future governments will be challenged to take sides in this dispute between two countries and it will be difficult to remain neutral.

The Nigerian revolt was kept out of the United Nations but India and Pakistan have involved the world body in their disputes in the past.

There is no indication that it will no happen again when the General Assembly meets in the fall.

Lakes Pollution Shows Need For Two-nation Action

Quebec Le Soleil: The agreement between Canada and the United States on pollution in the Great Lakes was described by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp as one of the most significant ever concluded between our two countries.

It testifies to a North American step aimed at solving the new problem of pollution which often cannot be resolved by a single state. It can be predicted that in the coming years there will be an extension of this type of agreement to the point where international groups such as the United Nations will be called to rule on the subject.

The Great Lakes . . . are one of the best examples of the need for joint action where a single nation is too limited in relation to the magnitude of the required solution.

The five Great Lakes touch eight American states and one Canadian province. Around their shores there is a population of about 18 million persons. It is also one of the most active industrial areas in the world. The states touching the Great Lakes produce about 40 per cent of the world's annual steel production. . . .

If the battle against pollution in the Great Lakes requires close collaboration between two sovereign countries, it goes without saying that within Canada the fight demands the most active association between the two levels of government.

It is certainly not the first time that Canada and the United States have collaborated on a common endeavor. These same Great Lakes and the Saint Lawrence River, which, with the Lawrence River, were the site of an investment of $460 million necessary for the canalization of the river flowing from the Great Lakes. The fact that the agreement just concluded . . . foreshadows a certain bypassing of strict national sovereignty did not prevent it from being carried out.

Another sector of human activity the quality of the environment, has created interdependency between nations which one day will certainly result in corresponding international institutions. That is a significant aspect of the $1.4 billion agreement reached in Washington.

The information requested by the Quinte District Labor Council was NOT sought to become a member of the Trenton Memorial Hospital Board of Directors or that the Minister of Health force the hospital to give the council a seat.

The facts wanted to know and still wishes to know:

(1) Why does a taxpayer have to pay for the right to accept his responsibility?

A person paying various taxes should not be forced as well to "donate" additional monies to become a member of the Hospital Corporation.

(2) What right does Councillor Parker or anyone else have to believe the hospital to be private?

We cannot see how the Trenton Memorial Hospital is a private Corporation when it is wholly financed by public monies.

(3) Why does the Board of Directors have complete control of who is a member of the Hospital Corporation?

Even if you "donate" a sum to become a member, the bylaws give the Board of Directors the authority to refuse that membership.

(4) Why are the Board of Directors the only persons allowed on the Standing Committees?

The bylaws allow only members of the Board of Directors to be members of the standing committees. It appears that only 12 people have any say on the operation of the hospital.

These are only four questions that not only this Council but the public should and must know the answers to.

The suggestions made by Councillors Aziz and Greer certainly are fair.

Questions, rumors and objections pertaining to the Trenton Memorial Hospital are of public concern and the public has a right to the answers.

ROBERT ANDRUS, president,
Quinte District Labor Council.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 23, 1951

In keeping with similar activities all over the Dominion and various parts of the world, the Belleville Amateur Radio Club is holding a 24-hour "field day" one mile west of Brighton. The "field day" is a tryout for every phase of radio equipment which will be used in case of an emergency and in connection with civil defence. About 40 members of the club will participate.

C. B. Treverton has returned home after spending two months in England, Scotland and France.

Dr. Lily Mathieson has returned from the annual Canadian Medical Convention held this year in Montreal.

30 YEARS AGO

June 23, 1941

Members of the three local Masonic Lodges held their annual St. John's Day church parade on Sunday to the Tabernacle Church with upwards of 200 attending.

Five hundred strong, the 2nd Battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will leave for summer military camp at Camp Sagard Park in Ottawa some time over the weekend. A detachment of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) Battalion of Belleville is also scheduled to leave for the same place for a summer military training period.

40 YEARS AGO

Michael Manley and daughter Mrs. E. S. Hayes and family, will spend the weekend in the city.

Mrs. Mary Jane Smith of Coleman Street will motor to Peterborough to spend the weekend with her sister.

Jack O'Brien of Regina will spend the weekend here with friends.

Mrs. George Skinner of Gosville, N.H., is visiting her brother, Charles W. Cook of West Bridge Street.

50 YEARS AGO

June 23, 1921

Mark Dulmage of Guelph, an old Belleville boy, now an official of the CABA was in town today on his way to Picton to present a trophy.

The weekly payroll at the Tyer Rubber Co. plant here now exceeds $2,000. The plant is running full capacity; orders are on hand for 12,000 tires and 30,000 tubes.

In a baseball match at Madoc the team of that village defeated St. Michael's team of this city 8-6.

Education Costs

Material Extravagance Amid Student Backwardness

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The "blitier pill" offered Trenton taxpayers by way of a 16.982 mill rate increase in the residential rate for public school supporters, is typical of the type of phoyle being offered municipalities to pay for the horrendous increase in the cost of education.

"Not long ago Alderman Keegan pointed out that a halt must be called to the escalation of education costs before municipalities were forced into bankruptcy. The Trenton situation is a prime example of a small town struggling to keep from being crushed in the avalanche of mounting educational taxes.

Adding his voice to the chorus Alderman Don Scanlon of a very much to the point when he pointed out to school principals in a recent address that there has to be a much more reasoned and needful area to spend $500,000 in the educational field than on impressive administrative buildings.

Not very much of the public concern seems to have rubbed off on the hierarchy of the educational empires of the province. Apart from committees taking "their hard looks" at the situation little of any consequence is happening to stop the rot. Maybe we should adopt the attitude that the farmers took in relation to educational costs.

Recently I visited two educational institutions, one a university and the other a community college. It was easy to see where so much of the money goes. Piped music playing throughout the building, thick wall-to-wall carpets on the stairways, in the classrooms, televised announcements from sets in cafeterias and other areas, with the general opulence completely out of context with the current state of inflation that afflicts our economy.

The manna for shilling federal and provincial grants that obsesses boards falls to take into consideration that these funds are also provided from the pocket of the taxpayer. When every municipality adopt the same hands out stance the demands on the economy can readily be realized.

So, I would, with respect, suggest to our Hastings County School Board, that instead of such dedication in spending our educational dollars on non-essentials, that they consider conducting an experiment similar to the one conducted by a perceptive board in the Toronto area.

So, unannounced into some of the classrooms of our county school system and see how many of our students can answer simple questions like "How many inches in a yard ? How many many pints in a gallon?", "How many feet in a mile? or even "How many provinces in Canada?" The results may well indicate that there is a pressing need to spend $500,000 in areas far removed from administrative buildings.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY

EDITORS NOTE: The Hastings Board of Education recently decided not to go ahead with the administrative building project, at least for the time being, because a government grant would not be forthcoming.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 23, 1971 . . .

The Insurrection by Paris workers began 123 years ago today in 1848—after parliament overthrew King Louis Philippe of Orleans and attempted to suppress workers' movements. The rebellion was crushed in four days after fierce street fighting by Gen. Cavaignac, temporary dictator, followed by years of severe repression and control of political clubs, until Louis Napoleon became president in December.

1919 — Queen Elizabeth presented the colors to the Royal 22nd Regiment at Quebec City.

1939 — Tommy Kraus Fuchs was released after serving two-thirds of a 14-year term for giving stem secrets to Russia.

1951 — Soviet UN delegate Jakob Malik proposed Korea ceasefire talks.

1967 — Taft - Hartley Act was passed by Congress over Truman's veto.

1944 — A tornado killed 150 in Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland.

1940 — The RCMP vessel St. Roche began a west-east voyage of the Northwest Passage.

1936 — The Canadian government repealed Section 98 of the Criminal Code.

1875 — Mount Logan, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, was discovered by members of the Canadian Alpine Club.

Petty Stealing

Thievery is a deplorable trait in those who are prone to it, and petty thievery as much-as the big time armed robbery variety. The provincial parks and beaches are prey to this kind of thing and anyone failing to keep his car locked is asking for trouble.

Even the bleeding heart in the game for the light - fingered, as a Belleville couple discovered at The Outlet Sunday. They had been fortunate enough earlier to recover from the park office a thick chair left propped against their car while they dined away the previous week. Then, returning from a short walk along the beach, only a short distance from where they had been sitting, they found two bathing towels missing from a beach table stolen almost from under their noses!

It would have been less exasperating if only one of the wraps had not been hand-made, in use for many years, brought here from half-way around the world, and useful for sitting on, as well as towelling.

At the beach you not only have to keep your car locked, but your property on the beach under view all the time too.

Lifejackets Are Vital

Ontario Safety League

A lifejacket is the most important item of personal safety equipment aboard a boat. It is not only required by law but statistics prove that nearly always the survivors of a boating accident were wearing lifejackets - the victims neglected this precaution.

Life jackets must have the Department of Transport approved label to be legal for use in boats. Approved jackets are also superior in performance and material.

Lifejackets should be tested every year to make sure that the buoyant foam material is still not deteriorated and the strength of the covering and straps are sufficient to bear the strain of a person jumped into the water with the lifejacket strapped on.

Children are the most difficult of all to properly fit with a lifejacket. There are two sizes for children, up to 45 pounds and from 45 to 90 pounds.

It is important that the child has jacket with a lifejacket that corresponds to his weight. Undersized and oversized jackets are both dangerous. All jackets should be tested to see that they perform properly especially for children. Put the jacket on and strap it firmly to the body and the face down in the water. If the jacket is designed properly it will automatically turn the head the face out of the water.

Justin Wonnacott Shifts 400 Pounds

Coolest Business in City Operated by Peter McNiven

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Peter McNevin operates one of the coolest businesses in Belleville.

In fact, while everyone else is sweltering in 90-degree heat, he and summer helper Justin Wonnacott work in winter conditions with an average temperature at the Glen Roy Pure Ice plant of between 20 and 50 degrees, depending on whether they are standing in the storage rooms or in the ice-making section.

From 18 to 20 tons of ice are produced daily at the Pinnacle Street plant, operated by the McNevin family for the past 16 or 17 years.

Because ice is formed by freezing water, a special process is put into operation every day. Large holding tanks in the floor of the plant hold the special brine-filled drums containing 400 pounds of water in each container.

As the boilers force ammonia through pipes in the holding tanks, much like the operation of a large refrigerator, the water cools and the 400 pound blocks are formed.

From the floor, four containers are hoisted to a dip-tank where warmer water melts the outer surface of the tanks, allowing the blocks to float to the surface. Raised from the dip, the 1,600-pound weight is manoeuvered onto a cradle and the blocks are dumped down a chute towards the saws.

Scored into easier-to-handle 30 pound blocks, the ice is then stored in the 20-degree freezer.

Although only the large blocks, available for 50 cents each, are manufactured at the Glen Roy plant, smaller cubes are brought in from Toronto, Mr. McNevin estimates up to 200,000 pounds of cubes are sold annually.

Campers, cottagers and farms in the Quinte area make use of the blocks and cubes providing the workers at Belleville's only ice-making plant with a year - round job, and an especially cool one in the summer.

Officials Visit High Rise Site

City officials paid a visit to the site of Belleville's first high rise apartment this morning.

With the visitors was the resident manager of Victoria and Grey Trust providing the large amount of mortgage money for the big undertaking.

In company with high rise owners and builders Stan Klemencic and Franck Zonet, V and G manager Jack Mosley noted that the loan of $1,414,000 to them was the largest ever made by the Trust company's local branch. "It's an example of company policy to loan in a community where money is received from depositors. I'm really happy to take part in the transaction," Mr. Mosley reported.

Victoria and Grey Trust first opened an office in Belleville November 1, 1949. The company moved into its new premises March 1, 1961.

Shock Voiced by Some

together on it again for some time.

He had felt reservations about whether Quebec would accept the charter.

"Naturally, we are disappointed. But these are decisions each province has to make for itself."

Mr. Strom had announced Tuesday the Alberta government was prepared to accept the charter and recommend it to the provincial legislature at a fall session. Ontario had previously announced acceptance and British Columbia also announced its approval Tuesday.

A spokesman said Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia would make a statement today.

Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said in London he "regrets the decision by Mr. Bourassa," but is aware of opposition within Quebec to ratification of the charter.

However, Mr. Nixon suggested that the Quebec premier might introduce the charter to the national assembly to allow all provincial representatives to express their views.

Stephen Lewis, Ontario's New Democratic Party leader, said in a telephone interview from Thunder Bay, it is "back to square one, back to the British North America Act."

"It isn't that one asks for special status," he said. "It is rather that there had to be greater flexibility in order to give Mr. Bourassa room to give him the opportunity to cope with opposition in his own cabinet and the separatists nipping at his heels."

He said it was no use giving Quebec manpower allowances, youth allowances and family allowances without federal money or fiscal equivalents.

"Quebec really came out with nothing," he said. "Bourassa had no alternative and surely the limited demands for financing those social policy areas might have been granted and the work of the premiers probably saved."

Uncertainty Over Income Security Bar

to the political power, that is to be elected representatives of the people.

"Thus, the texts bearing on income security allow an uncertainty to remain which goes badly with the inherent objectives of constitutional revision.

"If this uncertainty were eliminated, our conclusion might be different."

In calling for a decentralized federalism in which Quebec could ensure its French cultural future, Mr. Bourassa said:

"Constitutional revision is precisely the way which should give us this type of federalism.

"The work of the last three years has allowed Canadians to progress in this way.

"The recent conference of the first ministers of Canada has constituted a step forward in this direction: important progress was achieved in regard to the mechanism for patriating and for amending the constitution, in regard to political and linguistic rights, the status of the Supreme Court, etc."

While Quebec would notify the secretary of the constitutional conference that it cannot accept the charter, Mr. Bourassa said:

"This decision of the Quebec government applies to the capacity for innovation and to the determination of all Canadians and urges them to pursue the task they have undertaken to give Canada a truly modern constitution."

Opposition to the constitutional charter has been raised in newspaper editorials and by nationalist bodies.

A "common front" opposing the charter and grouping the nationalist Federation of St. Jean Baptiste Societies, two powerful trade union federations and the Quebec wing of the NDP, was announced Monday.

It included the 65,000-member Quebec Teachers Corporation federation of National Trade Unions.

The CLC-affiliated Quebec Federation of Labor announced Tuesday it opposed the 11-day deadline for governments to announce whether they would accept or reject the charter.

The deadline of June 28 was referred to as an "ultimatum."

Public criticism of the constitutional charter centred mainly on four elements:

—The charter did not meet Quebec's demands for priority legislative powers in the fields of health, welfare and income security;

—It would have locked Quebec into a constitution that Quebec could only have changed with the consent of the federal Parliament, Ontario and at least four other provinces;

—It would have required a large measure of bilingualism in Quebec while, its critics said, leaving loopholes which would permit Anglophone provinces with French-speaking minorities to remain unilingual;

—It would have left all Supreme Court appointments to federal initiative and could have perpetuated the present system whereby justices trained outside Quebec in common law sometimes sit as judges of last resort in disputes involving Quebec's civil law.

The Federation of St. Jean Baptiste Societies took out full-page advertisements in Quebec newspapers Tuesday urging Quebecers to send telegrams to Premier Bourassa telling him to reject the charter.

Fears about possibly violent demonstrations if the charter was accepted harked back to demonstrations which followed introduction two years ago of a bill in the national assembly to guarantee parents a choice of English or French as the language of instruction for their school children.

Thousands of young persons marched in the streets in those demonstrations.

There were rumors that Claude Castonguay, social affairs minister, and Jean-Paul L'Allier, public service and communications minister, might resign if the charter was accepted.

Sources within the Liberal caucus said neither Mr. Bourassa nor Mr. Castonguay took a stand for or against the charter in the caucus session.

They also said the caucus itself seemed divided in its opinions about the charter.

Ann Landers

Buying Another TV Seems Best Solution

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me what should be done about a man who has the following TV habits:

He looks at the paper and decides what he will watch for the evening. He never consults anyone as to what they might want to see. After he has made his choice, he settles back and within ten minutes he is sound asleep. If anyone tries to change the channel, he wakes up immediately and yells, "Leave it alone." In five minutes he is asleep again.

Frequently the show he selects ends and another show comes on while he is snoring his head off. If he wakes up during the new show and sees that we are enjoying it, he changes the channel. In ten minutes he is asleep again.

ANN LANDERS

Any advice, Ann? The whole family will be looking for your answer. — TURNED OFF.

* * *

DEAR TURNED: A guy like that can give a family ulcers. A second TV is cheaper. I suggest you buy one.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing this letter for every son or daughter who has not spoken to his or her parents for a while. I don't mean because they have been negligent about visiting or calling. I mean because they have had some kind of disagreement or fight and are not on speaking terms.

My older brother has not spoken to Mom or Dad for nearly five years. Mom is 77, Dad is 79. How much longer they will live is anybody's guess. It just kills me to see Mom waiting for a bus less than a block from my brother's house. I know her heart must ache when she walks by and knows she is not welcome.

I should tell you that the trouble between my brother and the folks is mostly because of my brother's wife. She is a strong person and what she says goes. It's hard to live with a woman like that and I'm certain my brother's life isn't easy, but I think a son should not allow such a thing to happen. Please tell me what you think, Ann. I respect your advice because you try to be fair to both sides. — SYRACUSE, N.Y.

* * *

DEAR SY: I don't care what happened between your brother's wife and his parents. A son should not cut his age-mindmother and father out of his life. If there is trouble between a wife and her in-laws she need not visit them, but your brother should insist that his parents be welcome in his home —and he should go to see them periodically without her.

Old folks are sometimes boring, demanding, nosey, bossy and fussing. If such is the case, their children can see them infrequently. But to shut them out completely is unspeakably cruel.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son is marrying a fine girl who comes from a family that has nothing. The girl's mother called yesterday and read me to-send a list of our relatives "Only close," she said, "No cousins." I asked about friends. She said she is sorry . . . they must stay within a limited budget. "No friends," I asked if we could pay for the extra guests ourselves. She said, "No. We will have only what we can afford."

Ann, we are very disappointed. What should we do? — YONKERS.

* * *

DEAR YONKERS: Abide by her wishes and be gracious. Later you can give a reception or dinner and invite anyone you please.

High School Student Loses Parents' Trust

By DORIS CLARE

Dear Doris: I'm a high school student, and about three weeks ago my vice-principal phoned home to tell my parents that I had skipped classes.

He phoned in the afternoon and that night I didn't go home. I stayed away for four days and finally I was forced to go home. Since then my parents don't trust me any more; every little thing I do wrong they get after me.

I just can't take it any longer, and I want to leave home for good. Some of my friends also agree with me. This is driving me — Up The Wall

Dear Up The Wall: Face the music. If your parents did not care about you they would let you do as you please. Tell them what you did and why you did it. Ask them to give you another chance and to please get off your back.

Then proceed to earn their trust by doing what you say you'll do. You can't have any fun in this world without taking responsibility for yourself. This is your chance to grow up a "bit."

* * *

Dear Doris: Would anyone have the recitation "Popping Corn"? It was of a girl talking to her boy friend. All I can remember of it was "The clock struck nine, the clock struck 10 and still the corn kept popping; it struck 11 and then struck 12 and still no signs of stopping".

The last two lines were: "I'm tired of all this popping corn, Why don't you pop the question?"

It was a long time before I realized why everybody laughed when I couldn't see any joke in it. — C.S.B.

Dear C.S.B.: Sounds like fun. And now I have your second letter asking for another humorous poem entitled "How I Have To Call Him 'Father'". Can our readers help?

* * *

Chairman: Astrology is all the rage. Why not use the 12 signs of the zodiac as your theme for the dance? Make or buy large posters of the zodiac signs. Suspend fiery suns, glittering stars, half moons, new moons, full moons from the ceiling.

Let your decorating committee use their imaginations and plenty of colour; and use your local library for books on astrology.

* * *

Model: Modelling is exciting but it takes stamina. A course at a school of modelling could help you acquire poise. You may have to live away from home for a while, but if you want to do something badly enough there is a way.

Overnight successes are few and far between; and most of the girls who model work mighty hard for their money.

* * *

If something is troubling you, there's help to be had. Write to Doris for another slant on your difficulty.

Oranges Add Flavor

Raise those pork chops to gourmet class by giving them the orange treatment. Mary Moore gives this highly rated recipe in detail. It is easy to make for a guest dinner and is served simply on fluffy boiled rice accompanied by a bright green vegetable.

Pork Is Economical Meat

By MARY MOORE

Pork continues to be a strong front runner in the race to beat the high price of meat.

To help our tenacious cooks and hostesses to raise it to gourmet status I am giving you a recipe for Pork Chops a l'Orange based on the popular Duck a l'Orange that you find on fine restaurant menus.

PORK CHOPS a l'ORANGE
(Serves 4)

NOTE: I appealed to my butcher to slice a centre loin pork roast at 60 cents per pound into the four thick chops I needed. There were some leftover but I used them for another meal.

Four 1" thick loin pork chops
½ tsp. salt
Sprinkling of pepper
Flour (see below)
½ tsp. nutmeg
2 tbsps. light brown sugar
1 tsp. freshly grated orange rind
½ cup water
1 cup orange juice
2 oranges peeled, sliced and cut into 1" pieces
Turn excess fat from chops and render it out in hot frying pan. Sprinkle the chops with the salt and sparingly with pepper on both sides. Dredge them sparingly with flour using not more than 1½ to 2 tbsps. Sear the chops on both sides in hot pan until golden brown. Transfer to shallow baking dish. In a bowl mix together the nutmeg, brown sugar and grated orange rind then stir in water and orange juice until blended. Pour over chops in dish. Cover with lid or foil and bake 1 hr. at 300 deg. Fahr. or until chops are tender. Two or three minutes before serving time slice two pared oranges ¼" thick and cut slices into quarters. Arrange over chops, cover and return to oven to heat fresh oranges through.

Serve on rice prepared by cooking together in covered heavy pot 2-3 cup raw long grain rice with 1½ cups boiling water and 2-3 tsp. salt 25 minutes. Serve with a bright green vegetable such as peas, spinach or broccoli.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menus

Curried Kidney and Onions on Buttered Noodles; Broccoli; Celery and Apple Salad; Banana Layer Cake; Tea.

University Students Provide Own Employment

SASKATOON (CP) — Two young university students are providing their own summer employment program this year and at the same time providing Saskatoon residents with a summer evening course in interior decorating.

Wendy Black and Sylvia Timie, fourth - year students in interior design at the University of Manitoba in architecture, came home for the summer and came up with the idea when they couldn't find jobs.

They approached John Climer at the Mendel Art Gallery and their 12 session program was approved as part of the gallery's summer evening series.

Classes will cover such basic decorating considerations as furniture arrangements, color schemes, materials and treatment for floors, walls and windows and decorative accessories, Miss Black said.

The girls believe the course will help those who haven't much money to spend on permanent furnishings — newlyweds, students, working girls and homemakers.

The pair have approached local businessmen for samples to use in their classes.

"We are meeting so many nice people and getting so much help," said Miss Timie.

Church Groups

ST. JOSEPH'S CWL

St. Joseph's Council of the Catholic Women's League held the final meeting of the 1970-71 season on June 14.

During a short business period, Mrs. Margaret Eves congratulated Mrs. Sheila Buckley on the success of the district convention held at he Sun Valley Motel, recently. Mrs. M. Anion gave a report on the annual marathon bridge and announced the winners as Mrs. Irene Belanger and Mrs. Anion. Winner of the lace tablecloth was Mrs. Pilon.

Stockings for needy children were distributed and these are to be filled and returned when meetings resume in the fall.

On wishing everyone a happy and healthy summer president Mrs. Eves also stated that the first meeting in the fall would be a mother and daughter banquet to be held in September.

Most childhood accidents occur shortly before dinner when mothers are harried and youngsters are hungry or fretful. Children climb up to the cupboards to get food and fall; they reach for the pan on the stove and are burned. Keep dangerous items out of reach; give them over; keep little children out of the kitchen or at least, away from the cooking area.

MR. AND MRS. PETER G. SEELEY

Seeley – Gliddon

St. Paul's United Church, Stirling was the scene of the recent wedding ceremony, when Debra Louise Gliddon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Gliddon, Stirling was united in marriage to Peter Gilbert Seeley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orrie Seeley, also of Stirling. Rev. J. B. Small officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Harry Brown who also accompanied the soloist Mrs. Glen Floud.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white imported lace over Italian silk faille in A-line style featuring a stand-up collar and plain front panel with side belts. The back of the dress had an inverted pleat forming an opening to the tip of the train. A headdress of flowerettes encrusted with seed pearls was caught to a four-tier silk illusion veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses, white stephanotis and trailing ivy.

Miss Wendy Cruickshank as maid of honor wore a full length dress of citrus yellow imported damask cotton with stand-up collar and short puffed sleeves. The empire styled waistline was accented with satin ribbon caught in a bow in back and extending to the hemline. The bridesmaids Miss Laura Bartlett and Miss Ruth Wannamaker were identically attired, but in Nile green. The little flower girl, Miss Jennifer Gray was similarly dressed but in white with Nile green ribbon. All wore matching ribbons entwined in their hair and each carried a wicker basket of white daisies and 'mums.

Orian Callery attended the bridegroom, while the ushers were Stephen Gliddon, brother of the bride, Charles Seeley, brother of the bridegroom, while the ring bearer was Paul Gliddon, nephew of the bride.

For the wedding trip, the bride chose a white lace hot pants suit with pink rosebud trim, white and pink accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Seeley will reside at 13 Charlotte Street in Stirling.

Graduating Class Honored at Banquet

MARMORA – A banquet in honor of 18 graduates of Sacred Heart School, Marmora, held Friday evening in the parish hall, was also attended by their parents and teachers of the school.

Head table guests introduced by Mrs. Michael McCooey, president of the Catholic Parents and Teachers Association, included Mr. J. B. Kroeze, chairman of Hastings-Prince Edward County RCSS Board and Mrs. Kroeze, Mrs. Breen O'Connor, vice-chairman of the Board, and Mr. O'Connor, Mr. C. G. Mercereau, supervisor of planning and development, and Mrs. Mercereau, Father T. G. Scanlan, Mr. R. B. Bartsch, principal of Sacred Heart School, and Mrs. Bartsch.

Following the banquet, which was provided by the CPTA, friends and relatives arrived for the ceremonies in honor of the graduating class.

A welcome was extended by Jamie Hughes, president of the student council. Three special vocal numbers in honor of the students, were provided by pupils of Grades 4, 5 and 6.

Valedictorian, Anne O'Connor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom O'Connor, thanked, on behalf of the class, parents, teachers and pastor for their support and help through the years.

Rev. Father E. J. Keyes of Lanark, who had accepted an invitation to be guest speaker, was unable to be present due to illness and in his place, Father Scanlan, after congratulating the students, noted that with their background of spiritual education given by a staff of first rate teachers, they are well equipped to face their future educational commitments.

Congratulations and words of encouragement were also extended by representatives of the School Board, Mr. Kroeze, Mrs. O'Connor and Mr. Mercereau.

Each graduate was presented with a gift by Mrs. Mallcoey on behalf of the PTA and presentation of scrolls was made by the principal.

Anne O'Connor won the PTA award for the highest standing pupil and Tom Tokarewicz, the CWL award to second highest, presented by Mrs. Bill Meehan, Jr.

Award in religion, donated by Father Scanlan, was won by Peter Empey. The Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 237, prize for school spirit was by Veronica Callery, was presented by Wilbert Empey and Percy Gray.

Susan Martin won a prize in English, donated by Lynch's Frosted Foods, and presented by Mrs. Jim Ferrion.

Dan Doyle was winner of history prize, presented by Mrs. E. P. McNamara, for the Marmora Feed Mill.

Perfect attendance prizes, donated by Marmora Fire Department, were presented to Veronica Callery and Cathy O'Connor, by fire chief Cecil Neal.

The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion. A tiny white picket fence and a rose arbor centred the stage where the students received their awards. Baskets of peonies completed the attractive decor and centrepieces of sprayed daisies and candles were used on the tables.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. William Metcalfe, RR 4, Marmora announce the engagement of their daughter Wandella Lynn to Ricky James Embury, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Embury of Springbrook. The wedding will take place on July 24 at 2.00 p.m. at Springbrook United Church.

Last Collection of Designer Coco Chanel Highlights Pre-Summer Fashion Show

PARIS (CP) — The last collection of the late fashion designer Coco Chanel was the highlight of the pre-summer 90-odd costumes paraded were unmistakably clasic Chanel.

The Chanel line was shown in her salon reached by the famed staircase with the series of narrow mirrors reflecting more and more stairs. Inside, the viewers sat on the traditional gold chairs as the tall, willowy models emerged from a gold-arched doorway.

This collection featured a lot of pleats from knife to flat panel effects, and since Paris models swivel their hips more than do those in Canada, the pleats were particularly noticeable.

Most suits and dresses were just below knee length — a length often adopted this spring by chic Parisian women on the boulevards.

Many of the suits shown were in nubby tweeds — a fabric fashion experts tip as a leader for the fall. One four-pocketed suit was in Chanel's favorite color, beige, with a chiffon bow. Another, in lavender tweed, sported a green blouse and green edging to the jacket. Some had a military flair with epaulets and one, ideal for summer, had a raised design on white crinkle cotton.

UCW MEETINGS

ST. ANDREW'S UCW MARMORA

Mrs. D. Vilseff was hostess for the St. Andrew's UCW members and guests who attended the June meeting held at the Vilseff residence.

Twenty-eight women enjoyed a delicious pot luck supper served before the meeting was called to order.

During the brief business session, reports were heard, correspondence read, and as there are no monthly meetings during July and August, business pertaining to these months was cleared.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Wawa a Canadian Ojibway Indian who is now teaching at the Hastings Secondary School was introduced. She held the close attention of all with her pleasant and most personal presentation of what Indian life in Canada really is like. She explained how the Indian's philosophy of life differs from the white's and gave much information on life on the reservations. Indians hold hard to tradition and strive to keep their identity against great odds; they are a very proud people.

Education is most important but most Indians do not think this way, and because some residential schools are many miles from family, it becomes a two-fold problem.

Mrs. Wawia, who was educated at the Thunder Bay residential school, hopes someday to return to that school as guidance teacher; this way helping other Indian youngsters to find their place in Canadian life.

The devotional period was planned by Miss G. Warren, who read an article pertaining to the annual Indian church service held at Deseronto. The traditional service is carried out by the Mohawk Indian tribe and many of the articles used during the ceremony were donated by Queen Anne.

Mrs. R. Neal read the 23rd Psalm, as an Indian interprets it, and Mrs. Post closed the evening with an Indian prayer.

A bus trip to Camp Quin-molae for supper and the UCW meeting is planned for September 13.

Interesting Letter Describes Life in Zambia, Africa 1971

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is an article received recently from Mrs. Harry Fast who with her husband, Mr. Harry Fast, formerly with the CN in Belleville, is now residing in Kafue, Zambia. Mr. Fast is a co-ordinator with the railway system there and in this article Mrs. Fast describes life in Zambia, 1971.

"Paradise. Is that a land of heavenly blue sky, warm sunshine, gentle breezes, bountiful resources, unlimited human potential? Is it a land free of pollution, free of freeways, free of hustle and bustle, free? If so, that is Zambia.

Twenty-five Canadian families arrived prior to Christmas 1970 to make their home in Kabwe for an extended period of time. Kabwe is the home of the Zambia Railway headquarters.

For many it was their first trip outside Canada and for some their first plane ride. It was an experience which accounted for a variety of reactions, all of which, I am sure, they look back on now with a sense of humor.

Kabwe has a population of 30,000 and is situated 89 miles north of the capital city Lusaka. The cities and most large towns follow the rail line and are connected by a hard surface dual-lane highway.

The population at large must use the public transportation as their only means of conveyance other than bicycle or walking. Needless to say, these modes of travel are overcrowded and few of us have had the opportunity to say we have gone anywhere in Zambia by bus or rail. Most Canadians have purchased automobiles, European and Japanese models, the cost of which is comparable to our standard cars.

No one thinks it unusual to go to Lusaka to shop or to make a trip to the Copperbelt to see a ball game or make purchases in the stores at Ndola and Kitwe, about 125 miles north of Kabwe. The northern cities cater to a large population of Europeans from the mines so are recognized as having a wider choice of merchandise.

The Canadians were more than surprised to find they could purchase foodstuffs they were accustomed to buying in the supermarkets in Canada.

The subsidiaries of USA canners to Britain, such as Heinz, British canned goods, Australia and less and less South African goods, are the main suppliers. It is natural to expect much the same eating customs as the British introduced prior to independence. Zambia, though a republic, is a member of the Commonwealth and therefore more likely to buy her requirements from Commonwealth countries.

All the well known countries such as Arden, Yardleys and Ponds, the latter having a factory in Zambia, are available. Men's toiletries are likewise well-known brands. These luxuries are expensive enough at home but add the cost of shipment, tax, etc. to Zambia and they become items to be deleted from your shopping list.

Pharmaceutical companies sell the latest research medications the world over so Zambia is no exception. These are cheaper than in our drug stores. Since Jan. 1, 1971, hospitalization is free to all and hence medication is freejsted. Out-patients' departments see hundreds of people a day all of whom receive their prescriptions at the hospital dispensary.

There are two main thoroughfares in Kabwe, Freedom Way and Independence Ave. Both are very wide four lane streets with a boulevard of palms and flower beds running down the centre of each. There are several large general merchant shops but the majority are small shops, side by side selling a variety of merchandise such as clothing, pillows, mattresses and bedding, lawn chairs, yard goods and often pots and pans and jewelry. These are owned and operated by East Indians, though they are required now to Zambianize retail outlets and are encouraged to go into manufacturing or wholesale (if they are citizens and receive licence) so as to allow the Zambians to take over the retail business.

The most beautiful African prints are available here though they are imported from Holland, Java and Japan. The so-called African dress is said to have been copied from the first missionaries, who wore long skirts. The Zambian women have an eye for color and the colorful wrap - around skirts, colorful tops and turban-like headdresses are encouraged by the ministries of cultural affairs to be worn as the national costume. We read of the North American and European papers that the Afro look is being promoted by the designers and advertisers. Just as the Indian saris are most beautiful on the black-haired Indian ladies, so the African costume looks its best in contrast to the beautiful dark complexion. Why can we not be content to look like ourselves and let others be individualistic? It will be a long, uninteresting world if we continue to be copy-cats.

Social life in Zambia leaves nothing to be desired. There is no symphony orchestra but there are outstanding bands, orchestras, trios, etc., wonderful choirs, drama, not to mention the traditional dancers who perform at fairs, exhibitions, government functions or local events. The children and young people are encouraged to form cultural groups to ensure the preservation of these interpretive dances. Singing, dancing, drumming, and rhythm appear to be talents common to most Zambians. All you have to do is turn on a radio, play a tape or records and the children cannot stand still.

Kabwe boasts three means of film viewing. The Venus Theatre, a branch of the Kabwe Arts Society, shows a movie Sunday evenings and has special children's matinees during holidays. The Vista is the Broken Hill Mine Theatre and has a movie nightly. The Elephant Head Hotel has a Cine-dinner every two weeks at which time your dinner and movie are one price. The movie is shown in the dining room following the dinner. Duplicate bridge is enjoyed by a number of the Canadians. Bingo is played at three locations every week. One of the service clubs stages a Games Night several times a year. Some of the Canadians have spent lucrative evenings at both.

There is every sport played in Zambia that you can think of, though we are landlocked and water sport is not easily accessible to all. There is an 18-hole golf course with narrow fairways to challenge the slicers. May 7, Jack Lomas of Belleville received prizes and the cup for the low net in the Zambia Open Championships.

House parties are frequent and birthdays and wedding anniversaries are always an excuse for the gang to get together.

The Europeans and others who have lived in Africa for years or were born on this continent have been very kind, inviting us to their homes, calling on us and generally making themselves available to help in any way they could.

There is a 500 - bed hospital administered by Asians and Europeans. It is a General Hospital and thus serves the public in Kabwe and vicinity. It is one of the older hospitals in Zambia, so built in a style befitting the climate and peculiar circumstances prevailing in tropical countries. All developing countries must of necessity set very exacting priorities in the health field as the case load is overwhelming and all that can be expected of the limited trained staff is to alleviate suffering. Prevention and cure are goals which require planning and time. Although positive steps are being taken in that direction at present. There are private nursing homes available for those wishing to pay private fees. These are really small hospitals, fully equipped and with specialists, but they are named differently to avoid confusion in the public's mind, from the state hospitals.

Beautiful parks and game reserves are second to none on this continent. Accommodation is limited but camping facilities as well as high class service are available.

The schooling has created a problem for those with children. Though there has been tremendous expansion of school buildings since independence, it has not been possible to accommodate more than 80 per cent of the Zambian children registering. Trained teachers are at a premium at this stage of development and finances do not allow unlimited numbers of expert teachers to fill the need. The curriculum in any country is geared to the needs of that country and the particular philosophy of its traditional background. Zambia naturally follows the same pattern, which is vastly different from that of a highly industrialized nation and hence from the purely academic viewpoint would not give Canadian children what they require. However, it gives them the distinct advantage of learning first hand what the Zambian children learn, what their needs are and knowledge of their philosophy, customs and traditions, which is an education so badly needed in this war torn world of intolerance, misunderstanding and injustice.

The Canadian ladies have been most helpful in cooperating in various ways to make their own distinct contribution while in Zambia. As members are giving one to two mornings a week in the general hospital, some attend the packing of nutritional food sold at the Under - Five Clinics and some sell the food at the clinics to the mothers of children attending the clinic. It is my intention to elaborate on this volunteer work in future articles as you may all share our life in Zambia."

MOUNTAIL VIEW WI

Mrs. Frank Roblin opened her home for the June meeting of the Mountain View WI. She was assisted by her daughter Mrs. Ken Woodall who acted as co-hostess.

A minute's silence was observed in memory of the late Miss Lillian Anderson. The motto was read by Mrs. Ken Woodall.

Mrs. Roblin, convenor for citizenship introduced Miss Phyllis Thompson, a grade 13 student from Centennial Secondary School one of the 75 students who went on a Mediterranean cruise in February. She gave an interesting description of the countries she had visited, and the habits of the people. She also showed many souvenirs of her travels.

A contest was conducted by Mrs. Roblin with the winner being Mrs. B. Barber.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. B. Barber thanked the hostess for her hospitality. The lunch committee consisting of Mrs. Alfred Poste and Mrs. Clare Reed had prepared the lunch which was served after the meeting.

Bill to Facilitate Medical Transplants Given Wide Support in Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation aimed at aiding medical transplants received widespread support when it was given second reading, approval in principle, Tuesday in the Ontario legislature.

Among the chief provisions of the Human Tissues Gift Act is that it would permit transplants of organs between living persons.

This now is done in case of kidney transplants but there is no legislation authorizing it.

Other provisions in the act would make it easier to obtain organs or other body parts from deceased persons for use in transplants.

For instance, a hospital administrator would have the authority to allow a dead person's organs to be used in transplants if next-of-kin cannot be reached to authorize it.

The bill also prohibits a relative from countermanding a dead person's wish that his organs be used for transplants or other medical uses. It also provides for speedier procedure for next-of-kin to give consent.

Although all parties supported the principle of the bill, three Liberal members voiced opposition to some of its provisions.

George Ben (L—Toronto Humber) said the bill is contrary to some religious beliefs.

For example, the Jehovah's Witness sect believes that there would be no hereafter for a person whose body was not buried intact.

"We must do our utmost to protect the legal, religious and democratic beliefs of people," he said.

Eddie Sargent (L—Grey Bruce) disliked the discretion that would be given to a hospital administrator to order a deceased's parts to be used in a transplant operation if next-of-kin could not be reached for consent.

"I'm not sure I like the idea that some joker I've never met will be able to decide that I'd be a party to an expensive operation with some surgeon making a potful of money," he told the house.

Elmer Sopha (L—Sudbury) criticized a provision that eliminates civil liability for a physician acting "in good faith" in aspects of a transplant operation.

Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence said the clause was included after consultation with legal and medical groups.

Fred Burr (NDP—Sandwich Riverside) said the biggest problem in transplants is getting the organs immediately after the donor has died.

He suggested a system of consent cards and advocated the cards be "an appendage to the driver's licence," but there would be no compulsion to sign the form.

Mr. Lawrence said a better system would be to use the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan to store consent information in its computers so the information would be available almost immediately.

Two other bills dealing with health care also received second reading.

One was the Venereal Diseases Prevention Act, which facilitates doctors in reporting VD cases and allows treatment of persons over 16 years of age without parental consent.

The other, an amendment to the Nursing Homes Act, sets up a director of nursing homes for the province who would be in charge of licensing the homes. An applicant must show "public necessity and convenience" in requesting a nursing home licence.

In other business:

—A. T. C. McNab, deputy minister of transportation and communication, told a legislature committee that a rubber and plastic device resembling old-style tie chains is being developed to replace the banned tire studs;

—Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough introduced three bills dealing with the spending of government money and accounting for it;

—Clifford Pilkey (NDP—Oshawa) said regional governments are "somewhat out of focus" in providing representation by population;

—Labor Minister Gordon Carton said he would consult with Attorney-General Allan Lawrence about the presence of police at a picket line at A. P. Parts Ltd.;

—A bill that would allow greater portability of superannuation payments for Ontario civil servants was given first reading;

—Bills to amend liquor legislation, announced Monday by Provincial Secretary John Yaremko, were given first reading;

—Charles MacNaughton, minister of transportation and communication, said the province is going to crack down on truck drivers who clog the passing lanes on major highways such as the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway;

—Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr said the provincial government is aware of the increase in lead in the atmosphere over many municipalities;

—Donald Deacon (L—Toronto York-Centre) suggested that the course operators be urged to use sewage runoff from treatment plants to water greens and fairways;

—George Kerr said residents may be over-concerned about the danger of contamination from sewage leaks on Fighting Island on the Canadian side of the Detroit River;

—Mr. Kerr said a nuclear reactor at nearby Pickering should be in full operation by the end of July;

—Ontario Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence said the mechanics of establishing a drug-testing centre in Canada was "left up in the air" at last week's meeting of health ministers here;

—Mr. McKeough, in reply to Opposition Leader Robert Nixon, said integration of income tax and social services is one way of achieving a form of guaranteed annual income;

—Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Downsview) said Metropolitan Toronto might as well forget about holding municipal elections because the provincial government has no faith in the abilities of Metro councillors.

Text of Quebec Constitutional Charter Rejection

QUEBEC (CP) — Following is the text of the statement by Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa rejecting the constitutional charter proposed at the Victoria constitutional conference:

"Federalism constitutes the best means for Quebecers to attain their economic, social and cultural objectives.

"Quebecers supported this option of the Quebec government in the last provincial general elections.

"Careful to respect this wish clearly expressed by the people of Quebec, the government is applying itself to reinforcing Canadian federalism. In this spirit, it believes that this federalism must be decentralized to reflect the diversity of the regions of our country. This federalism must thus guarantee to the provinces the liberty of action necessary so that they may assume fully their responsibilities in regard to their areas; this federalism must also permit the Quebec government to ensure the cultural future of the majority of its population.

"Constitutional revision is precisely the way which should give us this type of federalism. The work of the last three years has allowed Canadians to progress in this way. The recent conference of premiers of Canada constituted a step forward in this direction; important progress was achieved in matters concerning the mechanism to patriate and revise the constitution, political and linguistic rights, the status of the Supreme Court, etc.

"In the present state of the record of constitutional reform, the Quebec government cannot, however, make a positive recommendation to the national assembly in regard to accepting the present constitutional charter.

"This decision arises from the necessity to agree to clear and precise constitutional texts, thus avoiding giving the judicial power a responsibility which belongs above all to the political power, that is to the elected representatives of the people. Thus, the texts bearing on income security allow an uncertainty to remain which goes badly with the inherent objectives of constitutional revision. If this uncertainty were eliminated, our conclusion might be different.

"Thus, the Quebec government intends to notify the secretariat of the constitutional conference that it cannot accept this constitutional charter.

"This decision of the Quebec government calls for the capacity of innovation and the determination of all Canadians, and urges them to pursue the task they have undertaken to give Canada a truly modern constitution."

Davis Visit to Sudbury Seen as Dress Rehearsal for Vote

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Progressive Conservative officials called it a "meet-the-people tour", but there's little doubt that Premier William Davis's two-day visit here was a dress rehearsal for the next provincial election campaign.

Mr. Davis, speaking to about 700 party supporters at a fund-raising dinner Tuesday night shortly before the end of the trip, indicated that the election would come "relatively soon."

Opposition members have speculated that the premier will call the election for the fall, but Mr. Davis still was evasive on the subject.

"While I cannot tell you when an election will be held in Ontario, I can say there will be one—and it will be relatively soon," he told the dinner gathering.

He told the fund-raising dinner that "pollution must be curtailed."

"Once that decision comes from the heart of a strong and socially responsive government, it is no great trick to harness the brains we have in abundance to devise the technical means," he said.

He said a crackdown on pollution "may be painful to some and expensive to others, and may perhaps cost all of us a few extra dollars."

Mr. Davis said he would not accept "the theory put forward with increased gibness today that we should accept high rates of unemployment as an economic condition of our times."

"To me that negates the human condition of our times and is therefore unacceptable. People want jobs. They want to be productive. They want a feeling of accomplishment."

There was no easy solution to inflation, he said, but he could not concede that the problem was "a natural and permanent consequence of modern economic conditions."

"If it is, then the economic conditions must be changed . . ." he suggested.

NDP Critic Says Tax Reform Dropped in Favor of Juggling

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians were advised Tuesday to look at the federal budget as a sleight-of-hand trick in which money is taken out of one taxpayer's pockets and put back in another.

Max Saltsman, New Democrat financial critic (Waterloo), told the Commons that through measures such as taxation of unemployment insurance benefits and the employer's share of medical care contributions the government in many cases plans to take away more than it is giving.

He also said that, by backing off on its earlier proposals to take significantly larger taxes from corporations, the government has abandoned tax reform in favor of tax juggling.

Tuesday was the first of six days of House debate on government budgetary policies and the Conservatives and New Democrats moved non-confidence motions that will be voted on later.

As expected, the NDP came down hardest on the provisions contained in the budget brought down last Friday, which contained a draft bill for alterations to tax laws that were considerably milder than those contained in the white paper on tax change hat preceded it.

The Commons turned briefly to the Prairie grain incomes stabilization bill late Tuesday, bulgwas scheduled to return to budget debate today.

By its own figuring, Mr. Saltsman said, the government is going to take in $30 million more from taxing unemployment insurance benefits than it is by allowing contributions to be deductible.

It would pick up $20 million on the taxation of medical care premiums, which he said is almost the same amount it will cost to increase basic exemptions.

Another $20 million would be taken by taxation of adult training allowances, and $15 million more from tax changes for members of the armed forces.

These additional revenues, he said, would come mainly from working-class taxpayers and would offset many of the government's claims that it is giving this tax bracket a better deal.

Conservative finance critic Marcel Lambert (Edmonton West) moved his party's non-confidence motion which says the government's budget fails to contain sufficient tax reductions and other economic incentives to promote a dynamic expansion of the economy.

It also says the economy is troubled by rising inflation and high unemployment, and claims the government is not doing enough to fight poverty and maintain necessary social benefit programs.

The NDP motion, moved by Mr. Saltsman, agrees that tax reductions contained in the budget are not sufficient to reduce unemployment, but would delete the Conservative reference to incentives and say instead that the budget favors corporate interests at the expense of equity.

Mr. Saltsman received some support for his arguments from Michael Forrestall (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East), but not from Mr. Lambert.

Mr. Forrestall said "it is regrettable that (the government) back-tracked" on some of its white paper proposals.

"I wonder," said Mr. Forrestall, "whether anybody on the government side will have the courage to get up and tell us why there was a total abandonment of the principles of tax reform as set forth in the Carter commission report."

The Carter royal commission headed by Kenneth Carter, the late Toronto tax expert, called for taxation treatment of all income equally, eliminating tax breaks given investment income.

These approaches have been abandoned in the draft bill tied to last Friday's budget.

Mr. Lambert pooh-poohed the concept of tax equity as such, saying the taxpayer would benefit best from tax concessions that stimulated the corporate sector of the economy.

Mr. Lambert said the government should get busy reforming the system of sales and excise taxes, which damaged the poor most.

by O.D.

I REMEMBER IT WELL — Maurice Chevalier

An account of Chevalier's last tour through Europe and America in his eighties year and a revealing look at the personality behind the performer.

FISHER OF LAMBETH — William Purcell

Biography of the man who became the Archbishop of Canterbury during the war and who led the Anglican Church through 22 years of rapid change in both the religious and secular worlds.

QUEEN ELIZABETH, THE QUEEN MOTHER — Dorothy Laird

The first authorized biography of the beloved figure. It covers four reigns, from the early 1890s when she was betrothed to a king's son, to the task of making life for herself after the death of her husband George VI.

EVENING STAR — Faith Baldwin

The sensitive, quiet account of one year in the life of a remarkable woman, reflects appreciation for nature, humor and deep religious conviction.

WILD COW TALES — Ben K. Green

In 13 stories full of rope burns and brush scratches, the author tells of the days when he made a specialty of catching wild cows that roundups could not corral.

A HOME OF MANY ROOMS — Rodelia Hunter

A joyous and touching memoir of a Mormon family at the turn of the century.

DR. SCHWEITZER OF LAMBARENE — Norman Cousins

An informal intimate account of this famous man, who ran a hospital for 52 years and died in Lamaras at the age of 90.

THE SEASONS HEREAFTER — Elizabeth Ogilvie

A haunting tale of love, accented by the atmosphere of the Maine seacoast.

THE GENEROUS YEARS — Chet Huntley

Those who know Chet Huntley only as the television commentator will be surprised and delighted with his humorous account of his early years in Montana.

FICTION

THE HOUSES IN BETWEEN — Howard Spring

In this novel, Sarah Andridge recalls her life from the opening of the Crystal Palace by Queen Victoria to the second World War. Rich in character and incident, warm in mood.

PUPPET ON A CHAIN — Alistair Maclean

Paul Sherman of Interpol's Narcotic Bureau tries to outwit the genius behind an Amsterdam drug ring, whose tracks seem to be covered in every step. The risks are great and success demands all of Sherman's ingenuity and courage.

THE MAN WHO KILLED THE KING — Dennis Wheatley

Deals with the aftermath of the French Revolution. Background political terror heightens the drama of the tragic characters. A Roger Brook story.

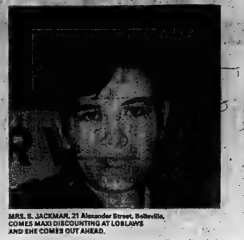
PAPA'S WIFE — Thyra Bjorn

A delightful story of a pastor and his family, first in Northern Sweden and then New England.

A MURDER IS ANNOUNCED — Agatha Christie

This author needs no introduction, after 80 detective stories in 50 years. This is one of her best.

A WESTERN BONANZA — The Western Writers of America.



Includes stories of the cavalry, wagon trains, the railroad, humorous stories and the strong flavor of adventure that gives the western its special appeal.

THE STONE ANGEL — Margaret Laurence

With brilliance and perception, Margaret Laurence draws the reader back into the world of Hagar Shipley, as a young girl growing up in a bleak prairie town, as wife and mother who dominates and destroys her son and finally as an old woman isolated by pride and habit of independence.

THE RELUCTANT PIONEER — Pearl Packard

The story starts in remote Brunswick House near James Bay in 1840, when a young woman and infant daughter travel with the husband to take up a post for the Hudson's Bay Company. The fears and achievements of the family are told simply, with feeling.

MRS. E. JACKMAR, 21 Alexander Street, Belleville, COMES MAXI DISCOUNTING AT LOBLAWS AND SHE COMES OUT AHEAD.

"I've been shopping Loblaws for about three years", says Mrs. Jackmar, "and I come especially for the meat. In fact, that's what brought us to Loblaws in the first place—my husband likes good meat and after one trip to Loblaws he decided we should keep coming back for our meat. We much prefer Loblaws meat to the meat we can buy elsewhere—the price is comparable, but the quality is higher, it's tastier and the flavour is better". Mrs. Jackman, who shops for four, adds, "At one time I bought meat and some other things at Loblaws and went to other stores for some other items. But I've been doing most of my shopping at Loblaws since the MAXI DISCOUNT prices started . . . a lot of the prices are down but the quality hasn't changed at all. I still prefer Loblaws for quality".

Wilson 'Builds' New College With Largest Precast Contract

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A new community college in Toronto is being built here in Belleville.

This apparent contradiction is possible because of modern building methods using precast concrete manufactured at Wilson Concrete Products Ltd.

The contract means $1,000,000 to the local firm and, because of the modular type of construction used, a big saving on construction costs for the college.

The building, entirely constructed of precast concrete, is intended for the building technology department of George Brown College on its Casa Loma Campus.

It will cost $18.20 a square foot instead of the $21.14 originally estimated.

Columns, beams and slabs for the seven - storey building are now being poured here and sent to Toronto by truck for erection. The building is supported by 71-foot columns, each weighing 28 tons — the largest precast project under taken by the company.

In another three weeks the company will begin pouring components for another community college, Centennial in Scarborough.

"The construction industry in general was very much hurt by the government slowdown in building as part of the inflation fight," said James Clarke, vice-president and general manager of the company. "We were glad to get this contract, it's something to keep us going until the economy regains its strength."

The industrial expansion in Belleville over the last few years has not greatly benefitted the local constructing business, Mr. Clarke indicted. The majority of the new buildings have been erected by outside firms. Although Wilson Concrete built two stores for Cambridge Lexsebols in Burlington and Windsor, the plaza here is smaller and was therefore constructed of steel.

"This will be the future of building," says Mr. Clarke, commenting on the precast concrete industry. "Construction costs are going up in the field, and if plant costs can be maintained in the precast industry this will be a way of beating rising price" of construction.

Precast concrete is particularly adaptable to the Canadian climate, where the normal construction season is only six months long. Precast components can be manufactured all year in a heated plant and erected on the site in any weather.

Its use, in preference to other materials, is dictated by appearance, fire regulations, maintenance requirements or speed of erection, he said.

Charles Wilson got in on the ground floor of the precast concrete industry in 1949, when he began manufacturing concrete blocks in a small barn. He moved to the present 45 - acre site off Sidney St. in Belleville's west end in 1954 and expanded operations to include precast structural and decorative concrete. Precast architectural members now comprise 75 per cent of the plant's output.

The company's products are shipped within a 150 - mile radius of Belleville, with a large amount going to the Toronto region.

It looks like something from a child's construction set, but this structure is for real and represents hours of engineering time. It's a balsa wood model of the precast concrete members in George Brown College in Toronto. All the wooden components shown in the model are now being cast in concrete at Wilson Concrete Products Ltd. plant. In the real thing, the columns stand 71 feet high.

Column For A College

It's stretched out on the floor of Wilson Concrete Products Plant now, but soon this 71-foot column will be shipped to Toronto and lifted upright to form the framework of a new community college. The column weighs 28 tons and is the largest precast member so far poured at the Belleville plant.

Prince Edward Gives Approval To Quinte Isle

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County by any other name will be known as Quinte Isle. County councillors last night passed a motion to designate Prince Edward under the name which has become familiar on tourist brochures.

The decision followed a suggestion from William Smith, a member of the Quinte Isle Tourist Association and two fellow delegates who urged councillors to consider this slogan for a possible sign on Highway 401. Mr. Smith explained the department of lands and forests would be likely to erect guide signs if the name Quinte Isle appeared instead of the words Prince EdwardCounty. He stressed this is not aimed at detracting from the county but is primarily needed to secure a sign on Highway 401. The term Quinte Isle would be connected with department of lands and forests parks in the county. The tourist operator added the QITA spends approximately $12,000. annually in promoting the Quinte Isle slogan.

Wellington reeve Douglas Marvin emphasized the term Quinte Isle is a familiar one and said by designating Prince Edward County. He stressed region an opportunity for publicity would be created.

Picton reeve Albert Piroth reminded council of Prince Edward's long "historical connotation" and added it would be remiss to let its name disappear. He unsuccessfully introduced an amendment to combine the names Quinte Isle and Prince Edward County in an attempt to preserve a name "with as much tradition almost as Quebec".

Mr. Marvin pointed out the department of lands and forests' probably would agree to a two or three word sign but would reject a proposed combination of two names. Councillors generally agreed county promotion outweighs, 'what's in a name'."

Citizens Attempt to Halt Plans For Picton Fire Hall Expansion

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON ( ) — A citizens committee headed by Picton merchant Colin Carter has circulated a petition opposing construction of town offices at the fire hall until a meeting can be attended for renovation of the former Mary Street School. Mr. Carter who ( ) a term in council several years ago said yesterday 25 ( ) have already signed a copy of the petition and plan to gain signatures. He refused to divulge the number of persons who have signed the petition but remarked [illegible] of the citizens' committee's stand.

Mr. Carter and fellow committee members have stated in their petition town council has been delinquent in failing to explore all alternate sites [illegible] and has neglected to fully analyze costs on all proposals. Three contractors consulted by the citizens committee have exhibited interest in renovation of the old school building and Mr. Carter observed he plans for these and estimates for presentation to council. The businessman has personally toured the Mary Street School and feels it is structurally sound.

The citizens committee will [illegible] meeting of town council [illegible] yesterday council called for a [illegible] of its plans [illegible] addition to the fire hall during [illegible] meeting. This statement was [illegible] Albert Pirotch Pirotch who noted the original plans did not include [illegible] lock-up facilities. He added the firm of Smith, Bickel was instructed to revise [illegible] and to present them to councillors today.

Council earlier recommended approval of plans for a $50,000 addition to the Picton firehall to provide lockup and town office facilities.

A rough estimate of $75,500 for renovation of the Mary Street School was forwarded for comparison to councillors at Mayor Ackerman's request by the firm of Totten, Simms and Hubicki.

Hosts Rebuffed

Jean Charles Lauzon, 27, whose last address was 250 Tupper Street, Sudbury, stayed overnight with John Thomson and Robert Dobson, 303½ Front Street and on the morning of May 25, he walked off with a wallet, a cloth pouch and identification papers.

For this he pleaded guilty in provincial, city, court yesterday and was sentenced to one month in the common jail.

"My stand is still the same," observed Mr. Piroth who opposed the fire hall addition from its first mention. He said he would still like to examine a costing for renovations to Mary [illegible] School for police and municipal offices only. "The fire hall should be turned into a fire [illegible] observed the Picton reeve. He commented on [illegible] fire hall facilities could be made in later years [illegible] in press Mr. Pirotch is also concerned with the [illegible] parking slots which must be sacrificed if an addition is made to the fire hall.

Several citizens have voiced strong objections to the proposed [illegible] it will destroy an historical landmark. Bruce Pinch suggested the petition, when it [illegible] council, will draw attention to public opinion [illegible] ratepayers are strongly opposed to council's plan.

County System Better Answer to Concerns Says Picton Mayor

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Mayor Margaret Ackerman, yesterday asserted she entered municipal politics to become involved with society's problems and rejected the phrase, "a member of the weaker sex". Mrs. Ackerman, addressing members of the Picton Rotary Club, emphasized she is not a promoter of the women's "Lib" movement, however, and refuses to burn her bra because she considers "support important in politics".

The vivacious blonde mayor told Rotarians today's municipal governments are faced with many complex problems which can be solved only through implementation of policies now advocated by higher levels of government. Mayor Ackerman mentioned regional government, pollution control, environmental control, education, social and family services, taxing and assessment and planning and development as examples of these policies.

"In an examination of any of these matters it becomes obvious that it is no longer possible for local municipalities as they presently exist to cope with these problems individually but they do require some form of amalgamation or consolidation to be effective and economically feasible."

Mrs. Ackerman complimented previous county councils who worked in co-operation with local municipalities to provide today's amalgamated services such as health units, welfare, conservation and the planning and development of the county road systems. She added much remains to be done if local identity is to be retained in an every changing social and economic environment.

Mayor Ackerman suggested the cost of pollution control can be shared equitably if all levels of governement and industry co-operate. She said environmental pollution extends beyond the boundaries of local municipalities and intensive industrialized localities with high density populations can effect air and water qualities extending to other locations far from the original source.

"Although local municipalities will be required to implement measures to prevent further edvironmental pollution, costs for correcting the damage already done must be a matter for provincial and federal governments' consideration. Prince Edward County with an area of some 220 square miles and a population of 20,000, could hardly be considered a major contributor to the pollution of Lake Ontario that presently appears to exist," she stated.

Aware of the "brain drain" from rural areas to cities, Mayor Ackerman noted the local government is concerned with the cost of education. She said rural municipalities make the popular plea that their youth, after receiving education, is forced to seek employment elsewhere, usually in the more intensified industrial areas. The province has recognized this situation, and has increased its share of education costs, relieving the burden of realty taxes and assuring equal opportunity to education. District boards retain "some degree of local autonomy" to secure what they feel is a reasonable standard of education within the economic means of the area served.

Recreational opportunities are swiftly becoming almost as important as job opportunities to members of the labor force, Mayor Ackerman remarked technological advances in the last 20 years have substantially increased productivity among the labor force. These advances have created shorter work weeks, reduction of jobs, early retirement and a demand for increased recreational facilities. The economic impact of these conditions has become apparent even in the smaller, more remote municipalities and is reflected in increased costs of welfare, education, construction and services.

Migration to recreation areas, creates a social and economic impact in an extent not yet completely recognized. It is becoming apparent that planning is needed on a regional basis and improved communications between regions and the provincial governments is essential.

Although no official plan has been completed yet for Prince Edward County the town of Picton will continue to co operate with the county planning board. Mayor Ackerman stressed the prosperity of Picton is now a prosperity of rural community and observed [illegible] will [illegible] planned and advance several

Among them are, co-operation with other municipalities in matters of mutual interest, [illegible] municipal services designed to provide [illegible] private developers of necessary [illegible] publish how [illegible] ing, continued promotion of [illegible] quality education for young people, co-operation with tourist organizations for the purpose of expanding tourism in the area, further development of recreation programs and extension of opportunities in [illegible] co-operation with municipalities, co-operation with community-interested organizations.

Mayor Ackerman stated although problems peculiar to this area continue to exist, resolution of the major ones must include an awareness of the circumstances that exist in the region. # Cross-Canada Auto Rally Should Only Last Eight Days

OTTAWA (CP) — The sketchy historical records of Canadian auto rallying say a Calgary daredevil named Ace Emmett gunned his one-cylinder Cadillac from Winnipeg to Regina in four days 70 years ago.

That's 325 miles as the crow flies.

And in 1912, after former mayor A. E. Todd of Victoria put up a gold medal for the first car to cross Canada by an all-Canadian route, it took F. V. Haney and J. W. Wilby seven weeks to cover the 4,200 miles from Halifax to the Pacific Ocean in their Reo.

In contrast, winners of the 4,850-mile British Columbia centennial auto rally, leaving here tonight, will make it in a bit under eight days. Forty cars are entered in the hunt for the $10,000 in prize money.

If they were just allowed to go flat out from Ottawa to Victoria, they would trim a lot of time off those eight days.

But the rally is designed to test endurance of the car and accuracy of its driver-navigator team. So, although about half the course follows the Trans-Canada highway, bringing the competitors to a major population centre most nights, the rest is on secondary roads.

Timing points are set up all along the route. Top scorers are the ones who come closest—to the proper time for reaching these points. Penalties are handed out for arriving either late or early. The farther off the mark, the bigger the penalty.

The state secretary's department, sponsoring the event along with the province to mark the B.C. centennial, notes in promotional literature that "no matter how daring and adventurous the drivers are, speed limits on public highways are strictly enforced."

Haney and Wilby should have had such problems.

They used a jury-rigged windlass with a chain attached to birch stumps to make it over hills in the Maritimes. They built their own floorduroy roads over Prairie muskeg. At one point their drive shafted twisted and they crawled 200 miles in low gear, taking five days.

However, the pioneers got a couple of breaks that aren't available to the centennial competitors.

There was no hope of negotiating the Canadian Shield north of Lake Superior. They put their Reo on a boat to the Lakehead and a train to Winnipeg.

Today's drivers and cars get no free rides.

Cars are impounded as of noon today with the rally start scheduled for 8 p.m.

Dave Fairlie of Vancouver, with Larry Tolton of Willowdale, Ont., as his team-mate, have driven No. 1 start position in their Datsun.

There are a half-dozen women in the event, some of them driver-navigators working with their husbands, others as first drivers in their own entries.

Crash helmets and zippered cover-alls have replaced the long, flaring duster coats worn by those women who would get into a motorcar in the days of Haney and Wilby.

So at least there shouldn't be a repetition of the event in 1912 when Mrs. D. A. Maxwell, wife of the auto builder, got too close to the machinery and...as the old account put it, "was stripped to her knickers in her husband's Maxwell."

Laver Tested Today

LONDON (CP) — Wimbledon favorite Rod Laver will have his first test of the 1971 championships today when he meets South African Ray Moore in the second round.

Victory for Laver, seeking his fifth all-England Tennis Championships' title, will put him among the last 16. His two main rivals, fellow-Australians John Newcombe, the defending champion, and Ken Rosewall, reached that stage Tuesday.

Laver, who freely admits that he sometimes finds difficulty in maintaining concentration in early rounds, cannot afford any such lapse against Moore.

The South African first achieved tennis fame by beating third-seeded Andres Gimeno of Spain in the third round of the 1968 Wimbledon, after which he turned professional. He has since left the world tennis championship group.

Most of the leading women stars got through their first round matches Tuesday without trouble.

Andrea Martin of Quebec City, the 23-year-old Canadian No. 1 seed, making her first visit to Wimbledon, was defeated by Holland's Betty Stove 6-1, 6-1.

Lapping It Up

Tongue outstretched, a competitor just misses a refreshing mouthful of water during the feature 28-mile race headlining the Hamilton Cycling Club's spectacular, a five-race extravaganza staged in downtown Hamilton on streets around the city hall. Pre-race favorite Miggi Kosh of Toronto was beaten by Gary Scattolon, a husky 27-year-old Italo-Canadian Cycling Club rider from Hamilton. (CP Wirephoto)

Richard Sticks to His Guns

NEW YORK (CP) — Henri Richard, 35, has no plans for retirement after 18 seasons with Montreal Canadiens, including 10 Stanley Cup championships.

Clarence Campbell, 65, who in September will have been president of the National Hockey League for 25 years, expects "to die with my skates on."

The two distinguished Canadians, each a senior in his field of endeavor, were guests of honor at a luncheon here Tuesday at which Richard received a special award as Life Saver of the Month for his heroics in the final game of Montreal's cup victory over Chicago.

Richard, one of the "little men" of the NHL at five-foot-seven and 180 pounds, told interviewers he has no set objectives about continuing as a player.

"I will play it game by game," he said.

Nor is Richard sure he wants to be a hockey coach, although his chief activity this summer will be running a five-week hockey school in Montreal.

The monthly award, made by Beech-Nut Inc. on the advice of 24 sports writers, went to Richard for his performance in the seventh and deciding game of the Stanley Cup final, after having been benched briefly earlier in the series.

HENRI RICHARD

The grey-haired forward was questioned about his differences with Al McNeil, the coach who benched him during a 3-0 loss to Chicago. Richard was strongly critical of McNeil after the game.

"I think I was right then and still think I am right," said Richard, "I think he agreed with me later that he had a bad night as coach. . . I didn't think I was playing that badly. When I play badly I know it."

Richard said he hopes he's still a friend of McNeil, who next season will coach the Canadiens' farm team in Halifax. He added that he knows Scotty Bowman, the new Canadiens coach, from junior days, when he played against him, and thinks Bowman established his credentials as a coach in St. Louis.

NHL President Campbell left after the luncheon to look at the new hockey arena in Hempstead, N.Y., on Long Island, in company with Bill Shea, acting in an advisory capacity for the new rink which could some day become the home of an NHL team.

Campbell indicated it was a courtesy visit and that the Hempstead owners had not made any proposition to him for getting into the NHL.

"There are no NHL applications on hand," said the league president. "The 1974-5 season is the closest realistic date for further expansion."

Oliver Expecting Upset

MONTREAL (CP) — Jackie Oliver took a 150-mile-an-hour somersault in last year's Canadian-American Challenge Cup race at Le Circuit Mont Tremblant and he thinks a similar incident may occur Sunday during this year's edition of the race.

The 28-year-old British racing driver said in an interview Tuesday a bump on the back straight of the Le Circuit track which caused his Autocoast Group Seven car to become airborne last year proved driven with an unnecessary hazard.

Oliver escaped unscathed from the accident which occurred when his car became caught in turbulence from a car ahead during the first lap of the race.

"I guarantee there'll be an incident there this race," he said. "There's no way you can follow anybody over there."

However, Oliver said he will be extra careful to avoid a repetition of the accident. Although his new Shadow racer is different from the Autocoast, it too could become airborne under similar circumstances.

Despite lingering memories of his accident at Le Circuit, Oliver was looking forward to his first outing in the Shadow which has been modified considerably since last season.

He missed the first race of the series, held at Mosport, Ont., but intends to run the remainder of the 10-race series.

The Shadow, powered by a 494-cubic-inch Chevrolet engine, has been undergoing testing at Rattlesnake Raceway in Texas and ran 250 consecutive miles without any mechanical problems.

The 75-lap race begins at 2:15 p.m. EDT Sunday at the 2.85-mile Le Circuit, 90 miles north of Montreal.

Trevino Ignores Nicklaus' Advice

CLEVELAND (AP) — Newly crowned United States Open golf champion Lee Trevino doesn't plan to need Jack Nicklaus' advice to slow down—at least not for a while.

"I'll play 'em all, whether they're for $60,000 or $250,000. It doesn't matter to me. If they've got a golf tournament going, I'll be there.

"If they're putting up the money, I'll play on a gravel road," Trevino said Tuesday before a practice round at the Beechmont Country Club.

He beat Nicklaus in the 18-hole playoff at Ardmore, Pa., Monday afternoon. Tuesday morning he put in an appearance at a department store in Cleveland, then got back to work on the golf course Tuesday afternoon.

He's competing in the $150,000 Cleveland Open this week; next week will be in Montreal for the Canadian Open, then whips off to Southport, England for the British Open, then back immediately for the Western Open in Chicago.

He doesn't plan a week off until sometime in August.

Ten Walk Out On Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers' training site is closer to the big lights and a lot plusher than a year ago, but things haven't changed for Jim Spavital's Western Football Conference club. At least 10 players, including fullback Willie Bethea whom the Bombers picked up as a free agent, have walked out of the camp after just two days. The exodus equals the departures of last year when the Bombers trained at Gimli, north of here, where cold showers were a luxury. The first three departures Monday were followed by six more Tuesday and Bethea was in town less than a day before he too called it quits. Spavital said the former Eastern Football Conference star with Hamilton Tiger-Cats probably "wouldn't make it through the season" after doctors examined his injured knees.

* * *

TORONTO (CP) — Injuries are nothing new to Dave Knechtel, but the 246-pound defensive end-tackle may have ended his career Tuesday on the Toronto Argonaut training field at nearby Aurora. Knechtel injured his left knee during the Eastern Football Conference club's workout and was taken to Toronto General Hospital. "I wouldn't be surprised if he is through for the season," said coach Leo Cahill after trainer Stan Wilson had diagnosed a cartilage problem but admitted it may also have been torn ligaments.

* * *

MONTREAL (CP) — The Whites jumped to a 16-6 half-time lead and held on to defeat the Reds 19-12 in the Montreal Alouettes' annual intra-squad game before 5,678 football fans Tuesday night. Halfback Bruce Van Ness and flanker Garry Lefebvre scored touchdowns for the Whites, who were quarterbacked by Tony Pajaczkowski and Jim Chasey. Halfback Moses Denson scored both touchdowns for the Reds.

* * *

REGINA (CP) — Everybody showed up for the opening of Saskatchewan Roughriders' training camp but the coaches wish one regular had stayed away. For the third consecutive year, the equipment manager of the Western Football Conference club, Dale Laird, is starting the season with less than a full roster of gear. Thieves, or practical jokers if the past experience of having the equipment returned is again, made off with a number of sweaters and other gear during the weekend. One newcomer didn't wait around long enough for the big test Tuesday. Split end Karl Sneider, a graduate of Augsburg College who had a tryout with Edmonton Eskimos in 1969, split camp Monday. "We talked it all over and came to a mutual agreement and Karl has left the club," head coach Dave Skrien said. Quarterback John Eckman, formerly of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, was to arrive Tuesday but didn't. He's expected today.

Bass Open 26th

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some of the best fishing in recent years has been reported this week by the department of lands and forests.

But the big news for anglers this week is the Saturday opening of bass season throughout the southern part of the province.

Reports from the department's Tweed district.

Tweed—Bancroft division, lake trout good in Weslemkoon and Kamaneseing lakes and fair in Wollaston and Limerick lakes. Speckled trout fair in small lakes and streams and rainbow trout fair in Vance Lake. Pickerel fair in Paudash Lake and pike fair in York River. Panfish good in all waters. Dacre division, Lake trout good in Clear Lake but poor in other waters. Pickerel fair in Skootamata and Plevna lakes of Plevna area. Pike good in Mississippi River. Speckled and lake trout poor in all townships. Rainbow trout fair in Quackenbush Lake. Panfish fair in all waters. Pike fair in Madawaska River and pickerel good. Tweed division, pickerel good in Long, Gull, Coxes and Bobs Lake and fair to good in Moira, Crowe, Stoco and Sherfield lakes. Speckled trout fair to poor in all lakes and lake trout fair. Pike good in Boulton, Gull and Sharbot lakes. Panfish good in all waters. Muskellunge good in Stoco Lake. Napanee division, pickerel poor in Consecon Lake, and good in south portion of West Lake. Pike poor and perch good in Smith's Bay. Muskellunge poor in Howes Lake.

Duck!

Although the camera angle makes it appear as though the shot is about to fall on Philip Lewis' head, the Bancroft Public School student actually got off a heave of 36 feet. His effort was good enough for third place in the midget shot-put event at the second annual Hastings Country Track and Field meet held at Centennial Secondary School Tuesday.

Second For County

Track Meet Too Much of Good Thing?

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

The only complaint that could be registered about the second annual Hastings Public School Track and Field meet is that possibly there was too much of a good thing.

"Everything came off really well," noted phys-ed consultant Walter Cochrane who helped organize Tuesday's event. "The only change that we might make another year is to run some of the track events simultaneously on different sides of the track in order to finish sooner. We dropped one event from last year's meet, but we still didn't finish until 5.30."

A total of close to 500 students from the various elementary schools in the county were involved in the eight-hour meet.

In the atom section, Howie Coons of Harry J. Clarke was the top boy taking first in the hurdles and triple jump and adding a second place finish in the shot put. Queen Elizabeth's Carol Sisson took the honors among the girls with a winning performance in the 440 and a second place placing in the 100-yard dash.

Two King George students dominated the peewee events with Jill Baichelor winning the 220 and long jump Bill Forbes walking off with the honors in the boys 100 and 220-yard dashes as well as the shot put.

Lois Martin of Harmony bettered both of the midget division's winning times in winning the hurdles 100 in 14.1 seconds and addig a 31.2-second performance in the 220. Randy Quinn of Breadner took a first in the hurdles and fourth in the 220 as the top bantam boy.

In the midget section Ross Geen and John Sheppard reached the same goal although each took a different road. Geen, a Harmony School student took victories in the hurdles and 100-yard dash to share the honors with Sheppard. The King George student ground out wins in his half-mile and mile distance specialties. Sir MacKenzie Bowell's Linda Martin headed the midget girls with first place finishes in the 100 and 220-yard dashes.

The winner of the meet, which was held on the Centennial Secondary School has not yet been determined although it appears as though either zone 3 or zone 4 (Belleville west and Belleville east) will emerge as the top district when the final results are tabulated.

Lacrosse Fours Wild But Low

Fours were wild in Tuesday night's Belleville Minor Lacrosse schedule, unfortunately, it was also low card, as

Law Just

The Police Association laid down the law last night in Belleville Minor Soccer action by blasting out a 10-0 win over the Flyers' bantams.

Tony Donovan booted four goals for the winners with Dave Thibedeau picking up a pair. Other scorers were Bob Cunningham, John Jevons, Brian Calnan and Nick Barrett with one each. Goalie Rick Hurst picked up the shutout.

The Falcon B team received some ruffled feathers in a game played at Albert College when Brown's Olympics whipwashed them 9-0. Daryl Asselstine potted three goals for the winners with Jay Brethetick adding two.

Sine Fine

A four run explosion in the top of the sixth threatened to cap a come from behind victory for Crookston in a Thurlow - Sidney Softball league game Tuesday night 16 - 4. A fine relief performance by Ralph Sine preserved a 7-4 win for Dicken's Voyageurs, the three losing teams each managed only four goals.

A four-goal performance by Wade Grier and a five goal output by Rick Bell helped Sun Lack Gardens bury the Bantam All-Stars 14-4 in one midget game while in the other, Belleville Auto Dealers nipped Marv's Esso 5-4. John Loder paced the winners with three goals while Jim Scott equalled Loder's total in a losing effort.

In the only novice game, Golden Mile edged Bob's Sports 5-4. Steve Vincent with three goals and Dan Prewer with two were the big guns for the winners while Gerry Healey accounted for three of the four tallies for Bob's.

Victory Sweet

The Ellis Sweethearts didn't live up to their name in Belleville Girls Minor Softball play last night as they hammered out a 35-13 win over the Doug's Food Service seniors. In the other senior tilt, Mel Barriage edged AVCO Fin-ance 13-12.

Turcotte Heating and Tots 'N' Teens found 28 runs to be the key to junior division success as the beaters downed Clayton TV 28-19, while Tots looked after Yardmen's Beneficial 28-16. In the other contest Quinte Food Market slopped Dairy Queen 23-12.

One Miss For Lewis

Larry Lewis had no reservations about pitching to the Reserve hitters last night as the Plane's Concrete righthander fired a one-hitter to pace the South Hastings League leaders to a 12-0 win.

A single by M. Maracle was the only safety off Lewis, who struck out 11 batters and issued a lone walk over the route. Glenn Maracle was touched for 12 hits on the Reserve mound, striking out seven and walking five batters.

Lewis also provided much of the offensive punch for Plane's banging out two doubles and a single. Warren Hay followed with three singles while Ken Abrams collected a pair of safeties for the winners.

Reds Start Producing For Gary Nolan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati's Gary Nolan, who couldn't get even a little help from his friends a few weeks ago, now is getting support in double doses from his Reds' team-mates.

Nolan, who pitched in bad luck for most of the season, tossed a six-hitter Tuesday night to beat Philadelphia Phillies 6-1 with the backing of timely doubles by Tony Perez, Hal McRae and George Foster.

It was the second successive complete game victory for the 23-year-old right-hander, who had lost five in a row from May 19 to June 8 as his team scored a total of three runs behind him.

In other National League action, New York Mets topped Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2, Atlanta Braves trimmed Montreal Expos 4-0, San Francisco Giants blanked Chicago Cubs 2-0, St. Louis Cardinals shaded Los Angeles Dodgers 6-5 and Houston Astros beat San Diego Padres 4-2.

GARY NOLAN

Nolan, an 18-game winner last season, got off to a 3-2 start this spring before going on his losing streak.

The breaks began going for Nolan last Friday night when he scattered seven Atlanta hits and the Reds pounded out 12, including four doubles, a triple and two home runs, to beat the Braves 6-1.

Tuesday night, he limited the Phillies to an unearned run in the ninth inning, lowering his ERA to 2.71, while the Reds forged ahead 4-0.

Lee May's two-run single in the seventh wrapped it up for the Reds, who stroked 10 hits.

Rookie Charlie Williams blanked Pittsburgh on three hits for eight innings and reliever Danny Frisella choaked off a two-run Pirate rally in the ninth as the Mets gained ground in the East Division race.

Ron Reed fired a three-hitter and the Braves struck for four runs in the third to top Montreal. Reed, blanked the Expos on five hit-an infield single by losing pitcher Steve Renko—until the ninth.

Left-hander John Cumberland, making his first start for the Giants, outpitched Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., yielding just three hits before getting last-out relief help from Jerry Johnson.

Chris Speier's run-scoring single in the sixth sparked the Giants to their sixth straight victory for a 7½-game lead in the West.

Joe Torre, Lou Brock and Jerry McMertney divided nine of St. Louis' 14 hits and left-hander Steve Carlton, 11-3, stopped the Dodgers on six.

Joe Morgan's bases-loaded triple made the difference for the Astros, who capitalized on errors for all their runs.

McCovey Sidelined

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco Giants placed first baseman Willie McCovey on the disabled list Tuesday night and indicated he may undergo surgery on his left knee.

After a game with Chicago Cubs, Dr. E. C. Sailer said he and a specialist had run some tests on McCovey's ailing knee and found some cartilage damage.

Birds Make Room For Fifth Starter

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

With a starting pitching rotation that had produced 30 complete games in 34 months, the one thing Baltimore Orioles didn't seem to need was another starting pitcher.

But Earl Weaver, manager of the Orioles, handed the baseball to a new starter Tuesday night and now Grant Jackson has given the pitching-rich Birds another wing.

Jackson and Tom Dukes combined for a seven-hit shutout Tuesday night as Baltimore blanked Washington Senators 2-0, earning a split of their twi-night double-header. The Senators had taken the first game 8-6.

In other American League action Tuesday, Minnesota Twins walloped Oakland Athletics 10-1, Chicago White Sox rapped Kansas City Royals 11-6, Detroit Tigers split a doubleheader with New York Yankees, winning 7-4 and then losing 2-1, and Cleveland Indians divided a pair with Boston Red Sox, winning 9-3 before losing 3-0. California's game at Milwaukee was rained out.

Weaver has stuck with a rotation of Jim Palmer, Mike Cuellar, Dave McNally and Pat Dobson all season and Jackson's start in Tuesday's nightcap was the first this year for any Oriole pitcher other than these four.

Jackson had worked in only nine games and pitched just 14 innings all season before getting his start.

In the opener, Paul Lindblad hurled six hitless innings in relief to earn the victory after Cuellar blew an early 4-0 lead. Don Buford had a three-run homer for Baltimore and Don Mincher added a two-run shot for the Senators.

Minnesota backed Jim Perry's three-hit pitching with a four home-run assault that destroyed Oakland. Rich Reese stroked two homers and Tony Oliva and Harmon Killebrew tagged one apiece as the Twins made Perry's 11th victory easy. Killebrew's homer was the 498th of his career.

Chicago exploded for eight runs in the second inning with Bill Melton's two-run homer capping the rally and the White Sox ripped Kansas City.

Sonny Siebert notched his 100th major league victory, a six-hitter, that eased Boston past Cleveland in the second game of their doubleheader.

Stan Bahnsen hurled his sixth straight complete game victory beating Detroit to earn a split of the doubleheader for the Yankees.

Builders Climb at Quinte's Expense

Rollins Construction and the Ellis Juniors took advantage of last night's Commercial Softball League doubleheader to each move up a notch in the league standings.

Rollins broke a first place deadlock with Point Anne as they administered a 4-2 defeat to the cellar - dwelling Quinte Hotel squad, while the Juniors moved ahead of Howard and Robert in the battle for third place by handing the Printers a 4-3 setback.

Wayne McConnell recorded his fifth consecutive win of the season by handcuffing the Hotelmen on three hits.

His teammates gave him all the support he needed with a three-run rally in the first inning.

Ralph Plane opened the bottom of the first with a double and an infield error and stolen base put runners on first and second. Paul Goodfellow drove in both runners with a single and Jerry Hill added another run-scoring base hit before Quinte starter Pat Scollard was able to put out the fire.

McConnell struck out eight batters and failed to walk a man in the seven innings that he worked. Scollard was touched for seven hits before giving way to reliever Bob Swan in the fourth inning. Between them, they struck out two batters and showed flawless control.

Plane and Goodfellow each had a double and two singles for the winners with the other hits going to Hill, Wes May and McConnell. For Quinte it was Rick Locke, Dwight Rathwell and Rick Devaral.

Outfielder Glenn Carleton came through with a clutch blast in the bottom of the ninth to give the Juniors their 4-3 edge over Howard and Robert.

A walk and a wild pitch put the winning run in scoring position with two out before Carleton uncorked his game-winning blast into the right field corner.

Ron Rodgers picked up the win on a two - hit effort after relieving Ted Waite in the bottom of the sixth inning. They recorded six strikeouts and issued two walks, while weathering nine hits.

A two - run explosion in the top of the sixth had sent Howard and Robert into a 3-0 lead as singles by Peg Kellar, Bill Barberstock and Gary Gow along with Rusty Garvin's double accounted for the two tallies.

The Juniors battled back to tie the score in the bottom of the inning however with John Campbell's triple driving in two runs, and Waite following with an RBI-single against Larry Marshall who went the full nine innings for the loser.

The Howard and Robert righthander allowed only five hits over the distance, while fanning five batters and walking three.

Waite collected two singles for the winners with the other safeties going to Carleton, Campbell and John Sutherland.

For the losers it was Gow, Garvin and Marshall each with two hits.

These Hitters Had Midas Touch

A two-man hitting barrage led Midas Muffler to a commanding 23-5 rout of the ANAF Vets Softball.

Two home runs, a double and two singles by John Heidstra plus three home runs and a double by Randy Ryckman were enough to overpower the Vets.

In other action Richard Ellis doubled the score on the SACO Squirts 14-7, Western Tire flattened Belch's 37-8 and Woodland Cleaners nipped Conley's Grocery 16-15.

Wayne Enos paced the Woodland victory by punching a homer, two doubles and a single.

Yardmen Win From Word Go

The CNR Yardmen took quick command of their Industrial League Softball game against V. L. Card Tuesday night as they continued their torrid pace up the league standings but Morch Mariners needed some last minute heroics to record a victory over Mead Johnson.

The Yardmen tallied three times in the first inning and never looked back as they bounced V. L. Cards 5-1 and slipped into second place past the idle Intelligencer. Brian Plumbe fired the win for the CNR allowing seven hits while striking out three and walking five, Cam McKenna and Brent McGregor each walloped a homer with Homer Thomas adding a triple.

Doug Snell went the route for the losers giving up 10 hits in recording four strikeouts. Paul Sharpe's triple was the only extra base hit for Card's.

Morch's withstood a three-run rally by Mead's in the top of the seventh then pushed one across in their half of the inning to record their 4-3 win. Wilson Bulpit fanned 11 batters in picking up the victory. A homer and single by Don Foxert and a solo shot by Bill MacCormack paced the Morch hitting attack.

Sonny Holoway was tagged with the loss despite fanning 10 batters. Blaine Young's two doubles and single and triples by Ray Sarles and Gary Greenleaf were the best Meads could muster.

Tykes Touch Plate Like No Tomorrow

Baseball returned to the hilers Tuesday night as a total of 75 runs crossed the plate in Belleville Minor Baseball Tyke playoff play. Allumbers 109 was the big producer, pouring in 32 runs to fry Harvey's Hamburgers 32-11. Mulroney's Sunoco outdistanced the CNR Yardmen 19-13 in the other game.

Mark Crawford supplied most of the offence for Allumbers striking a grand slam homer, two doubles, and two singles; while Dale McTaggart added three triples and two singles to the victory his parade. Gar Pennington was the only threat for Harvey's at the plate hitting for three safeties.

Mulroney's pitching staff proved to be the sluggers, with Shawn Mulroney contributing for a double and two singles and Greg McEachern hitting a double and three singles. Lindsay Bradley punched a double and two singles in a losing cause for the CNR.

Trudeau Tells Laid Off Workers There Are Jobs in Mines

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau swept through four federal ridings to the west and north of Toronto Tuesday, leaving a trail of closed schools and "Diefle duddles" behind.

He hopped by armed forces helicopter from wealthy Oakville to Bramalea, a bedroom suburb, to the Sheridan Park industrial research centre, to rural Aurora, shaking thousands of young hands.

In the process, he:

—Told laid-off Northern Electric workers at Bramalea they can get jobs as miners at Thompson, Man. and Sudbury, Ont., and their girl friends can work as maids if they need money.

—Warned that inflation is again on the rise and unemployment will be too unless more restraint is shown than was during the last anti-inflation bout.

—Advised that someone will pay the bill for cutting one million poor Canadians off the tax rolls and reducing taxes for others.

"You've got to face the consequences and so have we," he said at Bramalea, talking about last week's budget and proposed tax legislation.

"You sure we will at the next election, which, I hope, will be a long time away."

It was a gentle deflation of speculation there will be a fall election. The two-day foray into the Toronto area, where thefts are more than one million votes, is regarded by some as a preliminary skirmish.

Travelling with Mr. Trudeau was Defence Minister Donald Macdonald and parliamentary secretary Barnett Danson, MP for York-North.

About 3,000 kids from a dozen schools in Oakville set the tone for the day.

"Where's your wife"

"Home washing the dishes."

"Hi, sir. Fuddle duddle."

"You too."

Big grins and peace signs accompanied all this.

Aides fended off autograph hounds.

"I'll give you my fingerprints instead," Mr. Trudeau said, chuckling heads.

The helicopter, taking off from a wharf at Bronte, blew over a light sailboat. The twin copter also blew away policemen's hats, and one bright red shirt, at other stops.

At Bramalea, a dozen laid-off Northern Electric workers stood out in a crowd of about 3,000—mostly kids.

The workers held signs saying Stop Layoffs, Stick your Policies and We Want Jobs not Kisses.

To a girl holding a sign he said:

"You can work as a maid if you want. What's wrong with that? Do you need money?"

"Yeah," was the reply.

"Well work as a maid. I'll find you some jobs."

Inside the arena at Bramalea, a youth grabbed by police was held until Mr. Trudeau left. It wasn't clear what he had done.

At Sheridan Park, a $40 million industrial research centre, Mr. Trudeau was told that "a serious pause" is hurting industrial research and development as budgets were chopped. Clear federal policy was called for.

The day ended at Aurora, a town of 10,000 north of Toronto in rolling farm country, with a "town meeting" at which Mr. Trudeau answered questions for about an hour.

About 5,000 persons were at the helicopter or in the arena. Mostly adults, they were smiling and warm as they shook hands and said "Welcome to Aurora."

Persistent Job-hunter Gives PM His Name

BRAMALEA, Ont. (CP) — When Dennis Everitt, 22, went job hunting Tuesday he went to the top man—Prime Minister Trudeau.

"I want a job," he yelled at Mr. Trudeau as the Prime Minister passed along fences holding back a crowd of about 2,000 after he landed in this community northwest of Toronto.

Mr. Trudeau replied: "There are lots of jobs in the mines at Thompson Man. If you give me your name, I can get you one there."

But then the Prime Minister was hustled away from the protest group of about 50 persons told off from the local plant of the Northern Electric Mr. Everitt did not give up. He borrowed $1.25 to attend a municipal luncheon.

Then he jotted his name, address and occupation on the back of a cigarette carton, went to the luncheon.

When the Prime Minister arrived, Mr. Everitt thrust the cigarette carton in front of his face saying, "You told me to give you my—"

The Prime Minister asked: "Are you willing to move out of town?"

"Yes. But what about the other 500 who have been laid off so far this year at my plant?"

Mr. Trudeau shrugged and a crush of children and police carried him towards the stage to celebrate the 150th birthday of Chinguacousy Township.

Mr. Everitt grabbed a sandwich and went home to wait for a reply to his job application.

Benson's Tax Cuts Total 15 Cents in $10 of Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — The amount of tax relief contained in Finance Minister Edgar Benson's budget for the balance of this year amounts to 15 cents in every $10 he might otherwise have taken into the treasury.

The fact that it is not more stems from the degree to which government spending has mounted in recent years—up to 50 per cent in four years.

If Mr. Benson had granted no tax relief in the budget he presented the Commons Friday night he would still have had to borrow well over $500 million to add to his tax and other revenues, just to cover anticipated expenditures.

The tax relief amounts to an estimated $207 million, with $125 million of it coming off personal income taxes. Relief from sales and excise taxes, which should lower prices for margarine and electronic equipment including radios, television sets and record players, amounts to another $23.5 million.

The remaining $48.5 million primarily benefits business $40 million in dropping the three-per-cent anti-inflation surtax on corporation profit taxes and the rest in reduced taxes on anti-pollution equipment, duties on heavy oils, petroleum feedstocks, and sawmill and logging equipment.

After making the tax cuts, Mr. Benson estimated his budgetary revenues for the fiscal year ending next March 31 will run to $13,670 million, if he had not made the tax cuts, his revenues might have run to $13,527 million. But that is still significantly short of the $14,408 million he forecasts in 1971-72 federal budgetary expenditures.

While $207 million has a nice ring to it in every person's ears, it amounts to only 1.6 per cent of the revenues Mr. Benson might have expected if he had not made the tax cuts.

Four years ago, when the federal government's budget ran a record deficit of $705 million, its revenues were $9,626 million and its expenditures $9,971 million.

Tax cuts of the order of $200 million four years ago would have been the equivalent of 2.1 cents on $10 of government revenues 15 cents.

Stirling

STIRLING — Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hollins were honored at a dinner party in Hollins's home on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary. Their children Paul Hollins and Mrs. Don McIlroy, arranged the celebration which included their three grandchildren. A decorated anniversary cake was cut by Mrs. Hollins and served.

Saskatchewan Votes Today

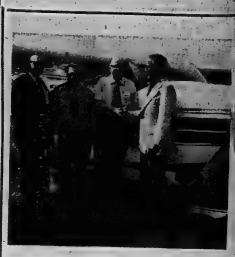
REGINA (CP) — The result of today's Saskatchewan election will chart the political course of the province for the next five years but both major political parties believe the outcome will have much broader implications.

Premier Ross Thatcher, who has urged the political destruction of the New Democratic Party opposition since becoming Liberal premier in 1964, says the result also will be crucial in the national fight between private enterprise and "the socialists."

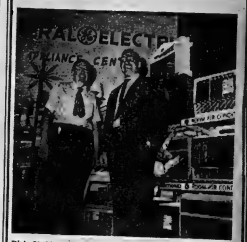
NDP officials say that, following the party's victory in Manitoba, a Saskatchewan win could have considerable influence on an Ontario provincial election.

Both Mr. Thatcher, 54, and NDP Leader Allan Blakeney, 46, made pleas to the province's Conservatives for support.



Since the late 1950s Saskatchewan has generally supported Conservatives at the federal level and Liberals provincially.

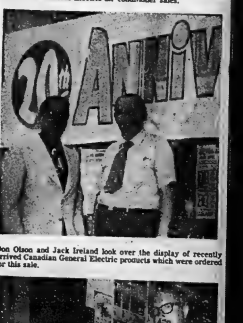
At dissolution May 25, the Liberals held 34 seats, the NDP 34 and one seat was vacant.



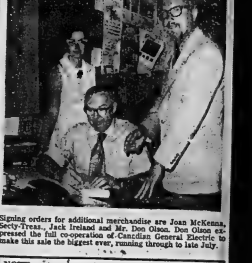
Both the Liberals and NDP are running full slates of 60 candidates and the Conservative party, led by Ed Nasserden, has 16 candidates in the field. There is one Communist and one Independent candidate in the field of 128 hopefuls contesting the 60 seats. In 1967 there were 125 candidates vying for 59 seats. Redistribution last year added one seat.

If the Conservative vote in ridings where no Conservative is running goes heavily in either direction, it could mean the difference between victory and defeat in most instances.

There are indications of a heavy voter turnout with advance polls in Regina and Saskatoon almost double compared with the last election in 1967.



Something new in appliance retailing was initiated last week when Mr. Don Olson, new Canadian General Electric Ontario Sales Manager and Mr. Dick Gladden, former Sales Manager flew into Belleville to congratulate Jack Ireland on his 30th Anniversary in business.



Dick Gladden, Canadian General Electric Ontario Sales Manager discusses with Jack Ireland the excellent job done in appliance merchandising over the past 30 years.

Don Olson congratulates Jack Ireland Junior on the large increase in General Electric air conditioner sales.

Don Olson and Jack Ireland look over the display of recently arrived Canadian General Electric products which were ordered for this sale.

Signing orders for additional merchandise are Joan McKenna, Secty-Treas., Jack Ireland and Mr. Don Olson. Don Olson expressed the full cooperation of Canadian General Electric to make this sale the biggest ever, running through to late July.

New prices are now in effect on televisions, stereos and other electronic equipment according to the removal of the tax announced in the budget.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: Is the Wolfe Island to Cape Vincent, N.Y., ferry operating yet?

ANSWER: Yes. It leaves Wolfe Island at 8:15 a.m. daily with the exceptions of Sundays and American holidays on which day it leaves Wolfe Island at 9:30 a.m. and leaves Cape Vincent at 10.00 a.m. The Ferry makes seven crossings daily. As for cost, the car and driver is covered for $1.50 and additional passengers are charged 50 cents.

QUESTION: Is "Man and His World" going to be in Montreal this summer?

ANSWER: Yes. Man and His World opened in Montreal on June 12 and will remain open until Labor Day.

QUESTION: We would like to visit Newfoundland this summer and would like to know something about accommodation, ferry service, etc. Could you supply us with some information?

ANSWER: There are good accommodations at Corner Brook, Grand Falls, Gander, and St. John's, Newfoundland but few other accommodations. Restaurants are few and far between as well as being somewhat expensive. Seafood on the coast, however, is excellent. Fishing, hunting and camping are the things to do in this province. The rivers are full of trout and fish can be bought at the side of the road. There is good hunting and 30 fine large parks for camping at $1.50 a night. There is a twice-daily ferry service from North Sydney, Nova Scotia, to Port-aux-Basques, and in summer Argentinia provides an 18 - hour cruise. After you get off the Ferry there is a paved 565 mile drive across the island on the Trans Canada Highway to St. John's. On this drive you'll travel through a remote countryside of forest, rock, lake and mountainous terrain. It will be wise to pack a lunch and fill your car full of gas as there are few service stations and restaurants along the way and gasoline can cost as to 94 cents a gallon. It would be a good idea to take a tent along with you too, as it is doubtful if you could reach St. John's in a day.

QUESTION: We are driving to Edmonton, Alberta, in July and would like to drive from Edmonton to Vancouver, B.C. on the new Yellowhead Pass Hwy. How does this compare with the Trans-Canada Hwy.?

ANSWER: The Yellowhead Pass snakes its way through the Rockies a couple of hundred miles north of the Rogers Pass which is the route the Trans-Canada takes through the mountains. The Trans-Canada takes you on a very scenic route from Calgary through Banff to Vancouver.

The Yellowhead Pass cuts through the mountains via Jasper, between Edmonton and Vancouver, B.C., and is also very picturesque.

If you want an idea of how spectacular mountain scenery is along this new highway, ask someone who has taken a CN trans-continental train west. The Yellowhead follows the path of the CN tracks through the Rockies. But scenery isn't only selling point for the Yellowhead. In the first place, its highest elevation is just over 3,000 feet while the Rogers Pass is a mile high at one point and well over 4,000 feet at others. The Yellowhead allows motorists looking for a three-week all-Canadian tour to make a circle of the best of B.C. and Alberta. You can go to the coast via Edmonton and Jasper on the Yellowhead highway and return via Banff and Calgary on the Trans-Canada Highway.

While the Yellowhead is Canada's newest major highway it is probably the oldest route through the Rockies. History or legend says the pass was named after a fair-headed Indian who made a habit of storing his furs in the shadows of the mountains.

When the paleface came looking for a route through the mountains, he discovered the cache and named it after the yellow-haired Indian.

Arctic Pipe Ruling In 1972

OTTAWA (CP) — The government apparently will postpone for a year — until the fall of 1972 — any decision on whether to approve $5 billion worth of gas and oil pipeline construction in the Arctic.

Tucked away Monday in a written Commons reply by Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien was a one-sentence statement that final research reports into environmental effects of northern pipelines will not be available until fall next year.

Previously, Mr. Chretien had said sufficient data would be available this year for a pipeline decision.

On March 18 he told the Commons a final conclusion could be arrived at "before the end of 1971 at the latest."

Randolph Harding (N D P—Kootenay West), who put the questions to Mr. Chretien, said in an interview the research program—known as ALUR for Arctic Land Use Research—might take five years.

He said the $500,000 allocated for ALUR in the current fiscal year is hardly enough to fly the scientists into and out of the sites of the two chief research projects at Inuvik and Fort Good Hope in the Northwest Territories.

The government may feel it could not reach a pipeline decision in time anyway to offset a United States decision on a tanker route, informants say.

A decision is considered imminent on whether the U.S. will approve transportation of oil from Prudhoe Bay on Alaska's North Slope by pipeline to Pacific tidewater and then by giant tanker down the British Columbia coast to Cherry Point, Wash.

This is why a scramble is on for another meeting with U.S. officials to elaborate on Canadian objections to the tanker route, which would take ships into comparatively narrow Juan de Fuca Strait.

Canadian and U.S. officials first met May 3.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and State Secretary William Rogers further discussed the problem in Washington June 18.

Mr. Rogers promised another meeting soon.

Canada wants to block the tanker route because of the danger of oil spills. If it can't, it wants to obtain the best safety measures possible for the British Columbia coast.

Canada has put little on the official record in this regard—only a Feb. 18 letter from Mr. Sharp to Mr. Rogers requesting a meeting.

Officials explained Tuesday that Canada and the U.S. have been working so closely together on the problem that all exchanges have been handled verbally in personal meetings or by telephone.

At the Sharp-Rogers meeting, the U.S. suggested that Canadian oil shipments in the St. Lawrence Seaway and Great Lakes might endanger U.S. territory.

Canada agreed to discuss this point at the next meeting. But Canadian officials say the West Coast tanker route is still by far the paramount issue.

In 1968, soon after the Prudhoe Bay discovery in Alaska, Canada began research on a possible pipeline route for gas and oil through the Mackenzie Valley.

In August last year the government published guides for construction of pipelines in the North.

Earlier this year, Mr. Chretien said:

"We need pipelines in Canada —but not at any price."

The opposition accused him and Energy Minister J. J. Greene of selling out to the U.S. without adequate safeguards for Canada.

Eric Kierans, who resigned April 20 as communications minister in a policy dispute with Prime Minister Trudeau, opposed a $5 billion expenditure by U.S. interests in the Canadian Arctic as economy-upsetting.

The Commons environmental protection committee in a report Monday said the proposed tanker route from Alaska to Washington State is detrimental to Canada's national interests.

Serious oil spills in Canadian waters and on Canadian shores were inevitable and would result in substantial damage to the environment and to the tourist and fishing industries.

It Never Rains But It Soars

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Brewers and California Angels were rained out Tuesday night, which inspired the pun of the week from Brewer manager Dave Bristol:

"When it rains, It Soars," Bristol said.

The Brewers had a 2-0 lead when the rains came in the third inning with Milwaukee Pitcher Jim Lonborg calling it quits, rescheduling the game as part of a twi-night doubleheader tonight.

The incident was strikingly similar to one May 21. At that time, the Brewers were leading Kansas City Royals 4-1 and were two outs away from a victory for Lockwood when Soar's crew called that game.

Frank Lane, the Brewers director of baseball operations, had severely criticized Soar on the earlier occasion, and did so again Tuesday night.

"It's stopped raining right now," Lane said after the game was postponed. "Here's more money, Tommy Ferguson a Brewer official gave him Soar an official look at the weatherman a half hour before he called it, that it would rain for a maximum of 30 to 45 minutes and then stop.

"If he's so happy to go home, why does he bother to show up" Lape said.

BRAND NEW OLDER EAST HILL
4 BEDROOMS

Now you can own a new 4-bedroom home immediately moving into the outlying new sub-divisions. Close to downtown, this home has 1½ baths, full basement. Sound good? Well listen to this! The downpayment is under $3,000.00. Possession almost immediately.

THEY SAID IT COULDN'T BE DONE

but we did it anyway: built a 3-bedroom home with carport on a fully-serviced lot with sodded front yard, close to schools, for under $16,000.00. No, it hasn't got colored bath fixtures, nor has it a family room, but it is darned good 3 bedroom accommodation for the family that doesn't want the kids smothered in an apartment. Call us today! You will be pleasantly surprised.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

X-rays Useful In Osteoporosis

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My doctor says I have osteoporosis. He says my bones are brittle. Is this a form of rheumatism? I keep having terrible pains in my back. Especially when I'm tired.

I am 50, but certainly don't feel like an old woman yet; except for the aches. All I take is aspirin. Don't you think I need at least some X-rays to find out what's really going on? — Mrs. G.

COMMENT: Trying to "save you money" some doctors do not advise X-rays for all patients who have a backache. But I believe that the majority will order films.

It's important to know just how much demineralization has occurred. (How much calcium has disappeared from the bone structure leaving it more brittle than normal.)

Many have osteoporosis and don't even know it. They have no pain. But in the more severe cases there may even be fractures of the vertebrae — even though the patient is able to get around. It's important to know this early. Using braces and other methods of support, the doctor is often able to prevent further crippling damage.

• • •

Yes, osteoporosis is one type of the many rheumatic diseases that have hounded man for thousands of years. Exactly what causes the bones to get brittle, we don't know. But as in your case, it seems more common after a woman has passed through her menopause. Therefore we think that change in hormone secretion may be a contributing cause. Incidentlly, men have osteoporosis, too.)

Once the diagnosis has been made, what can we do for you? Hormones may help. A full diet is necessary, with plenty of protein and milk goodly amount of calcium. Some have found improvement after taking fluorides and large amounts of vitamins. Although rest is important, so is a moderate amount of exercise.

I suggest, Mrs. that you ask your doctor again about the need for X-rays. I believe it's important to have them. The earlier the complete diagnosis, the better the results.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have been having severe angina. I have been advised to have pictures taken of my coronary arteries. My doctor says that new heart surgery can be quite helpful. True? — Mr. Y.

Comment: In many such cases there have been gratifying results. What your doctor suggests is coronary arteriography (pictures). And the operation is sometimes called coronary transplant or bypass.

Here is a letter from such a patient: "I am 52 years of age. I had a coronary bypass two months ago. I had three badly diseased coronary arteries with obstruction. They only replaced two with veins from my legs. My last angiogram showed that my main coronary artery is now working beautifully. I am doing lots of walking and am on a low cholesterol diet. I have had no chest pains since the operation. I know I am much better off than I was and am thankful for it." — Mrs. F.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My wife and I, aged 73 and 75, respectively, have been getting vitamin injections that require very frequent visits to the doctor. Benefits for this service are disallowed by Medicare. The expense is too great for our circumstances. Can B-complex vitamins be taken by mouth? Are they as effective?—Mr. M.

Comment: Unless there are specific indications for injection, you'll find that vitamins by mouth are quite effective.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Drive as Slowly as You Can

There might be a lesson for our economy, and our society, in the maxim of a racing driver. Stirling Moss once made a paradoxical comment on the way to win a race: "It consists in driving as slowly as you can."

What did he mean by this strange remark? He meant the racing driver tries to win by the smallest possible margin: that is, he goes only as fast as is consistent with edging out the other drivers; if he tries to go the limit and beat other drivers by a large margin, he will almost surely crack up and lose.

Moss was making the distinction — so often forgotten by the rest of us in other fields — between the "maximum" and the "optimum". It is an important distinction in every kind of work, and understanding it may mark the difference between success and failure.

The "maximum" means simply the most, taken as an absolute in itself. The "optimum" means the greatest degree or best result obtainable under specific conditions. For instance, the maximum speed of a racing car may be 200 miles an hour; but the optimum speed — what is needed to win without cracking up — may be only 180 miles an hour. At anything above that, the risk is greater than the possible reward.

Our economy heretofore has always aimed at "maximization" — at maximizing profits, at maximizing production, at maximizing income, and all the other indices of "affluence." Our motto has been: "The more the better" and therefore, the most the best."

But suppose that "optimization" is what we should now aim for — not the "biggest" but the "best" result in terms of the changed conditions of life on earth? This would imply changing our scale of values so that the long-term "social costs" of our economic efforts are taken into consideration, as they have not been in the past.

For it seems clear that we have to choose today between quantity and quality. It is the sheer quantity of our production — beyond a certain quality of our lives: the two, unfortunately, do not rise together into infinity, but at some point must be held in a sophisticated balance.

The task before us now is to learn how to "optimize" — cracking up. This might mean lowering our standard of private living, so that our public needs can be met. It might mean decreasing the use of energy to maintain environmental health. Whatever measures we take, if we keep firmly in mind that the "maximum" may be the enemy of the "optimum," our track record might be as impressive as Stirling Moss'.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For June 17

Your birthday today: Quiet progress this and next year builds to major achievements, according to the extent of your goals and the effort you invest. Self improvement proceeds well. Today's natives tend to jealousy and are happier dancing than in any other pastime.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Strive to make this a worthwhile day of full output to balance recent discrepancies. Bring in more help, spread the good word.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Realize that family members change and grow. Be philosophical about their moods. You have your own quirks, remember?

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Sentimental messages promise just the words you need at the moment. Sharing sunshine with others is an improvement for tomorrow as well, so stay busy.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): No matter how lively the conflict, there's nothing to be gained by getting in and taking sides. They'll be brought together again sooner or later and you'll need to be free to move.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Seemingly everything said or done on a day like this is charged with emotion, expressive of some personal choice. Continue your search for truth regardless.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Follow the implications of your work as you perform routines. See its benefit beyond your own immediate area.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You may as well test your leadership powers today as any other time. Do your level best, sincerely and directly to the point.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): The morning is crowded and urgent; hard work prevails. Afternoon and evening offer compensation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Systematic programming, good work habits show up well, yield unusually high results. Just be sure of your schedule and stay on it faithfully.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Today you balance accounts, even off tensions. Apologize where appropriate and proceed. Later hours bring a satisfaction.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your big ideas tend to overrun all budgets, lay back well or better if trimmed to size.

Smashing Victory Is Won By NDP in Saskatchewan

Grits Drop Thirty Seats

REGINA (CP) — In a stunning rebuff to the Liberal government, Saskatchewan voters returned to the fold of socialism Wednesday after an absence of seven years.

Allan Blakeney, 45-year-old lawyer, led a New Democratic Party upsurge that staggered even the most optimistic and ardent party supporters.

Standing as counting ended for the night:

| | 1971 | 1967 |
|---|---|---|
| NDP | 43 | 24 |
| Lib | 14 | 35 |
| Doubtful | 3 | — |
| Total | 60 | 59 |

The doubtful seat was Athabasca where Allan Guy, municipal affairs minister, was trailing in a see-saw battle with his NDP opponent, businessman Robert Dalby.

Mr. Blakeney, heading the party for less than a year after taking over from Woodrow Lloyd, had predicted winning between 34 and 36 seats.

The landslide was a blow to Premier Ross Thatcher, 54, a socialist turned Liberal, who caimpaigned on a plea for the voters to rid Saskatchewan of the NDP.

When Mr. Thatcher ousted the CCF, predecessors to the NDP, in 1964, after a 20-year reign, the Liberals won 32 seats, the CCF 26 and the Conservatives one.

Congress Members See Papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon turned the top-secret Pentagon study on Vietnam over to the U.S. Congress with leaders' hopes, but no promises, that more of it would be leaked to the public.

Leaders of both the House and Senate promised Defence Secretary Malvin R. Laird Wednesday the documents would be kept under lock and key, though all 534 senators and House members will be able to read and study them.

Laird, however, got no promises that congressmen will not leak it.

NDP Pledged New Deal

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan electorate has handed Allan Blakeney and his New Democratic party the deck. Now it's time for the deal —his New Deal for People.

Mr. Blakeney won a landslide victory Wednesday, toppling the Liberal administration of Ross Thatcher and returning the province to what he calls "democratic socialism" after the NDP spent seven years in opposition.

He intends to get right down to work by calling the legislature into session in late July.

Top priority will be given to the health field, removing medical deterrent fees and eliminating medical care insurance premiums for citizens 65 years and over.

The deterrent fees—called utilization fees by the Liberal government—are levied against an adult or child for hospital treatment and doctor's visits.

The charges, long criticized by the NDP as a tax against the sick and poor, are $2.50 a day for the first 30 days and $1.50 a day thereafter to a maximum of $100 a year a family. A charge of $1.50 is made for each visit to a doctor.

Mr. Blakeney also promised to "drastically reduce costs of essential drugs, eyeglasses, dentures, hearing aids, braces and wheel chairs."

Change in Ownership Of The Intelligencer Announced Today

In a joint statement by Gerald A. Morton, president and H. Myles Morton, vice-president, of The Intelligencer, it was announced today that Thomson Newspapers Limited has purchased the Ontario Intelligencer Limited which includes the newspaper and the commercial printing department. The sale also includes the building which houses the two businesses but not the Quinte Broadcasting Company which occupies part of the main floor of The Intelligencer building.

Dr. Morton started with the Ontario Intelligencer in 1930 after 10 years in the dental profession which he had to give up on medical advice because of an eye condition. In due course he became managing editor and in 1962 on the demise of his father, W. H. Morton who had been publisher since 1910, he took over as president and publisher.

In 1947 H. Myles Morton after serving with the Royal Canadian Navy during World War II and attending the University of Toronto, started in the newspaper business as accountant and later became business manager. In 1962 he became vice - president and general manager of The Intelligencer.

Dr. Morton and Myles Morton will continue to operate The Intelligencer as publisher and general manager, respectively. Assurances have also been mutually agreed to that

229 Canadians Draw Tickets

DUBLIN (CP) — A total of 229 Canadians had tickets drawn Wednesday on the Irish Hospitals Sweepstake based on Saturday's running of the Irish Sweeps Derby at Curragh, near here.

First prize is worth about $124,000 at current exchange rates, second prize about $49,600 and third prize, $24,800.

Holders of tickets on non-starters or horses out of the money each will receive a prize of about $1,100. The amount varies with the total pool.

Robbie J. Williams of Chicago won the $480,000 super prize Wednesday when his ticket was the first to be drawn. He will not be eligible for another prize.

The total amount of money put into the pool by Canadians cannot be estimated since the sale of sweepstake tickets is illegal in Canada.

Committee Lacks Adequate Personnel

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature's public accounts committee has not the staff or expertise to evaluate government spending properly, Donald Deacon told the committee Wednesday.

The Toronto York Centre Liberal said investigative machinery must be set up so the government changes its accounting procedures. The government now is in the process of doing this as two bills relating to accounting were given first reading Tuesday.

Mr. Deacon said he felt frustrated and as though nothing had been accomplished.

"There have been a few changes in accounting and reporting," he said.

"That's all we've done in the three years I've been here."

The committee must determine its future role in relation to the changing government accounting procedures and the implementation of central purchasing.

The committee decided to redraft recommendations relating to its future role as a government spending watchdog but approved other draft recommendations.

One of the chief recommendations was that the government implement its planned central purchasing policy "as quickly as possible to save public funds."

The committee also investigated what it called "the year-end acceleration of expenditures of the department of education."

It found that although evidence indicated the practice existed, "specific cases were difficult to find" because expenditures are given as lump sums for the year and item descriptions "are frequently vague."

New Injunction Sought To Prevent Apartments

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The battle of East Hill property owners seeking to block construction of a seven storey apartment building at 217 Bridge Street East is back on again.

Two weeks ago six East hill property owners in the Bridge Street - Bleecker Ave. area, through Toronto lawyer Malcolm Robb, made application for an injunction to restrain the city from issuing a building permit for the above property.

The hearing on the injunction scheduled for Osgoode Hall in Toronto was adjourned to Wednesday of this week but in the meantime was discontinued.

However, since Monday of this week, when council turned down a recommendation calling for temporary rezoning to block apartment house construction in "B" district, a second application for an injunction has been brought against the city.

The plaintiff is William Spinelli, 207 Bridge Street, East.

As in the first application the injunction application by Mr. Spinelli seeks to restrain the city from issuing a demolition permit at the Bridge Street property or from issuing a building permit.

This morning City Solicitor John C. Miller said the examination for discovery on the Spinelli application would be held in Belleville tomorrow with argument on the injunction application to be held in Supreme Court at Osgoode Hall in Toronto on Monday.

Anti-pollution Restraints

Urban Areas Get Off Lightly: Forsythe

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Pollution control requirements for rural areas seem to be more stringent than for the larger urban centres.

That is the claim of Thurlow deputy reeve Borden Forsythe who says that townships are criticized for strip development, while at the same time urban centres are allowed to continue building despite treatment plants being unable to handle all the sewage.

The claim of double standards for pollution control was made by the Thurlow deputy reeve at county council Wednesday following the report of the municipal reform committee by Dungannon Reeve Calvin White.

The report said that two members of the committee representing small urban centres expressed the view that unless amalgamation with their neighbors was possible in the foreseeable future, they would have to turn to annexation because of the restraints of natural growth and the lack of good building sites.

Strip development was taking place on the outskirts of urban centres and the committee report said this was deplored.

This brought the comment, from Mr. Forsythe that while strip development was claimed to be creating pollution of waterways, high rise apartments were being built in Belleville even though the municipality's treatment plant could handle only part of the present volume.

He said raw sewage could be seen floating on the water in the Bay of Quinte.

Despite claims of arsenic in the Moira River he said he would rather drink river water—or treated than treated water from the Bay of Quinte.

"There's a gap somewhere," he said, "and Toronto should give us some answers."

Thomson Newspapers Buy Intelligencer

all the present members of the staff will continue to have the same security in the terms of their employment in the future as they have had in the past and that no changes will be made in any of the various departments.

Kenneth R. Thomson, president of Thomson Newspapers Limited, gave assurance that there would be no changes in the personnel or policies of The Intelligencer.

"We are proud to be associated with The Intelligencer and the Bolton family, and we pledge ourselves to uphold their high standards of journalism.

"It has always been our policy to maintain and encourage the greatest possible degree of autonomy in our newspapers. We know that the individuality and local character of The Intelligencer is its greatest strength" Mr. Thomson said.

"I have known Gerald Morton and Myles Morton for many years and have always held them both in the highest esteem, personally and professionally. It gives me the greatest possible satisfaction: to know that we will now be associated.

"The purchase of The Intelligencer is evidence of our confidence in the expanding prosperity of Belleville and district. We believe that the area served by The Intelligencer holds a bright future in the economic and social development of Ontario," he added.

A brief history of journalism in Belleville is appropriate to this occasion.

In a paper presented to the annual meeting of The Ontario Historical Society in Belleville in 1930 J. Owen Herity, manager of The Chamber of Commerce, who was editor of The Daily Ontario from 1916 to 1920, recalled that journalism in Belleville had its beginnings in 1821, more than 40 years after the arrival of the first settlers.

In 1834, after several earlier newspaper ventures had failed, George Benjamin founded The Weekly Intelligencer. Thirteen years later, Mackenzie Bowell, who had served an apprenticeship with Mr. Benjamin, became a partner in the business. In 1848 Messrs. Bowell and Moore became proprietors. Three years later Mr. Moore retired and Mr. Bowell became sole proprietor.

In 1875 The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing Company acquired the paper Mr. Bowell being the principal stockholder. In 1867 The Daily Intelligencer began publication and appeared continuously until April 1, 1930. Mr. Bowell was more familiarly known as Sir Mackenzie Bowell when he was knighted at the time he was appointed to the office of Prime Minister of Canada. December 21, 1894. He remained in office until April 27, 1896.

The direct progenitor of The Weekly Ontario was The Victoria Chronicle, established in 1841 by Washburn and Soltau. It was published in the Victoria Buildings on the northeast corner of Victoria Avenue and Front Street. The name "Victoria" was used because Belleville was then situated in the Victoria parliamentary division.

In 1849 The Victoria Chronicle was acquired by Elisha Miles and he ran it successfully until 1872 when it was amalgamated with The Weekly Ontario. More than 20 years before (in 1850) Mr. Miles changed the name of the paper to The Hastings Chronicle and it continued to be known by this name.

In 1870 J. W. Carman and Jacob Yeomans formed a joint-stock company known as The Ontario Publishing Company. On Saturday, March 26, 1870, they issued the first number of The The Daily Ontario. The following week the first number of The Weekly Ontario appeared. Mr. Carman became editor and Mr. Yeomans acted as business manager.

The Ontario Publishing Company had published the paper for five years when Mr. T. S. Carman, founder of the Napanee Express, came to Belleville and acquired the property. For a time he retained the services of his brother as editor. Mr. Carman held control until 1910 when W. H. Morton and his brother-in-law, J. O. Herity, purchased the business.

J. O. Herity retired from active editorial work in 1920 and was appointed secretary-manager of Belleville Chamber of Commerce and industrial commissioner for the city.

In 1922 W. H. Morton acquired full control of The Ontario, and F. W. Rathbun became editor-in-chief, with A. G. Davie as advertising manager.

At the beginning of 1930 Belleville ceased to be a two-paper city when Mr. Morton purchased from the shareholders The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing Business and acquired the premises where the newspaper was published. He also purchased from Ontario block where the unsold papers were published. The merger was completed on April 1, 1930, when the first issue of The Ontario Intelligencer was published.

The Intelligencer, as it is now styled, is one of the oldest papers in Ontario, having maintained continuous publication since 1834. The Bolton Whig-Standard has been in existance since 1810. The Brockville Recorder and Times since 1820 and The Picton Gazette since 1830. These four are Ontario's oldest newspapers.

Jail Closes And Costs Go Up

The official closing of the Hastings county jail earlier this month has resulted in an increase in the cost of maintenance at the county administration building.

Policy over the years had been to use the jail inmates to assist in maintenance chores around the county buildings and with the closing of the jail this help is no longer available.

The result was that an assistant maintenance man was needed and this position has been filled by John McKenzie.

With the closing of the county jail an auction sale of chattels owned by the county was held, the sale realising a net of $1,223.

The old county jail, along with a county - owned house at the Hastings Manor property, and a hog pen formerly used in connection with the county farm operation, are going under the wreckers' hammer.

Who's Your Friend?

The big fellow is called Beethoven and as Andy Sweetnam, 4, demonstrates, he's easy to handle. Beethoven is one of many toys which will be used at the day care centre and summer school being operated at Mobile Village at Bayside under the Opportunity for Youth program. A helping hand is given by, left to right, John Fulton, Sherry-Lee Irvine, 4, and Elizabeth Barrs.

Bayside Babysitting Bureau Operates on Youth Grant

BAYSIDE (Staff) — Babysitting a child for several hours can be a pleasant task or a real chore, but when one multiplies this number by up to 60, there's bound to be fun.

At least that's what six young people here are preparing for. Under the leadership of Christine Fulton, a summer school cum day care centre is being established with a trailer donated by Paul Sweetnam as a base for the operations at Mobile Village.

On May 16, 17 - year - old Miss Fulton received word from the federal government that a grant for the centre of $1,846.42 had been awarded under the Opportunities For Youth program. Of this sum, $1,700 will be used for salaries, the remainder for use in setting up the trailer, purchase of art supplies, a fire extinguisher and numerous games.

At present only 21 youngsters have been signed up for the centre, which will operate 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., five days a week from July 5 until Aug. 27. However, Miss Fulton said they were prepared to handle up to 60 children, primarily from the Bayside area, but exceptions could be made for ones coming from farther afield.

The mothers will be asked to pay 50 cents per day to cover costs of supplies and refreshments. The organizers expect any surplus will be turned back to the government at the end of the season.

When the children are registered, the parents are required to sign forms releasing the government of any responsibility. Registrations for the summer school will be held until Friday night, with information available at 392-1646.

Each of the centres staff, Elizabeth Barrs, 18, David Dwelak, 16, Jim, 17, and Donald Salgle, 15, and John Fulton, 15, has had extensive experience in caring for youngsters. Background includes St. John's Ambulance courses, playground helpers, lifeguarding and, not to be left out, babysitting.

Remanded

TRENTON (Staff) — William Ward facing four charges, failed in provincial court here yesterday to have his bail reduced. Returned to detention at the Napanee regional jail, he is scheduled to reappear in court June 30.

Opportunities in the Book Business

After 36 years of steady, continuous growth, COLES the Books people has instituted a program of Associate Ownership of existing and prospective locations. As an Associate-Owner of a COLES book store you can achieve independence and a profitable return on your investment. Operating under a proven formula every conceivable assistance is provided through the COLES System, however, a sound understanding of business methods would be an asset.

Applications are presently being considered from qualified individuals who are interested in devoting full time to a business of their own. Stores requiring investments of $20,000 and up subsequently available.

Write to Louis W. Orzech, Director of Associate Stores, COLES the Book people, 90 Ronson Drive, Rexdale, Ontario.

Oldsters Renewed Activity At O'Hara's Mill Yesterday

Smiling Faces Reflect Happy Mood of Partygoers

O'Hara Mill Setting Perfect For Picnic

Senior Citizens Week in the Quinte area was launched in grand style at O'Hara's Mill north of Madoc yesterday with 200 senior residents enjoying an afternoon outing sponsored by the information and educational committee of the Moira River Conservation Authority.

Senior citizens from Belleville, Madoc, Tweed and Campbellton sat down together at picnic tables loaded down with food and beverages provided by the authority. They had arranged their own transportation to the party.

Country entertainers and visits to the old one room school and saw mill on the premises delighted those who made the trip.

City alderman Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, the chairman of the information and education committee, accompanied the senior citizens to the conservation site.

Sea Cadets On Sailing Adventuro

The cadets left Friday afternoon in three sailing yachts provided by members of Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

Conditions were ideal for the cadets' purpose, for a heavy haze obscured the shoreline and gave the boys ample opportunity to practice their navigation.

On Sunday the remaining cadets from the Corps rendezvous at Adolphustown with those on the three yachts and all returned together to Belleville.

Those making the round the-county trip were all leading cadets, or petty officers.

Dressed For Occasion

Fashions today and yesterday were worn by the womenfolk attending the outdoor get together. The trio shown here posed for photographs outside the old school.

Restful Setting

Victor Kleinsteuber adjusted a rose on his wife's garment for picture taking. The couple from RR 1 Carrying Place stopped on the observation deck above the dam at O'Hara's Mill visited by senior citizens yesterday.

Rail Track Problem

Since rail track removal has been found to be feasible in other parts of Canada, a similar operation here should be given earnest consideration.

If the Canadian Pacific tracks skirting the waterfront and cutting through Foster ward, later to pass Highway 2 near the cemetery, were to be removed and routed elsewhere, it would be a major step in facilitating both urban development and traffic movement.

Such a step would also free the waterfront area generally, paving the way for pathways and park development in an area long neglected in this regard. In short it would be a move in favor of people, just as the cancellation of the Spadina Expressway was in the interests of the public.

However, the railway too must be served, for it is part of the lifeblood of the nation. An alternative route is the vital matter where it is concerned. Let the matter be discussed then; indeed Council is taking steps in this direction, with plans for talks with government and railway officials. The point to remember is, there will never be a better opportunity than now to proceed with rail removal. It would be a step that in the long run would benefit all.

High-flying Youth

Such a rush among the airlines to attract the younger people. Is it a ruse to fill those empty seats, and if so may we expect comparable fare advantages to the public at large?

But what will become of the young people once they reach the other side? Having scraped together the fare will they have visible means of support for further journeyings?

The possibility of tourist sections full of long hairs has also occurred to us and there was confirmation of this in some television film of an airport scene the other day. But never mind, we are not on a hair kick!

One thing though, if the alcoholic adult passenger is a problem and on airlines in the United States in particular, how will companies and cabin crews react to the possibility of young passengers already on a "trip" of another sort as they board the aircraft?

Ah yes, the potential problems are there: roads in Britain and Europe choked with hitchhikers and all the attendant problems of a new and often penniless generation of youth on the move. Wanderlust — 1971 - style.

Speaking of wanderlust, Belleville realtor Don Whalen has set an excellent example of practical concern for young people on the move this summer by offering to provide a large tent for overnight accommodation. Recreation committee staff, with Council's blessing, are working on the plan.

Quebec Says No

So Quebec has turned it down and all that palaver at Victoria a couple of weeks ago has gone to waste. Quebec must have things its own way; that is the meaning of Premier Bourassa's decision. Not now then, and maybe not in the future, will the Constitution be amended in Canada. Canada and Quebec are on the road to somewhere . . . but we fear it looks more and more like an ultimate parting of the ways.

World Court Ruling

South Africa's rule of the former German colony of South - West Africa has been ruled illegal by the International Court of Justice in The Hague. The Court says South Africa should surrender the colony immediately to the United Nations. But the ruling carries no legal weight and in any event, Prime Minister Vorster has rejected it. There is no mention of the feelings of the people of South - West Africa. Perhaps a plebiscite would be the best means of resolving the legality or otherwise of South Africa's control of the region.

Clean Sweep

That is a great idea called Project Sweep, in which no fewer than 90 new trucks have been provided by an auto company for use by students spending the summer working at cleaning up Ontario parks, conservation lands, lakes and river beds. The program's full title is Students Working in Environmental Enhancement and it seems to us the most concentrated and practical effort yet to turn back the litter and pollution problem.

What's A Million to the Bureaucracy?

Out with the Old and In with the New in Ottawa

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — "Normal disposal action will be taken through Crown Assets Disposal Corporation."

That is what it said — that and nothing more — in a report filed with the House of Commons by Privy Council President Allan MacEachen, proposing to an order of Parliament that the Government explain what was happening to an approximate $1,000,000 worth of furniture the Transport Department has been using.

Using, that is, until the Department, under a 10-year $26,-564,777 rental lease, began replanning a move into a new gleaming multi-million dollar high - rise commercial office complex, and buying $1,00,000 worth of new furniture to match. Jillingly, what Transport confessed, coyly, would be its "new modern arrangements."

If $1,000,000 worth of new furniture was required, it had to follow in the name of common sense that it must be replacing what had been, initially, $1,000,-000 worth of old furniture.

The whole department kit and kaboodle of furnishings was not being discarded, only, explained Transport that which needed replacing because of "obsolescence and incompatibility" with the slick new setting of its new posh, high - rise, high - rent offices.

The old stuff could not have been all that bad, because Transport had been making do with it, and that penny-pinching Newfoundander, department boss Don Jargieon was finding some of it still serviceable enough to haul along with him.

That, at first glance was the picture, sketched in a series of Government answers to questions by Maritime Conservative MP Robert Coates about the cost of Transport's multi-million-dollar move from an old federal to a new commercial building.

It was that sentence, though, "Normal disposal action will be taken through Crown Assets Disposal Corporation" that was the eye-catcher.

How does Crown Assets — the Government's own corporate second-hand store dealer—"normally dispose" of what, on replacement value at least, had to be $1,000,000 worth of old, but still in use, furniture?

The Government, again under the persistent prodding of the inquisitive Coates, in a reluctant, if not altogether unguarded moment, previously for the Commons record, had "teased up."

Answering for the Administration, the Department of Supply and Services explained:

"(a) Items of furniture are either reconditioned for sale to other Government departments and agencies, at reduced prices, or declared to Crown Assets Disposal Corporation for sale to commercial sources, (so far so good, eh?) or

"(b) those items found beyond economical repair and to have no market value are reduced to scrap and delivered to the Ottawa City Dump."

Ah hah.

And right there with "(b)" comes the fun and games for federal demolition men, and pain and suffering for the taxpayers.

For who is to judge what's "beyond economical repair and of no market value" and condemn it to the junk pile with the rest of the city's garbage?

Who indeed?

That has never been made clear beyond value references to faceless "experts" in a dozen different departments.

Nothing might have been said about it, for there had been public disinterest and official silence down the years — until the Demolition Man, with fine unconcern for taxpayers' sensibilities, staged what amounted to an unbelievable exhibition of furniture bashing.

Right but there in full view for one and all — Ottawa's Bank and Slater streets, a main intersection of the National Capital's midtown core.

Crash went the sledge-hammers. Crunch went desks and tables and chairs and other of the functional equipment of a business — well, alright, a Government — office.

The Government was in the grossly $1,825,000 — refitting from an initially estimated $2,-575,800 — process of remodelling the Jackson Building, a federal office headquarters building shared by the National Revenue Department's Excise, Customs Income Tax Division, and the foreign aiders of the Canadian International Development Agency.

It is a rule in the continuing bureaucratic game of inter-departmental one - upmanship that when you get new office digs you have to re-equip in style.

No matter whether you have been working with reasonable efficiency with your old office gear.

So out went much of the previously satisfactory stuff and in came new carpeting worth $150,-000 and new furniture carrying a total $187,540.42 price tag. Dig that 42 cents.

Nobody would have noticed, cared, or asked questions if at least some of the old furniture had not been used for a public exhibition of desk - chair - table and - what - have - you - bashing.

But it just so happened that an Ottawa Journal reporter-photographer news - team were fascinated witnesses and recorded the scene in the sound and pictures for the anguish of the taxpayers.

The news-team suffered, too, almost weeping to see what was getting the sledge - hammer treatment while remembering their own beat-up gear, worn and weary after long years of heavy use back there in the newsroom.

Then the questions flew, in and out of Parliament. And are still flying.

But what the heck, it is only money — yours.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF EYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 24, 1951

The 75 or 80 boys of the YMCA Boys' Choir spent an enjoyable afternoon at Oak Lake. Accompanied by their parents, the boys held a picnic and enjoyed many games, swimming, races and boating. Transportation was supplied by Gordon Parkhurst, Frank Grandame, Bill Hurst and Mr. Peoples.

Thirty-one farmer members of the Eastern Ontario Crop Association through their local associations took a tour through New York and Pennsylvania where they visited the farming areas and Cornell University at Ithaca. Five agricultural representatives accompanied the group. Farmers from Hastings county included Michael Kerby, Ivanhoe; Sam Fargey, West Huntington; Perry Faul, The Ridge; Lorne Hagerman, Harold; Carman Huffman, Corbyville; Don McConnell, Halloway; W. J. Detlor, Stirling, and Agricultural Representative A. O. Delarapple of Stirling.

30 YEARS AGO

June 24, 1941

Upwards of 75 Ontario Intelligencers thoroughly enjoyed the hospitality of the McCarthy Theatre as guests of the management.

The city council is nearing the end of their business for the summer and last night's session was one of the shortest of the season after the committee meeting was concluded. At the conclusion of the session, on the invitation of Alderman Jack Allin, the members enjoyed a sail on the Bay of Quinte in Ald. Allin's fine boat.

40 YEARS AGO

June 24, 1931

The Ontario Shore Gas Co. has offered to purchase the local gas plant at a price of $325,000 and the city council recommends acceptance of the offer. However, the matter will be submitted to the ratepayers the latter part of July.

Mrs. Harrison Williams of Toronto is the guest of her mother, Mrs. S. D. Lazier of John St.

50 YEARS AGO

Resident Protests Development In Wellington Crescent Area

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

What makes our city tick? It appears that the council president must have full control and all in one accord. Procedures of the past few weeks have proved that to be true. Their dealings with the residents of Wellington Crescent apparently is in the category of discrimination.

You may think or say "I do not worry as I am not hurt by their trouble." You are hurt; what happens here can happen to you!

We have been told that plans are being made for condominium building, guests and green belts. What green belts! The memories paid to the City of Belleville for all land splits must go to the show places that the parks board create; congratulate the management of the parks board on the wonderful places that have been created, but they are not for the children of the city, for transportation to and from our parks is becoming more congested each year. The special events are always congested, some are fortunate to make it before the spectacle is over.

There are always a number of small children who take advantage of the playground. In so doing they build character a creative ability by playing with other children their own age on the only well - turfed ground available off Wellington Crescent, which is about to be bulldozed out of existence by special permission of the majority of our city council and Albert College.

High-rise and multiple dwellings infesting our West hill would cause health hazards by so many bags of garbage piled along the streets twice a week. We all want to exist and have freedom of movement.

We on the West Hill are chosen to be a densely populated area, regardless of our feelings, and without being prepared to handle such an influx of traffic and pollution. Without personal consideration we are about to be modernized at a cost that we the taxpayers cannot pay.

Let us all get behind our taxpayers organization when the election rolls around. There could be three of them this year. If things like this happen when long-term membership is in vogue, let's go back to one year at a time, so we can have control over our tax dollar. You never see taxes go down, always up.

J. H. EMPEY

Napoleon's fate was sealed 159 years ago today — in 1812— when his army of 363,000 men began crossing the River Niemen, in East Prussia, for the epic advance on Moscow. The French population was already resigned under conscription and Napoleon's plan for bold early success was spoiled by main sunstroke and bad fodder for cavalry mounts. Though the battle of Borodino was militarily indecisive, French troops were seriously demoralized. After the winter retreat from Moscow, fewer than one-third of Napoleon's forces survived.

1956 — Col. Nasser was elected president of Egypt.

1948 — The Berlin Blockade began.

1839 — IRA bombs injured 19 in London.

1904 — Ion Pericardis, a United States citizen was ransomed from Moroccan chief Raisuli.

1880 — O Canada was first played at Quebec City.

1868 — The first British nurse's school was opened at St. Thomas Hospital, London.

1813 — Warned by Laura Secord, the British beat the U.S. at Beaver Dams.

Passenger Trains of The Future: Will There Be Any?

Kingston Whig - Standard

Canadians who are interested in the challenges of modern problems of transportation should get a copy of Right-Of-Way. This is a study by Robert Chodos which bears the subtitle "Passenger Trains for Canada's Future" and which was recently published by several of the railway unions.

From the imminent death of the passenger train to the controversy over expressways, this study covers the ground with both brevity and point. It includes a short history of the founding and growth of Canadian railways in the early day. How the railways have finally betrayed the original trust put in them by the Canadian Government and people is also touched that trust by huge grants of land and money — is told without special malice but also without holding anything back.

The future is given full consideration through reports of the latest trends in rail transport on this continent and in Europe and other parts of the world, including Japan. There is much to be learned — especially about the way rail service can and should be used to solve urban and inter-urban transit problems.

This latter consideration brings up the recent decision of the Ontario Government to end once and for all the Spadina Expressway in Toronto. This move appears to be an effort by the Government to move boldly into a new era of urban transit by discarding old and outworn ideas and methods and actively exploring new ones.

Trains in all their multifarious forms will undoubtedly regain something of their old importance in this new transportation movement. The automobile and its effect on the free movement of people in cities is now being faced at last as a real problem and not just a subject for talk programs. Ontario is fortunate in having a Government which, at least in this area, has proven itself flexible enough to take a chance on the future.

Sense Of Proportion Required

Oakville Hydro News

All of us are indebted to the late Rachel Carson for the early alert she sounded a decade ago in her book Silent Spring. The primary concern of this biologist was the widespread and indiscriminate use of chemicals for the control of insect pests and the potential for ecological damage.

At the outset of her book she sketches a desolate picture of an imaginary town where silence has replaced the chorus of robins and doves and wrens and dooms the alert which formerly marked the dawn of another spring day. She was right, of course in sounding the alarm.

The only question we would raise at this joyous season of new growth is whether or not there is a danger that we might be losing our perspective in the other direction. It is essential that we be concerned and it is right to be alert to irrational fear and the inability to see any goodness in our scientific and technological progress are another matter.

Chipmunks Looking Like New In Line For Disposal

Aircraft Graveyard Out of Bounds to Air Show Visitors

Mountain View Natural Spot For Antique Air Show

By ELMER BONTER
Staff Correspondent

MOUNTAIN VIEW — The setting for the first international fly-in and antique air show at the airport on the top of the big hill gained world wide recognition as a bombing and gunnery school under the Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

In recent years, however, it has been referred to as "a graveyard for military aircraft".

Granted, from highway 14, the sprawling airfield with its silent hangar line and lack of flying personnel creates a ghost town impression.

But the real story about the place is different and indeed more optimistic.

The different types of aircraft processed by the centre during its lifetime shand like ambitious air show promotion. Names on the list to stimulate memories includes — Cansack (CP-100), Sabre, Silver Star (T-33), Comet, North Star, Chipmunk and Otter. Even H-21 Helicopters have passed through for disposal.

From outward appearances it's hard to believe the place is the centre of interest for no fewer than a half a dozen aviation-oriented programs in addition to the normal activity of service personnel and civilian workers.

The latest hustle is due to the all out grooming effort under way for the presentation of the three-day antique aircraft fly-in and air show commencing this weekend decachment commander chief warrent officer George Conrad reported.

It was sparked last Saturday by a small army of RCAF Association and air cadet volunteers installing crowd control fences and erecting tents to be used by the sponsors of the undertaking.

The basic purpose of the airport now is for storage of aircraft being phased out of military service and eventually disposed of through Crown Assets, a government organization. It is one of the last two remaining sites for operational aircraft in reserve, the other being at Saskatoon in Western Canada.

Mountain View is also the point of no return for aircraft beyond repair. To make sure the models destined for the scrap heap never fly again mechanisms vital to flight are put out of order permanently as part of the contract signed by the purchaser.

Of course the buyer of aircraft of military capacity must first obtain an export permit which is considered the safest way of stopping war equipment from falling into the hands of gun runners.

The function of the base ties in with promotion of old style aircraft since models taken in for disposal may eventually become a well cared for antique.

At the present time a number of Chipmunk trainers in brand new state are in storage ready for the auction block as soon as the official release comes through for their sale. "It is likely one and more possibly will be picked up by collectors," the detachment commander explained.

Mountain View station still keeps in touch with far off pieces through ferry pilots from Trenton making deliveries of reserve military aircraft to points on the globe where they are needed.

For most of the personnel involved in the station's operations the assignments are routine, however. The work force of 50 is mainly civilian tradesmen employed to refurbishing and repairing items in storage.

Responsible for the military aspect is the Commanding Officer of Aircraft Maintenance and Development Unit' at Trenton Col. J. W. Garland. His liason officer is Capt. Al Koshal, the unit's technical services officer.

Regional Air Carrier Remote Possibility

A regional air passenger service could be initiated as early as September, on an experimental basis.

Charles MacNaughton, minister of transportation and communications, told an Ontario legislature committee Tuesday night the experiment will be assessed after a three-year period.

He told the committee, at present studying the department's $44 million estimates for the plan, the government wants to "determine by actual operation rather than by study," the feasibility of such a program.

The minister said that the government will ask six current regional carriers to bid on the experimental routes which is yet to be determined.

"If we determine what we wish to know we may then be able to expand. If the cost factors stand up under demonstration, then we will expend very substantially."

Mr. MacNaughton said the province would prefer private carriers to fly Ontario routes rather than go into the business itself.

Len Steele, president of Quinte Ltd. of Belleville, said Tuesday morning the new company expects an "inspection today by department of transport officials".

"We hope to be off the ground in a week or so, but until you get actual verification, you have to go through the necessary channels. The red tape and so forth is fantastic; nobody in the government seems to want to move too quickly" he said.

However, Quintair Ltd. although not approached to provide service under the new program, is "certainly very interested".

Mr. MacNaughton said, was that Ontario would want the authority to regulate its intra-provincial air routes. This now is a federal jurisdiction.

He said that 20-seat, short take-off and landing Twin Otters would need only 45 per cent capacity to break even operating between smaller Ontario centres.

Early in May, the minister said Air Canada would pull out of regional air carrier service by 1973 and he was anxious to find Ontario-based regional carriers to replace the flights.

Because of increasing industrial demands on air passenger service, Fred Benis, Belleville Industrial Commissioner told The Intelligencer Tuesday morning, "our main objective is to get a scheduled carrier. We will do everything possible to aid this service."

He said "nobody (airline) goes through Belleville at all and we definitely need air service in this area."

The industrial commissioner specifically named service was required regularly by the Unemployment Insurance Commission and Bell Telephone executives.

Air Canada at present operates turboprop flights with Toronto as the hub to Windsor, London, Thunder Bay, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury and Timmins.

Scope and diversification.

We're like someone with many arms. Today we're the largest company of our kind in Canada—and one of the largest in the world.

Because of the things we do, Canadians live a better life—and Canada grows. Companies can sell everything from automobiles to aircraft, from mobile homes to mobile cranes. We make it possible for farmers to buy machinery and equipment. Lumber mills get new saws. Railways get additional trains. We lease helicopters for moving mining equipment and finance x-ray equipment for hospitals.

How does a doctors' clinic or a new modern office get the expensive modern equipment it needs? Often through financing systems we devise specifically for this purpose. We may have provided the financial assistance necessary to get the school buses your community needs. Or the processing equipment a company needs to put food on your table.

Those are some of the things IAC itself does.

Niagara Finance Company Limited makes it possible for people to buy a new chesterfield or take a well-deserved trip.

The Niagara mortgage companies provide shelter for Canadians through first and second mortgage loans, mortgage discounting and combined mortgages.

Our Motor Insurance Company insures cars and homes.

The Sovereign Life Assurance Company of Canada offers life insurance, annuities, estate planning, and key man and partnership insurance.

On top of that, we are proudly an all-Canadian company. Every working day, IAC—companies make $6 million in funds available to consumers, business, and industry. Sure we make a profit—and as a consequence, can grow and continue to make a strong contribution to a healthy Canadian economy.

Scope and diversification. We have that all right.

And what it all adds up to is: we help you make things happen.

Pros and Cons of Spanking Are Discussed

By DORIS CLARK

"To spank or not to spank, that is the question."

Not only parents, but many child psychologists feel two ways about it. Theoretically, spanking is bad, they say; but they also say there are times and places when a properly administered spank can jar a youngster out of unreasonable behavior, when nothing else seems to reach him.

One of the main difficulties about spanking is that it delivers the message to a boy or girl that it is right to hit people. It may start him thinking about hitting Slick, whether he ever has the nerve to try.

From where I sit it is a second class way of keeping law and order. Even a very small child can be talked to, about his misdeeds. In tender years he can learn that when Mummy says, no she means it. — If she does!

Better ways are temporary isolation, the removal of privileges, distraction to something new and constructive to do.

• • •

Dear Doris: It all started when these three girls I hung around with turned against me. I dated a couple of times and my parents aren't as strict as theirs, and they didn't like this. I got them dates and we had great times. Now they've got all the other girls in the school mad at me.

Next year a guy I really like is coming to our school. I don't want him to notice how unpopular I am. What should I do? I'm 15 and this has gotten me so all I do is come home from school and eat and gain weight. — Lonely

Dear Lonely: So now you know why some people are just too fat for comfort: they have been disappointed in life and gobbled up the sweets for compensation.

The issue in your case is not quite clear, but if you have not knowingly hurt your friends try acting as if nothing has happened. Take part in what's going on: be everywhere and be busy. Look like you are having a good time. Nobody rides on the crest of the wave all the time; you can get back up there.

It won't be too easy if you find yourself weighing a ton.

Dear Doris: We would like your suggestions as to hymns to be sung in church at our daughter's wedding. We have an organist and two singers.

Do you think Panes Angelicus would be nice played softly by the organist while the priest is speaking to the bride and groom? — Happy Day

Dear Happy: Don't ask me; ask the organist. There are rules about songs to be sung at weddings, and churches are pretty fussy about this.

Another thing. If you choose hymns the organist and the singers are familiar with, you'll have a good start.

I don't go for a musical back ground while the ceremony is taking place. It can't help but be distracting. What does your priest think?

Talking it over helps. Write to Doris for help with your dilemma, care of this newspaper.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

BY MARY BRYSON

If you're building or remodeling a nursery, consider installing a Dutch door (the kind that's split across the middle so you can open the upper or lower section separately). While baby is new, you can leave the upper half open and peek in for a quiet check, yet other small children and pets will be kept out. Later, the lower half of the door will serve as a baby gate. And, of course, you can close both sections whenever you wish.

An Enticing Mould in Patriotic Colors

By MARY MOORE

Jellied salads enjoy so much popularity that I have made tomato aspic mould with a layer of cottage cheese sandwiched between top and bottom. It is very pretty—reminiscent of our Canadian flag colors.

TOMATO and COTTAGE CHEESE MOULD (serves 8)

4 cups tomato juice (divided — see below)
2 tbsps. chopped onion
¼ cup chopped celery stalks and/or leaves (or 1 tsp. celery seeds)
8 whole pepper berries
½ tsp. salt
2 tbsps. lemon juice
¼ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 tbsps. plain gelatine

1 cup drained creamed cottage cheese

In a bowl soak the gelatine in ¼ cup of the tomato juice.

Combine remaining tomato juice with onion, celery or celery seeds, pepper berries, salt, lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce and bring to boil and simmer 5-10 min. Place sieve over bowl in which gelatine is soaking and pour tomato mixture over to strain it. Remove sieve. Stir to dissolve gelatine. Pour 1¼ cups into 5-cup mould and chill until set. Cover with even layer of drained cottage cheese. Press it down gently into jelly in bottom to form a bond. Pour two-thirds cup of remaining tomato jelly over carefully, being sure some flows down between cheese curds. (Keep remaining tomato juice at room temperature to prevent setting.) Chill contents of mould until set. Pour remaining tomato jelly mixture over and chill until firm.

To turn out loosen sides with sharp-pointed knife. Dip mould in hot water for about 5 sec. Invert shallow serving bowl on top and turn over and out. This could be served on delicate lettuce or endive or watercress. Dressing is not necessary.

NOTE: In very hot weather it might be wise to increase the gelatine to 2 1-3 tbsps. (10 tsps.).

Accounts of showers and entertainments in honor of the bride do not belong with a wedding write-up and should be sent in immediately after they are held, for publication separately.

Blazers, Trench Coats Again Fall Favorites

NEW YORK (AP) — The blazer, skirt and trench coat came back in the fall collection of Anne Klein but then they do every year.

"I don't mind their doing it," said the designer at the opening of her fall collection Thursday night.

"I object to the way it has been presented as the new concept. Why it's been the whole concept of this business since we began three years ago."

This year Miss Klein outdid herself enhancing her perennial favorites with velvets, suedes, tartan plaids and rich imported tapestry prints.

The differences in her collection from year to year are subtle. She varied the length of her pants including some pajatrooper pants with elastic around the hems so they can be pushed up to any length, and she included some tight fitting britches.

Her blazer was supplemented with riding or smoking jackets, often with velvet collars.

Skirts were at all lengths, including mini and midi and there were several jumpers herself enhancing her perennial favorites with velvets, suedes, tartan plaids and rich imported tapestry prints.

B and P Women's Club Enjoys Dinner

The Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club concluded the season's activities with a dinner meeting at the Maple Inn, Bloomfield, on Monday evening.

President Lois Brown greeted the members and a number of guests who were present and conducted a brief business period. Plans were discussed for fall activities and it was decided to have Business Women's Week October 16-23. The theme this year will be "Leadership for Action". Mrs. Nettie Brown was chosen chairman for this event with all members of the club participating.

As this was the 21st anniversary of the founding of the Belleville Club a beautiful cake made by Mrs. Marion McFaul and decorated in green and yellow club colors was served at the conclusion of the bountiful meal.

Following a time of relaxation president Brown wished all a healthy and happy summer.

Church Groups

ST. JAMES CWL
STIRLING

Mr. and Mrs. Stan Meeks opened their home for the June meeting of the St. James CWL preceding which Father McGarvey celebrated Mass.

Mrs. LaChappelle gave a report on the recent diocesan convention held in Belleville the theme of which was "The Christian Family — Our Concern".

Among those elected to the diocesan executive was Mrs. Ray Burley who will serve again as corresponding secretary.

Members were reminded to send a donation to the hope fund, a portion of which is designated for "alliance for life" and another project for a children's camp in a depressed area.

Some thoughts on the subject of poverty throughout the world were expressed by Father McGarvey who also gave some suggestions on ways to help relieve it.

At the close of the meeting, a delightful barbecue was prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Meeks and family.

Ann Landers
Best Friend's Wife Much Too Aggressive

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am not a Yale student and this is no joke. I am a married man who loves his wife and I am not interested in fooling around. The problem is my best friend's wife.

About three months ago a grouped us went to a dinner party at our club. This woman started to play footsies with me under the table. I had had a few drinks and responded, just for the fun of it. She took me seriously and now she won't leave me alone. She keeps calling my wife and setting up evenings together. This woman is sly as a fox and can figure out the goldarndest ways to corner me. When I leave the room for whatever reason, she is behind me. Last night when I went to the bathroom I had to move fast to lock her out.

ANN LANDERS

I don't want to tell my wife but I wish she would stop accepting invitations from this woman. Although her husband and I are good friends I can see him at lunch.

Please print your advice in the paper. I can't have any letters from Ann Landers coming to either my home or my office. — Thank you. — SWEATING.

DEAR SWEAT: Tell Mrs. Mustard Plaster of 1971 that her aggressiveness is becoming obvious to others and she'd better cool it. Explain that she is undoubtedly the most appealing woman since Helen of Troy but you have somehow summoned the courage to resist her charms and she should please leave you alone.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A while back a reader asked you if your teeth are your own. You said "Yes" and I am sure you were telling the truth because of the unfeeling way you reply to people who have dentistry problems.

It's nice for you to sit in Chicago with your own teeth and give people advice on dentistry, but unless you've been through a complete extraction and suffered with ill-fitting dentures, you are in no position to tell anybody anything.

I fiddled around with a $400 set of dentures for three months. Finally I told the dentist I would expect him to the County Dental Society if he didn't stop monkeying around with adjustments and make me a set of teeth I could eat with. Do you know what he did? He gave me my $400 back and told me to go to another dentist.

I blindfolded myself and picked a name out of the phone book and guess what? I got me a dentist who made a perfect set of teeth — never had to go back for even one adjustment. What do you think of that, Ann Landers? — NUTTY AL (My friends' nickname for me.)

* * *

DEAR AL: Congratulations on your new teeth. And say hello to your friends for me. I think they've got you properly labeled.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was engaged to Gert for three years — ring and all — when she ran off with a guy she had met only a week before. I thought I'd go out of my mind. Three months later she was in the hospital with a fractured skull. Her husband hit her with a baseball bat. She sent word she wanted to see me. When I went to see her I ran into her husband. He was visiting her, too. She told me she was going to give him another chance.

Last week she was back in the hospital with a broken shoulder. He hit her again. Now she wants me to go to him and talk about a divorce. I really love her, Ann. What should I do? — UNDECIDED.

DEAR UN: Leave her alone. And leave him alone, too. If and when Gert is single, you might consider seeing her again. But not until.

Festival of Flowers Held in Stirling

STIRLING — The Stirling Horticultural Society held their festival of flowers in St. Paul's United Church on Thursday, June 17. There were 23 exhibitors and 313 entries.

Mrs. Dorothy Milnes was the judge and judging was a difficult task as there were no many entries in the various sections.

The Eaton trophy which can only be won once was awarded to Mrs. Stuart McArton who had 36 points.

The two high winners tied with 29 points each but they had been Eaton's trophy winners in previous years.

In the draw Mrs. Dennis Armstrong was awarded the Simpsons - Sears award and Mrs. Raymond McConnell the Bank of Montreal award.

During the evening the president Mrs. Floyd Armstrong was presented with a framed diploma of merit for her years of service in the horticultural society by the Ontario organization. Mrs. Cameron Sloe gave an interesting travelog with color slides.

The award winners were: section one (peonies, double pink, Ruth McArton, Irene Merrick and Helen McConnell; double red, Mrs. Haggerty, Ruth McArton and Florence MacMichen; double white, Elsie Armstrong, Helen McConnell and Annie Holmes; single double color, Annie Holmes and Mrs. Haggerty; single any color, Margaret Talma, Helen McConnell and Ruth McArton.

Section two (Iris): yellow, Helen McConnell, Elsie Armstrong and Donna Armstrong; blue, Mabel Brooks, Helen McConnell and Donna Armstrong; purple, Donna Armstrong; Bailey and Margaret Talma; white or cream, Helen McConnell, Ruth McArton and Margaret Talma; mauve, Helen McConnell, Donna Armstrong and Mabel Brooks; any other color, on one stalk, Tillie Jeffries, Ruth McArton and Donna Armstrong; non hybrid, Mrs. Haggerty, Ruth McArton and Tillie Jeffries.

Section three (other flowers): one stem lemon lily, Elsie Armstrong, Donna Armstrong and Helen McConnell; nine pansy blooms, Donna Armstrong, Helen McConnell and Ruth McArton.

Mixed sweet william, Helen McConnell, Ruth McArton and Donna Armstrong; mixed lupines, Margaret Talma, Ruth McArton and Helen McConnell; african violet, purple double, Elsie Armstrong, Victoria Morgan and Donna Armstrong; african violet pink double—Donna Armstrong, Mrs. Haggerty and Irene Merrick; single purple violet, Tillie Jeffries, Annie Holmes and Eleanor Bailey; single pink violet, Elsie Armstrong; any color double, Donna Armstrong, Mrs. Haggerty and Victoria Morgan; violet single any color, Eleanor Bailey; geranium in bloom, Irene Merrick, Florence MacMullen and Maggie Ward.

Foliage, Frank Brookema and Margaret Talma; three house plants, Mabel Brooks, Maggie Ward and Irene Merrick; fern any variety, Mrs. Haggerty and Annie Holmes; named non blooming plant, Frank Brookema, Eleanor Bailey and Annie Holmes; one baby tear, Maggie Ward, Irene Merrick and Ruth McArton; one vine plant, Elsie Armstrong, Ruth McArton and Annie Holmes.

Section four: five mixed peonies, Elsie Armstrong, Donna Armstrong and Helen McConnell; five mixed iris, Annie Holmes, Mable Brooks and Elsie Armstrong; coffee table arrangement, Irene Merrick, Laura Walie and Donna Armstrong; one flower in a rose bowl, Irene Merrick, L. Walie, E. Armstrong; flowers for the flower girl, Helen McConnell, Mrs. Haggerty and Donna Armstrong; special occasions, Irene Merrick, Donna Armstrong and Elsie Armstrong; shades of one color arrangement, Laura Walie, Donna Armstrong and Elsie Armstrong; bottle garden of growing plants, Eleanor Bailey and Ruth McArton; hanging tray flower arrangement, Donna Armstrong, Helen McConnell and Elsie Armstrong; miniature flower arrangement, Helen McConnell and Mabel Brooks; dome arrangement, Helen McConnell and Mabel Brooks; one color photograph, Helen Watson and Irene Merrick and Eleanor Bailey.

Junior section: playtime, Annie Bailey; bouquet of common roadside plants, Annie Bailey, Nancy Watson and Rich Knapton; Noah's ark, Anne Bailey.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID LUCAS

Lucas — Randle

Mary Elizabeth Randle daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Randle was united in marriage to David Edward Lucas son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lucas at Bridge Street United Church on June 12. Dr. Harry M. Davis conducted the ceremony while S. Alec Gordon played the organ.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride was attired in a long white gown of peau-de-broche with long lace sleeves ending in frills at the wrist. It featured a mandarin collar, lace panel down the front and a large bow at the waist. The A-line skirt swept into a train at the back decorated with floating panels of lace. A pearl-decorated wedding ring headpiece held in place the three tier veil whose length veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and lily of the valley.

The matron of honor Mrs. Patricia Gadeveny was in a pale yellow polyester crepe dress embossed with daisies featuring a mandarin collar, short puff sleeves and a sash of deeper yellow velvet. A matching bow adorned her hair and she carried a colonial bouquet of white daisy 'mums.

The bridesmaids Miss Ruth Randle, the bride's sister, Miss Susan Taylor and Miss Cathy Martin were dressed identically to the matron of honor but in mint green.

The flower girl Miss Jennifer Bonnell was dressed similarly to the matron of honor but in a white dress with a yellow velvet sash. She carried a nosegay of white daisy 'mums and pink sweetheart roses.

The best man was Bill Lucas, the bridegroom's brother and the ushers were David, Peter, Paul and Andrew Randle, the bride's brothers. The ring bearer was Jeff Brown.

The reception was held in the Sunday School rooms of the Bridge Street United Church. The bride's mother wore a crimplene dress, jacket and hat of yellow with white accessories and a corsage of white 'mums.

The bridegroom's mother was in a salmon pink crimplene dress and matching jacket trimmed with white lace daisies. She wore a white hat and accessories. Her corsage was of white 'mums.

For the wedding trip to Northern and Western Ontario, the bride donned a yellow crimplene A-line dress with white daisy trim and brown accessories and a corsage of pink 'mums. Upon return the newly married couple will live at 180 West College Street, Belleville.

Historians Attend Sessions in Peterborough

The history of eastern Ontario was the underlying theme of the three-day annual meeting of the Ontario Historical Society held last week at Peterborough.

Close to 200 members and delegates representing most of the historical societies of the province, attended the sessions and tours. Local delegates included Mr. and Mrs. C. L. R. Wanamaker and Mrs. W. Beever of the Seventh Town (Amelasburg) Historical Society, Mrs. N. Hutchison and Mrs. C. Daverne of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society, and Grraid Boyce of the Hastings County Historical Society.

One of the most interesting papers presented was on "Egerton Ryerson, Albert Carman and the Founding of Albert College, Belleville", by Mr. Alex McGregor of Bishop's College explained how the origins of Albert College in the 1850's were similar to those of Rochdale College in the 1960's.

Each stressed the voluntary principle, disagreed with the existing system of education, and faced monetary and staffing problems.

Mr. McGregor also outlined the reasons why Albert College (originally known as the Belleville Seminary) was located at Belleville and paid tribute to the work of Rev. Albert Carman, the second principal of the College and a dynamic theologian.

The speaker's claim that Egerton Ryerson (a Wesleyan Methodist) and Albert College (a Methodist Episcopal school) were never on good terms was challenged by Mr. Boyce who pointed out that Ryerson gave personal financial assistance to the college. (In fact, it was Ryerson's suggestion in 1850 that led to a successful campaign to eliminate a $1200 college debt.)

Other papers delivered at the conference dealt with "The Lumber Barons and the End of the Great Pine in Eastern Ontario, 1880-1914", with very brief references to the Bateman Company of Deseronto", and "Grey Owl", the fascinating conservationist — writer of the 1920's and 1930's.

Another highlight of the conference was a program of readings, music, and dancing, arranged by the host society, the Peterborough Historical Society. Early 19th century writers such as Catharine Parr Traill and Susanna Moodie (the wife of Sheriff Moodie of Belleville) came to life again and described settlement in this part of Ontario.

Various tours to Peterborough landmarks and the Century Village at nearby Lang were welcome parts of the program.

UCW MEETINGS

COLLEGE HILL UCW

College Hill United Church Women enjoyed their annual potluck dinner on Wednesday evening with the well - laden table leaving nothing to be desired.

Following the meal, the June meeting was opened by president Marilyn McIntosh. The worship period with the theme "Brotherhood" was conducted by Susie Maltsava reading poems; Verna Phillips giving the scripture lesson and closing prayer and Lila Belcour reading the story which brought forth the thought that we must combine service, co-operation, tolerance, trust and faith to have peace. Mrs. Leona Bailey played the piano for the singing of appropriate hymns.

The president conducted a short business period when a substantial amount was reported in the treasury. The social convener reported no catering in view for the summer. Some assistance was volunteered for the coffee shop at Hastings Manor on July 14th.

Members were reminded that there will be no monthly UCW meeting until September and any business that may arise will be dealt with by the executive.

The officers of the UCW had prepared a short skit entitled "An Exercise in Futility" for the amusement of their audience. Five members capably enacted an executive meeting of the UCW. A discussion followed to bring out the faults in this meeting and how improvements could have been made.

Mrs. Veasey conducted an interesting sing-song with the record player providing the music.

Since new hymnarys are to be available soon, this gave women an opportunity to become familiar with the newer type of religious song and music.

Helen McLaren conducted a bird contest which was won by Florence Watson.

THOMASBURG UCW

TWEED — The June meeting of the Thomasburg UCW was held recently in the church hall. A delicious potluck dinner was served at 12 noon. There were 13 women, one child and four gentlemen present for the dinner.

Later, Mrs. Ruth Seekings presided at the meeting. Mrs. Monica Maines conducted the worship service assisted by Mrs. Mildred Preston and Mrs. Rita Walker. Mrs. Maines read a thought provoking story of "The Elasticized Heart". During the business it was reported that the recent bake sale was a success.

Plans were completed for the Explorers' mother and daughter banquet. Everyone was reminded to collect used sun glasses and postage stamps.

Mrs. Barbara Savaras was in charge of the program. A skit "St. Peter Look At Me" was presented by Dora Morton, Mildred Preston, Mary Jane Rollins and Barbara Savaras taking part.

QUEENSBORO UCW

Unit one of the Queensboro UCW held their June meeting in the Sunday school room on Thursday June 17.

Mrs. Harry Love, unit leader conducted a short business period and also the worship service.

Miss Hazel Thompson was in charge of the program. She gave a talk on places she had seen on trips to Mexico and Disneyland and showed pictures to illustrate her talk. She also showed some pictures of local scenes.

Lunch was served at the close of the meeting and a social time was enjoyed.

Unit two had their meeting on Wednesday evening June 16 at the cottage of Mrs. Leslie Holmes. After a short business meeting and a worship period, a weiner roast by the river was enjoyed by all.

Budget Flayed By PC Chief

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield accused the government Wednesday of waffling on its tax policies, backtracking on its tax white paper and providing a worse than ineffective budget.

He told the Commons the government has been bridgestearing and budget-erring for the last year, continually switching its taxing and spending policies, and proving its inability to forecast economic events.

And while Finance Minister E. J. Benson had been a watchdog, viciously defending the tax white paper last year, he now was gentle as a cocker spaniel, after withdrawing the unpopular white paper proposals.

Finally, Friday's budget was simply irrelevant in getting the economy moving toward full employment.

Mr. Stanfield was speaking on the second of six days of Commons debate on the budget.

The Commons defeated 146 to 13 a New Democratic non-confidence motion criticizing the government for forsaking the recommendations of the Ottenneth Carter royal commission on taxation that included a full capital gains tax, the removal of special concessions to the resource industries, equal tax treatment for wage and salary earners and self-employed persons, and equal taxation on all kinds of income.

Included in the government's tax proposals are bigger exemptions for everybody and special exemptions for the disabled and p e n s i o n e r s, removal of the three-per-cent surtax on corporate and personal income taxes, removal of federal taxes on anti-pollution equipment, electronic goods and margarine, and a capital gains tax to be applied to half a taxpyer's gain.

Only the NDP supported the amendment.

The Commons takes the day off today, St. Jean Baptiste Day, and resumes the budget debate Friday.

Earlier in the House, all parties unanimously concurred in a report of a special Commons pollution committee urging the government to oppose vigorously establishment of a U.S. oil tanker route down the British Columbia coast.

The report says a damaging oil spill is inevitable if such a route is established.

Tides and currents in the Strait of Georgia and the Strait of Juan de Fuca would make clean-up operations especially difficult.

E x t e r n a l Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp welcomed the concurrence, which he said supported the government's position on the issue.

In budget debate, Mr. Stanfield praised the tax cuts, but called them insufficient to spur the economy.

He said tax reductions—not counting removal of the surtax which was temporary anyway —would be about $45 million—one-third of one per cent of the budgeted income.

That is "a paltry and perhaps even an insulting amount, the equivalent of $3 a year for each Canadian.

"The tax reductions are not sufficient to make any impact."

As for the government's promise of better economic days to come, Mr. Stanfield said the public could not rely on a government that had failed so miserably in the past in forecast economic trends.

Energy Minister J. J. Greene said budget items would "serve to maintain a vigorous, expanding and competitive minerals industry, and at the same time, will allow the activities of the industry to benefit more directly the Canadian economy."

Mr. Greene countered arguments that the minerals industry is capital intensive, providing little benefit in the form of employment.

Critics ignore the indirect employment involved, he said. About 30 per cent of Canada's workers depended on the industry, which accounted for one-third of Canadian exports.

Gordon Blair (L—Grenville-Carleton) said the Conservatives were frustrated now that the tax issue was unavailable as a political punching bag.

And the NDP was critical because it always criticizes popular policies.

CN and CP Employees Approve New Contract

OTTAWA (CP) — A spokesman for the United Transportation Union announced Wednesday that railway operating employees represented by the union have voted 70 per cent in favor of accepting the terms of a two-year contract offered by Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

About 20,000 conductors, brakemen, yardmen, yardmasters and switchmen accepted increases of eight and seven per cent over two years as well as fringe benefits comparable to those offered to the non-operating employees. Trainmen's salaries will increase by an average of $1,200 over two years. Trainmen are paid on a mileage basis.

There was no change in the make-up of road freight crews, although both railways had said they would reduce the road crew to two men from three.

The contract for the union had expired Dec. 31, 1970, and the operating employees were the last major group, to vote in favor of acceptance.

Railway firemen, also represented by the UTU, now are voting on the contract.

Doctors and Nurses Should Train Together

TORONTO (CP) — Doctors and nurses should receive part of their student training together if they are to perform as an effective team, a London Ont., nurse said Wednesday.

Jane Buchan said each group tends toward self-protection, and "you become very threatened when anyone comes into your area."

She told a conference on co-operation in the provision of health services the group medical practice teaching unit at London's University of Western Ontario is beginning to function smoothly after four years.

She blamed separate education for the time required to develop the approach.

The meeting was also told the provincial government's plan to provide medical and dental services in areas lacking such care, has recruited 81 physicians and 35 dentists.

Dr. Kenneth C. Charron, deputy minister of health, said all the dentists and 42 of the doctors have already established practice in "under-serviced areas."

Benson Counts on Free-market Forces To End Canada's Unemployment Blues

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is counting mainly on free-market forces, newly stimulated by some tax cuts, to lift Canada gradually out of its worst bout of unemployment in a decade.

"Despite the many changes in our social and economic structure," Finance Minister E. J. Benson said in his budget speech last Friday, "we must continue to look to the private sector and to business corporations to provide the jobs for our rapidly-expanding labor force."

That declaration constituted a rebuke to critics who have been calling for more direct, positive intervention by the government to generate more jobs quickly.

Mr. Benson says he does not believe governments should create jobs directly.

Unemployment—543,000 out of a labor force of 8.6 million in May—has been at or above six per cent of the work force for a year. It was 6.3 per cent in May, or 53 jobless out of every 1,000 potential workers.

Mr. Benson says that unemployment rates will move gradually downward as productive activity picks up, stimulated by more spending because of the new tax cuts and earlier federal programs.

The minister declines to say how long he thinks it will take for Canada to spend its way out of unemployment, or even what figure he has in mind for his ultimate target of full employment.

"It's a very difficult thing," he said following his budget speech.

"Historically, going back to 1953, the average rate of unemployment in Canada has been around five per cent."

Mr. Benson said the finance department has been relying almost entirely on conventional economic policy to combat unemployment gradually, wielding the so-called big levers of economic management.

That method is based on the idea that if governments spend more, and possibly also reduce taxes to put more spending power in the hands of the people, the over-all demand for goods and services is bound to get stronger. In turn, increased demand should inspire businessmen to step up output, eventually hiring more workers to help.

In a federal budget last December and in other 1976 programs, the emphasis was all on increased government spending on housing, public works and subsidies to private industry.

In the spring, despite MR. Benson's avowed distaste for direct creation of jobs, other federal departments put together $67.8 million in a summer employment program for undetermined thousands of students.

Last Friday's budget, for the financial year that opened April 1, concentrated on the big lever of tax cuts.

The main feature, removal of a three-per-cent income surtax will place an estimated extra $130 million of spending power in the pockets of Canadians for the remaining nine months of the fiscal year.

Altogether, popular and corporate spending power is to be increased by $397 million, with the additional tax exemptions for pensioners and the poor plus removal or adjustment of some federal sales, excise and import taxes.

Critics say that amount of stimulus is too small and belated to do much for unemployment quickly.

The tax cuts are equivalent to just over one cent out of every dollar the government will raise in revenue this fiscal year.

While the bulk of the tax change aims at stimulating spending generally, some is designed with more precision to help industries especially hard hit by the economic recession.

Removal of excise tax from home electronic products, for instance, is to help an Ontario industry in which factories have closed or slowed down this year.

The paper industry of Eastern Canada, unnerved by a series of spring layoffs, gets a measure of aid with reduced tariffs on the imported, heavy fuel oil that it uses.

But amid an immediate chorus of general approval from the Canadian business community, some dissenting voices have been raised.

They express doubt that the new measures will deal adequately with chronic, long-term unemployment.

Businessman - politician Eric Kierans, who quit the federal cabinet April 29 complaining that not enough was being done to cure unemployment, maintains that last Friday's measures constitute little improvement.

What Canada needs to build jobs for one of the fastest-growing work forces in the world, Mr. Kierans says, are economic and tax policies that encourage manufacturing with high manpower needs.

Instead, he says, tax policies offer too much incentive to low-manpower production of raw materials the policies also discourage manufacturers to spend heavily on technology at the expense of jobs.

ANAF News

A sports contingent going as representatives of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201, will take part in the annual provincial sports day held this year in London, Ont.

Next Sunday the unit pipe band will pay host to the visiting pipe bands and dancers attending the tattoo at the Exhibition Park. To them also the best wishes for a successful day in their competitions.

The president and members of the unit extend their sincere sympathy to their comrade Jimmy Corrndi and his family in their recent bereavement with the passing of a loving wife and mother.

Comrades in hospital at time of writing are W. McKenna, room 623 R. Forss, room 312 and G. Batchelor, room 712. Cdr. S. Hollands is resting at home.

Belleville chivvers generally and 608 Squadron Royal Canadian Air Cadet Corps, sponsored by the Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201, in particular should feel proud that two Belleville youths, C/Pt. Sgt. Pierce and Twigg, have been chose by the Dominion Command ANAF as part of their youth improvement program. The American Legion sent an invitation for two youths to visit the academy in Maryland as their guests with all expenses paid. Friday the boys, accompanied by their parents, visited the Tartan Garage to receive their credentials, instructions and plane tickets. These were presented by Cdr. Stan Mabourne, chairman of the youth development committee. Dominion president J. C. Lundberg emphasized that the youths were not only representing their city but were representatives of youths of Canada as a whole.

President John Browning presented a cheque for $250 to chairman Mabourne to be used to further the activities of Squadron 608. Some of the activities will be a summer camp for 18 cadets with Lt. J. O'Bryan in charge. They will leave AFB, Trenton via a T33 jet for Bagotville, P.Q. for two weeks. C/CWO Rasmussen, who has won a flying scholarship will be taking it at Kingston. Two cadets will be chosen and sent to Camp Borden where they will take a six weeks' senior leaders' course, including some technical training.

Other trips for the cadets including, if possible, some weekend camps are being planned for the summer holidays. Capt. Finlay said this was the eighth year for the squadron during which time over 700 youngsters had passed through its ranks.

COVER UP

LLONDON (CP) — The cast of the nude comedy The Dirtiest Show in Town covered themselves before the show started its run in the West End. Although the men and women appear naked and simulate intercourse they decided the stage slopes dangerously and they might injure themselves—so they trooped into the nearest insurance agency.

Program in Parks

Quinte Isle Players Plan Touring Summer

Operating on a tight budget, the Quinte Island Theatre has set forth on a summer - long series of children's plays to be presented in parks bordering the Quinte area.

The Picton - based theatre group is operating its third season of youthful productions with a cast and crew of almost a dozen. With funds of $3,091 from the federal government under the Opportunities for Youth Program, salaries, transportation and production costs have been provided for.

School children had the chance to view two of their productions at the Pinnacle Playhouse one day last week and every weekday except Friday this week. According to one spokesman at the playhouse, profits for the Belleville productions are being shared by the Quinte players and the Belleville Theatre Guild.

Under the direction of Rick Rolston and Janet Alexander, two plays, "Gift of the Drum" and "The Watermelons" were presented.

Gift of the Drum, adapted by Mr. Rolston for children's theatre, tells how the Western Indian west presented with a drum by Glitche Manitou, the chief god. In the story, the Indians bemoan their lackustre fate in contrast with that enjoyed by the animals of the forest.

With the gift of the drum, the Indian learns rhythm and begins to enjoy life. A simple story, but the players thoroughly enjoyed it. This play was also presented by the Indian Island Theatre at the May Dominion Drama Festival at Theatre Canada '71 in Ottawa.

The Watermelons, an original play by Janet Alexander, follows the story of an unsmiling princess with a curse placed upon her. Until she finds a husband, she will never smile.

The prospective husband, naturally a prince, is trapped in a well, the water from which produces the best watermelons in the world. The well is poisoned by the evil one, but she is tricked into eating a bad melon and everyone lives happily ever after.

Costumes designed by Elizabeth Burns, the cast includes Ted Rose, Scott Powers, Jim Bassett, Kitty Cross, Lee and Frank Drummer, Elaine Milley, Janet Alexander and Anne Robinson.

When the players go on the road, a third play will be included: "The Contest," written by Mr. Rolston.

July Legislature Session Planned

In other areas, he has promised to preserve the family farm by setting up a land bank commission to enable retiring farmers to pass the farms on to young people.

The Liberal government's resource policies were a major thorn in the side of the NDP in opposition. Charges of "give-away" often accompanied announcement of a new industry.

Of particular concern was the proposed $117.7 million Athabasca pulp mill at Dore Lake in northern Saskatchewan. That deal was ratified by the last legislature but unless the developers, Parons and Whittemore of New York, agree to major revisions, it likely will be thrown out.

Fat of a multi-million-dollar iron ore mine, announced jointly by the government and Denison Mines earlier this year, also is in doubt. Premier Thatcher had made few facts known about the agreement.

Mr. Blakeney has the NDP "will encourage balanced development which will create jobs and activities that are harmony with the environment—such as selective harvesting of timber, hunting, trapping, mining, commercial fishing and particularly tourism."

Small business, as opposed to large corporations from the United States, have been promised help in the form of a special agency to provide various assistance.

The people have been promised lower taxes, largely through a pledge to reduce the education tax assessed farms, small businesses and homes.

The NDP also promised to establish a prices and review board to impose selective controls on profits, wages and interest rates if Ottawa failed to take appropriate action in that field.

It was no secret that large labor unions assisted in the election campaign, mostly in reaction to Liberal proposals to establish labor-management courts.

One piece of Liberal legislation that likely will get short shrift from the NDP is Bill 2, the Essential Services Emergency Act which prohibits strikes in virtually all types of labor.

NDP Wins 45 Seats, Liberals 14

The biggest margin held previously by the socialists in the province was in 1956 when the CCF had 41 seats and the Liberals 18.

At dissolution of the last legislature, the Liberals held 34 seats, the NDP 34, with one seat for Mr. Thatcher said early this morning that he would call his cabinet together today to arrange a swift transfer of power to Mr. Blakeney.

He also said the election results lead him to believe the Liberals should consider calling a leadership convention soon. He has led the party since 1959.

The NDP showed a whopping gain in the popular vote, to 54.9 per cent compared with 44.3 per cent in 1967. The Liberals' percentage dropped to 43.1 from 45.8 in 1967.

The Conservatives, led by Ed Nasserden, failed to elect any of their 16 candidates as their share of the popular vote declined to two per cent from 9.8 per cent for 41 candidates in 1967.

It was obvious that most of the Conservative votes went to the NDP in spite of a pre-election plea by former Conservative prime minister John Diefenbaker that they support the private enterprise party—meaning the Liberals.

The electorate took its toll of cabinet ministers as six were toppled.

Even Provincial Treasurer Dave Steuart, touted as a successor to Mr. Thatcher, barely escaped defeat in Prince Albert West.

Defeated were Industry Minister Clarence Estey, Mineral Resources Minister Alex Cameron, Natural Resources Minister J. Ross Barrie, Agriculture Minister Doug McFarlane, Works Minister Lionel Coderre and Labor Minister Don MacLennan. James E. Snedker, Speaker of the legislature, was forced into retirement in Saltcoats constituency.

Rank-and-file Liberal backbenchers fell like tenpins as the NDP gained 21 seats from the Liberals. Each party won one new seat and the Liberals gained one from the NDP—Moose Jaw North, where an NDP claimed that redistribution last year assured the Liberals of a seat.

The result left the old-line Liberal and Conservative parties without power west of Ontario for the first time in history.

And the result continued a trend evident in five of the last seven provincial elections in Canada which created sitting governments.

Following the NDP's Manitoba victory in 1969, last year the Liberals defeated the Union Nationale in Quebec and the Conservatives in Nova Scotia; Liberals in turn were sidelined by Conservatives in New Brunswick. Only British Columbia's Social Credit government, in 1969, and Prince Edward Island's Liberal administration, in 1970, were able to retain power.

Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island Approve of Constitutional Charter

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Provincial governments continued Wednesday to accept the Victoria constitutional charter although Quebec's rejection earlier had ruled out its adoption in present form.

Adding their support for the charter—the culmination of talks initiated at the request of provincial premiers in 1967—were Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. Previously, Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia governments had accepted the principles for constitutional reform presented at last week's federal-provincial conference in the British Columbia capital.

Adoption of the charter was based on unanimous acceptance by all provinces and the federal government, and June 28 was the deadline set for the provincial decisions.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Trudeau was all but alone among federal and provincial leaders Wednesday in feeling the Quebec action as anything but a termination of constitutional talks for some time.

The prime minister, visiting Toronto, said at a news conference that Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa had left the door open for further discussion.

Mr. Trudeau said he was encouraged by Mr. Bourassa's statement announcing his decision because it indicated Quebec might accept "a better drafting, or an appeal to the courts."

The prime minister conceded, however, that constitutional conferences will tend to "slither away unless Quebec can show us a way out of this impasse."

Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland predicted some provinces will refuse to attend future constitutional conferences "unless they had, in advance, notice of Quebec's agreement."

Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia said there would be "no more drawing boards in the near future" as far as his government was concerned.

Alex Campbell, premier of Prince Edward Island, had said Tuesday that Quebec rejection would end constitutional talks for his province and provoke a backlash in other provinces. He said after his cabinet's acceptance of the charter that discussions on a constitution would not take place for at least another year.

New Brunswick's Premier Richard Hatfield hoped discussions would not take "years" to resume.

Ontario Premier William Davis said he saw "one encouraging note" in Mr. Bourassa's statement, in that the Quebec premier did not reject the charter itself, but only a section dealing with social policy.

Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba said it was unlikely the premiers would get back to constitutional matters for two or three years.

Premier Ross Thatcher, whose Liberal government in Saskatchewan will be replaced by the New Democratic Party following Wednesday's provincial election, said he doubted whether some premiers would be willing to attend further constitutional conferences.

Harry Strom, Alberta's premier, said there appeared to be "no point in getting together on it again for some time."

British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett said he doesn't think there will be a new conference soon.

Federal Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said in an Ottawa statement that the parliamentary constitutional committee should be heard "before we presume that the series of federal-provincial discussions should be abandoned."

Flyers of Nine Lands In Britain to B.C. Race

LONDON (CP) — More than 65 flyers from nine countries will chase $170,000 in prize money next week in a 6,000-mile air race from Britain across the North Atlantic and Canada to Victoria, B.C.

The race, sponsored by the Canadian and British Columbia governments to mark the centenary of the province's entry into Confederation, will be started next Thursday by Prime Minister Trudeau and B.C. Premier W. A. C. Bennett using a trans-atlantic telephone link from Victoria.

Canadian and American pilots —including a solo woman flyer from Pennsylvania—dominate the list of entrants. Aircraft also have been entered from Britain, Sweden, Australia, Ireland, Finland, West Germany and France.

Each aircraft will be given a handicap based on its known cruising speed under normal conditions. Competitors will then be awarded points for speed achieved in excess of handicap speed in each of six stages on the route.

The use of handicaps makes it possible to admit a variety of aircraft in the race, from single and twin-engined piston-driven planes to turbo-props. Three jet entries, including a Falcon representing the Canadian government, will compete in a special class.

Under the handicap system, competitors can start and finish the race at varying times with speed in each of the stages providing the criterion for determining the over-all winner.

The first plane to take off will be the official B.C. entry, a twin-engine aircraft piloted by R. B. Dixon, 22, of Vancouver. All competitors should have finished the race by July 7, organizers say.

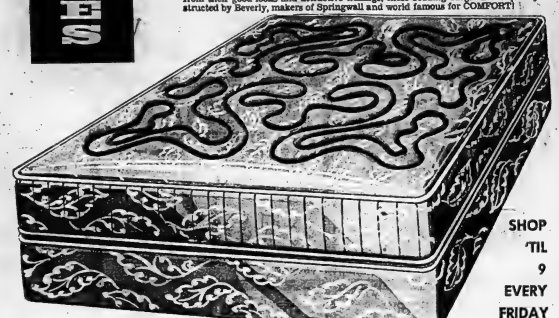
The Canadian government aircraft, in addition to trying to break several world records, will be testing a new radar system for possible use by the armed forces.

Louise Sacchi of Jenkintown, Pa., will be the only woman to fly solo in the competition, although a number of female teams have entered. Miss Sacchi, an overseas ferry pilot, will fly a single-engine aircraft.

Pilots will be free to choose among seven routes linking the starting point to the first required stop at Quebec City where all aircraft must assemble before starting on five trans-continental stages.

Competitors then will fly to Ottawa, Winnipeg, Regina and Calgary before crossing the finish line at Victoria.

The over-all winner receives $50,000 and the Prime Minister's Trophy. Second prize is $20,000 and third prize $10,000.



There also are prizes for the leaders at the end of each stage in the race and for the first aircraft in each class to reach Victoria.

Three medical doctors are among the Canadian race entries. They are Dr. John Walker, 43, of MacLeod, Alta., Dr. C. A. Hammes, 27, of Breton, Alta., and Dr. M. R. O'Neil of Windsor, Ont.

Basford Opposes Royalties For Records Made Outside Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Record royalties should not be paid for creations of foreign record manufacturers, Corporate Affairs Minister Ron Basford said Wednesday.

He told the Senate banking committee that most shareholders in Sound Recording Licences Ltd. have their master tapes made in other countries and released by Canada for manufacture.

If there was anything creative in a record, the creative activity was carried on outside Canada.

The corporate affairs minister was presenting a government bill which would deny record manufacturers the right to charge royalties for public performance of their records. It would amend the Copyright Act.

The bill was approved by the committee and now returns to the Senate for third reading debate.

The bill was introduced by the government after SRL, which represents more than 25 record manufacturers in Canada, applied to the copyright appeal board for royalties on records played in theatres and on radio and television stations. It was the first time that such an application had been made.

The copyright appeal board has since approved modified record royalties. The decision was made under the existing Copyright Act.

Mr. Basford said record royalties could have a serious impact on the private broadcasting industry. They would result in higher advertising costs which would be passed on to the consumer.

The taxpayer would also have to pay more because of the additional cost to the CBC of record royalties.

Yves Fortier, SRL counsel, said the copyright appeal board only awarded SRL $13,000 in royalties from the CBC this year. SRL had applied for about $200,000 in fees from the CBC.

Auto Trade Agreement Must Be Guarded

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said Wednesday that Canada and he United States must find ways to preserve and enhance the best features of the automobile trade agreement of 1964.

In London, to dedicate an addition to the General Motors diesel plant, Mr. Pepin said the entire automotive industry has benefitted substantially as a result of the agreement, which provides for duty-free import of autos and auto parts between Canada and the U.S.

"Both countries must continue to work together to identify and improve on the best features of these present arrangements."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Michael D. Hess asked Judge McLean to dismiss the suit against it by the Secret Service agents, saying they were immune from damage suits. McLean reserved decision.

Jacqueline Onassis Gets Injunction Against Freelance Photographer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, acting through her lawyer, sought a United States District Court order Wednesday to enjoin freelance photographer Ronald E. Galella from "outrageous" conduct in photographing her and her two children.

Lawyer Martin J. McHugh said the petition was based on a number of incidents in 1969 and 1970, when Galella had been "in persistent pursuit" of Mrs. Onassis and the children, John and Caroline.

He did not specify what restrictions should be placed on Galella, and Judge Edward C. McLean reserved decision.

Galella was arrested by three Secret Service agents Sept. 24, 1969, and charged with harassment after trying to photograph Mrs. Onassis and her son, John, in Central Park. The charge was dismissed.

In separate court action, Galella has sued Mrs. Onassis and the three agents for $1.3 million damages, charging the defendants had prevented him from pursuing his profession. Mrs. Onassis filed a counterclaim against Galella for $6 million.

'Children's Lobby' For Day Care Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — Delegates left the first national conference on day care Wednesday advised to return home and "start making some waves."

Mrs. William Bell, a former Canadian and a social work consultant at Florida State University, told the more than 300 men and women at the final session of the three-day meeting: "Go home. Mount a children's lobby."

She suggested an action net work be started to serve as a communications link between local day-care centres and to campaign for better day care.

Legislators had to be involved and a way had to be found to teach communities that parents and children are the concern of all.

Canadians committed to day care are in an enviable position to do this, she said. In the United States billions had been spent in a senseless war while only crumbs were allocated for children.

A spate of resolutions prepared in group workshops were read out at the session but there was little discussion and none of the resolutions, which covered day-care financing, training, use and legislation, were voted on by the conference as a whole.

Submissions from the four major discussion groups supported in varying ways the establishment of some kind of national body to provide information and promote research on day-care services.

They also advocated establishment and enforcement of standards for day care and an injection of public funds to enable expansion of services.

Resolutions from individual groups asked for health and safety standards and participation of men in the work of day-care centres.

Mrs. Grace MacInnis, New Democrat member of Parliament for Vancouver-Kingsway, who attended the conference as a resource person, suggested in an interview that the meeting might help increase public pressure in favor of day care.

But it would take a much more informed and concerned public to generate child-care legislation. The introduction now of such legislation in the Commons would have an "upsetting effect" there because it was a new concept.

Rookie Good Bet

KINGSTON (Special) — There are rookie sensations in every sport and the district harness racing circuit is no exception A little three-year-old from Kingston has been burning up the track in the Limestone City and will make her first appearance in Belleville Saturday night.

Gaiety's Jule has started only four races in her career, but has picked up the roses in three of them and finished second in the other. She ran the fastest time of the night in Kingston Wednesday, travelling the Memorial Centre oval in 2:11.1.

Her debut in Belleville this Saturday will find her in the fourth position of the Junior Invitational teash race, and if past performances mean anything she could very well be the favorite.

Other Kingston action s a w Bernard Corcoran emerge as the top driver for the night, picking up three wins and two thirds. Next Kingston racing will be Sunday, June 27 at 2 p.m.

Both Sides Blanked

Ted Abrams and Frank Farrell hurled shutouts in South Hastings Baseball League action last night, but neither one picked up a win.

The two righthanders each hurled six-hitters as Plane's Concrete and Read battled to a 0-0 deadlock. Fastballer Abrams whiffed 11 batters and walked only one during his nine-inning contest, while curve ball artist Farrell struck out six batters and walked a pair.

Eagle Crushright paced Plane's with a pair of hits, with Bob Wannamaker, Larry Lewis, Ted Abrams and Ken Abrams picking up the others. For Read Gerry Brennan, Larry Coffey, Steve White, Paul Hanley, Larry Pascoe and Peter Enright hit safely.

In the other game played, Shannonville stopped Latta 4-1 behind the five-hit pitching of Glen Barberstock. The Shannonville righthander struck out seven batters and walked three. Losing hurler John Masterson matched Barberstock's effort, allowing only five hits and striking out seven batters while issuing six free passes.

Blaine Lott, Ken Greensaur, Bill Barberstock, Bob Reid and Denis Goudreau hit safely for the winners, while Latta's hits went to Glen McMechan, Scott McLaren, Bob Smith, Mike Musclow and Duane Horton.

Nancy Ward expresses the traditional teacher's anxiety as pupil Debbie Roach takes careful aim at a distant target. Nancy was one of four archery instructors on hand at Sir Winston Churchill School Wednesday where over 150 eager students waited their turn to try the new sport. Archery will be in the Belleville Recreation Department summer program for the first time this year with lessons being taught at all playgrounds and public schools.

Robin Hood may have had the forests of Sherwood, for his Merry Men to roam, but Steve Lightfoot's Shooting Shorties have one better — the playgrounds and schools of Belleville.

Steve has been appointed by the city recreation department to head up a summer program in the ancient art of archery. His teachings will take him to all the playgrounds and public schools of the city, commencing July 5th.

This new addition to the summer program by the Recreation Department will be open to all age groups. "We hope to start, and go on creating new interest in the district because I feel it's worth while," commented Steve.

"It has changed from a

Remove Deficit

Victoria and Grey Trust came from a ten - run deficit to edge Bank of Nova Scotia 20-28 in a Girls Financial League softball contest last night. Linda Gilbert and Carol Davies looked after the mound duties for the winners with Danielle Rudolph burling for the Bank of Nova Scotia.

rich man's sport to one where more people can get involved. This program for the summer should be useful to over half the kids for archery is not taught properly in most cases at high school"

Wednesday's excursion to the annual field day at Sir Winston Churchill found Steve confronted with over 50 eager learners. "They are very keen to learn and some have potential but they need more work." They received more than ample aid yesterday as Steve and recently - crowned Ontario Junior Champ Bruce Thompson displayed some excellent shooting while two previously experienced sisters, Nancy and Marilee Ward preached some of the basic techniques.

As well as offereing an opportunity to initiate young Bellevillians to archery, Steve and Bruce are hoping to get in lots of practice for their bids to make the Canadian and Olympic squads in the near future.

Registration for the summer course is tentatively scheduled for the week of July 5th and the lessons will start at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium and work its way to Moira Secondary School by the end of the summer.

Pele Packs 'em In

PELE

TORONTO (CP) — Santos of Brazil defeated Bologna of Italy 2-1 in an exhibition soccer game here Wednesday night.

A crowd of 21,753, including Prime Minister Trudeau, witnessed the game, for which the crowd paid a Varsity stadium record of $120,000.

Santos opened the scoring after 12 minutes when Pereira scored on a pass from Mazinho. Santos got their second goal five minutes after the start of the second half when Pele scored on a pass from Mazinho.

The Italian goal came with six minutes to play when Savoldi scored on a pass from Ferrari after a corner kick.

Police had trouble controlling the fans who coodn't get tickets to the game and an estimated 4,000 gained access to the stadium by climbing the fence.

The prime minister, who had planned to see only the first half, was so taken hp with the action that he stayed until only six minutes remained in the game.

Bills Pile Up

BUFFALO (AP) — The Erie County legislature authorized a $30.5 million bond issue Tuesday for construction of a stadium to house the National Football League's Buffalo Bills.

The stadium, an open area designed specifically for football, would be built in suburban Orchard Park. It would have about 70,000 seats.

Posties Deliver Best Effort

The Post Office came up with their most balanced effort of the season Wednesday night as they tripped the Intelligencer 7-4 in an Industrial League Softball game at Prince Charles.

George Johnston went the distance for the Posties allowing eight hits and two walks while fanning one batter. Harry Reid's second-inning homer began a four-run explosion for the winners who never looked back after that. Johnson's double was the only other extra base hit for the Posties.

The father and son team of Joe and John Edwards fired for the Intelligencer. Rookie Joe started but was relieved by father John in the second. The pair were touched for seven hits and two walks but picked up six strikeouts. Terry Hiddleston was again the big gun at the plate for the losers lugging three hits.

Another upset was in the making at Prince of Wales as the previously unbeaten Union Carbide squad finally fell to the axe of the Firemen 10-8.

Perry Soule went the route for the Firefighters allowing only four hits in stopping the league leaders. He picked up four strikeouts and issued only two walks. Ralph Boomhower tagged three hits to race the winners while John O'Neil added two safeties.

Ken Osborne and Junior Day combined forces but were pinned with the loss. They were pounded for 12 hits although fanning six batters. Little punched two hits for the losers.

Boog Back On Ball

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boog Powell and Blue Moon Odom are back on the ball . . . and Chicago White Sox are all over it.

Powell cracked two home runs and a single Wednesday night, pacing Baltimore Orioles to a 7-5 victory over Washington Senators and finally bringing his batting average over the .200 mark.

Odom, Oakland Athletics pitcher who missed the first month of the season following elbow surgery, hurled shutout ball against Minnesota for 7 2-3 innings and beat the Twins 8-3 with relief help.

And the White Sox continued to apply their newfound sock, walloping Kansas City Royals 12-3 for their fourth straight triumph and a 46-run total during the winning streak.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York Yankees ripped Detroit Tigers 8-5 on Gene Michael's 13th inning homer, Boston Red Sox beat Cleveland Indians 2-1 on a homer by Joe Lahoud and Milwaukee Brewers split a doubleheader with California Angels, winning 6-0 and then bowing 9-5.

The White Sox swept their three-game series with Kansas City and in the series finale, Bill Melton belted his 16th homer of the season; Tom Egan delivered three runs with a pair of doubles and Luis Alvarado had three hits.

"It's really a lift playing on this year's club," said Melton, who has collected eight hits and knocked in six runs during the four-game streak.

"It's twice the team it was last year because even when we had that bad streak on the road, the team showed class and never folded."

The Yankees blew a 5-0 ninth-inning lead before taming the Tigers on Michael's first homer of the season.

Rookie Bill Parsons hurled Milwaukee past California in their opener with a five-hitter. But the Angels struck back in the second game with an 18-hit assault to give first-time starter Eddie Fisher his sixth victory in 13 decisions.

Expos Ask Waivers

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos announced Wednesday that they have asked waivers on left-handed relief pitcher John O'Donoghue. The National League club hopes to give the 31-year-old veteran his unconditional release, to make room on the 25-man roster for Stan Swanson, a newly-acquired third baseman-outfielder.

Wise Within Batter Of Pitching Perfection

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Seven years ago Rick Wise watched Jim Bunning pitch a perfect game, then went out and recorded his first major league victory. On Wednesday night, Wise came within one batter of duplicating Bunning's incredible feat.

Wise tossed a no-hitter against Cincinnati Reds—the second in three weeks suffered by the beleaguered National League champions—and led the Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-0 triumph with a pair of home runs.

* * *

Pilot Quiet

CINCINNATI (AP) — Everybody in the Philadelphia Phillies dugout freely talked about it as Rick Wise pitched a no-hitter—4-0—against Cincinnati Reds Wednesday night, except his National League team manager, Frank Lucchesi.

"It's a lot of nonsense about not talking about it," said catcher Tim McCarver.

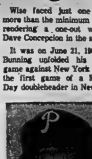
"We discussed it openly in the dugout. I talked about it every inning with Bob Boyle. I even said a few things about it to Lucchesi but he didn't answer."

"I didn't move for about five innings and I'll admit it," said Lucchesi. "I'm superstitious!"

"All I could say, and I must have said it 50 or 100 times, 'Come on Rick.' I figured the man upstairs was helping him. . . ."

"This has to be the biggest thrill of my life," said Wise. He also blasted two home runs, bringing in three of the four runs.

"I feel this is my second no-hitter," said the 195, 6-foot-2 native of Jackson, Mich.



He said his one-hitter against the Dodgers in Los Angeles, Aug. 8, 1968, should have been the first. He complained that an official scorer gave Jeff Torborg a hit when Orlando Penna bobbled a grounder in the third inning.

Wise, who with McCarver and several other Phils complained of head colds, said he didn't feel well before the game. He said he changed sweat shirts three times and after the sixth inning didn't wear any "because it was humid and I started feeling stronger."

"It was a once in a lifetime thing.

Wise faced just one batter more than the minimum 27, surrendering a one-out walk to Dave Concepcion in the sixth.

It was on June 21, 1964, that Bunning unfolded his perfect game against New York Mets in the first game of a Father's Day doubleheader in New York.

RICK WISE

In other league night action, Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Mets 6-2. Montreal Expos clipped Atlanta Braves 6-3, St. Louis Cardinals topped Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1 in 10 innings, San Francisco Giants flipped Chicago Cubs 5-2 in an afternoon game and, in a twi-night doubleheader, San Diego Padres edged Houston Astros 3-2 in a sweep with a 4-3 nightcap triumph.

Roger Freed's second-inning grounder gave Wise the only run he needed, driving in Joe Lis.

"I went to just three pitches," Wise said, "my fast ball, my slider and my curve."

The Pirates, regaining their 4½ game lead over New York in the National League East, were paced by Willie Stargell's three-run homer in the first inning and RBI double in the second.

Rusty Staub led the Expos' triumph with two singles that knocked in three runs and Bob Bailey chipped in with his eighth homer.

The Cardinals tied the game 1-1 in the eighth, then won it in the 10th on run-scoring singles by Lou Brock and Joe Torre off reliever Jim Brewer.

Ken Henderson of the Giants snapped a 2-2 tie with a leadoff homer in the eighth and pitcher Juan Marichal added a two-run blast to whip Chicago.

Johnson Prefers Purgatory

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Playing in hell would be better than playing with California Angels, says controversial Alex Johnson.

"I've got to leave this club," last year's American League batting king told the Milwaukee Sentinel. "Going to hell would even be an improvement.

"There's a lack of mental coordination lack of spirit-lack of everything," Johnson said. The Angels are in Milwaukee to play the Brewers.

Johnson said he is "disliked by two-fifths of his team-mates and his presence on the field is resented.

"The pitchers don't pitch well when I'm in there," he said.

"They say there's too much pressure and are afraid that I'll drop the ball in the outfield. When I'm playing the spirit is down.

"I wouldn't have said no to a trade to Milwaukee," which made overtures for him, Johnson said. "But if I'd have gone to hell, I'd even have preferred that."

Oshawa Sailors Prove Second-guessers Seldom on Course

TORONTO (CP) — The experts are seldom right when it comes to predicting weather and sailing.

No one stopped to consider that Dr. Jack Langmaid and his daughter Nancy of Oshawa, Ont., would have the lead after Wednesday's races in the World Albacore championships. Bill Gooderman of Toronto was the favored choice all the way.

And the weatherman said rain and overcast skies would haunt the opening races.

Wednesday was a cloudless, windless, sunny day and the Oshawa crew combined with nature to wreak havoc on the professional word of soothsayers.

The Langmaids let their sailing skills fight the dead water and winds of the first race Wednesday to post an easy victory over Peter Wells of Huntington, N.Y.

In the second race, the same Canadian crew, runners-up in the North America albacore championship Tuesday, took second gun, leaving them with a points-against total of three.

D. T. Pearce of London, England, ended the day with a third- and a fourth-place finish to move into second in the over-all standings, 10.7 points behind the Langmaids.

Gooderman, the favorite after an easy time in the North American championships earlier in the week, proved to be a disappointment in Wednesday's encounters.

With three firsts and a second in the North American, he looked to be well on his way to another victory in the first race Wednesday until the British crew of Barry Pickthall and Barrie French, both of Essex, England, closed in on him.

The British harassment forced Gooderham into a starboard tack where he lost air and dropped back into 12th position to stay.

In their second race, Goodenham, with 16-year-old son, Bryan, as crew, gained lost confidence with a distant third-place finish behind Jamie Kidd and Langmaid.

Kidd, of Brantford, Ont., looked good in his second-race victory after winning the draw over Langmaid in a two-mile battle for first place. Kidd finished 10th in the first race.

Lights Go Out On Wimbledon Duel

LONDON (CP) — Cliff Richey, the sixth-seeded American, and Roger Taylor, Britain's top professional, return to Wimbledon's centre court today for a "sudden-death" end to their thrilling second-round clash in the men's singles at the All-England tennis championships.

Failing light halted play Wednesday night with the pair locked in a grim duel at seven-all in the fifth set.

Richey won the first set 6-2, lost 3-6 and 2-6, but came back to win the fourth set 6-4 to tie the match. After two protests from Taylor, tournament referee Mike Gibson postponed the match.

Taylor, 29-year-old Yorkshireman, was lame on the centre court last year with a sensational fourth-round victory over Australian Rod Laver, the world's No. 1 who is a fourtime winner here.

Whoever wins today will have only a short rest before switching to the adjacent No. 1 court to play a third-round match against Andrian Panatta, the Italian who surprisingly best tough American Charlie Pasarell Wednesday.

The really big match today will be the centre court showdown between top-seeded Laver and American Clark Graebner, two of the most powerful servers in tennis.

Laver made 16 double faults in a below-par performance against—South African Ray Moore Wednesday and was twice within a point of being taken on five sets.

Laver emerged on top, 6-8, 6-3, 6-2, 7-5, to become one of the 32 men to reach the third round.

Two other seeded Americans, Stan Smith and Arthur Ashe also made it to the third round. Smith cruised past John Fabish of Britain 6-1, 6-4, 6-4. Ashe mastered Patrick Proisy of the French Davis Cup team, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Sentimental favorite Pancho Gonzales was beaten by Pierre Barthes of France, 7-5, 8-9, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, in a centre court duel which lasted more than three hours.

Rosemary Casals of the U.S., No. 4 seed in the women's singles, was beaten 7-5, 6-4 by Kerry Melville, the Australian with the powerful forehand.

Billy Jean King of the U.S., three times champion and seeded No. 2, steadied her game after an erratic start to beat Australian Wendy Gilchrist 4-6, 6-1, 6-0 in a second-round match.

Eighth-seeded Helga Masthoff, the elegant West German who was the only player to win a set from Margaret Court at last year's Wimbledon, conceded a set against Gail Chanfreau of France, then won 1-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Australian Evonne Goolagong, No. 3, advanced with a 6-4, 6-1 win over Kris Kemmer of the U.S. Fifth-seeded Virginia Wade of Britain tripped Marilyn Greenwood of Britain 6-1, 6-4.

PLAYER HAS PROBLEMS — Gary Player, who found himself in a sand trap in second-round play in last week's U.S. Open had other things on his mind. Player was accompanied around the course by a uniformed security guard after two spectators needled the South African about his country's racial policy. South Africa has banned black athletes from participating there. (AP Wirephoto)

Alouettes Eating Like True Champs

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes eat not only the breakfast of champions, but lunch and dinner as well.

Players at the early training camp of the 1970 Grey Cup champions consume anywhere from 3,000 to 5,000 carlories daily, says trainer Dan (Smoky) Diebert.

A typical breakfast consists of three eggs, five ounces of bacon, grapefruit or watermelon, cereal, toast, honey, jam and cookies six inches in diameter.

For dinner it's a well-done 18-ounce steak with baked potato and chef's salad. Then comes cake, pastry, yogurt and ice cream.

Some 80 players are at the training camp in nearby Vaudreuil and have a rigid eating schedule. Anyone not at the table at 7 a.m., noon or 6 p.m. doesn't eat.

The group is expected to be cut down considerably before next Tuesday's game with the Canadian Football League all-stars headed by Calgary coach Jim Duncan.

Trainer Diebert says the food intake by players includes lots of lean meat and other proteins, fresh vegetables and fruits, especially juicy fruits such as watermelon and cantaloupe, cottage cheese, yogurt, ice cream and sweets.

Soup, meat, cottage cheese, coleslaw, rolls, milk, lemonade, cantaloupe and cookies are on the noon menu, which sometimes includes grilled salmon and potatoes.

No in-between snacks are served, although the players are urged to drink all the soft drinks, lemonade, iced tea, coffee and water they can hold.

Salt tablets and soft drinks are distributed as the players leave the practice field. They also get ascorbic acid, glucose and dextrose in water form to fight fatigue.

Before a game, vegetables and starches are slashed from the menu. Still available are iced drinks, dry toast, lean steak, grapes, honey and those tasty dextrose wafers.

OTTAWA (CP) — Quarterback Rick Cassata, last year with Saskatchewan Roughriders, made a successful debut with Ottawa Rough Riders Wednesday, taking the Reds to a 35-20 intra-squad football victory over the Whites under Gary Wood.

The lanky 24-year-old scored one touchdown and passed to rookie end Rhome Nixon of Southern Illinois for another.

Gerry Organ, rookie kicker from the University of Guelph, also had a big night for the Reds kicking three field goals, two singles and three converts.

In the same meet, world record-holder Jay Silvester of the United States beat Swede Rick Bruch, throwing the discus 216 feet 11 inches against Bruch's 208 2¼.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Stan Mikita, centre-ice star of Chicago Black Hawks, had a day in his honor Wednesday, dramaxed by a $20-a-plate testimonial dinner.

Funds from the gathering will be used to establish a bursary in his name at Brock University.

HAMBURG, N.Y. (CP) — Attache squelled his national season record of 2:08.3 for 2-year-old pacing geldings at Buffalo Raceway Wednesday when he took the New York Sires stakes Division title by half-length over Terrific Freight.

Ellis Picking Up Title Scent

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Ellis once had a sniff of the sweet smell of success. Now, he hopes to pick up the scent again by besting Muhammad Ali.

Ellis and Ali, eyeing a crack at heavyweight champion Joe Frazier who has beaten both of them, will fight a scheduled 12-rounder July 26 in the Houston Astrodome, which will be seen on closed-circuit television.

"Every fighter's dream is to be champion," Ellis said in an interview Wednesday. "I had a taste of it.

"I want the whole hog. I'm going for everything."

Ellis' taste was the World Boxing Association title he gained while Ali was in banishment from boxing when he was convicted for refusing induction into the Army.

MUHAMMAD ALI

It wasn't a very rich taste. After winning the final of the WBA tournament, he was stopped by Frazier in five rounds in a bout for universal championship recognition Feb. 16, 1970.

The soft-spoken, 31-year-old Ellis, Ali's former sparring partner, has had only three fights since Frazier, winning them all.

His post-Frazier opponents have been Roberto Davila, Tony Doyle and Tdronto's George Chuvalo, a trio of fighters whose chances of a shot at the championship range from non-existent to very slim.

Player Not Skipping Our Open

MONTREAL (CP) — Gary Player will compete in the Canadian Open scheduled for Montreal's Richelieu Valley Golf Club July 1-4, contrary to reports that he had withdrawn.

The South African golfer, bothered by hecklers at last weekend's United States Open at Aronimink, withdrew from this week's Cleveland Open which begins at the Beechmont Country Club Thursday.

A Cleveland report said Player, admittedly upset by the hecklers who were protesting South Africa's racial policies, would also skip the Canadian event.

But a spokesman for the sponsors of the Canadian Open said he had received assurance by telephone Wednesday that Player will compete in the $150,000 tournament.

4-PLY NYLON CHAMPION WITH

3 SPECIAL KINDS OF STRENGTH:

1 We start with the proven strength of Nylon cord. We coat every single cord under tension with a special compound of rubber and chemicals. This ensures that the cords will be inseparably bonded together. No one else combats ply separation so effectively.

2 You want a good strong sidewall to fight flexing action. So we wrap the cord plies around the bead and back up the sidewall. You get a double wall of strength where you need it most.

3 Our tread is something special. It's made of our unique tread rubber formula called Duo-Hy-Tuf. Because it is super tough. The modern blocked tread design gives you a good grip on the road. And to keep the tread in place we permanently bond it to the cord body, so only we have how.

One Dead, 16 Trapped In Water Tunnel Blast

LOS, ANGELES (AP) — At least one workman was killed and 16 others believed trapped early today when an explosion ripped through an underground water tunnel, city fire officials said.

A department spokesman said firemen lowered into the tunnel found one body before they were driven out by heat and intense smoke which isolated the workers inside the tunnel.

The spokesman said there was immediate danger of suffocation because air vents into the tunnel had been destroyed by the blast, believed caused by natural gas, accidentally ignited by the workers.

Education Spending Ceilings Haven't Meant Low Quality

TORONTO (CP) — Teacher and trustee groups Wednesday told the Ontario legislature's Human resources committee that education spending ceilings have not resulted in a "general deterioration" of education quality.

Dr. Gordon White, president of the Ontario School Trustees Council, told the committee the council supports the ceilings but wants consultation in future years when ceilings are created "so that possible inequities might be resolved."

Robert Saunders, research officer of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation, agreed the trustees are "saying much the same thing we have said."

Mr. White's request for consultation was supported by Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) who told education department officials they "would do well to suggest a continuing process of consultation to the minister."

Current ceilings limit boards of education to per-pupil expenditures of $545 for elementary students and $1,000 for secondary school students.

J. R. Thompson, assistant director of planning for the department, said it is likely the elementary ceilings will approach closer to the secondary ceilings in the future. One reason is that Ontario will require future elementary school teachers to have a degree and this means they will expect to be paid more.

Police Get Shorts

BROCKPORT, N.Y. (AP) — Bermuda shorts have been approved for the 12-man police force in Brockport. It was announced Wednesday.

"Wearing them will be optional," Chief Donald M Hare said. "I'm not going to force anyone."

Road to Avoid Domination

Bissell Makes Plea to Understand America

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians, to avoid American domination, "must understand, and not repudiate, our great neighbor," Dr. Claude Bissell, retiring president of the University of Toronto, said Wednesday night.

"Understanding America does not mean accepting America," he told more than 300 delegates to the Ontario conference on economic and cultural nationalism.

"Our nation was launched, in part, because of our fear of the United States and our determination to order our affairs differently.

"We shall achieve a national serenity when the fear and the cry-in values cease to be characteristic when we live and flourish in our own sovereign right," Dr. Bissell said.

Dr. Bissell said there is, among the American people, a profound indifference to Canada.

"We have all participated in American-Canadian discussions in which the American members are puzzled by Canadian concerns for identity and genuinely distressed by Canadian assertiveness and hostility.

"We explain to our American friends that our concern arises from the pressure of great impersonal forces — geographic, economic, political and cultural — that have been with us since the beginning of our national existence and that today seem to be moving towards a menancing resolution."

Although Canada does not have the old-fashioned kind of nationalism, which requires a self-assurance and the capacity for symbolic recreation of the past, "when we are sober . . . we are concerned with survival, a concern just as deep in the hearts of English Canadians as of French Canadians," he said.

Earlier, Premier William Davis summarized in one word the way his government viewed foreign intervention in the economy and culture of Canada, particularly Ontario—HELP!

"Help us in government to find the course of action that will enhance our Canadianism in all respects that do honor to the best that is within us. Help us find answers to questions which disturb us all as to the actual nature of Canadian reality."

He asked the first session of the three-day conference if it was possible to be "truly independent in the modern world."

"For that matter, is it desirable?"

Today, the real and apparent costs to Canadians of economic nationalism will be discussed by E. A. Goodman, a Toronto lawyer, L. R. Wilson, director of research for John Labatt Ltd, and R. W. Bonner, senior vice-president of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd, and former attorney-general of British Columbia.

They will be joined in a panel discussion by Dr. R. M. MacIntosh, deputy chief general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, and C. Norman Simpson, president of Acres Group, an international development company.

Satchmo Testing His Chops

NEW YORK (AP) — Louis (Satchmo) Armstrong, who nearly died this spring, now is practising his gold-plated trumpet an hour a day and thinking about going back to work when his treaders get into as good shape as his chops.

His chops, his lips, he says, are fine.

His treaders, his legs, he says, are his weakest spot. But a therapist visits his home twice a week and Armstrong says he is walking better all the time, though using a cane for the first time in his life.

The New Orleans-born trumpeter says a tracheotomy given when he had stopped breathing for four seconds in the hospital has not harmed his horn blowing and may have improved his singing voice.

"I thought they was cutting some of the tone out of my throat," he said. "But it is even better."

Agree on Ills

Laxer, Kierans Differ On Cure

TORONTO (CP) — Eric Kierans and James Laxer agreed Wednesday night on what's wrong with the Canadian economy.

But they had vastly different solutions to the problem at the opening of the Ontario NDP conference on economic nationalism.

Both told a crowd of approximately 1,000 that Canada must stop being mainly a supplier of natural resources and become an industrial nation.

However, Mr. Kierans, who recently quit the federal cabinet over economic policy, opposed the call for public ownership of the resource industries made by Mr. Laxer, one of the leaders of the NDP's nationalistic Waffle faction.

Mr. Kierans, who said manufacturing industries employ 10 to 15 times as many persons as resource industries, urged a policy to give Canadians a chance to get in on the private ownership of resources and companies.

An environment must be created, he said, which will transfer "assets from those who live off them to young Canadians who can use them."

When new resources are found, he said there is no necessity for the government to develop them immediately with foreign capital. Such action "makes us vulnerable to the people with cash."

He attacked the government for "running around" selling resources to foreign owners. Suggestions that substitutes for minerals will be developed if Canada doesn't sell now are "nonsense" he said.

Mr. Laxer said public ownership of resources industries would place the key sector of the economy in the hands of the people.

"It would give Canadians the opportunity to master the skills necessary to run our economy and to develop it qualitatively in the interests of human well-being in Canada."

He charged Canadian capitalists sold out Canada in the first place.

"I see no reason to include them in our efforts to get it back."

However, Mr. Kierans said it would cost at least $2 billion to nationalize the energy and resources industries, and the money could be better used to create new industries and jobs and to reduce taxes for lower-income people.

Mr. Laxer urged the Canadian government not to enter into any energy deal involving export of gas and oil to the United States.

Tobacco Firms Face Hazard In Sponsorship of Sports

OTTAWA (CP) — If Parliament passes a government bill in time, it will be illegal starting Jan. 1, 1972, to promote the sale of cigarettes.

The question facing tobacco companies then will be whether their sponsorship of sports events is an offence under the proposed law.

David McCarthy, legal adviser to the federal health department, said in an interview Wednesday that there is no one answer to the question.

"It will depend upon the facts in each case," he said.

Thus the Macdonald Tobacco Co. might be able to continue sponsoring the Canadian Curling Championships but Du-Maurier might be stopped from putting up the money for its annual ski meet. Or vice-versa.

None of the 19 clauses of the proposed legislation deals with the validity of cigarette companies sponsoring sports event.

This was deliberate, Mr. McCarthy said.

"There are no end of variations" and to try to cover all of them would have been to invite troubles.

"The key word is promotion," he added.

Tobacco companies that also manufacture cigars and pipe tobacco, which do not come under the ban, might have an easy out.

Mr. McCarthy said he isn't looking forward to companies coming to him to ask for guidance. They are entitled to his advice but court action still could result even if it was followed to the letter.

Bulgarian Roses

The Bulgaria rose, which provides the basic oil for most great perfumes, is the heart of a thriving industry in Bulgaria. Once a worker's apron is filled with petals, they are dumped into a coarse sack and it is placed at the roadside for transportation to the factory. It takes four tons of rose petals to produce 2½ pounds of pure rose attar. (CP Photo)

Trudeau Cheered on Street, Booed at Game

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was serenaded in the streets Wednesday, but the tune changed as the sun went down.

He was booed lustily by an overflow crowd of 21,000 when he entered Varsity Stadium to kick off an exhibition soccer game in the evening. Later, three of the stunning rout of the Liberal government in Saskatchewan reached him as he returned to Ottawa after a two-day wind-sniffing tour here.

Mr. Trudeau had no comment on the results.

The defeat of Ross Thatcher's government wasn't unexpected but the magnitude was.

Liberals recently lost the Ontario riding of Brant, where labor has been hit by industrial layoffs, to the New Democrats in a federal byelection.

The Toronto tour was Mr. Trudeau's third brief sweep of an Ontario area this year. Earlier he visited Niagara Falls and Hamilton.

He played down talk of a fall election but at times Tuesday and Wednesday appeared to be near campaigning.

He made a surprise visit to the Kensington Market Wednesday, accompanied by Peter Stollery, Liberal candidate for Toronto Spadina.

The riding was won for the Liberals in 1968 by Perry Ryan, who later decided to sit as a Conservative after becoming disenchanted with the Trudeau government.

Mr. Trudeau was at his charming best bantering with immigrant, fruit and poultry sellers at outdoor stalls in the downtown market. Liberal organizers introduced him to the New Canadians.

"It's only in a great country like this you could shake hands with the prime minister," a woman said happily.

However, unemployment and inflation apparently have taken their toll.

"We want jobs—not charisma."

Mr. Trudeau offered jobs to the dozen protesters—as miners in far-away Sudbury, Ont., or Thompson, Man. He startled a girl holding a sign saying Stick Your Policies by suggesting she get a job as a maid.

It was the only time the tough side of the prime minister was evident during the two days.

At rural Aurora, north of Toronto, his replies to points in a brief from area mayors were politic. There was no sharpness.

The moderate tone continued Wednesday.

Placing the cornerstone at Women's College Hospital, he ignored a tiny chanting group of self - styled Trotskyites who sought free birth control and abortion on demand.

He aimed his remarks instead at the hundreds of nurses, hospital patrons and others present for the ceremony, recalling that the hospital had grown out of the efforts of suffragettes in the 1880s to get women into the medical profession.

The Trotskyites were there again as he entered the Toronto Men's Press Club for a News conference, but construction workers across the street drowned them out with cheers.

At the news conference, the questions were mostly about his reaction to Quebec's rejection of the Victoria charter.

Mr. Trudeau said he doesn't regard the rejection as a personal failure in the constitutional talks. He recalled saying in 1967, when Ontario launched another move to renovate the constitution, that governments were getting into a can of worms.

He put the ball in Quebec's court, predicting that constitutional conferences will wither away unless Quebec breaks the current impasse.

But he also described Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa as a federalist and as a shrewd man at the bargaining table.

Another reporter asked whether the Saskatchewan election results might lead him to call a federal election.

The Trudeau government won only two of the province's 13 seats in the 1968 election. Mr. Trudeau replied:

"No, I don't think it will. We didn't exactly sweep Saskatchewan last time. We have no place to go but up."

Two OPP Officers Guilty

TORONTO (CP) — A county court judge Wednesday found two senior provincial police officers guilty of insubordination for disobeying an order forbidding them to socialize with Burlington businessman George Clinton Duke.

Judge Harry Steen tentatively set June 29 as the date for sentencing Staff Superintendent Archibald Rodger and Superintendent Albert Wilson.

Both men were suspended with pay by OPP Commissioner Eric Silk June 26 last year after evidence at a judicial inquiry showed they had attended functions at the home of Mr. Duke, who has a criminal record.

Judge Steen found the two guilty of insubordination in attending a barbecue at Mr. Duke's estate, despite Silk's order not to associate with him.

However, the judge dismissed six other charges against them and found that neither officer "at any time allowed any association with George Clinton Duke to affect his conduct in carrying out his duties as a member of the force in any way."

The officers had been accused of bringing discredit to the force by associating with Mr. Duke, central figure in an inquiry last year for his alleged associations with OPP officers and underworld figures in Hamilton.

Mr. Duke, convicted of an armed robbery in the United States in 1930, was cleared of improper relations with police and criminals in the inquiry.

Judge Steen dismissed a charge of discreditable conduct and one charge of insubordination against Rodger, and also dismissed three counts of discreditable conduct and one of insubordination against Wilson.

Possible penalties for insubordination include a reprimand, fine, forfeiture of days off or holidays, reduction in rank or dismissal from the force.

All First Class Mail Goes Overseas by Air

OTTAWA (CP) — Beginning July 1, all letters mailed overseas from Canada will go air-mail at a minimum cost of 15 cents.

The United States is the only foreign country to which surface-mail deliveries will be continued.

Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote announced the new system in the Commons Wednesday.

He said surface-mail letters from Canada—which travel by ship to overseas countries—have been taking an average of 36 days to arrive.

Letters of up to one ounce will cost 15 cents under the new plan, no matter which overseas country they are headed for, excepting the U.S.

Those between one ounce and two ounces will cost 30 cents; those between two and four ounces will cost 40 cents; and those between four and eight ounces will cost 90 cents.

The previous air mail rates were 15 cents per half ounce to countries with preferred mail agreements in Europe and South America, and 25 cents per half ounce to Asia and other areas without preferred agreements.

For Canadians who have used surface mail to send letters abroad, rates will go up with the speed of delivery.

It now costs six cents to send a surface-mail letter of up to one ounce to countries with preferred rates, such as Britain, France, Spain, Ireland and all South American countries.

For non-preferred countries, such as Denmark, the Soviet Union, and those in Asia, it costs 13 cents to send such a letter.

Mr. Cote said mailers must still affix a blue air-mail sticker to their letters, even though they would all be going by air. This would ensure that they went air all the way, rather than just on the first leg of their journey.

A new category of international mail called small packets will also be introduced on July 1.

It will provide a more economical air service for items weighing up to one pound, the minister said, that would be cheaper than parcel post.

Mr. Cote said Canada will become the first country in the world to introduce international mail service carried almost entirely by air.

MEATY HAUL

PATENSIE, South Africa (AP) — Thieves stole traffic cop W. J. Deyzel's official station wagon, and used it to haul off a butcher shop's safe. The vehicle was recovered undamaged and the safe was emptied of $36.

Guilty Plea Does Not End Probe of Yablonski Murders

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — Despite a guilty plea to murder charges and a detailed statement from a key defendant, authorities say their investigation into the 1969 slayings of United Mine Workers insurgent Joseph A. (Jock) Yablonski and his wife and daughter is far from closed.

"The FBI has been looking, is looking and will continue to look for where the money came from to finance these slayings," said Thomas Henderson, a U.S. justice department lawyer, after Claude E. Vesley entered his guilty plea Wednesday in Washington County common pleas court.

In a 15-page 2,500-word statement read after the plea, Vesley said he and two accomplices were paid a total of $5,000 by a man he knew only as "Tony" to execute the killings. Vesley indicated that he never saw "Tony," that the killings and payment were arranged by a go-between.

In Washington, a spokesman for the United Mine Workers said there was no connection between the Tony in Vesley's statement and UMW President W. A. (Tony) Boyle, who defeated Yablonski for the union presidency after a bitter campaign that ended three weeks before the Yablonski murders.

Special state prosecutor Richard Sprague called Vesley's plea and statement "just the first step up the ladder."

"We have four others to prosecute," Sprague said, "and it could be more." Four persons besides Vesley are charged in the Yablonski slayings.

Vesley's statement told of how he and his accomplices stalked Yablonski for months before the slayings, nd of how they finally broke into his home in nearby Clarksville and pumped bullet after bullet into their victims from bedroom doorways. The bodies were found Dec. 31, 1969.

Vesley pleaded guilty to three counts of murder, one for each of the victims.

In return for the plea and his statement, federal and state officials agreed to drop several secondary charges against Vesley—among them counts of conspiracy, burglary, larceny, robbery and breaking and entering.

Boiler Conversion Costs Only $337

Coal fire boilers at the Hastings Manor are to be converted for the use of natural gas or oil but only a small percentage of the $18,337 cost will be borne by the county.

Wednesday Hastings county council approved the lender of Eclipse Fuel Engineering Co. of Dee Mills for the conversion job.

But Northern and Central Gas Corporation Ltd., has agreed to make a cash contribution to the project in return for a contract by the county to purchase gas. The company's contribution will be $13,000 which will practically pay for the complete conversion.

In return the county will purchase natural gas from the company for a period of seven yeffs at a fixed rate.

Annual fuel costs for natural gas at the boiler are estimated at $14,000, which according to Borden-Forsythe, boss for the Aged committee chairman, is somewhat less than has been experienced by the use of coal.

Posts Serenade Senior Citizens

PICTON (Staff) — Senior citizens' week at Prince Edward County Home for the Aged last night was highlighted with the sound of music supplied by the Singing Post Family, The Cherry Valley Sweethearts and the Brended Men.

County home residents were entertained with the country and western songs of Norman Post, daughters Joanne and Debbie, and show stealer, eight-year-old Kenny. This outdoor "rock festival" for the "over 65" was one of several programs scheduled this week for senior citizens' enjoyment. Other guests attending the song fest included a number of Picton's senior citizens who arrived by chartered bus.

County home superintendent George Ross said residents will be entertained tonight by the Dunlop Orchestra. Friday evening another musical group, The Acoustics, will salute Prince Edward's senior citizens in song.

County warden Allan Anderson officially opened senior citizens' week at the Home for the Aged last Sunday assisted by Rev. Robert Jones, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Picton. Music for the opening day was provided by the Picton Odd Fellows Band led by Creighton Lockyer.

LYN D. HARRINGTON, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Harrington, RR 2, Frankford, received his honors bachelor of arts degree in politics from Trent University, Peterborough, at a recent convocation. Mr. Harrington is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School, Belleville and will attend MacArthur College of Education, Kingston, this fall.

Obituary

BENJAMIN REGIS

The funeral of Benjamin Regis, RR 2, Marmora, who died on Sunday, June 20 in Belleville General Hospital, was held at the Bowden Funeral Home on Tuesday, June 22. He was in his 81st year.

Mr. Regis was born in Turino, Italy, educated there and in London, England. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Regis.

He was a retired tool and die maker, having worked in Batawa for 20 years and in Oshawa for 17 years.

He is survived by one brother, John, of Naples, Florida and two sisters, Miss Josephine Regis and Miss Zena Regis of London, England.

Interment took place in Marmora Protestant Cemetery with the Rev. J. E. Peters officiating.

Seven Subdivisions Opposed

Planning Sought For County Lake Areas

The Hastings county planning board feels that large scale lake area housing developments should be discouraged until the official plan for the county planning area is completed.

This was suggested in the report of the planning board to county council on Wednesday.

Reeve John Wilkes, county planning board chairman, said at the last meeting of the board seven proposed plans of subdivision had been considered for various municipalities.

The board had the benefit of written reports from its planning consultants on all the plans of subdivision and for the most part have recommended to the department that the plans be turned down.

In most instances, the report said, subdividers were not proposing to provide roads built to municipal standards. Lot sizes in some cases were too small and in some instances the subdivisions were proposed for low swampy grounds.

And in most cases far too many lots were being created, especially with respect to waterfront development.

Board consultants were said to be well under way with the planning program. Air photo coverage for the complete county, together with base maps for the northern section have been completed.

Planning consultants have prepared policy guidelines for the county land division committee. These guidelines were said to be rather restrictive in nature, and for the most part provide only for development in urban centres and in areas adjacent to existing hamlets, built-up area or for in-filling. Lot sizes and lot frontages are also recommended.

According to the old familiar saying, possession is nine points of the law.

And that was the stand taken Wednesday by Hastings county council when it took no action on a request for a strip of property in Herschel township to be quit claimed to Ontman Wood Products which is establishing a chip mill plant in the area.

Frankford Reeve William F. Rose, chairman of the county finance and property committee, said the subject strip of land 166 feet in width across Lot 4, Concession 1 in the northern township had been fenced as part of the county reforestation property.

But a recent survey showed that the strip amounting to 2.21 acres rightfully belongs to the Ontman property. Mr. Ontman offered to pay the county $65, plus the county's legal costs for the transaction.

The property committee was prepared to recommend transfer of the land strip providing it had not been reforested, but a report by two northern reeves, Jesse Carr and Ray Hannah said the strip had been planted to pines, some of which were now 20 feet high.

Northern reeves estimated the value of the planted strip to be $1,000 and council voted it not be conveyed to the chip mill company.

Rose Festival Weekend

Thirty to Vie for Rose Queen

Everything's coming up roses this weekend, as Belleville Horticultural Society presents its annual Rose Festival, African violet show and Rose Queen contest June 26 and 27.

More than 30 young women have entered the Rose Queen contest, where they will be rated for appearance, poise, personality, grooming and speech.

The contest will be the first event of the show, taking place in Centennial Secondary School's cafeteria at 1 p.m.

At the same time, judging of flowers will be going on in the double gyms at the school, and visitors who arrive early are invited to watch the judging of the queen until the rose festival begins at 2:45 p.m.

Mayor Russell J. Scott will open the festival and the president of the Ontario Horticultural Society, Phil Dodds of Picton, will be in attendance.

Brooks Bond Foods are sponsors of the Rose Queen contest and have put up prizes of $500, $300 and $100 for the queen and the two runners-up for the title.

Although the festival features roses and African violets, visitors will have the opportunity to view numerous other exhibits, including commercial displays, art, and demonstrations. The show continues until 10 p.m. Saturday night and from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

It ends with a giant auction, when bidders have a chance to buy the prize winning flowers on display.

Barbeau Best Shot

Rick Barbeau's hat - trick for Queen's Motor Hotel highlighted an otherwise strictly defensive night in the Bellerville Minor Lacrosse bantam schedule.

Barbeau's three tallies paced the Queens team to a 5-3 victory over Bud Gill Appliances. Chris Rutledge and Gord Wilcox were the other Queens' scorers.

A two - goal performance by John Green led Bob's Sports to a 3-1 victory over the 707 Jets.

Fired the other Sport's goal while Kirk McNally was the only Jet to break the scoring ice.

Towers Food City and Simpsons - Sears battled to a 2-2 draw in the final game of the evening. Don Edwards and Roger Chapman scored for Simpsons while John Lowe accounted for both Food City markers.

FEATURE TIMES

AT THE DELLS — Dustin Hoffman stars in the title role "Little Big Man" with Chief Dan George, Martin Balsam, Faye Dunaway. Recommended as adult entertainment. Can complete performance nightly at 7:45. Doors open 7:15.

AT THE PARK — In Color — Starting today and Saturday, a very funny, very intelligent and a very affecting movie "Little Minister" starring Elliott Gould, Ronald Sinclair, Vincent Gardenia. Second evening showings 7:15 and 9:15. Restricted to patrons 18 years of age and over.
